Freeway Mishap Claims Life Of Pennsylvania Man

A Pennsylvania man lost his life in a freeway mishap on Saturday evening, according to reports filed by the Maryland State Police, McHenry Barrack.

Randall S. Hafer, 28, Port Royal, Pa., died at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, as the result of injuries sustained in the 7:25 p.m. accident.

The accident occurred when the 1990 Chevrolet compact truck Hafer was operating on U.S. 48 near Finzel overturned.

Hafer was traveling east near the Finzel Road when he lost control of the truck and ran off the right shoulder of the road. The vehicle returned to the roadway and veered across the highway, striking the median strip guardrail and overturned. The truck came to rest on its wheels.

State Police cited alcohol, speed and driver error as contributing factors in the accident. Also, Hafer was not wearing a safety belt.

Tpr. S.W. Vincent investigated the accident. Hafer was transported to the hospital by the MSP Medevac helicopter. Various other fire and rescue departments were also called to the scene.

In a separate accident, an Oakland woman was treated for injuries she sustained in a 9:55 p.m. one-vehicle mishap on the Glendale Road on Sunday.

Barbara E. Beeman, 37, Oakland, was a passenger in the 1981 Subaru GL, operated by Leonard L. Beeman, 35, Oakland.

They were traveling west on the Glendale Road when the operator lost control of the vehicle and ran off the left side of the road and struck some shrubbery.

Mrs. Beeman was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Rescue Squad.

Tpr. Wayne R. Dixon investigated the accident.

DWI ARRESTS

Gary L. Mellon, 31, McKeesport, Pa., was charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol on September 2 by Trp. Wayne R. Dixon.

Tfc. P.R. Brown arrested Eric J. Williams, 21, Alexandria, Va., on September 3 and charged him with DWI.

Correction Noted

It was incorrectly reported in last week's edition of The Republican that Brian K. Pachilis had been charged with DWI (driving while under the influence of alcohol). Actually, Pachilis was charged only with negligent driving. We regret the error and apologize for any inconvenience.

THE SUMMER IS SHOT for local school children, who were forced to return to the classroom this week. The photo above was taken at about 12:30 p.m. yesterday at Southern Middle School, as over 700 middle school students were being dismissed and nearly 400 Southern High School students were outside waiting to enter Southern Middle. Because of the renovation project now underway at Southern High, the split shifting of students and teachers is necessary. Motorists are reminded to be particularly aware of bus traffic, as students are being transported to and from school early in the morning, at midday, and in the evening.

New Beacon Program Courses Slated At GCC

Three new special interest Beacon Program courses have recently been added to the fall semester course offerings at Garrett Community College, according to Joan B. Crawford, director of enrollment development. The new courses will begin the week of September 17 at the McHenry campus of the college.

Students will be able to take these courses for college credit and receive grades in them, or they will be able to audit them. Tuition and fees for credit or audit are the same, and tuition is waived for persns 60 years of age or older. Students will view a different film each week, with an introduction and discussion period led by a guest lecturer.

Students may take this course for three credits, or they may elect to audit the course for a period of four, eight, or 12 weeks by paying the equivalent of one credit tuition for each of these components. Some films to be included in the course are "The World of Apu" (India), "Woman of the Dunes" (Japan), "Red Desert" (Italy), "The Seventh Seal" (Sweden), "Ballad of Narayama" (Japan), and "Hiroshima Mon Amour" (France).

Local Students Greatly Improve On SAT Scores

Data recently released by the College Board's Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) reflect a significant improvement in the combined SAT scores (both verbal and mathematical) of Garrett County junior and senior students. In fact, the combined mean score of 103 area juniors and seniors who took the test last school year was higher than the national average, as well as closely matched to Maryland's median scores.

Maryland has the second highest average score in the nation among states with over 50 percent participation, according to a report from the Maryland State Department of Education.

Local students taking the test last year scored an average of 429 on the verbal portion of the test while scoring an average of 477 on the mathematical. Of the 1,025,523 students in the United States who took the test, the average verbal score was 424 while the average mathematical score was 476.

Of the 29,111 students in Maryland who took the test, the average verbal score was 430 while the average mathematical score was 478.

Although the local school system has only been subscribing to the College Board reporting service for the past three years due to costs, this year's area scores show a steady improvement over the three-year period.

Beginning in 1988, verbal scores of local students were 410 compared to the U.S. average of 428, while mathematical scores averaged 455 compared to a national average of 476. In 1989, verbal score averages for local students remained almost identical (411) to those of 1988, but the mathematical average score improved to 479, exceeding the U.S. average of 476.

Kim Grimm Completes Preliminary Competitions In Atlantic City

by Gene Welk

Live from Atlantic City it's Kimberly Ann Grimm, Garrett County's own Miss America candidate!

Preliminary competitions have been completed at the 70th Miss America Pageant. Miss Maryland is relaxed, feeling positive and happy about the events of the past week. She was upbeat and animated in her talent performance on Tuesday night. In her most recent interview Kim said that she selected a popular song for her presentation because she "wanted to stand out by being unique." The decision on the song, "One, Two, Three," was made after she saw Gloria Estefan and Miami Sound Machine in concert.

Last night she appeared in evening gown and will appear in swim suit today. Her evening gown, designed especially for her, was white vermilion with mandarin neckline, accented with gold beading at the neck and bodice. Her competition swim suit was also white.

According to Miss Grimm, the private interview was fast-paced with rapid fire questions. She noted that subjects ranged from her opinions on government involvement in the savings and loan crisis to feminist Gloria Steinheim's place as a role model for young women.

Remaining activities at the national pageant include the Boardwalk Parade on Friday, when each contestant will be escorted individually in her own Chevrolet convertible (Chevrolet Division of General Motors is one of the sponsors of the national pageant). Miss Maryland will be supported by a large contingent of family and friends from Garrett County, as well as five bands from the State of Maryland which will appear in the parade.

Saturday is Awards Day. The final competition will take place among the top 10 contestants on Saturday evening; it will be televised nationally over NBC (locally on Channels 10, Hagerstown, and 18, Johnstown, Pa.). Over $220,000 in scholarships will be awarded to participants in this year's pageant. Every young woman who competes in Atlantic City is guaranteed at least a $2,500 scholarship from the national sponsors. The top 10 contestants will receive scholarships varying from $6,000 up to $35,000 for the new

DC Lake Group Petitions Against Bridge Plan

A group of Deep Creek Lake property and landowners are currently circulating a petition concerning the Glendale Bridge project urging the Garrett County Commissioners to "alter their thinking on the proposed rebuilding of the Glendale Bridge on its current alignment," according to the petition.

Spokesman for the group, Jan Finkel, a lake property owner, stated, "We hope their decision is not final, and that they will be willing to amend their position."

The current plan calls for the superstructure of the bridge to be built over the existing pier, which would close the bridge for nine to twelve months, affecting businesses in the area as well as hampering emergency services and creating inconveniences for residents and tourists.

The petition, which will be delivered to the board of commissioners late this week or early next week, states the following reasons for not rebuilding the bridge on its current substructure.

1. Such a closure will bring about irrevocable damage to businesses and services both on the lake and in Oakland, so much so that many people may lose their jobs;

2. People who use the bridge — local businesses, property owners, commuters to and from work, and tourists — will be subject to disruption, delays, and detours;

3. Proposed detour routes such as Toothpick and Rock Lodge Roads are clearly inadequate to handle the increased flow of traffic, and are indeed unsafe;

4. Safety, police, rescue and fire professionals will be forced to take alternate routes, thereby endangering property and life;

5. The work can be done properly on a new alignment for relatively little extra money ($1.6 million), which may be obtained in a variety of ways — an action that would eliminate the previously cited reasons.

Finkel stated that approximately 700 signatures had been obtained as of Wednesday.

Meat Processing Firm To Locate In Industrial Park

The Garrett County Commissioners this week announced that a new meat processing facility will be developed in the county, known as Mountain Fresh Meats, that will "add another dimension to the agricultural products industry that we're trying to foster in Garrett County," according to Garrett County Economic Development Director Tom Jones.

The firm, which will be located in the Southern Garrett Industrial Park, will utilize locally produced meats, including beef, lamb and goat meat, and then sell the meat directly to metropolitan restaurants, according to Dale Miller, spokesman for the group.

Miller stated that the firm decided to move into Garrett County "because of its stable labor base. We also think the agricultural base that's already here will provide a constant supply for our College Park operation."

The firm's parent company is located in College Park under the name of HG Meats.

The facility will employ approximately 25 to 30 local employees and will expand to 50 or 60 in about three years, noted Miller.

Jones stated, "This business is really another dimension to our Mountain Fresh Products marketing program that we are now doing with fresh vegetable and fruit produce."

Miller commented that he expects the popularity of that program to complement the meat processing firm. He added that the name Mountain Fresh was chosen because of the produce operation already in place in the county.

Commissioner Elwood L. Groves II said, "This is another step in our endeavors to diversify the local economy and to attract new entrepreneurs in the county."

He added, "This is a particularly good type of business for Garrett County. We're excited because it means more diversity, more jobs, and will be a major outlet for our agricultural community to become more productive and more profitable."

Groves further noted that the company will not be in competition with the local meat processing facilities already here because they use different products and cater to a different market.

He stated, "This is an ideal situation because it's basically taking Garrett County products and selling them at the metropolitan market. Virtually 100 percent of the dollars will be coming in from outside the county.

Evening High School Classes Begin Sept. 17

Evening high school classes will begin on Monday, September 17, according to John A. Ledden, coordinator of the program for the Garrett County Board of Education. Classes will be offered at both Northern and Southern High Schools, subject to sufficient enrollment.

All courses follow the curriculum approved by the Board of Education and are taught by certified teachers. Courses completed with a passing grade earn credit toward a regular Maryland High School diploma.

Classes meet Monday through Thursday beginning at 5:40 p.m. Depending on the courses selected, a student may attend one to four nights per week and can earn up to six credits per year, Ledden said. There is no tuition charge and no age limit to attend Evening High School. To be eligible to enroll, a person must have completed at least 9th grade, must be working toward a high school diploma, and must live in Garrett County.

Tentative courses include English, U.S. History, Math, Art, Physical Activity, Contemporary Problems, Career Employability, and other courses as needed. Prospective students should call the Career Employabililty Office at the Board of Education at 301-334-8913 for more information and to register to attend. This is important, Ledden said, so credits previously earned can be verified and adequate courses can be scheduled.

Two incidents of vandalism were reported to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office this week, according to office documents.

Paul Eary, Oakland, reported that an unknown person or persons damaged items in the Lake Ford Methodist Church sometime Aug. 27 and 30. Eary, who is a parishioner at Lake Ford, said that a spotlight, one window, some plexi-glass, and two pieces of vinyl all were broken with a rock.

The total loss to the church was $123.

A video cassette recorder and approximately 40 cassette tapes were reported stolen from the Friendsville Elementary School.

Gary Galloway, principal of the school, contacted the Sheriff's office about the theft which apparently occurred on Aug. 27 or 28. The culprits may have come through a door on the roof of the school.

Detective Kelly of the Sheriff's office is continuing an investigation of the crime. The total loss for the school was $600.

LWV Host Forum For Candidates; Tapes Available

The League of Women Voters (LWV) of Garrett County hosted a forum for the general public on Sunday, August 26, with the candidates for Garrett County Commissioner and Board of Education members, and tapes are now available of that forum.

Don Sincell, editor of The Republican, moderated the forum and asked questions pertaining to the offices being sought.

Commissioner candidates were asked about increased income for county workers, county-wide zoning, the state of the education budget, underfunded services (mental health, battered and abused women, and spaying and neutering programs for animals), and a recycling program.

School board candidates were asked about innovative funding for education, teenage pregnancy, child care, and improving the education system.

Paul Mullen, news director at WXIE/WMSG, taped the forum which will be broadcast on Sunday, September 9 at 4:30 p.m.

Tapes of that forum and the forum broadcast on August 26 with the senatorial candidates are available from the LWV by stopping at the office at 223 East Alder Street, Oakland, or by calling League President Constance C. Margison at 334-1109.

The Voters' Guide printed in the August 30 edition of The Republican is also available to interested voters.

CLOWNS AND ELEPHANTS GALORE will be rolling into McHenry on Saturday, Sept. 8, as "the Biggest Big Top on Earth" Carson & Barnes 5-Ring Circus prepares for their Saturday, Sept. 8, shows at the Garrett County Fairgrounds. The Mental Health Association of Maryland will be sponsoring the circus, which will present two shows on Saturday, the first at 2 p.m., and the second at 7 p.m. Hailed as a "return to the good old days in family entertainment," Carson & Barnes Circus features 24 elephants, a million dollar zoo of exotic and domestic animals (including several big cats), and a host of wirewalkers, acrobats, and jugglers. Pictured above are three graceful pachyderms named Isla, Lilly, and Traci, who will be performing in one of the five rings, and to the right, two of the many clowns to appear are shown here, "clowning around." The big top tent stretches more than a city block long, and the public is invited to watch the erecting of the tent (which is done with the help of several elephants) on the morning of the show. Governor William Donald Schaefer is the honorary chairman of the Mental Health Association Circus Project, which includes circus performances throughout Maryland during the month of September. Tickets, which are priced at $7 for adults, and $4 for children, may be obtained by calling the box office at 1-800-388-9096. Tickets will also be sold at the door the day of the show for one dollar more per ticket.

An Act Of Courage . . .

Son, this letter is written for you. We want you to know how proud we are of you. The family and your friends know that you did your best in trying to save the Mr. Kyle who drowned at the Blue Hole on August 25.

The rescue squad, fire department, and other personnel get credit for the things they do, so we are giving you credit for what you did. Our heart goes out to the wife and family, but no one knows how this has affected you. You must live with the thought of wondering if you could have done more, and you are blaming yourself for not saving Mr. Kyle. But you and your friends who were there know how hard you tried. You risked your life for another human being, and for that we are proud of you.

You are also lucky, because the Blue Hole is a dangerous place. It is deep and there are undercurrents there.

So, son, don't blame yourself for Mr. Kyle's death, and remember that your family and friends love you.

Your mother and father,
Charlotte and Riley Wilson

Saundra J. (Reams) Kolb
Candidate For Clerk Of Circuit Court For Garrett County

Saundra J. (Reams) Kolb is a candidate for Clerk of Circuit court. She is well qualified for the position of clerk based on 18 years work experience with the public--12 of those years being employed with the District court of Maryland.

A lifelong resident of Garrett County, Saundra was born and raised in the Swallow Falls area. She graduated from southern High School in 1964. Upon graduation from southern, Saundra was employed as secretary to the principal, W. Kenneth Johns until June 1966, when she married Paul Kolb from Accident, MD and moved to Columbus, Mississippi, where her husband was serving his country with the U.S. Air Force. While living there, Mrs. Kolb was employed with Mitchell Engineering Company as a secretary.

Saundra began working with the District Court of Maryland with Judge Lewis R. Jones. In 1982, Judge Jones retired, and Jack R. Turney was appointed judge. While employed at District Court, Saundra has worked with several visiting judges from other counties in the State. She has also worked with Judge Thayer when the need arose, in both Circuit Court and District Court. Working with District court, her duties include, filing of all criminal, traffic and civil cases and processing the necessary paperwork. Other duties include courtroom recorder, computer operator, probation orders, commitments, relaeses, bail bonds, deferred payment orders, swearing in witnesses (when needed), filing domestic violences, emergency evaluations, and extraditions. Her duties have also taken her to the Clerk's office for filing of appeals, jury trial prayers, recording of judgements and transfer of criminal cases.

In the absence of the County Clerk at District Court, Saundra is also appointed as acting County clerk to supervise the operations of the District Court. Saundra is a computer operator with the court, entering the dispositions from both criminal and traffic dockets and also attends training periodically to keep informed on changes both on computer and on criminal laws.

Saundra states that based on her work experience with the district court and prior work experience, she would be the best choice for the Clerk of the Circuit Court for Garrett County and feels very strongly that she could operate the Clerk's office in an efficient and courteous manner.

Saundra's husband, Paul, is a 1963 graduate of Northern High School, and is employed with the Garrett County Roads Department. Their son, Rick, is a 1985 graduate of Northern High School, and is employed with Lakeside Services.

Saundra is the daughter of Gerald and Nina Reams of Swallow Falls. Her grandparents were the late Newton and Daisy Reams who owned and operated Reams' Store in Swallow Falls for many years.

Saundra and her family are members of Zion Lutheran Church in Accident. She resides in Accident, with her husband Paul, and son, Rick.

Cora E. Bowser of Accident, MD, has been appointed as Saundra's treasurer.

A Sad State . . .

English, the official language of these United States, is, in both written and spoken form, in a sad, sad state. Granted, those of us who spend most of our time editing copy and writing are more sensitive to the problem, but we fear that the long-range future of the language is gloomy, as things such as grammar, punctuation, and correct spelling are simply being ignored.

In cooperation with the Garrett County League of Women Voters, we published a Voters' Guide last week which contained biographical information about most of the candidates running for office, along with their answers to various questions presented by the League. We hate to tell you about the condition of many of those questionnaires. There were numerous spelling and grammatical errors in over half of them, from candidates at all levels of elected office. Some were handwritten, so sloppily that certain words were totally illegible. Several candidates could not follow directions and allowed their answers to exceed the 50-word limit.

One point we want to emphasize here is that poor grammar and spelling do not necessarily equate with ability in office. Some of our most effective legislators, such as Will Rogers, used poor grammar and words like "ain't." But what irritated us with these questionnaires was that those candidates who do not have a good command of the language should have had someone else check their responses and make corrections before submitting them. They knew that these responses were going to be seen by perhaps as many as 30,000 readers. These questionnaires were much like resumes, which should be written and re-written until they are PERFECT. If a candidate doesn't care about how he presents himself on paper, what does it say about how he will approach the duties that lie ahead in whatever elective office he seeks?

Some of the questionnaires we received were near perfect as to spelling, punctuation, and grammar. These candidates will be more likely to receive the votes of The Republican news staff.

These candidates are certainly not alone, however. Daily we receive news releases from organizations, government agencies, and businesses, undoubtedly written by persons who hold degrees in public relations, that contain the variety of the errors that we have described. Is the problem in the classroom? In the home? Is it too much television and video games? Is it sun spots?

We aren't sure, but we hope the present trend is reversed — and soon.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

A recent article in the "Baltimore Sun" quoted a local official as saying the people of Deer Park apparently did not want "growth and development" because they had voted down public water and sewer projects in the past.

After the recent antics of the Sanitary Commission's "hit squad" on Shallmar's water system and their statement about "protecting us from ourselves," perhaps we should all take a closer look at what "progress" means.

Some of the candidates for county commissioner apparently would like to turn loose what for most of us would be a whole new set of regulations and inspectors. They would, if they have their way, start as down the road to becoming a little "Baltimore County" with more bureaucrats telling us what we can and cannot do on our own property.

A man I know of was laid off from his job, and started a small business in his home. He was almost arrested and fined for this. His home is on seven acres of land in Carroll County. In one area of Howard Co. you are not allowed to have a basketball net in your driveway.

Do we really want this sort of regulation on a county-wide basis to gain a foothold here? You will be told these are extreme cases, but once these laws are in place they can be amended, a few regulations at a time and the noose of government control tightens on us all.

Would you want some "inspector" to tell you what you can and cannot do in your own garage? Perhaps you have a care on your property that doesn't have tags on it. You say it's your sons "hot rod" he is restoring? Too bad! The "inspector" says it has to go!

The list can go on almost forever once we allow this sort of thing to be started, right down to the size of your woodpile and where you stack it!

How about if you own a farm and want to give your son or daughter a building lot? Not without asking permission from a "zoning board" for an exemption from their "protective regulations." You say this land has been yours for 40 odd years? Not any more!

One candidate says he will allow us as proerty owners as much freedom "as possible." Wonder what that means? Another would-be commissioner says he will support an "appeals process" to review "decisions," made by these bureaucrats.

Listen up, guys! I make those decisions now, and I think most voters are like me and want to keep it that way!

We already have zoning in some of our towns and the lake area and if people want to live there that's up to them.

I hope the rest of the citizens can see through the "progress" that is being offered by some who are running for office.

Of course when we reject them and their ideas, we'll end up being called "backward" and not wanting "modern development" or "government protection" of our property. Sound familiar?

Thanks to The Republican, you can see in their "Voters' Guide" just who these candidates are and then it's up to us, as it should be. I don't agree with all our current commissioners do or have done, but we as voters had better "look before we leap." If their stand on this issue is an example of their philosophy of government it could be a long four years for the rest of us, and we may never regain the freedoms we take for granted now.

J.L. Plauger
Deer Park

P.S. No matter who is elected an issue like county-wide zoning should never be started without a vote by the citizens! It's our freedom! And we have to pay the salaries of those who "protect us from ourselves!"

To the Editor:

I would like to know why Clifford DeWitt did not complete his term in office and is running for another one. Was it to get David Martin elected?

Why were two of David Martin's friends given jobs in the Courthouse, when others had applications in and were not interviewed?

Voter,
Wayne Evans

To the Editor:

May I present a dramatization of a political realism that affects us all dramatically? Thank you, sir. All right, everyone, think for a moment . . . no, THINK FROM NOW UNTIL SEPTEMBER 11th, when you pull that lever that could decide a large hunk of your (and your children's) future in this tightly controlled county of OURS!

"Psssst! Hey Rube! Do yuh wanna buy a gold watch . . . a genuine Rolex watch for only $9.98? If yuh go for this bargain, I'll throw in a slate of incumbent County Commissioners that are probably duh best yuh ever had; and if yuh believe dat, I got some ocean front property down around Swanton I can let yuh have extra cheap."

It's time for a change! In the past 12 years we have witnessed a circus here in Garrett County; a three-ring circus, complete with cavorting clowns and spectacular juggling acts, featuring a past master of legerdemain (light of hand and slight of hand, deception and trickery . . . hocus pocus to the nth degree) with a bag of loaded tricks and promises at election time . . . BUT! no answers as to why in a county experiencing an explosion of growth, new wealth and people, that only the insiders and the wealthy benefit while the rest of us pay higher and higher taxes and our cost of living here continues to escalate. Promises, at least, are cheap, and are as old as the elephant the current Ring-master fraudulently rides upon; they cost him nothing when there is no intention to keep them. Here's another question you might ask him and yourself between now and September 11: Why are so many of the top paying, appointive county jobs held by people who are not really "Garrett Countians?" Could it be the "Circus Masters" have determined that the local "Rubes" are not qualified to "serve" THEIR community, or is it just that the SYSTEM works better with "their" own people in key positions? And who does "their" system work for? All together now . . . "NOT FOR THE RUBES!"

There are many of us who say now is the time to drop the final curtain on this circus show, along with a message that the Ringmaster must go! Now is the time for a change! Let's bring in a new leader and give that person a qualified, competent team committed to serving ALL the people of Garrett County; one that will work together to raise living standards in the ENTIRE community, making our county a better place to live and work. We want our homes to be in the best county of the best state of the greatest country in the entire world. We need to start HERE! and throw the rascals out; then carry our message to the state house in Annapolis, and on to Washington: "Ms./Mr. Incumbent, you have been found ACCOUNTABLE at long last for the mess you have spawned and are sentenced to stand down in favor of those whose primary goal is to serve the will of the people . . . and not their own!"

Ronald R. Rowan

To the Editor:

As this an election year I have noticed a number of politically motivated "letters to the editor" in recent weeks. The opportunity to freely express a political opinion is rare in the world today, and we all should applaud our governmental system for our being able to, as well as to thank our newspapers for the means to do so.

Many of the letters I have read recently have been "one issue" criticism of our present local incumbents. Whereas there is room for concern in some issues and possibly blame in others, on the whole here in Garrett County we have been well served by our public officers. The "big picture" is encouraging indeed.

I point out a number of items to this end.

The road system, both state and county, is superior to any in the area — both in construction, and in summer and winter maintenance.

The local tax rate here has continually declined; a matter under control of local government. The assessment has increased, but this is a state mandated factor, and the fact that we have had continuing property tax increase is largely a state and not local issue.

A "hot" issue of late is the construction of a replacement for the Glendale Bridge. While there is feeling that an entirely new bridge should be built, two separate engineering surveys have concluded that the present pier is adequate to carry the projected load. I am inclined to believe the qualified engineers in this matter. The simple fact is that without a higher local contribution we cannot afford an entirely new bridge. There is no public enthusiasm for higher taxes to support this, and since evidently we are unlikely to get higher state participation in the immediate future — and apparently now is when we need to begin work on the structure — there is little choice but to go ahead with construction on the existing pier, and without a substitute means of crossing Deep Creek for an extended period of time. This latter situation will no doubt work a temporary hardship on some people, but alternate routes will develop, and it is the apparent price of progress — much as is the difficult traffic situation east of Cumberland on Interstate #48.

Perhaps the current issue directly affecting the greatest number of Garrett Countians is rebuilding of Southern High School. This project also is underfunded, but only last year a bond issue to directly fund this project was defeated in county wide referendum. Therefore the school board and the commissioners must conclude that in the absence of further state funding they have to "make do" with the monies available. Many of us feel that perhaps there could be better cooperation between these two bodies, but remember that only a few years ago, we the voters of this county, voted to have a separately elected school board that was by definition independent of the county commissioners. Less rhetoric and more accommodation between these two bodies is certainly appropriate, but as all of these officials have been involved in this project since its inception, we ought not to "change horses in the middle of the stream."

A recent matter that many of us have forgotten is the Gypsy Moth Spraying program of 1990. Without taking any credit any credit from the fine efforts to implement this by the ASCS Department and the Extension Office, we must remember that the initiative in this matter was taken by our commissioners. Every farmer and land owner who participated surely must appreciate the most effective results of this program — and its most reasonable cost. In fact the Garrett County program has been highly praised by state and federal officials for its success.

Additionally our present officials must also be given high marks for their efforts to maintain a climate wherein such institutions as the Community College is at its highest enrollment ever, the Memorial Hospital has become a fine local medical center, corporations such as Mettiki and Bausch and Lomb continue to expand and provide new employment, and new industries such as Garrett Optical with approximately one hundred new jobs move into the county.

I feel that the county as a whole has prospered and progressed in recent years and that we must look at the "big picture" when we make our choices on September 11. However, agree with me or not, remember your privilege to vote.

Yours,
William G. Savage

To the Editor:

Thank heavens we have a man in Garrett County who will place issues on the line and across the board. I am referring to his letter to the Editor in 8/30/90 issue of The Republican by Ronald Rowan.

Is the Democratic party the only party in the county? The reason for asking this question — why did the Republican party pass up an opportunity to find a candidate to run opposing the incumbent in district 2? Voters, this is the last week before the Primary Election, as concerned taxpayers and registered voters in Garrett County we have the choice to make a clean sweep in the Commissioners' Office. However, when we go to the polls to vote, it is our responsibility to cast our vote for candidates that are first and foremost qualified, and of high moral standards.

In District #1 we have the incumbent and a choice of two other candidates. In District #2 we have only the incumbent. No opposing candidate (whose fault is this?) and in District #3 we have an incumbent and two candidate choices, the Republican, through the efforts of Garrett County League of Women Voters, published a "Voters Guide" issue 8/30/90. This was designed to inform the voters and public of the qualifications of the candidates running for office.

IT IS HIGH TIME we as registered voters read and study and ask questions about these candidates' qualifications and not just go to the voting polls on election day and pull a lever because we see a familiar name or face. Let us be certain in this election that we know who the best person is for the office they are trying to acquire.

It is about time we as voters, which I understand are the working class of people in Garrett County, stand up and be counted on the issues of unfair hiring practices throughout the county. It has been voiced by many persons seeking county employment that it is not the knowledge or skills one has, it is who you are and who you know in the work place.

There has been a call for change. Let's make a change and vote for a candidate who will uphold FAIR HIRING practices on the basis of knowledge and skills and not who knows whom! Not only in the commissioners' office but in Circuit and District court also. As all voters should be aware, the candidate they choose can either make better government for the taxpayers of Garrett County or by the wrong choice, break the county.

There is a cry going out for change this year. It is also the year for choice. Do your homework, voters. Study the background and qualifications of your choice and then make the right decision. Let us not be found hanging in the balance after November 11.

Very Concerned for Garrett County's Future

To the Editor:

We the Garrett County Humane Society, Inc., did get an answer to our request for funds for a spay/neuter program. We feel all Garrett County taxpayers should have the privilege of reading it.

Dear Mr. Gregg:

Article VII, Section I of the Constitution of Maryland provides the County Commissioners of each county shall have such "powers and duties . . . as now or may be hereafter prescribed by law."

Maryland Law Encyclopedia, Volume 6, Page 517, provides that under the Maryland Constitution, the powers and duties of County Commissioners are such as may be prescribed by law. This authority further states:

"The powers and duties of county commissioners are essentially statutory, and limited, and they can exercise only such powers as statute or the county charter expressly, or by necessary or reasonable implication therefrom, authorizes or permits."

I have examined the local laws of Garrett County and the statutory law pertaining to the powers of the County Commissioners and I am unable to find any provision in the law authorizing the County Commissioners to appropriate funds for the Garrett County Humane Society.

It is my further opinion, that should the Humane Society desire the county to appropriate public funds for their benefit, it will be necessary for them to obtain passage of a law authorizing such appropriation from the General Assembly of Maryland.

Very truly yours,
W. Dwight Stover

Now I am wondering if the money for the trips to Ocean City — last year about 15 people went, this year I hear no less than 10 but no more than 25 went — was obtained by the passage of a law authorizing such appropriation from the General Assembly of Maryland and if the purchase of two vehicles, mileage, and expense account of the county clerk was appropriated by the General Assembly of Maryland.

And we are wondering how many county vehicles the taxpayers are supporting and why these vehicles are driven for personal use (including for trips out of the state of Maryland) and why are county vehicles driven by persons who are not employed by the county and with unemploy ment in Garrett County the highest in the state why do we have county employees who do not live in Garrett County, and why do we have auditors from out of the county instead of local ones?

Do you suppose the County Commissioners obtained passage of a law authorizing such appropriations from the General Assembly of Maryland?

I wonder how the commissioners can justify these expenditures and not want to support a spay/neuter program that will save the taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars and save the lives of hundreds of thousands of innocent animals born then killed because no money is appropriated to stop the slaughter.

Personally, I do not know how these persons can sleep. Maybe no conscience or maybe it would take from another raise in salary for the already overpaid bureaucrats.

It is my opinion that it is a moral obligation of the commissioners to save the taxpayers money. According to a letter to Mr. Groves from Mr. Gary Mullick (the Humane Society was given a copy), over $216,000 was spent from 1982-1986 to destroy innocent animals — this included salaries, utilities, etc., but all because of the animals.

A spay/neuter program would also prevent rabies and other diseases. The less stray animals we have, the less rabies and diseases.

If one half as many people went to Ocean City and we got rid of one county car we could very easily have money for a spay/neuter program.

I truly believe caring for innocent animals should have priority over partying. In time we would not need the program because with the mother spayed and the father neutered they would not multiply by the thousands.

I cannot understand the commissioners' decision to not help the animals. Could it be they have lost control of power and cannot do what people are asking?

For instance, you who read my letter asking for disclosure of yearly salaries, should know that I never received a reply. It has been two weeks and my friend, Colonel (Retired) Richard C. Browning told me he had asked the county clerk in the presence of Mr. Braskey what the annual salaries of all the county employees were. Mr. Braskey told the county clerk to tell Colonel Browning what the salaries were. Three months have passed and still no answer. Colonel Browning went to the office of the County Commissioners 9/4/90, and again asked for the amount of the county employees salaries. The county clerk also told Colonel Browning if he would put the request in writing he would answer it.

In the presence of the "folks" in the County Commissioners office Colonel Browning wrote a letter and handed it to the Commissioners. He was assured he would get an answer, but it would take 10 days.

What are the "folks" in the Commissioners office hiding: That is all hush-hush? What is being done with our tax money? Why can't we have our questions answered?

To the Editor:

Our fourth year is now past and we, the organizers of the Music Festival of the Garrett Lakes Festival, feel that we have brought some of the most worthwhile and beautiful music to one of the most worthwhile and beautiful areas of the country. In this age of so much upheaval and turmoil, we feel that the small efforts that we have made, and will make in the future, are that much more meaningful.

We are especially indebted to the many people who have supported us in many ways in our part of this endeavor, namely: Kathie & Manning Smith, Tom & Sue Peterson, Betty & Lou DiCarlo, Connie Margison & Jack Jones, Clint & Ann Englander, Joanne Rebele, John & Jean Grant, Sam & Theda Sanders, Mary Jane Berry & Bob Ulino, Alex & Marge Mahood, Mike & Ferne Belmonte, Fred & Diane Thayer, Nancy Learey, Martin Heise, Marge & Rick Clever, Gordon & Helen Earls and the St. Paul's United Methodist Church, Mary Susan Williams, Steve Herman and the GLAF board, all the Sincells and McEwens, and all the many other folks who offered support in other ways, volunteering time and ideas, feeding a musician, and offering kind and encouraging words to us. Without all of these people and their generosity, the Festival could not be possible.

We feel that this Festival has grown in musical as well as local importance these past years and it is actively on the road to national importance with your support. We now have the top musicians from the New York area and world-renowned soloists who wish to return, and have returned from previous years, thanks to your kindness and warmth. Once again, thank you for being the warm, wonderful, giving people that you are.

If you are unable to volunteer your time to help, or house a musician, and wish to help us continue this endeavor, you or your company may send your contributions to the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, c/o Garrett Community College, McHenry, MD 21541, ATTN: Helen Earles. Thank you.

Sincerely yours,

Normally, I do not respond to misinformation in letters referencing the Garrett County Roads Department or myself.

However, the letter written by Mr. Ralph Fitzwater that was in the August 30, 1990, issue was blatantly inaccurate.

During my tenure of employment with the Roads Department, neither myself nor any employee have taken any measures to alter Pysell Crosscut Road or taken any action to change the natural drainage as allegated by Mr. Fitzwater.

To the Editor:

I belong to a Girl Scout troop that adopted a highway. Recently we spent over four hours cleaning our two-mile stretch of road. When we were finished we observed state employees picking up the garbage bags of trash we had left when I observed the driver of the truck flick a cigarette butt out of the window. I couldn't help but wonder, couldn't he have used an ashtray?

I think that since the state started this program, their employees should set a good example.

Sincerely,
Wendy Miller

I live on Hoyes-Sang Run Road and for years have had a very bad feeling about a visual traffic problem, concerning Hoyes and Rt. 42.

Prior to this letter there was a very old delapitated building being held up by a tree and both objects were causing the problem.

I see that the problem is being taken care of as the building and the tree have been removed, making the visability 100% better.

I wish to thank the following people for taking care of the problem — Mr. Sam Friend on whose property the building was on and Mrs. Arthur Coddington on whose property the tree was on. You are both to be commended for making a much safer intersection.

Thank you,

A letter concerning the nontitle wetlands program, as printed in the Cumberland Sunday Times-News of September 2, is another instance wherein the Garrett County Commissioners have deceived and betrayed the citizens they are sworn to serve.

In May the Director of the Maryland Water Resources Administration, Catherien Pieper, sent a letter to remind the Commissioners the Wetlands Protection Act provides for the counties to implement the program and to offer the assistance in her office has in that regard. Ms. Peiper listed activities with other counties implementing the program. An earlier Times-News article of August 16, 1990, reported the commissioners as reasoning that county implementation would be more desirable and convenient; that it would be

Two Oakland Women Injured In Monday Mishap

Two Oakland women were slightly injured Monday when their vehicles collided at the intersection of Eighth and Green streets, according to a report filed by Chief John K. Sines of the Oakland City Police.

The accident occurred when Eleanor Arnold, 47, operating a 1979 Cadillac Fleetwood, entered the intersection and was struck by a 1982 Buick Regal, operated by Martha E. Lewis, 69.

Both women were treated for minor injuries and released from Garrett County Memorial Hospital, according to Chief Sines.

They were transported by the Southern Rescue Squad. Oakland volunteer firemen were also dispatched to the scene by Garrett County Emergency Management.

In separate OCPD matters, Cpl. Ernest Alexander arrested a 17-year-old male juvenile Sunday night, charging him with destruction of property.

The juvenile reportedly kicked in the side door of a vehicle operated by Mark W. Metz. The juvenile was released to the custody of his parents by the authority of Juvenile Services.

A 15-year-old male juvenile was charged with driving without a license, driving an uninsured and unregistered vehicle last Thursday by Sgt. Roger Lewis.

The boy was released to the custody of his parents by authority of Juvenile Services.

Officer Shawn Groves is currently investigating the report of a theft at McDonald's parking lot which occurred August 29.

Christine Jones, McHenry, told police someone had taken a radar detector from her vehicle while she was working at the establishment.

The detector is valued at $100.

Young Oakland Woman Missing; Sought By Police

The Maryland State Police are currently investigating a missing person report involving a young Oakland woman.

Lisa R. Collins, 17, has been missing since August 22, according to Tfc. Paul R. Brown who is heading the investigation for the police.

Ms. Collins was wearing a white sweatshirt, blue jeans and white sneakers when she was last seen.

She is described as being five feet, four inches tall, weighs 115 pounds, has brown eyes and black hair.

Persons with any information should contact the Maryland State Police at 387-5511.

Man Arrested After High-Speed Car Chase

An Oakland man was arrested for attempting to elude a police officer after a high-speed chase occurred in Crellin in the early hours of Aug. 30.

Dennis W. Beckman, Sr., 33, was suspected by Dep. J. Murphy to be exceeding the speed limit while driving through Crellin. The report said that when Murphy attempted to stop Beckman, a chase ensued. The officer reportedly lost sight of Beckman's vehicle for a short time, and then found the car abandoned in a ball field. At that time, he impounded the car.

Beckman reportedly came to the Sheriff's Office serveral hours later to retrieve his vehicle, at which time Dep. Murphy arrested him for attempting to elude an officer of the law.

Dale E. House, 18, Friendsville, was arrested on Aug. 29 for driving while intoxicated. The arrest occurred on Rt. 219 North near Deep Creek Lake.

One arrest warrant and one bench warrant were issued to Milton C. DeWitt, 48, Oakland on Aug. 30. The arrest warrant was for harrassment against James E. Knox, and the bench warrant was issued for DeWitt's failure to appear in court.

Several criminal summonses were served for various charges.

Douglas W. Lewis, 19, and James M. Thomas, 20, both of Oakland, were served criminal summonses for trespassing.

Apparently, both men were told by the Sheriff's Office personnel to stay off of the property of Browning's, Inc. (including L.A. Joe's), but failed to do so.

The summonses were served by Dep. Sowers on Aug. 30.

Ruth Beckman, 53, Alma L. McCrobie, 27, and Michael R. McCrobie, 32, all of Mtn. Lake Park, were all served criminal summonses for theft of household items valued over $300.

The three persons allegedly took various items from the home of Carolyn S. Simmons, Mtn. Lake Park. The summonses were served on September 1 and 2.

Randall L. Skeweris, 22, Oakland, was served a criminal summons for assault on William D. Welch, Silver Spring.

The incident of assault reportedly occurred in May on Rt. 50, near Table Rock Road.

Miss America. Eight other contestants will receive an additional $1,000 award for talent presentations and one non-finalist interview award will be made for $1,000.

Both Miss Grimm and her parents have been gratified by the support of the people of Garrett County. Kim said that all the cards, notes, and flowers she has received from area supporters have been real morale boosters. She hopes that her success will motivate other young women from Western Maryland to compete, and strive for greater achievements as well as reap the rewards of the scholarship money which is awarded at the various levels of competiton.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Grimm of Mtn. Lake Park, have been most impressed by parents of other contestants they have met while in Atlantic City. A feeling of comradery has developed among several other contestants' parents; the Grimms are now cheering for these representatives as well as their own daughter. Many activities have been planned for parents of the national finalists. Both Mr. and Mrs. Grimm felt that being a part of this American tradition surpassed even their own expectations and was certainly worth the effort the family has put forth to help Kim achieve her goal of coming to Atlantic City. Miss Maryland stated that her greatest support has come from her family including her sister, Denise, and brother, Mark, as well as her parents. They have provided a great deal of moral support and also have helped Kim with wardrobe selection interview preparation, and stage presence.

This has definitely been an enriching experience for Kimberly Grimm, her family, and Garrett County as a whole. Whether she returns to Oakland as Miss Maryland or Miss America, she will have been successul in achieving one of her most coveted dreams. Watch her on Saturday, September 8, to see what the future holds for Miss Maryland 1990, Kimberly Ann Grimm!

VOTE for your future.

VOTE George Brodak
For County Commissioner

TEN REASONS WHY IT IS TIME FOR THE PEOPLE TO TAKE CHARGE!

EDUCATION
The education of our young people is the single most important issue for the future. Right now, Garrett County teachers have the lowest starting salaries in the state of Maryland! Do the Commissioners review the Board of Education requests carefully to make sure that tax monies are being spent wisely on teaching? Are the Commissioners making sure our young people are getting the best possible educational opportunities?

GEORGE BRODAK WILL SUPPORT EDUCATION!

TAXES
The amount of property tax paid by Garrett County residents has skyrocketed over the past 12 years, but the present County Commissioners would like the people to believe that taxes have not gone up. When he announced that he was seeking an unprecedented fourth term, Ernie Gregg said, "Since taking office, Garrett County has had the largest decrease in property taxes of any jurisdiction in the State of Maryland." Maybe he should look at the facts and remember that he helped raise the amount of taxes you are paying in Garrett County.

GEORGE BRODAK WILL STABILIZE TAXES!

ECONOMIC GROWTH
Garrett County has two industrial parks that cost the taxpayers a lot in terms of the money spent and the things we did without because of those buildings. So far, all the Commissioners have done to attract new business is crank up the budget. They have not reached out directly to prospective employers. A businessman understands that you decide — before you build — how to attract new businesses that are profitable and clean. And, he knows it takes hard work — not a bigger budget — to get the job done!

GEORGE BRODAK WILL BRING IN NEW BUSINESSES!

THE OAKLAND BY-PASS
The Commissioners have been talking about a by-pass in the Oakland area for eleven years — and still haven't gotten any further. Instead of a referendum that would let the people decide, in an election, whether the by-pass should be built, the Commissioners have listened to a small minority and done nothing. If the Commissioners really served the needs of the people, they would have held a referendum, the by-pass could have been built years ago — at a much nower cost!

GEORGE BRODAK WILL GET THIS PROJECT MOVING!

GLENDALE BRIDGE
The proposed solution to rebuilding the Glendale Bridge shows very little planning. Two points seem lost in the Commissioners' thinking. First, they assume original piers will last practically forever. Second, they have not pursued ways to build a new bridge while the original bridge stays open! Instead, they are being "penny wise and pound foolish" by not looking at all of the other options. Someday our children will be paying the price for poor planning in the Glendale Bridge project!

GEORGE BRODAK WILL FIND A BETTER SOLUTION!

THE ENVIRONMENT
Instead of taking the lead in protecting the environment and keeping Garrett County beautiful by promoting recycling and conservation, the Commissioners are lagging behind. Where are the innovative programs? Where is the incentive to recycle? Where is the leadership? They have done the minimum that is required. When are they going to realize their responsibility to future generations?

GEORGE BRODAK WILL ENERGIZE RECYCLING EFFORTS!

ZONING
The reason for zoning laws is to manage growth in ways that benefit everyone. If the laws are fair and are fairly enforced, they will stimulate economic development and protect the rights of individuals. The current codes in Garrett County are neither, and that is slowing down progress. Now is the time to completely review and revise the zoning codes and enforcement — for the good of the entire county!

GEORGE BRODAK WILL SUPPORT A ZONING REVIEW!

WASTE IN GOVERNMENT
The cost of county government has tripled in the past decade,but the people haven't gotten any more help from the county or the Commissioners. In Garrett County government there are too many people who have forgotten that the job of government is to serve the people. They waste tax dollars and time, and the taxpayers foot the bill! They forget to give a full day's work for a full day's pay!

GEORGE BRODAK WILL CUT GOVERNMENT WASTE!

SOCIAL SERVICES
We have a responsibility to provide services and programs for those who have special needs. County government should take the lead in supporting Senior Citizens' centers. The Commissioners have a responsibility to find ways of supporting programs that help children and families. When government can spend millions on construction without competitive bids — like they did on Southern High — but they cannot fund programs to help people in need, there is something wrong!

GEORGE BRODAK WILL SERVE THE PEOPLE!

PLANNING FOR THE FUTURE
The future of Garrett County is on the line. The County Commissioners are looking to the past and talking about stability. They are supposed to be looking to the future and planning for the coming decade and the coming century! Garrett County has great potential, but that potential will not be realized until Garrett County elects someone with vision and an eye to the future!

GEORGE BRODAK IS THAT PERSON

In Loving Memory Of

It's been a year since August 27, 1989; it sure is funny how time flies.
It seems just like yesterday, you were here with us making us laugh.
But now we think about you and tears come to our eyes.
Missing you and loving you more and more as each day passes by,
But we need not worry because you are up in Heaven far beyond the sky.

Dearest Tara,
Roses red and lilacs blue, in spring time we think of you.
Summer's here and gone again, so for now swimming is put to rest,
And we all think of you at your best.
When in early fall and the brown and gold shine thru,
It's time once again to think of you.
Winter's soft white blankets falling now, so won't you smile on us awhile.
We want to know each step you take, so we may take the same,
For some day down that lonely road, you'll hear us call your name.

Dearly loved & missed so very much,

QUALIFIED · EXPERIENCED
A Proven Commissioner for Garrett County

FACTS TO BE CONSIDERED

Recently many of my supporters, friends and family have asked me to respond to the many statements that have been made about the Commissioners and our office. Some basic facts need to be considered:

EMPLOYMENT: Over 3,000 new jobs have been created in Garrett County in the past eight years.

GRANTS: Over $10,000,000 in federal and state grants have been received in the past eight years.

TAXES: Garrett County had the highest county tax rate in the state 8 years ago. It is now the ninth lowest in the state out of 23 counties.

ASSESSMENTS: The State regularly increases our assessments as in every other county, but the difference is that Garrett County has experienced the greatest decrease in the tax rate of any other county. Our $.78 reduction in eight years is unprecedented.

VEHICLES: County cars are to be used for county business only. A total of four staff cars have been purchased in the last eight years, excluding Sheriff's Department and Roads Department vehicles.

SALARIES: All elected county officials have their salaries established by the Salary Review Committee appointed by the Delegate, who then adjusts salaries by legislation. All non-union employees' salaries and grade levels were determined by an independent, professional benefits consulting firm in order to provide for an equitable system of compensation that is competitive with other State and local agencies.

PROPERTY RIGHTS: The record is clear! The current Board of Commissioners is firmly committed to defending the rights of property owners, charges to the contrary notwithstanding!

ECONOMIC BENEFITS: Garrett County average household income has risen by $9,109 or 45.3% in the last six years. Source: Md. Department of Economic and Community Development.

Hopefully this information will help "clear the air" on some of the gross misinformation that has been circulating around the county.

Time To Hit The Road!

For twelve long years, Garrett County has witnessed a circus complete with magic and juggling acts. Star of the show is a magician with a bag of loaded tricks ...arrogance, sarcasm, intimidation and double talk! Most famous trick of all is called, "The Disappearing Promises." It is time to drop the tent on this circus and all its side shows along with a strong message that the ringleader must go!

It is time for some fresh air...for new ideas...for new faces and for interested neighbors who want to make Garrett County the best county in the State for everyone!

Goldstein Says Logic Of Gasoline Companies "Doesn't Hold Water"

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein provided Attorney General J. Joseph Curran Jr. and a special General Assembly committee with results of his initial investigation into gasoline price increases during August. "It appears that the oil companies changed their tune as soon as the Middle East situation heated up. As a result, we may be seeing the most dramatic shift in gasoline marketing since the oil supply problems of the 1970's," he said.

The comptroller said major oil companies and brokers who provide more than 65% of Maryland's gasoline had explained their August price increases by saying that the price of oil to the consumer should reflect the replacement cost of that product.

However, Goldstein said that logic "doesn't hold water" when one considers that crude oil prices dropped 15¢ per gallon between January 5 and February 23, 1990, while retail prices rose 2¢ per gallon. "Prices did not decline when the so-called replacement cost was going down and there was an abundant supply," he said.

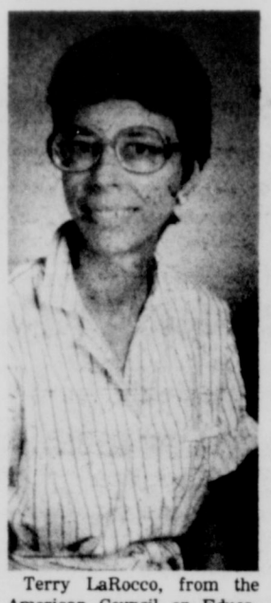

Goldstein said he has contacted 239 wholesaler/jobbers who serve the Maryland marketplace, asking them to provide detailed price and supply data. "Our initial investigation seems to show that jobbers, who traditionally have served the population outside the metropolitan areas, may have been used as an outlet valve during a time of oversupply at the expense of motorists who purchase their gasoline at stations supplied directly by the major oil companies," he said.

The comptroller noted that the price offered to jobber/wholesalers in the six monthe preceding the Middle East crisis was as much as 30¢ per gallon less than that offered to retail dealers. Today, the jobber/wholesaler is paying as much or more for the product as the directly supplied dealer.

Goldstein said he has asked the attorney general to determine if any state laws have been broken or if additional protection is needed. "We are receiving complaints from jobbers and independent dealers who have been forced to close their businesses and lay off employees. These jobbers are reporting difficulties in finding assured sources of supply and are being forced to pay more for their product than company-supplied situations — sometimes in the same competitive area.

"We need to determine if we are seeing our efforts to disrupt the marketplace by forcing jobbers with lucrative establishments and of business so that major oil companies can begin directly supplying stations in those areas.," he said. "We've not seen this kind of disruption in the marketplace since the oil companies tried to take over the most lucrative retail stations in the early 1970's.

"What a lot of people don't realize is that he's a person that a number of state officials work with in Annapolis. He spends a good deal of time talking to state officials on behalf of Garrett County. Ernie's always been a person that has a sense of purpose to what he does, he knows what he's doing and he's worked very, very hard for Garrett County."

"We need to return Ernie Gregg to office. When you think of all the good things that are happening in Garrett County right now, you've got to realize that Ernie Gregg has been behind most of them."

"Things are moving ahead. We need to keep that experienced leadership in office. He's a man Garrett County can be proud of."

Prior to and during the dinner, musical entertainment was provided by "One by One". The dinner was catered by Lisa Bonar.

As the event was designated as "Meet Your Candidates Night," the following candidates were present and introduced by Spencer R. Schlosnagle, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee for Garrett County: for Congress, 6th District, Beverly B. Byron (incumbent) and Tony Puca, both democrats; for State Senator, Dan McMullen (D), Alan Douglas (R), and John Hafer (R); States Attorney, James L. Sherbin (R) incumbent; Clerk of Circuit Court, Saundra Reams Kolb (R); County Commissioner, Dist. #2, John G. Braskey (D) incumbent; and County Commissioner, Dist. #3, Brenda Butscher (R); filing for a seat on the six-member Democratic State Central Committee for Garrett County, Donald H. Fratz (incumbent), Bruce B. Opel (incumbent), Spencer R. Schlosnagle (incumbent) and Theodore Raynovich Sr.; vying for one of the three positions as Judges of the Orphans Court, Doris J. Goldsborough and Wilmer W. Margraff (incumbent). Beverly Sines Murphy (incumbent) was introduced as a candidate for re-election to the Garrett County School Board.

For the race of Judge of Orphans Court, five Republicans have filed with three to be voted upon in the Primary Election and the three successful candidates will be placed in the election race in the General Election along with Doris Goldsborough (D), with three to be chosen. Successful candidates will be chosen in the Primary Election for county commissioner, sheriff, states attorney, register of wills, treasurer, clerk of circuit court, Democratic (and Republican) central committees for Garrett County. The General Election will also determine the victors in the race for governor, lt. governor, comptroller, and congress-6th Dist.

During the event, prominent citizens are "arrested" and spend a short time in a special jail until they pay a predetermined bail, solicited from the jailbird's friends, co-workers, and business associates. To The Citizens Of Garrett County:
This is NOT a political announcement.

WHAT IT IS, IS A SINCERE THANK YOU FOR MAKING WFRB GARRETT COUNTY'S MOST LISTENED TO RADIO STATION. SINCE WE CANNOT WRITE YOU A PERSONAL LETTER, AND SINCE WE KNOW THAT THE REPUBLICAN NEWSPAPER REACHES PRACTICALLY EVERY HOME IN GARRETT COUNTY, WE HAVE DECIDED ON THIS METHOD OF COMMUNICATION.

We would also like to inform you that WFRB AM has expanded its programming by presenting a very controversial talk show at 12:05 p.m., Monday through Friday. You may hate him, you may love him, but you will listen to him. RUSH LIMBAUGH is the nation's most listened to talk show host. He is now on nearly 300 stations, and what he deals with will make you sit up and take notice. Subjects such as the Middle East crisis, the equal rights movement, abortion, animal rights, promiscuity. No subject of current interest is outside his domain. He tells it as he sees it, along with a generous sprinkling of humor, fun and satire.

If you crave for something different in radio programming, then be sure to catch RUSH LIMBAUGH, Monday through Friday, only on WFRB AM 560. He may be right, he may be wrong, but he will stimulate your thought processes to the limit.

Again, thank you for making WFRB Garrett County's number one, and most listened to, station.

Huskies Smaller, Faster; To Open With Cavaliers

With the loss of 13 seniors to graduation, including one of the area's best linemen (Johnny Joe Friend) and the third leading rusher in the area last year (Darren McKenzie), Coach Tom Vent and his Northern Huskies will be relying heavily upon leadership from the five seniors on the squad and quick development of a host of young players.

"I really just don't know yet what will happen this year," Vent said. "We have a bunch of young kids, but we are getting great leadership from our seniors and our kids are really working hard. They are a great bunch of kids, a fun group that I enjoy being around. That's what it's all about."

HUSKY HURLER — Four-year starter Chad Sines of the Northern High Huskies fires a pass to a waiting receiver during a practice session this week under the watchful eye of Tom Vent, head coach. The young Huskies will open their season this week at home against Central Preston.

The Huskies will attempt to improve upon their disappointing 3-7 mark last season. After recording a pair of wins to open the 1989 campaign, the Huskies were edged by Beall in a thriller in Frostburg. They later lost to a strong Turkeyfoot team in the last minute, were edged by Petersburg in the final seconds, and fell to Westmar after holding the lead into the fourth quarter.

"It was a difficult, disappointing season for us," Vent said. "We had no home field to play on and we gave up too many big plays."

The Huskies played all of their "home" games at Southern High School's field last year, but this year they will be on their own renovated field, complete with brand new facilities that will be dedicated during halftime of this week's opener against Central Preston.

The biggest gaps that must be filled on the field this year are those left by McKenzie, who rushed for 1,575 yards on 209 carries, plus 16 touchdowns, last season; Friend at tackle, who opened holes on the offensive line for McKenzie and recorded a team-high 125 tackles; and fullback Pete Bittinger, who ran for 531 yards and four touchdowns.

Expected to start this week on the offensive line are four-year letterman Stacy Fike and three-year leterman Randy Dolan at guard; junior Mike Fike and sophomore Greg Wagner at tackle; junior Todd Burdock at center; and sophomore Paul Edwards at tight end. Four-year starter Chad Sines will be calling the signals, junior Jon Houser, a three-year letterman, will run fullback, Allen Bittinger, a sophomore, will start at tailback, sophomore Chris Wachter will start at split end, and junior Doug Brenneman will be the flanker.

Also expected to see a lot of action on offense are Chris Rowe, a sophomore, who will back up Bittinger at tailback; senior Chris Jenkins at split end; and senior tackle Keith Friend.

Stacy Fike, Dolan, Houser, and Jenkins are the returning defensive starters. Dolan or Greg Wagner will start at noseguard, Keith Friend and Mike Fike will play tackle, Houser, Edwards, and/or freshman Larry Wakefield will be the defensive ends, Brenneman, Stacy Fike, Burdock, and Chris Younkin are the linebackers, and Jenkins and Chad Anderson will be the safeties.

Houser will be doing all the kicking and punting for the Huskies and, according to Vent, Houser offers a legitimate threat on field goals from the 30-yard range.

The overall numbers of Huskies are up dramatically this year, with over 50 boys reporting; however, half of them are freshmen. Many of the freshmen were members of the Northern Steelers of the Mtn. Top Youth Football League who were league champions two straight years.

Rams Regroup Despite Low Numbers, Youth, Split Shifts

Despite a topsy-turvy practice schedule because of the split-shifting of Southern High School's students this year, the loss of several key players to graduation, possibly the toughest schedule ever, and only 25 players on the roster, Southern Coach Tom Woods seems optimistic about the Rams' chances this season. The Rams will open their 10-game slate at home this Friday evening against Berkeley Springs.

Because of the split shift of students, the Southern varsity will be composed entirely of juniors and seniors, with the exception of two sophomores, C.J. Getson and Jeremy Bosley. There are six sophomores on the varsity roster, but they will have to practice with the junior varsity now that school has started and the split shift is in effect.

"While we would like to have at least 30 players," Woods said, "we have sort of a unique situation this year with the players we have. For the first time in my career, every single player on the varsity really can play ball. So far there is no one on the roster that we wouldn't feel comfortable about putting into a game. Now, if we get four or five injuries, we are going to have real problems because we simply have no depth.

"Another advantage is that everyone will get in a lot of playing time, which is what most of them lack right now," he continued. "We have an excellent group of juniors who have been very successful as jayvee players. They are untested on the varsity level, but we believe they will continue to be successful there. After the first three games we should have a pretty good idea of the calibre of team we really have."

Only eight lettermen from last season's 7-3 team are back this year, including five starting seniors — James Bateman, Mike Freyman, Brett Glotfelty, Scott Rohrbaugh, and Shawn Ryan. The other two seniors on the roster, Steve Rodeheaver and Brian McCroskey, are out for the first time, but are expected to contribute significantly to the team.

Expected to start on the offensive line this week against Berkeley Springs are: Garth Glotfelty and Bill Ferry, both juniors, rotating at split end; senior Mike Freyman back at tight end; returning senior tackles Brett Glotfelty and James Bateman, an All-Area honorable mention selection last year; guards David Kurtz and Jeremy Smith, both juniors; and senior center Scott Rohrbaugh, who was a second team All-Area selection at that position last year.

The biggest hole to fill on the Ram line will be that left by big John Stem, who is now a scholarship player at the College of William and Mary.

The entire Southern backfield had to be replaced, as Billy Welch and Doug Lewis were lost by graduation and senior Tommy Ritchey elected not to play this year. Welch led the team last year with 987 yards rushing and 13 touchdowns, despite being sidelined for several games with an injury.

As of Tuesday evening, Coach Woods still wasn't sure whether sophomore Jeremy Bosley or junior Rich DeWitt would start Friday night at tailback. "It's nip and tuck with these two," he said. "Both are playing very well, so we will most likely use both extensively, regardless of who starts."

The Rams also have two strong candidates in senior Shawn Ryan and junior Jason Rinker to fill the fullback position. When Rinker is running fullback, Ryan will fill the slot position and when Ryan is at fullback, junior Shane Skipper will play slot.

Others expected to see a lot of playing time on offense are juniors David Biser at center, Joby Tasker at tackle, and B.J. Shaffer at tight end.

"We will be running a lot of trap plays this year," Woods said. "With our two big tackles and three guards who are all strong and quick, we think our trap series should be effective."

The starting defensive line will consist of Shaffer and Freyman at defensive end, Bateman and Brett Glotfelty at tackles, and Rohrbaugh at nose guard. Mike Stewart, Ryan, and Garth Glotfelty will start at linebacker positions and the secondary will be composed of Bosley, Raymie Sherwood, and Skipper.

Others who will see considerable time on defense will be DeWitt and Jake Harley at defensive back, Chad Cooper and Tasker at tackle, Biser and Rodeheaver at end, and Smith and McCroskey at linebacker.

"Our overall team speed, both on offense and defense, is vastly improved over last year," Woods said.

The kicking game will include Getson as punter, Brett Glotfelty as place kicker for kickoffs, and Skipper for extra points and field goals.

Among the bright spots for Coach Woods this year has been the leadership he has received from his seniors. "These boys have been just outstanding at practise," Woods said. "They have worked their tails off and that has encouraged the younger players to work hard, too. We started our summer practices pretty slow, but we finished with the best August we've ever had."

That summer schedule ended on a high note for the Rams Saturday when they scrimmaged Fort Hill, possibly the area's strongest team, to a 2-2 tie.

"That was a real shot in the arm for our confidence," Woods said. "Now we have to get our feet on the ground, avoid injuries, and get some experience. We think we will get better and better with every game."

The Rams will need to get better and better as they progress through what Woods believes is their toughest schedule ever. Westmar and Beall have been replaced by defending state champion Allegany and a strong team from Landon School, an all-boys school located near Baltimore. Musselman returns with its usual outstanding team after going 12-1 last year and losing the state title game in the final minute.

"Then you throw in teams like Tucker County, Hampshire, Keyser, and Northern waiting to upset us at the end of the season and you have a very tough schedule," Woods said.

The Rams will be the favorite in their opener against Berkeley Springs, another young team that is currently 0-2.

The Indians' multiple-set offense is led by senior quarterback Mark Clem (6-0, 175) and senior tailback Jason McClintock (5-9, 165).

"They are a big-play oriented team that passes about 50 percent of the time," Woods said. "They are very unpredictable and, in order to get ready for them, you have to prepare for so many different formations. They use 5-2, 4-4, and 6-2 defensive fronts, which can present a lot of problems for a young offense like ours."

Woods said he considers the Indians' team size to be average, their speed to be better than average, and their kicking game to be outstanding.

"Their advantage is the fact that this will be their third game and our first," he said. "You can always tell when a team has played at least one game because they settle into the game a lot quicker. We have to make sure that we don't get off to a lousy start and let them score on some big plays."

Assisting Woods with coaching chores this year are Dave Bosley, Fred Gregg, Terry Kendall, and Scott Harvey, with Steve Himes back as trainer. Jim and Tom Bosley are coaching the jayvee squad.

"Chris is a real key for us and right now it looks like he will be able to play some this Friday night," Vent said.

The Huskies will be the favorite going into their opener this week against visiting Central Preston, a team that is 0-2 having fallen to Washington Irving and East Preston. However, Vent says the Cavaliers are "better than their record indicates and a lot better than they were last year."

Vent scouted the Cavaliers the past two weeks and said that they are much bigger than in the past.

"Because of our lack of size, we are using a new philosophy this year," Vent said. "We have to use our speed and be extremely aggressive on defense. We just can't let other teams pound on us because we don't have the size or the depth to take it. We will have to strike quickly and with a lot of force. Offensively, we will probably throw a little more. Chad Sines, who started for us as a freshman, has seen it all and is a real veteran. Plus we have some good receivers, especially Doug Brenneman."

Vent noted how pleased he was that his team would be "back home" this year and have "first class" facilities to work with. "I want to thank everyone who was involved with this project," he said. "It is just a super job and now both county high schools have some of the finest facilities around. Hopefully we can respond with a win Friday night."

Huskies

"We don't have a lot of experience and overall we are a lot smaller," Vent said. "But we have a lot of hard hitting going on. Some of our smaller players are among our hardest hitters. We are really pleased with this because it is something we've been working toward for a long time."

Vent said he has been "pleasantly surprised" by the efforts of several younger players, such as Wakefield, Wachter, Wagner, and Rowe. "These kids are really working hard and doing a heck of a job for us," he said. "I am anxious to see how they do in a game situation."

Junior Chad Anderson, safety and backup quarterback, drew specific praise from Vent. "I can't say enough about Chad. He's solid academically and just a super kid on and off the field. He adds a new dimension to our secondary."

The Huskies have already experienced injury problems, with the most significant involving Chris Younkin, who has been nursing a sore knee.

In Memory Of

PREMA C. BOWMAN

I cannot say and I will not say that she is dead, she is just away!
With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand, she has wandered into an unknown land,
And left us dreaming how very fair, it need must be, since she lingers there.
So think of her faring, oh as dear, in the love of there, as the love of here.
Think of her still as the same, I say, she is not dead, she is just away.

DO YOU HAVE FEEDBACK OR WHISTLING WITH YOUR HEARING AID?
ARE YOU CONTINUALLY ADJUSTING THE VOLUME?

This is a common complaint that we hear from many hearing aid users. With the new Cleartone hearing aids you will not have feedback once the hearing aid is completely in your ear. You will not have to continually adjust the volume control, because the hearing aid will automatically reduce the loud noises for you.

We have found that it even helps those who have Tinnitus "ringing ears".

Come in today for a no-cost hearing evaluation and demonstration of the hearing aid!

To The Voters Of Garrett County:

The Office of Clerk of the Circuit Court is a public institution recognized the Constitution of Maryland and has existed in the State since 1658.

Only six Clerks of Court have served Garrett County Since its founding in 1872. I am the sixth, having been appointed by the Hon. Fred A. Thayer, Chief Judge, on July 2, 1990, after thirteen years experience as Deputy Clerk of Court, first with Richard L. Davis, then with Clifford C. DeWitt. All six Clerks have been working deputy clerks and have risen through the ranks to bring their experience to the elected office.

The duties of the Clerk's Office are many; they are varied and technical, governed by the Maryland Constitution, Maryland statutory and common law and by the MARYLAND Rules of court. A working knowledge of these resources is essential.

DAVID K. MARTIN
Clerk of Circuit Court

For Circuit Court, the Clerk's duties include:

1. Processing the filing of all lawsuits and all major criminal charges
--Claims for damages of $5,000.00 or more.
--Appeals from District Court and administrative agencies.
--Domestic Relations: Divorce, Custody, Support, Alimony, Adoption & Paternity.
--Mortgage foreclosure, mechanics liens, injunctions.
--Criminal charges filed by the State's Attorney, criminal indictments and criminal appeals filed from District Court.
--All juvenile cases.
2. Providing staff assistance to Grand Juries and all Circuit Court trials, both jury and non-jury.
3. Recording all judgments of the Court, all liens and all Court documents, both local and out-of-state.
4. Prepare annual office operating budgets sent to Comptroller of The Treasury.

In addition the Clerk's duties to the public include:

1. Recording and maintaining land records; deeds, mortgages, deeds of trust, leases, plats, land contracts, etc.
2. Maintaining corporation records, partnership records, agency records and commissions.
3. Taking applications for passports.
4. Issuing marriage licenses and business licenses.
5. Performing civil marriage ceremonies.

As Garrett County grows, so grows the volume and complexity of the Office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court.

--The Maryland Administrative Office of the Courts reports that Circuit court case filings in Garrett County reached a total of 1,063 in 1989-90, up from 645 in 1977-78, when I began as a Deputy Clerk. This represents a 56% increase
--Trials, both jury and non-jury, have now reached 197 for the past fiscal year, up 42% in the last five years.
--Business licenses are issued by the Office of the Clerk of the Court. This year the office issued 947 business licenses, an increase of 40%.
--Deeds, mortgages and financing statements are filed and recorded in the Office of the Clerk of Court. The office recorded 6,480 of these instruments last year, up 41% in number since 1977. The revenue from recording these documents reached $854,596.17; thus, the office paid over $540,311.95 to Garrett County and $314,284.22 to the State of Maryland this year.
--The Office of the Clerk of the Court collected and disbursed to this County, to the State of Maryland and to local municipalities more than 1.41 million dollars in fiscal 1990, an increase of 170% since 1977.
--The Office of the Clerk of Court issued 763 marriage licenses and performed 391 marriage ceremonies in fiscal 1990.

The Office of the Clerk of Court requires a person that is experienced, capable and qualified. I believe that the 13 years I have served under Richard L. Davis and Clifford C. DeWitt have qualified me for this office.

I solicit your support and vote on September 11, 1990.

NOTICE TO ALL VOTERS

The following scene took place at a meeting of primary candidates and the public at GCC. The meeting was sponsored by the Northern & Southern Garrett County Republican Clubs.

Question from a concerned voter:

"Commissioner Gregg, I am a member of the Rescue Squad and we stand by for the Fire Department. I am concerned about new condos such as those going up in McHenry because they do not have sprinkler systems and some have spiral staircases. Would you favor changes in zoning in regard to this?"

Commissioner Gregg:

"Well! That does not come under zoning but is up to the Building Code Inspector!

Note:

Commissioner Gregg was not asked who was in charge of sprinkler systems or spiral staircases. He was asked for his opinion. He did not give one. Instead, he ignored the question and with sarcastic arrogance turned on the voter and asked these completely irrelevant questions: "Would you want us to require sprinkler systems in every house in Garrett County and do you think the people would be willing to build 20-foot driveways for every house for fire trucks?"

Who wants a commissioner who will not listen and will not answer questions?

Vote for Brenda Butscher for Commissioner. She will listen! She will answer!

They call them "ECONOMIC REVENUE BONDS." The Bonds will have to be paid by Garrett County taxpayers if the borrower defaults. They are Bonds against our taxpayers' property. The Bonds were issued by the County Commissioners against the County.

A letter in last week's paper concerning House Bill 937, "Salary Increase for all County Employees needs to be answered."

First: He tries to leave a false impression concerning a salary increase for all the county employees in the Courthouse seems to imply that the law requires the increases provided in his Bill 937.

Second, he says that the law was heavily publicized. It could be, but it was not publicized up here.

He knows that recommendations are only that and nothing more.

The law was passed in 1989. It was not published up here. I never heard of the law until three weeks ago when somebody from Cumberland mailed a copy to me. Then I had to write to Annapolis for a copy which was then sent to me properly signed by the Governor.

Again, I have to state that the bill plainly provides for increases for nearly every employee in the Garrett County Courthouse.

The bill provides for County Commissioner increases as follows: Increase for each Commissioner Increase in 1991 to present $20,000; for year 1992 to $23,000; in 1993 to $25,000; and in 1994 to $28,500.

Treasurer salary is to be raised to $22,000 and then to $24,000; State's Attorney salary to $50,000 by 1994; Assistant State's Attorney, $25,000; Sheriff, $28,000 to $35,000.

We find other increases in Edwards' bill. He is very liberal with the taxpayers' money.

He says that the Salary Board requires these increases, but the fact is, no law requires any of these increases except Edwards' law.

Edwards was elected to represent the people of Garrett County, but he believes he was elected to represent the County Commissioners. With him as our representative we are indeed helpless. Perhaps the Senator who ever is elected can help us.

BRENDA BUTSCHER'S EXPERIENCE —

- Presently Executive Director, Hospice of Garrett County.
- Presently Vice-President, Oakland Radio Station Corp.
- Former insurance agent for Nationwide Insurance.
- Former restaurant manager.
- 25 years farming experience.
- Member, St. Paul's United Methodist Church, serving on the administrative board.
- Member, Oakland Civic Club.
- Member, Garrett County Historical Society.
- Member, Garrett Property Owners Association.
- Member, Garrett County Farm Bureau.
- Member, Southern Republican Women's Club.

Brenda has been a Sunday School teacher, Bible School teacher, Girl Scout leader, worked with the Boy Scouts, worked with the Cancer, Heart and March of Dimes fund-raising campaigns and has also been a member of various PTA's.

BRENDA BUTSCHER'S POLITICAL EXPERIENCE —

Brenda is not a newcomer to politics. She has been elected to serve the people of Garrett County on four different occasions. She was elected to the Republican Central Committee twice and is presently serving as Chairman. She was elected twice as Delegate to the Republican National Convention; in 1976, Brenda was endorsed by President Ford; in 1988, she was endorsed by President Bush. She has been the only woman elected to serve as Delegate from the 6th Congressional District.

BRENDA BUTSCHER — ON THE ISSUES —

- Would practice an "Open Door" policy between you, the taxpayer and the office of County Commissioner.
- Would show fairness in the service of county roads.
- Would adequately fund the Board of Education.
- Would work to protect and preserve the rights of private property owners.
- Would say "NO" to salary increases for county commissioners. $28,000 annually, plus benefits and retirement, is out of line with county employees and taxpayers who must account for their time on the job.
- Would represent senior citizens to the fullest extent.
- Would promote and actively seek new industry and business in the County.
- Would support an aggressive gypsy moth spray program.
- Would support a long overdue recycling program.
- Would insist on better planning for bridge and road building projects.
- Would support better building codes to protect volunteer firemen and rescue squad members.
- Would support a Battered Spouse program.
- Would ask for legislation to limit county commissioners to two terms in office.
- Would ask for legislation for a member of the Board of County Commissioners to serve as an ex officio member of the Board of Education. This should put an end to the bickering and fighting between the two boards and put the children's education as top priority.

Brenda Butscher is honest and fair. She will be there when you need her and she will listen.

DRUG INSTRUCTIONS STUDIED

The Eglon Extension Homemakers met August 28 at the Memorial Building in Eglon. Opening devotions were provided by the hostess, Nina Layman, who read a meditation, Earthly Health or Heavenly Wealth, and concluded with prayer which was followed by the reading of poems, "The Apples Are Ripe" read by Mary Rembold and "Hospitality" read by Avenell Parsons.

Brenda Hartsell provided materials for the study of Prescriptions: Rx for Good Health. Understanding of prescriptions and labels, the stocking and storing of medications, side effects, generic and brand name medications, plus stress on following directions were all included in her lesson. A display of books including "Side Effects of Prescription Drugs," "Pills That Don't Work," and "Guide to Prescription and Over-The-Counter Drugs" and copies of an "In Health" magazine article on drug interactions with foods completed the study. A time for questions and answers followed.

Lesson leaders and hostesses for the coming year were chosen along with substitute lessons. As Mrs. Hartsell has been employed full-time and Rebecca Teets volunteered to serve as historian for the club. Because the club was to serve the Mt. Lions' Club supper on September 6, plans for that event were made.

The next meeting will be October 2 at 7 p.m. with Mrs. Rose Ina Harsh teaching CPR. The hostess showed as her special feature four afghans accompanied by balls which she has crocheted, one for each of her grandsons to have for their children.

OBITUARY

John Readd, 73, Eglon, formerly of Thomas, died August 21, 1990, at the Lewis A. Johnson VA Hospital in Clarksburg, W.Va.

Mr. Readd was born May 13, 1918, in Tunnelton, a son of the late Charles and Alice (Loughry) Readd.

Survivors include his wife, Ruth Allman Readd, Eglon; one brother, Nathan Readd of Rapid City, S.D.; three sisters, Ann Currance of Cresaptown, Md.; Katie Mitchel of Baltimore, Md.; Clarence Steward of Conneaut, Ohio; three stepsons, three step-daughters, 14 step-grandchildren, and seven step-great-grandchildren.

Mr. Readd was a disabled veteran and member of VFW Post 4322 at Parsons. He entered the service July 16, 1942, at Camp Crowder, Mo., served in England, France, Belgium and Germany and was awarded the Presidential Unit Citation, the Good Conduct Medal, and five battle stars.

Funeral services were held August 27 at the Hinkle Funeral Chapel in Davis with the Rev. Earl McCombs officiating. Interment followed in the Rose Hill Cemetery, Thomas.

Letters

easier for their constituents to deal with county employees rather than state employees.

Now, by the above cited letter, the Commissioners have not only decided against County implementation of the wetlands program, but have requested State implementation and establishment of another DNR office in Garrett County. The reasons given for their negative decision was "fiscal and time restraints." These reasons are not valid. They have had a year to implement the program and their administrative officer recently reported a four million dollar surplus in the county coffers.

Over the past eight years, we have witnessed a creeping takeover of county functions by the state. At every opportunity the Commissioners appease the Annapolis bureaucrats, or shift their administrative responsibilities to the state, without regard to restraints being imposed on their constituents. It appears the Commissioners are more interested in rubbing shoulders with the Annapolis powers than in the welfare of the people they are supposed to serve.

As one publication put it: "look out — your haystack may now be declared a non-tidal wetland area."

SINCERE THANKS

The Garrett Sports League and WCI would like to extend their sincere thanks to all the volunteers involved in pulling this event together. As we know from experience an event can go on with a lack of any part of the whole except the part that is done by the volunteers. All our volunteers are so willing to jump in and work very hard. Our volunteers are responsible for the growth of this event from the first race of '88 with 125 racers to this year with 300 entries. To all our volunteers — you are very much appreciated. This event would not be without your help. Thank you.

We would also like to thank all of our sponsors and our contributers for providing us the opportunity to put this event on in Garrett County. And a final thank you to all the businesses and individual people who were very accepting of the traffic delays on Saturday and Sunday. A special thank you to the Wisp Resort and ski area for providing the pool and area for the youth event.

Any volunteers who did not receive their volunteer T-shirt, please call WCI at 387-4282.

In the Kitchen

HONEY FACTS

Honey is a wholesome, natural food. It gives sweetness plus flavor. It may wisely be substituted for sugar or molasses. It is an energy-giving food, especially easily digested. It contains small amounts of mineral. It possesses slight laxative properties. It may wisely be used for constipation or overweight. It keeps indefinitely if stored in a warm, dry place. It is obtained in comb, extracted and granulated form. Granulated honey is as pure as other forms.

HONEYED HAM AND APPLES

Brown a rather thick slice of cured ham in a baking dish, pour 4 tablespoons of honey over the ham and stick 3 whole cloves in the ham. Place cored apples halved, or pineapple, on ham and bake in a moderate oven. In place of the fruit, sweet potatoes or carrots may be used, and pork chops may be substituted for the cured ham.

CANDIED SWEET POTATOES OR CARROTS

Place raw or partly cooked sweet potatoes or carrots in a baking dish and add honey and butter enough to keep vegetables from becoming dry. Cook until vegetable is tender, basting from time to time.

A HINT TO THE WISE IS SUFFICIENT

Substitute honey in recipes for sugar or molasses.

1 cup honey = 1 cup sugar
1 cup honey = 1 cup molasses or syrup

Allow ¼ to ½ teaspoon soda to each cup honey in baked products. Reduce liquid in recipe ¼ cup for each cup honey. Granulated honey is used the same as strained honey. Spices that blend well with honey are nutmeg, cloves, ginger, cinnamon, cardamom, coriander seed and aniseed.

SWEET-AND-PUNGENT HONEY BEEF AND BEANS

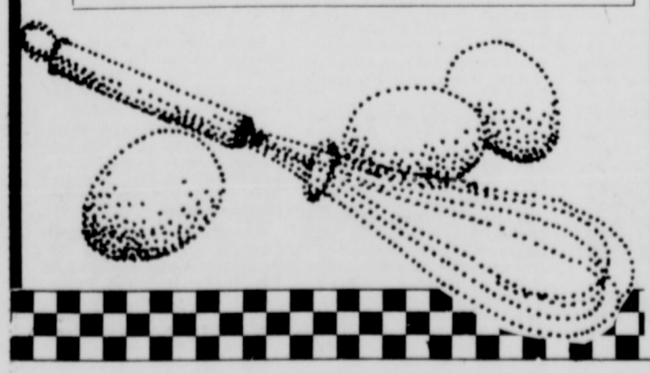

1 pound ground beef
1 teaspoon instant onion
¼ cup fine dry bread crumbs
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1 egg, slightly beaten
¼ cup water
1 cup beef broth
2 tablespoons each honey and soy sauce
¼ cup cider vinegar
½ cup catsup
2 cans (1 pound each) large dried limas, partially drained

Mix beef with next 6 ingredients. Shape in 16 to 18 balls. Put beef broth in skillet, bring to boil and add meatballs. Cover and simmer about 20 minutes. Combine remaining ingredients, except beans. Add to meatballs and simmer about 10 minutes. Add beans and simmer a few minutes longer. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

QUICK STICKY ROLLS

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup honey
½ cup broken pecans or walnuts
1 tube (8 ounces) buttermilk biscuits

Melt butter in 10-inch pie pan. Drizzle in honey, sprinkle with nuts and top with biscuits. Bake as directed on package label. Turn out on large plate and serve warm.

HONEY IN PRESERVATION: Honey may be substituted in part and in some cases for all of the sugar in jelly, preserves, jams and fruit butters.

HONEY-PINEAPPLE BREAD

3 cups all purpose flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon baking soda
1½ teaspoons salt
3 eggs
½ cup vegetable oil
½ cup clover honey
1 can (8¼ ounces) crushed pineapple
½ cup water
¾ cup chopped pecans or walnuts

Sift together dry ingredients. Beat eggs until thick and lemon-colored. Combine oil, honey, undrained crushed pineapple and water, mix with eggs. Add to dry ingredients, mixing only until blended. Fold in nuts and spread in greased 9x5x3 inch loaf pan. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350°F.) 1 hour. Then reduce heat to 325°F. and bake 15 minutes longer, or until center is done. Cool in pan about 5 minutes, then turn out on rack. Cool completely before slicing. Loaf can be sliced thinner if cut the day after baking. Good with whipped cream cheese.

HONEY SALAD DRESSING

2 egg yolks
Pinch of salt
¼ cup of honey
Juice of ½ lemon
2½ tablespoons salad oil
1/8 teaspoon paprika & cup cream, sweet or sour

Beat egg yolks, then pour in the hot honey. Cook for a moment, beating continually, then fold in the salad oil and lemon juice, the cream beaten stiff and the seasonings.

SAUCE FOR ICE CREAM OR PUDDING

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 cup honey

Cook cornstarch and butter. Add honey and cook until thick and raw starch taste disappears. Two-thirds cup finely chopped fruit may be substituted for cornstarch.

HONEYED PEARS

7 pounds firm ripe pears
1 cinnamon stick
1 teaspoon ground ginger
Grated rind of 1 lemon
2 cups cider vinegar
3 pounds honey

Peel and core pears, but leave whole. Combine all other ingredients and bring to a boil. Cook pears in syrup over medium heat until tender, test with cake tester. Cook only a few pears at one time. Remove pears with slotted spoon and place in sterilized jars. Remove cinnamon stick from syrup. Cook syrup until reduced by half. Pour over pears. Seal jars. Makes about 3 quarts.

NOTE: Use firm pears, such as Seckel pears, and serve as a relish with roast meats and poultry.

HONEY MOUSSE

3 egg yolks
¾ cup strained honey
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
2 eggs whites, stiffly beaten

Beat together egg yolks and honey until light. Fold in whipped cream first, then beaten egg whites. Pack into 1½ quart mold, and freeze. Makes 6-8 servings.

NOTE: A fragrant flower honey, such as orange or rose honey, would be excellent for this French recipe.

PENNIES FROM HEAVEN

½ cup water
1 cup honey

Combine water and honey and bring to a boil. Cook until it reaches the soft-ball stage, or 240°F. on candy thermometer. Drop hot mixture, 1 teaspoon at a time, into a dish filled with firmly packed crushed ice. The ice must be as firm as the ice in snow cones.

BUTTERED HONEY NUTS

6 ounces shelled unsalted nuts
1 tablespoon melted butter
1 tablespoon honey

Spread nuts on a cookie sheet. Bake in preheated slow oven (300°F.) for 15 minutes. Mix butter and honey and pour over nuts. Stir until nuts are completely coated with the honey mixture. Store in airtight container until ready to serve. Makes 1⅓ cups.

HONEY-CREAM DESSERT SAUCE

Mix ½ cup honey, ½ cup light cream, and 2 tablespoons butter, cook over low heat for 10 minutes. Add a little rum flavoring if desired. Makes about 1 cup.

LEMON-HONEY SPREAD

2½ cups honey
Grated rind of 1 lemon
¾ cup strained fresh lemon juice
½ bottle (⅓ cup) liquid pectin

Combine honey, lemon rind, and lemon juice in saucepan. Bring to a rolling boil, stirring constantly. Stir in pectin. Bring again to a full boil. Boil for exactly 1 minute. Remove from heat when jelly sheets from spoon. Skim, pour into hot sterilized jelly glasses. Seal with paraffin. Makes 1 quart.

NOTE: This is delicious on hot toast, pancakes, waffles, or with cold meats.

SPICED HONEY TOPPING

½ cup unsalted butter
¼ cup honey
¼ teaspoon each ground cinnamon, nutmeg, mace, ginger, or any combination of these spices desired
½ cup heavy cream, whipped

Cream butter until soft and fluffy. Beat in honey and spices. Gradually beat in whipped cream, beating until mixture is smooth and fluffy. Chill until serving time. Use as a quick topping for cakes, pancakes, waffles, or French toast. Makes about 1 cup.

HONEYSCOTCH TOPPING

½ cup sugar
¾ cup honey
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup butter or margarine
⅔ cup undiluted evaporated milk

In saucepan mix sugar, honey, salt, butter and ⅓ cup milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, until a small amount of the mixture forms a soft ball when dropped in cold water (234°F. on a candy thermometer). Stir in remaining ⅓ cup milk and cook, stirring, about 3 minutes longer. Serve warm or cold on ice cream gingerbread or other cake or pudding, chocolate ice cream. Makes about 1½ cups.

GRANDPARENTS... Our Living Legacy

Did you ever wonder what makes grandparents so special?

Grandparents represent an especially unique combination of qualities. They possess insight and patience, born of many years of the trial and error of child rearing. They have learned what is important and what is not. . . the knowledge of which situations warrant genuine concern and which will be solved by time alone.

Grandparents have learned the importance of a sense of humor. They can laugh at life as only those who have experienced it can. They have learned how to put life into perspective. Grandparents know how to listen and to guide their grandchildren gently and lovingly through the turmoil of youth.

Grandparents represent tradition and stability in an unstable world. They are living proof that the challenges of life can be conquered after all.

Grandparents represent love and warmth. They give us so much. This Grandparents Day let us give them our thanks and our appreciation for all the things they are, and let us remember them in our prayers as we worship this week.

RVROR ARE YOU READY FOR SCHOOL?

Children must be readied for school. Clothes must be mended and new ones bought. School supplies are to be purchased and going away to college children must have their bags packed. They will need quantities of health-aids and toilet articles. You will save time by being able to get them from our pharmacy.

September is a real busy month, but find time to bring the children to your physician for a health check-up before school begins. Some of them may need booster shots or new innoculations against communicable diseases. Others may be told to take vitamins, particularly if they take hurried meals away from home.

Likely to be one of NBC's hottest new comedy series is the new Fresh Prince Of Bel Air, premiering Monday, Sept. 10.

The show stars rap Grammy winner Will Smith ("Parents Just Don't Understand") as a tough kid from West Philadelphia shipped to Bel Air to live with his wealthy and stodgier relatives.

"He's innocent, silly, fun-loving and bound for trouble," says Smith of his character. The Prince's main function, it would seem, is to light a fire under his adoptive, uppercrust family's roof.

James Avery (FM) stars as Uncle Phillip, a successful attorney trying to forget his humbler roots, while Janet Hubert (Cats) plays Aunt Vivian. Prince finds a rival in his preppy cousin Alfonso Ribeiro (Silver Spoons), a spoiled would-be brat packer in his cousin played by Karyn Parsons, and an ally and confidante in the youngest of the bunch, played by Tatyana M. Ali. Geoffrey the butler, (actor Joe Marcell) is the Prince's polar opposite.

Smith, 21, also records under the name of Fresh Prince. He began rapping for fun at parties when he was 12. In 1981 he joined up with musician Jeff Townes and they became "D.J. Jazzy Jeff & the Fresh Prince." Their hit "He's the DJ, I'm the Rapper" won the pair a Grammy in 1988.

Like his character, Smith says, "I also prefer not to fit in." When he decided to choose a career in music instead of attend MIT, his family went into "meltdown," he tells. © TV Listing Inc.

'Growing Pains' Tracey Gold stars in Afterschool Special

By Christy Bergsten

Tracey Gold of Growing Pains stars in A Question About Sex, the ABC Afterschool Special season premiere, Thursday, Sept. 13.

Gold plays Shauna Kelly, a bright, attractive teenager who becomes very outspoken about her school's lack of a sex education program. Shauna's mother Joanne, however, played by Cindy Pickett, has achieved a prominent place on the local school board, and Shauna's candor is tending to jeopardize Joanne's bid for re-election.

Although Joanne pushes hard for a health clinic in Shauna's high school, after the facility is provided, it offers no sex education counseling. Shauna is very disappointed about the school board's decision not to include the counseling at the new clinic—especially after she learns her best friend has become pregnant. Things get worse when her own boyfriend begins pressuring her about sex. Taking a stand, Shauna leads her classmates in a "speakout" against the school board—even though it could spell defeat for her mother's re-election bid.

Other members of the Afterschool Special cast include Derek Rydakk as Ron, Kristin Dattilo as Allison, Renee Estevez as Becky, Lisa Marie Russell as Janet, Michael Keys Hall as Charlie Pike and Parker Whitman as Dr. Singer. Actor Tom Skerritt (Top Gun) directed the teleplay. © TV Listing Inc.

Tracey Gold plays a teen with a cause in the ABC Afterschool Special season premiere, Thursday.

Jodie Sweetin wrecks Dad's car and wants to run away, Friday on ABC's Full House.

Judith Light made the most of decision to pursue acting

By Polly Vonetes

Q: Could you please give me some information on Judith Light, such as age, marital status, hobbies, etc.? Also has Alyssa Milano been in any other shows than Who's the Boss? —Mary Beth Streifert, Broadalbin, N.Y.

A: Judith Light was born on Feb. 9, 1950, in Trenton, N.J., and attended local schools before entering a private girls' high school. After her junior year, she enrolled in a summer drama program at Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh, Pa., which led to her decision to become an actress. Judith and her husband, actor Robert Desiderio, met when they co-starred on the daytime drama One Life To Live. They live in a house in the Hollywood Hills. She enjoys reading, cooking, gardening, studying Italian, and playing classical piano. She keeps fit by working out with a trainer.

Alyssa Milano began her career by winning a role in the Broadway production of Annie. Since coming to Hollywood she has appeared in the movie Old Enough, co-starred with Arnold Schwarzenegger in Commando, with Sir John Gielgud in The Canterville Ghost, and in the NBC movie, Dance 'Til Dawn. She has completed work on Teen Steam, her own popular teen talk and exercise video, and has recorded her first album of rock 'n' roll songs for the Japanese market.

Q: Many years ago there was a game show called Yours For A Song on television with Bert Parks. I wonder if you would know where I could get a copy of the segments. My husband was on the show. I think the year was 1962. —Mrs. J. Grazione, Palm Coast, Fla.

A: Bert Parks hosted this half-hour game show, on which contestants won money by supplying the missing words in lyrics sung to them, from Nov. 1961 to Sept. 1962. It aired on ABC. I will give you the address of a firm recommended to me: Yesteryear Video, Box C, Sandy Hook, CT. 06482. They may be able to help you.

Q: Was Gene Kelly ever a real ordained priest? —Violet Domkowski, Amsterdam, N.Y.

A: Gene Kelly started dancing as a child and has pursued it all his life. He was never a priest.

Q: Bruce Boxleitner reminds me of Andy Gibb. Why did Victoria Principal dump him? And when was Andy born? —Unknown Stranger, Vulcan, Mo.

A: At this point in time, only Victoria Principal knows what really happened between her and Andy Gibb. Andy was born March 5, 1958, in Manchester, England.

'Roots' star continues as host of colorful 'Reading Rainbow'

By Amy Schmidt

No longer will Reading Rainbow episodes end with summer. The PBS program, which is designed to encourage 5- to 8-year-olds to become proficient readers, can now be seen 52 weeks a year.

Says series host LeVar Burton, "With the move to year-round programming status, we can now provide motivation to read on a daily basis every weekday of the year."

Burton, who at age 19 won his first big acting role as Kunte Kinte on the miniseries Roots, will host five new Reading Rainbow episodes premiering Sept. 10 through 14. The new programs are "The Magic School Bus Inside The Earth," "Jack, The Seal And The Sea," "The Bicycle Man," "Florence And Eric Take The Cake" and "Sunken Treasure."

Each half-hour episode is based on one book. A celebrity guest narrates the tale, and then the theme is expanded upon with various on-location segments which introduce viewers to new and interesting people, places and ideas.

Burton, a reader himself, makes an ideal host. "One of my main roles on the show is to demonstrate my personal enthusiasm for books and reading," he says. "Children learn by example, and the example I try to set is that reading is one of my favorite pastimes, something I do because I enjoy it and because it gives me a great deal of personal satisfaction and pleasure." © TV Listing Inc.

Bob Hope marks 40th year of entertaining on NBC

New comedy special based on book

By Amy Schmidt

"It's not going to be easy to cut this thing down to an hour," says Bob Hope. His new NBC special Don't Shoot It's Only Me, airing Saturday, Sept. 15., is based on Hope's 10th and most recent book to hit the shelves.

This is the 40th year Hope has been doing specials exclusively on NBC. But never before has he done a show based on one of his books.

During Hope's incredibly lengthy career (he's 87 years-old, still works 10 hours a day, and travels 150 days of the year), he has met legions of people. Trying to figure out who and what to include in the show will be no small task.

"I have a lot of people in person that have been mentioned in the book, and then we do pieces of film about them. I think it will be interesting," Hope says. He will narrate the special.

Hope recalls a few times he really was shot at while on the USO tour: "One time when we were leaving a place called Cu Chi, I used to travel up front behind the pilots and they turned around and said, 'Fasten real tight. We're going to make a fast get off here.'

"I said, 'What's happened?'

"He said, 'They're firing at the planes at the end of the runway.'"

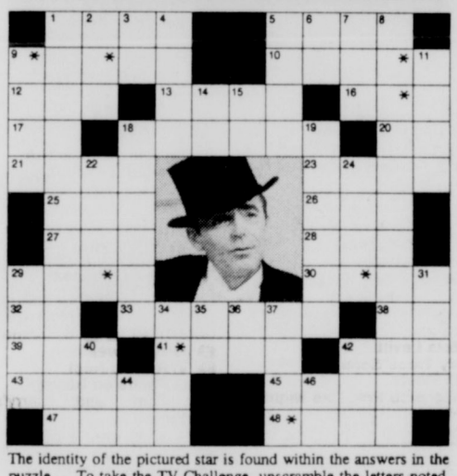

The one thing the legendary comedian says he would still like to do in his career is win an Oscar for acting. He has been accorded two honorary Oscars for having hosted the event so many times, but he's never won a bona fide Oscar for an acting performance. The script? "Maybe something like, Driving Mr. Daisy," Hope jokes.

Bob Hope celebrates 40 years on NBC with his new special, Don't Shoot, It's Only Me, a docu-comedy based on Hope's newly released book, Saturday.

Rev. Woods Among "Outstanding Men"

The Board of Advisors for the "Outstanding Young Men of America" awards program recently announced its selections, and Rev. Marshall Woods III, pastor of the Pine Grove Church of the Brethren, was among 12 men chosen.

The OYMA program is designed to honor and encourage young men between the ages of 21 and 40, who have distinguished themselves in many fields of endeavor, such as service to community, professional leadership, academic achievement, cultural accomplishment, business advancements, and political participation.

Pastor Woods is from Westernport and is married to the former Debbie King. They have two children, Sarah and Timothy. They plan to move to the Garrett County area as soon as housing is available.

Byron Co-Sponsors Health Legislation

A bill that will establish new programs for research on women's health matters within the Department of Health and Human Services and the National Institute of Health is being co-sponsored by Rep. Beverly Byron (D-MD).

Byron said her support of the legislation is a result of a recent General Accounting Office study that found the NIH to under represent or completely exclude women as subjects in its research despite the fact the women comprise over half the U.S. population. The findings of the GAO study were corroborated by testimony from an NIH official before a House subcommittee earlier this year Byron said.

"The NIH is spending less than 14% of its budget on women's health research," Byron said. "This has to stop."

As an indication of the apparent bias against women in health research at the NIH, Byron cited examples from the GAO report that she says clearly demonstrates the need for legislation to address the problems at NIH.

*45,000 women die every year from breast cancer yet the National Cancer Institute refused to fund a study of the affect of diet on breast cancer because of cost;

*Although heart disease is the leading cause of death for women over age 60, findings establishing the connection between aspirin and coronary disease prevention couldn't be applied to women because the study looked at 22,071 men and no women.

The bill HR 5290, known as the Women's Health Research Act, will establish an Office of Women's Health under the office of the HHS Secretary and create the Center for Women's Health Research and Development at the National Institutes for Health.

Arson Statistics Are Released By Gabriele's Office

Maryland State Fire Marshal Rocco J. Gabriele has announced the arson statistics for the first six months of calendar year 1990 for the State of Maryland.

The statistical data was compiled by the Maryland Uniform Crime Reporting Program based on information from law enforcement agencies throughout Maryland. The data reveals that arson offenses increased slightly for the first six months of 1990 as compared with same period of 1989. From January through June of this year there were 1,347 reported arson offenses statewide, as compared with 1,308 such incidents during the first six months of 1989, which represents an increase of approximately three percent.

According to the Office of the State Fire Marshal, an agency of the Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services, the Eastern Shore Region which includes the counties of Caroline, Cecil, Dorchester, Kent, Queen Anne, Somerset, Talbot, Wicomico and Worcester, experienced the largest increase in arson for the first six months of 1990 at 35% over 1989 figures. There were 101 arson offenses reported for the first half of this year, as compared with only 75 such incidents for the same period in 1989. The Western Maryland Region which includes the counties of Allegany, Carroll, Frederick, Garrett and Washington showed a nine percent increase in arson with 101 offenses reported for the first half of 1990 as compared with 93 such incidents during the same period in 1989.

The Washington Metropolitan Region, which includes Montgomery and Prince George's counties, also showed a nine percent increase in arson with 352 incidents reported from January through June of 1990, as compared with 323 such incidents for the first six months of 1989.

Only two regions of the State had a decrease in arson offenses for the first half of 1990. The Southern Maryland Region which includes the counties of Calvert, Charles and St. Mary's, and the Baltimore Metropolitan Region. The Southern Maryland Region had a decrease of 12 percent in arson offenses, dropping from 41 such incidents for the first six months of 1989 to 36 such incidents for the first six months of 1990.

The Baltimore Metropolitan Region, which includes Baltimore City, and the counties of Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Harford and Howard, experienced a slight decrease in arson offenses with a one percent decrease for the first six months of 1990 as compared with this same period in 1989. There were 700 reported arson incidents in the region during the first half of 1990, as compared with 708 such incidents for the first six months in 1989.

Commenting on the increase of arson offenses for the first six months of 1990, Gabriele stated, "I am slightly concerned with the increase of arson offenses which has occurred during the first half of this year. Only with the assistance of the citizens of Maryland, working in concert with law enforcement and firefighters throughout Maryland, can we help to lower the number of arson offenses which are occurring throughout our State."

Anyone with information regarding any arson fire in the State of Maryland, can contact the Maryland State Fire Marshal to report the information on the Maryland Arson Hotline 1-800-492-7529. All information will be kept strictly confidential, Gabriele said.

MAINTENANCE ACHIEVEMENT — The 1990 State of Maryland Maintenance Achievement Award "for dedication and performance in maintaining a clean, safe and efficient state facility, and in recognition of the service performed for the citizens of Maryland who may work and be served in a professional and pleasant environment" was awarded the Garrett County Commissioners and county maintenance and custodial personnel this week by Governor William Donald Schaefer and Earl F. Seboda, secretary, Department of General Services. Presenting the award, pictured above, far left, was George C. Charuhas, regional representative, office of the secretary, Department of General Services. Accepting, left to right, are: Commissioner Elwood Groves, Commissioner Ernest Gregg, John Criss Jr., Commissioner John Braskey, Ron Fulk, Carl Nair, John Savage, Tom Ashby and Tom Callis Jr.

Goldstein Notes Tax Break For Military Personnel

"Maryland income tax law provides a special tax break for many of our military personnel serving in Saudi Arabia," Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein reminded Marylanders today. Federal and state law provide another tax break if the area is declared a combat zone.

"Up to $15,000 of military pay a member of the armed forces receive while serving on active duty outside of the United States is exempt from Maryland state and local income taxes. The amount of the exemption declines relative to the total military pay (both U.S. and overseas combined) between $15,000 and $30,000. At $30,000 the exemption is eliminated and all of the income is subject to tax," the comptroller said.

A worksheet and instructions in the 1990 Maryland income tax packet will help taxpayers compute the amount of exempt income. The tax break, enacted by the 1989 session of the Maryland General Assembly, took effect for tax year 1989 returns.

"If President Bush declares the Middle East area a combat zone, enlisted personnel would be exempt from federal income tax on all income earned while serving in the combat zone, and commissioned officers would be exempt on up to $500 per month of military income received while serving in the combat zone," Goldstein said. "Since the Maryland tax law follows the federal law on the definition of income, this same income would be exempt from state and local income tax."

Counties Receive Highway Safety Program Funding

Baltimore City and Maryland's counties have been awarded a total of $1 million in grants to develop local programs to combat drug and alcohol related highway accidents. The Maryland Transportation Trust Fund is contributing $500,000, which is being matched by an equal amount in federal funds.

Garrett County's allocation is $25,000. The local contact person is Jay Cross, of the Garrett Health Department, at 334-8116.

More than 11,600 alcohol and drug related traffic accidents were reported in Maryland in 1989, the MDT said, and these accidents resulted in 325 deaths and more than 10,000 injuries.

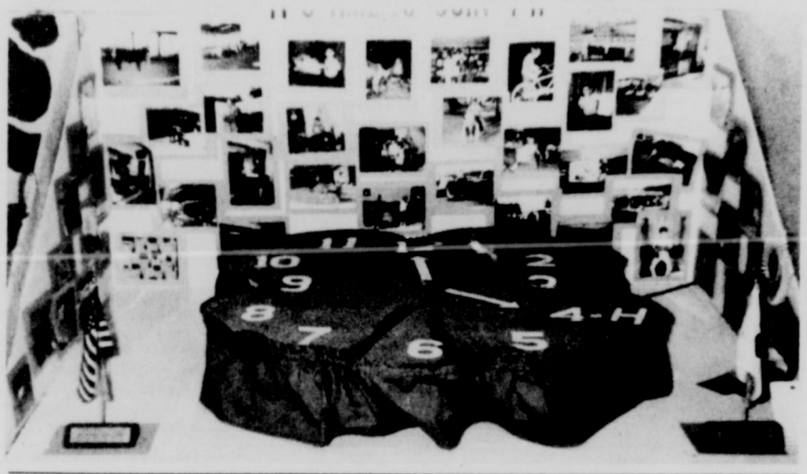

"Governor William Donald Schaefer and the state legislature authorized the use of the Trust Fund to aid the development and implementation of a local alcohol and drug highway safety program in every jurisdiction," Maryland Transportation Secretary Richard Trainor explained. "We must work together to curb the needless deaths and injuries caused by drunk and drugged drivers on our highways."

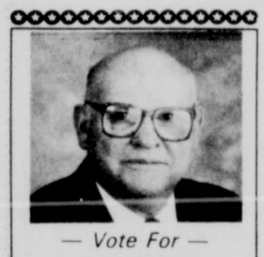

Local activities eligible for funding include public awareness and education programs, traffic law enforcement, offender prosecution and adjudication, treatment programs, and data collection and analysis.

Local governments must provide a percentage matching share, either in cash or in kind, to receive a grant. The grants are being administered by the Maryland Department of Transportation.

Lecture On Love Slated At GCC

In a world where divorce is common, and where some people live together in "relationships" rather than marriage, one could wonder, as the song does, "Whatever happened to old-fashioned love?" and whether vows and devotion are still indispensable to love. Some answers to these and other questions will be heard on September 19, at 7:30 p.m. when Dr. Steve Herman, president of Garrett Community College, speaks on "Love, Vows, and Devotion" in the GCC auditorium.

According to Dr. Herman, popular television shows and checkout counter tabloids have helped to modify one's understanding of love and how to win it. He sees an older romantic order "in which devotion and vows were once considered to be indispensable accompaniments of love relationships giving to a new order where they are in some circles considered to be superfluous. These changes are proceeding almost impercentibly without careful reflection on the beneficial or self-defeating effects they may have," he said.

In his lecture, Dr. Herman will analyze devotion, vowing, and commitment, and offer some prudential counsel to would-be lovers. The lecture is open to the public, free.

VALUE ADDED!

Have you ever purchased a pair of shoes and had the sales clerk offer to "throw-in" free shoe polish? Have you ever received a call directly from your doctor the day after a visit, asking how you're feeling? Both are good examples of a concept called "value-added" service — getting more than that for which you had bargained.

When you are on the receiving end of the "under-promise/over-deliver" value-added concept, you are likely to feel good about it! You perceive that you have received something special, and at no extra cost. Employ that concept when selling your home and you may be surprised by how quickly you find a willing buyer at your price.

Before offering your home for sale, research the local housing market to determine what incentives are being offered to buyers. A REALTOR® can provide valuable information about local home sales, offering suggestions for consideration.

Once you know what competing sellers are offering, make a list of possible extras for your home. Those might include: 1) moving date flexibility, 2) owner financing at an attractive rate, 3) reseeding of the lawn and mulching the flower beds, or 4) offering to pay additional closing costs or discount points on the buyers' mortgage loan. Some extras, like offering to vacate the home quickly, have no cost at all, yet offer valuable convenience to buyers. A swing set left in the backyard for a family with young children may even be the perfect move on your part.

Offer to provide extras which appear to be over-and-above the norm. These may be perceived by buyers as powerful benefits. If you manage to offer several of these obvious extras, the buying decision may become even easier for prospects. Offer the widest variety of unique value-added benefits possible, then watch as buyers eagerly compete to purchase your home!

If you're planning to sell your home soon and would like information on its current value, give us a call at 387-5303, or come by our office located in McHenry, MD.

Information On Scouting To Be Distributed Soon

As the summer winds down and families prepare for the return to school, boys throughout the area start anticipating the beginning of a new Cub Scouting year. "With over 30 Cub Scout Packs in the Potomac Council area, there's bound to be one near you, sponsored by either your local school. church, or civic organization," says Brad Burr, Council Executive.

Scouting professionals and adult leaders will be visiting more than 50 local elementary schools during the first weeks of school telling boys how they can become involved in Scouting. The boys will receive information telling parents about Cub Scout School Nights, where parents and boys can join a Cub Scout Pack. Once in a Pack, a boy is assigned to a den, depending on his age and grade in school.

Cub Scouts have programs for boys in grades 1 through 5. First graders can join tiger cubs, a special program designed to give parents an opportunity to actively participate with their sons in monthly activities. Second and third graders join wolf and bear dens and fourth and fifth graders are webelos. All levels of Cub Scouting involve indoor and outdoor activities, crafts and songs.

In addition to Pack and Den activities, Cubs are invited to special District and Council programs such as Cub Scout Olympics, Webelorees, swim meets, and day camp at Camp Potomac.

The Scouting program has evolved over the years to take into account the changing patterns of American family life. Scout handbooks now have sections for parents on child abuse and drug abuse. Meetings are scheduled to accommodate working parents. Environmental awareness activities are a part of the program. Community involvement is encouraged by such activities as the Scouting for Food program, now in its third year.

Parents should look for handout materials on Cub Scouting their boys will be receving at school, they may call the Scout Service Center at 301-729-1300 for information on Cub Packs in this area. All boys grades 1 through 5 are welcome and no boy is turned away for financial reasons.

Potomac Council, Boy Scouts of America, is a County United Way agency.

HOW TO VOTE ON A VOTING MACHINE

1. Move the Red Handle from the Left to the Right as far as it will go, and LEAVE IT THERE. (This will close the curtain around you.)

VOTER ABOUT TO CLOSE CURTAIN

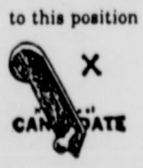

CURTAIN CLOSED VOTER VOTING

2. Turn DOWN a POINTER OVER the name of each candidate you wish to vote for (for each office), as shown:

from this position

to this position

AND LEAVE IT DOWN.

3. Continue in the same manner to the end of the ticket, taking care to turn down a Pointer for every candidate for every office that you wish to vote for, and LEAVE THE POINTER DOWN. You may change your vote as often as you like UNTIL you move the Red Handle to the Left. If there are questions on the ballot you wish to vote on, TURN DOWN THE POINTER that indicates your choice OVER each Question.

4. When you are finished voting, move the Red Handle back to the left as far as it will go and LEAVE IT THERE. This will register your vote. The Pointers will then return to the unvoted position before the Curtain opens.

A FEW WORDS OF EXPLANATION

No votes are registered until you move the Curtain Lever back to the Left to open the Curtain. You can therefore make as many changes in your ballot as you wish while the Curtain Lever is at the right (Curtain closed). Each candidate's voting Pointer is directly ABOVE his or her name.

The machine is so arranged that you CANNOT TURN DOWN MORE THAN THE PROPER NUMBER of Pointers for each office.

There is no danger of anyone knowing how you vote, as the movement of the Curtain Lever returns the Pointers to their unvoted position BEFORE the Curtain begins to open. LEAVE THE POINTERS DOWN.

This sample ballot shows the machine ballot for this Election. If you will read and remember these directions, you will cast your ballot easily and quickly.

MSP, School Bus Contractors Issue Safety Message

Maryland State Police and the Maryland School Bus Contractors Association (MSBCA) are delivering a "Back to School" message to motorists in Maryland.

"School bus drivers will be watching for motorists who fail to stop for buses either boarding or discharging passengers with red lights flashing," said George Gregory, president, Maryland School Bus Contractors Association. "We are asking the motoring public to obey state law which requires the motorist to stop for school buses whose red lights are flashing."

Appearing on the Maryland State Police Radio Program, a weekly radio public service broadcast, Gregory said the Association will be working with Maryland State Police to indentify violators of the Maryland Vehicle Law.

"School bus drivers will be observing motorists who fail to stop and will notify State Police and other law enforcement agencies of these violations," Gregory stated.

Under Section 21-706 of the Maryland Vehicle Law, motorists are required to stop for a school vehicle displaying the alternately flashing warning lights when approaching the vehicle from the front or rear. The law does not apply to school vehicles in Baltimore City, or in an incorporated city or town with a population of more than 100,000 people. Additionally, the law does not apply to divided highways if the school vehicle is on a different roadway. A divided highway is defined as one which is divided into two or more roadways by a median, a barrier or some other dividing barrier constructed to impede vehicular traffic. The law provides a $255 fine and a two point penalty for violators of the law.

The Maryland School Bus Contractors Association represents approximately 700 private school bus contractors in Maryland. There are more than 5,000 school buses, both public and private, operating in Maryland. During 1989, these buses logged nearly 90 million miles.

The Maryland State Police Radio Program is a weekly public service broadcast carried on approximately 50 radio stations in Maryland and the District of Columbia. The program is supported by the Natonal Highway Traffic Safety Administration and the Maryland Department of Transportation.

WPA Prints On Exhibit At GCC

"Genuine" Queen Anne Cottage, by Zama Vanessa Helder

A collection of 77 original prints by 69 artists from the Federal Art Project of the Works Progress Administration will be exhibited at the Bausch & Lomb Art Gallery of Garrett Community College from September 5-27, according to Ron Skidmore, assistant professor of art and coordinator of the gallery. Gallery hours for September are: noon to 5 p.m. Monday, Wednesday, and Friday; and noon to 10 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday.

Authorized in the fall of 1935 and initiated in the beginning of 1936, the Federal Art Project (FAP) was designed to enable struggling artists to retain their dignity and, at the same time, to offer useful products and services to the community. Under the FAP program over 100 community art centers around the country returned to the taxpayers thousands of art objects for schools, hospitals, libraries, post offices, and other public buildings. These included 2,566 murals, 17,000 sculptures, 108,000 easel paintings in oil, watercolor, tempera and pastels, 20,000 designs for the Index of American Design, and 240,000 copies of 11,285 original graphic designs.

WPA rules demanded FAP artists labor in central workshops under a timetable, much as in a factory. Skidmore said many artists rebelled against this system of "art by the clock" since they were accustomed to working odd hours and when inspiration moved them. "Graphic artists did not seen to object as much to this system as easel painters. In fact, for graphic artists, the workshop system seemed to foster high production and new techniques," he said.

The majority of WPA artists, including the graphic artists, worked in the major style prevalent in the decade of the 1930's American Scene painting or "regionalism," as seen in the work of the Midwestern regionalist style of Thomas Hart Benton, Grant Wood, and John Steuart Curry. American Scene painters employed local themes in a realistic style encompassing attitudes ranging from nostalgia for the past to recording the present passing scene.

Included in American Scene painting was "social realism", a point of view rather than a specific style, Skidmore said. Founded by the artists Raphael and Moses Soyer, Ben Shahn, William Gropper, and others, the social realists portrayed the ecomonically and racially disadvantaged.

Print media in the exhibit include, in both black and white and color: woodcut, lithograph and lino-cut, plus wood engraving, etching, intaglio, drypoint, and aquatint.

West Virginia's Outstanding Tree Farmer Makes The Most Of His Fields And Forest

by Bernice Kepple

"To get the most from your woodlands, you must manage all of it." This is the philosophy of Bill and Elsie Slagle, of Bruceton Mills, W.Va., that state's 1989 Outstanding Tree Farmer of the Year and second-place finalists in the 1990 Southern Regional Outstanding Tree Farmer of the Year Contest out of the 36,000 tree farms in the south..

Bill is the third generation on his family's 80 acre farm near Bruceton Mills, which his ancestors purchased from the Indians more than 200 years ago. The Slagles also farm Elsie's home place — a 125-acre farm just across the state line in White Rock, Maryland. Although in different states, the two farms are not far apart (almost adjoining), making the intense management practiced by the Slagles possible.

The Slagles maintain a highly diversified and intensely managed tree farm. Like Bill's ancestors, they use all forest products to the fullest extent, and make it pay. Bill's primary objective is to intensely manage his woodlands so as to obtain a diversity of forest products. In doing so, he has developed a myriad of income opportunities, which have permitted his family to rely on the forest for a large percentage of their livelihood.

On the Maryland farm, the Slagles have planted approximately 36,000 pine trees. "We don't utilize that place as much as we should," Elsie says. "We cut the hay on the farm and we've cleared away some of the rocks, but we would like to use more diversified management there, try to maximize its potential," she added.

In the woodland areas of the Slagle's West Virginia farm, Bill has established ginseng beds after heavily thinning the oak stands. Timber is harvested for commercial sawlogs, pulpwood, and shiitake mushroom production. He chips tops, leaves, and limbs for mulch on his ginseng beds and in the walnut plantation. He prunes all potentially high quality hardwoods for future veneer production, in some cases climbing up 70 feet to prune. He cuts lumber from the farm, selected to improve the quality of the forest stand, for his own construction. He has donated lumber to school vo-ag classes and last year, gave away 36 cord of firewood to needy families.

As a teacher of construction and carpentry at the Preston County Vo-Tech School at Bruceton Mills, Bill promotes the benefits of multiple-use forest management. He incorporates practical applications, using his forest as a demonstration and training area for his students, forestry students in vocational agriculture, and the general public.

The Slagles produce Christmas wreaths, conifer ropes, and floral arrangements, and sell moss gathered in the forest. Bill has also built and erected 50 Bluebird boxes around the farm.

Looking for ways to stay on the land, and making a profit from the wise use of the land; years ago the Slagles brought the first Limousine cattle into the area. They were the first in the area to perform embro transplants on beef cattle. They raised trout for awhile. "I'm always looking for something different — diversified," said Bill. "To me it's a hobby — a sport — and I can make some money if I've figured it right."

Also looking ahead to the future, the Slagles have planted a 10-acre black walnut plantation. "I'd like to see more walnut trees planted on farms," Bill said. "Barren areas, little sections on farms could be turned into walnut groves for the future." Planted primarily for timber production, Bill is also raising ginseng in the shade of his young walnuts. "Some said the ginseng wouldn't grow like this," Bill said, "but we always found wild ginseng under walnut trees, and I think it will."

The 10-acres of walnuts were grown in rows, from nuts. Bill says the genetics of the trees is important. "We picked nuts from the best trees we could find," he said, adding that friends who knew they were planting walnuts gave them bushels of the nuts. "We cracked and ate them, but wouldn't plant them, not knowing what quality of a walnut tree they came from," said Bill. The Slagles have tried planting both seedlings and nuts. "The nuts work best if you can keep the squirrels away from them," they say.

WEST VIRGINIA AND REGIONAL TREE FARMER — On their Walnut Meadows farm, the Slagles have planted 10 acres of walnut trees from nuts. These trees will be six years old next April. In their fifth year the trees are five inches in diameter, 25 feet tall and have already produced a crop of nuts. For their efforts, the Slagles were named West Virginia Outstanding Tree Farmer of the Year in 1989 and placed second in the 1990 Southern Regional Tree Farmer of the Year Contest out of 36,000 entries. Above, Bill Slagle points to five-year-old ginseng plants which were transplanted to the walnut grove two years ago. Below, Bill holds the two plaques awarded him by the state and regional tree farm committees.

Walnut Meadows, Slagle's black walnut plantation.

Walnuts ideally like a deep river bottom soil, so Bill mounds the soil in the rows to be deeper. The nuts were planted 16 inches apart and surrounded with black plastic mulch. "Walnut people say black plastic mulch is not the way to grow young trees, but we've proven that's not true," Bill said, explaining that there is a difinate difference between rows of trees where regular black plastic was used and is still on the ground five years later, and some smaller trees of the same age which were surrounded by a type of biodegradable black plastic which lasted less than a year in some of the rows.

The trees are continually thinned to maintain a good stand, and in the end have 40 to 60 trees per acre which will also provide adequate shade for the ginseng plants. "I hope to have trees 20 inches in diameter in 30 years," said Bill. "I keep thinning them, but keep them close so they crowd and grow tall."

An ideal timber stand would be 100 trees per acre, which would be worth $500,000 per acre in 60 years. Bill says that a tree 30 inches in diameter and 40 feet to the lowest limb is worth $10,000. The highest-priced walnut tree ever sold in this country was four feet in diameter and brought $35,350.

Slagles young trees will be six years old next April. In their fifth year, the trees are five inches in diameter 25-feet high and produced a crop of nuts. Some of the young trees grew eight feet in the last year, and it's hard to keep them straight, Bill says. Wind and canker, a type of decay, are major problems for fast-growing trees.

"The forestry people are kind of amazed by the growth of my trees from nuts," Bill says. Purdue University has a patient on grafted walnut trees that have grown up to 9/10 inch in diameter in a year. Bill's trees are growing one inch in a year.

"I give credit for the tremendous growth to the black plastic mulch, which keeps the ground warm, keeps the weeds from growing and keeps the moisture in," Bill said.

It takes constant effort to keep the trees from being damaged by all their other natural enemies. Deer do a tremendous amount of damage to young trees, both horn damage caused by rubbing the trees, and damage caused by browsing deer. One year, Bill tried a deer repellent spray on two acres of young trees. The repellent killed the main terminal, or central growth area, on every tree.

Gypsy moths are another natural enemy that are causing extensive damage to the walnut trees, and by defoliating the trees they rob the ginseng plants underneath of necessary shade. This summer, Bill sprayed the walnut plantation five times with Roundup to protect his investment.

Except for the gypsy moths, the threat from natural enemies lessens as the trees grow, and after 15 or 16 years, no maintenance is needed.

"Some people say I won't live long enough to harvest these for timber," Bill says, "but I think they're wrong. When I'm 135 years old they'll be ready, and if I eat enough ginseng, I think I might live that long."

The National Black Walnut Council plans to hold their 1992 meeting in West Virginia to tour Walnut Meadows, Slagle's black walnut plantation.

Slagles have seven acres of ginseng in production. Five acres are under natural, thinned oak stands, while the other two acres are under unique, artificial shade created with plastic cover supported by 16-foot locust posts. Bill has a total of two million ginseng plants growing. In the autumn of 1989, he harvested 65 gallons of berries. He plans to have a sustained production of 250 to 300 pounds of berries annually. He sells some berries and keeps some for more planting, both in the wild and in his production areas.

Native Americans used ginseng roots medicinally, and for more than 100 years, residents of Maryland and West Virginia have dug the root for sale to customers abroad. Orientals in particular revere ginseng as a cure-all. Recent biomedical research shows that it effectively alleviates stress in experimental animals, and the heavy past demand for ginseng root may prove even greater in the future.

Anyone may dig ginseng on their own land, oterwise, a permit is required. The collecting season for wild ginseng begins August 15 and ends November 30 of each calendar year. Ginseng diggers are re-

PROPAGATING A NATIVE PLANT — GINSENG — Steeped in history, and still growing in Garrett County and neighboring West Virginia, is the ginseng plant. Harvested for its root which is said to have medicinal properties, the plant grew so profusely when pioneers first settled here that at least one area, Sang Run, was named after the plant. Bill Slagle, of Bruceton Mills, W.Va., grows ginseng on his Walnut Meadows farm, propagating the plants by gathering seed from native plants which have grown on the farm for generations. Bill is pictured above holding a two-year-old ginseng root. The Chinese value these roots even more when they grow in the shape of a human with "arms and legs." In the background above is the shade-cloth-covered two-acre plot of cultivated ginseng planted by the Slagles. Below, an occasional employee, Robert Ramsburg, pulls weeds from a bed of 10-year-old ginseng plants growing under a stand of mature oaks which have been thinned to allow the ginseng plants just the right amount of shade.

PREPARING THE SEED — The ginseng plant produces clusters of bright red berries, each berry containing one, two or three seeds. These berries are picked and cleaned, covered with moist soil for a year, then planted individually to appear as a sprout the following year — a two-year process. Above, Bill Slagle and his daughter, April, clean the berries. April crushes the berries and rubs the pulp out through a screen, leaving the seeds. Bill then washes the seeds in clear water and drains them. Below, Bill's mother, Inez (Friend) Slagle, holds a pan of ginseng seeds. Inez helps pick berries and weed the ginseng beds (munching the ginseng berries as she works). Bill says his mother can out-pick and out-weed all of the high school students who come to work on the farm.

quired to plant the seeds from the plants they harvest at the site of the digging. The species is thus perpetuated in a habitat where it is already established.

In the state of Maryland, 101 pounds of dried root was exported last year, bringing an average per pound of $180. A total of 53 percent of that was gathered in Garrett County and 37 percent in Allegany County. According to a Maryland Department of Agriculture Ag Statistics spokesperson, ginsent once grew in all areas of Maryland. At one time, he said, a substancial patch of wild ginseng grew in Wheaton, just outside of the nation's capitol. "It's a housing development now," he said.

West Virginans harvested 13,451 pounds of wild ginseng last year and exported 14,432 pounds because of a hold-over from the year before. Also harvested was 27 pounds of cultivated ginseng. Ninety-five percent of the total was dried ginseng roots. In Preston County alone, 239 pounds of ginseng root was dug. The average value of the dried ginseng root in West Virginia was $225 per pound, making it a $3,260,476 industry in the state last year. "Ginseng is worth twice as much as silver," Bill says.

In established woodlots, Bill thins and prunes the adult trees to produce the proper amount of shade for ginseng. The rocks are dug out and raised beds are made with trenches in between for drainage. Ginseng won't grow unless it's well drained.

Each bright red ginseng berry contains one, two or three seeds. "We stratify the ginseng seeds for one year in the moist ground." Bill said. "Then they are planted and come up the next year." These seeds are planted in permanent seed beds, and may be thinned and some transplanted, but the beds will never grow new seed again.

The ginseng root is sold in three different classifications: cultivated, which takes four years from planting to harvest and brings $60 to $80 per pound; woodsgrown, which takes five to six years from seed to harvest and brings $90 to $120 per pound; and wild or simulated wild, which is ready to harvest in 10 years and brings $250-330 per pound.

SHIITAKE MUSHROOMS ARE GROWN AND MARKETED on the Slagles' West Virginia farm. These "Black Forest Mushrooms" are in high demand in the cities, and Bill Slagle finds a good market for them in both Pittsburgh, Pa., and Morgantown, W.Va. Bill grows his own spawn, or mushroom seed, and sells inoculated logs as well as the finished mushrooms. Above, Bill uncovers a pile of inoculated logs which have been soaked and covered with plastic to hold in humidity. After the spawn spreads throughout the logs, they will be restacked (like the pile in the background) and will produce a flush of shiitake mushrooms every six to eight weeks for approximately three years if conditions are right. Photos by Craig Phillips

The Slagles have some 75 to 100-year-old ginseng plants on the farm. Rings on a ginseng root can determine the age of the plant just as the rings of a tree can determine its age. Bill will be selling some 10-year-old roots weighing five to seven ounces to a merchant from China this fall. Bill says studies show that people in other cultures put a high value on ginseng. The Chinese for instance will spend one-third of their income on ginseng for their families. People in the Soviet Union use ginseng when working under a lot of stress, whether it be in sports, heat stress or cold.

Bill raises two-acres of cultivated ginseng under shade cloth. The ground was worked up, raised beds established, and the ginseng crop planted before the locust posts, cables and shade cloth was erected. He expects a harvest in four years, "unless it is too wet," Bill said. "Ginseng can't take wet weather. Even wild ginseng dies in the woods if it's too wet."

Weeds are a problem in cultivated ginseng, and it's hard for the Slagles to find labor to pull weeds. Bill says he works 16-hour days, seven days a week, and other members of the family work on a regular basis. Outside help is limited to weekends when two or three students come to work on the farm.

Bill expects the ginseng crop to flourish, though, and says if he can "keep the weeds, thieves and varmints out, in 10 years I'll have a fine crop of cultivated ginseng."

The other major enterprise on the Slagle farm is the production of shiitake mushrooms. Bill, who grew up eating the wild mushrooms his family harvested, was not surprised to find a large market for mushrooms in the Pittsburgh, Pa., and Morgantown, W.Va., areas. He makes his own shiitake mushroom spawn which is placed into pre-drilled holes in five-foot long oak logs and covered with nickel-sized Styrofoam plugs.

It takes six to 18 months for the spawn to spread over the log, depending on whether it is left to grow naturally or aided by human intervention. In the summer under natural conditions, it takes six months. Incubated in a heated barn it takes six months. After the spawn has spread throughout the logs, they are soaked in the creek.

The logs are soaked for 24 hours, stacked in the shade and covered with plastic to promote humidity. After the first flush of mushrooms, Bill lets the logs dry down for six weeks then soaks them again and waits for another crop of mushrooms. The average production is 1/2 pound of mushrooms per log per flush, but it is not unusual for Bill to get six pounds of mushrooms per log and his daughter-in-law once picked 11 pounds from one log in one flush. The logs last three years if worked hard, and six to seven years if mushrooms are only taken off three times a year.

The Slagles sell their shiitake mushrooms wholesale to a buyer in Pittsburgh for $5 per pound. Bill has been cultivating shiitake mushrooms for about four years now. He also grows spawn of many different kinds of wild mushrooms, experimenting with them all. "I hope someday to grow some truffles," Bill said. "I've already produced some morels — they seem to be what a lot of people like. We're coming up with some new ways to produce morels."

Bill says it's possible to harvest 150 pounds of mushrooms a week from 500 logs. The Slagles produced 3,500 pounds of shiitake mushrooms last summer, and are also beginning to sell production logs.

Mushrooms are unpredictable," Bill says. "I tell it and my wife tells it different, but they're a lot like a woman. You think you have everything figured out and you have real good success for a while then everything goes to pieces. You're ready to throw her and the logs both out, and well, she'll come with a big apple pie and the mushrooms start producing for you.

"Two years ago, I threw some logs away. Thought I'd never get a mushroom from them. I gave up. Threw them in the woods. When I was stacking logs this year, I put them on the bottom so my good logs wouldn't be on the ground — and everyone of them produced mushrooms. So you can't predict mushrooms. What makes mushrooms grow one day, won't work the next. It averages out — if you use all good practices, you'll get a good crop of mushrooms."

WILD MUSHROOMS are also picked and grown on Slagles' Walnut Meadows farm. Oyster mushrooms, left, are one of the wild mushrooms Bill has developed spawn for and is growing experimentally. Pictured at right, Bill holds some wild mushrooms he picked in the nearby woods. The round mushroom he is holding is a cauliflower mushroom, the others are bright orange sulpher shelf or chicken of the woods mushrooms, and the box in the back contains cultivated shiitake mushrooms.

Don Eskridge, a private consulting forester and the Slagle's nominating forester for the Regional Tree Farmer Award, summed up the Slagles' accomplishments when he stated: "Bill Slagle has continued to develop his tree farm over the past 20 years and has not been satisfied to just 'let the trees grow.' He has protected, managed, planted, and utilized his forest to the fullest extent possible. He has literally treated his forest as a farm."

Two New Herbicides

I think we have two new corn herbicides coming on the market next year that are going to surely benefit our corn producers. The two major new grass herbicides are DuPont's sulfonylurea, Accent, and Ciba Geigy's sulfonylurea, Beacon, the only corn herbicide in that family which Ciba Geigy expects to have on the market for several years. Both Beacon and Accent are arriving on the scene with a few problems. Neither should be applied to corn previously treated with the soil insecticide Counter. Accent should also not be applied to corn treated within seven days before with foliar-applied organophosphate insecticides or with the herbicides Basagran, Laddock or Tandem. Severe damage can occur. Accent and Beacon are labeled to control 4-10" shattercane, 8-12" rhizome and 4-10" seedling Johnsongrass, 2-4" quackgrass, giant yellow, bristly and green foxtails, fall panicum, barnyardgrass, broadleaf signalgrass, sandbur, and broadleaves such as ivyleaf, tall morningglory, smooth and redroot pigweed, annual smartweed and Jimsonweed. They should be applied with a non-ionic surfactant or crop oil concentrate — not with liquid nitrogen fertilizer solutions as total carriers.

Farming In Maryland

Bernice Kepple, Farm Editor

County Girl Placed In State Farm Queen Contest In 1951

"Everyone's knowledge" is not always complete. This was proven after an article in last week's Republican announced that Garrett County's 1990 Farm Queen Melissa Thomas had been named second runner-up in the Maryland State Farm Queen Contest.

To "everyone's knowledge," only twice before had a Garrett County Farm Queen placed in the state contest. In 1976 Valerie (Loughrie) Frazee was named first runner-up, and Sue (Hershberger) Crossland was named Maryland State Farm Queen in 1958.

Information received this week shows that a third Garrett County Farm Queen had placed in the state contest. In 1951 Margaret (Brenneman) Hershberger, of Bittinger, was named third runner-up at Timonium in the Maryland Farm Queen Contest. The Garrett County Farm Bureau Women's Committee is glad to receive the correction and the information will be added to their records.

Increasing Net Income Is Topic Of Dairy Agency Delegate Meeting

Over 100 dairy farmer directors and delegates heard three nationally known speakers outline how milk producers in Federal Order 36 must organize and negotiate with milk processors to increase the net income on the milk they produce and sell.

The Producers' Equalization Agency (Agency) arranged a mid-day meeting which was held at the Ramada Inn, West Middlesex, Pa., on August 23. According to John Siglow, general manager of the Agency, the meeting accomplished its purpose of informing the directors and delegates what dairy farmers can do to increase their bottom line through pricing their milk.

The Agency strongly advises dairy farmers to become involved in milk pricing in order to improve their net income. Siglow stresses that in the last three years, net returns to dairy farmers in eastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania have been the lowest in the nation.

The three speakers updated dairy farmers on the predicted future of their industry and how they can have a positive effect on it. These speakers were Robert Yonkers, assistant professor of Agricultural Economics, Penn State University; Robert Jacobson, professor of Agricultural Economics, Ohio State University, and David Hunley of the Mid-East UDIA.

Yonkers predicted that milk prices will drop in 1991 by $1.00 to $2.00 per cwt. He sees a budget reduction in the 1990 Farm Bill which will continue to reduce government involvement in milk pricing. Looking ahead to the year 2000, Yonkers sees that dairy farmers can use collective bargaining with milk processors in order to offset the price drops and to reduce instability in the milk price in 1991 and other years ahead.

Jacobson echoed Yonkers' prediction of a drop in milk prices, but placed it around $1.40 in 1991. He pointed out that over-order premiums are not an unreasonable request on the part of the dairy farmers, and that prolcessors are not opposed to over-order pricing if it is negotiated rather than forced upon them. He said the key to establishing a fair price is through a joint effort on the part of the vast majority of dairy farmers within Federal Order 36.

Hunley presented a slide presentation explaining the current high profitability of dairy products at the retail level. He stressed the need for unity, organization and good management in order for dairy farmers to tap into the unrealized profitability of dairy products today and in the future.

Commenting on the meeting, Siglow said, "We are witnessing history being made here today. At least, dairy farmers, through their delegates and directors to the Agency, are being given a positive way to improve their livelihood and bring their net incomes up to levels that dairy farmers in other parts of the country are currently enjoying."

Dairy farmers and milk processors who would like more information on Producers' Equalization Agency may call John Sigiow at 1-800-875-2250.

GOP Clubs Hold Candidate Forum

A large group gathered last week to hear the open forum of Republican candidates, sponsored jointly by the Northern and Southern Garrett County Republican Women's Clubs.

The forum was held at Garrett Community College on Tuesday, August 28. Lula Brown, president of the Northern Club, greeted the group and introduced Orpha Miller, also of the Northern Club, who gave the invocation. Ruth Umble, president of the Southern Club, introduced the candidates by reading a short resume on each. The candidates were then given five minutes each to speak with time allowed afterwards for any questions.

Questions on such issues, as assessment and taxation, liquor sales on Sunday, commissioners' salaries, and others were raised.

Republican candidates participating in all parts of the forum were: for State Senate, John Hafer; for District 1-A House of Delegates, George Edwards; for district 1 County Commissioner, Elwood Groves, Russell Sines and Jon Thayer; for District 3, George Broadak, Brenda Butscher, and Ernie Gregg; for clerk of court, DeCorsey Bolden, Sandra Kolb, and Dave Martin; for register of wills, Joe DiSimone; for judge of orphans court, Cliff DeWitt, Wilmer Margroff, and George Zimmerman; for central committees, Ann Groves, John Hinebaugh, and Jim Raley.

William Crawford, GOP Central Committee Candidate, was unable to be present during the forum, but was present later to answer questions.

Refreshments were provided by the Northern Club.

Angered Shallmar Residents Appeal To Grand Jury

Shallmar residents have been frustrated lately in their attempt to bring charges against those responsible for the destruction of their town water system. It was in March of this year that state officials, without a court order, came into the community and dismantled the water system that has served the town for generations. The residents have filed charges against two state government officials, but so far the charges have gone nowhere.

Ronald R. Rowan, principal spokesperson for the people of Shallmar, says he is going to take his case to the Grand Jury after having no success so far in seeing his lawsuits, filed against members of the Maryland Department of the Environment, set in motion.

Rowan says that he was advised by Garrett County State's Attorney James Sherbin to file charges against the MDE officials who ordered the destruction rather than those who actually carried out the act of severing the water lines, as had been his original course of action.

"(Sherbin) said he would prosecute the moment charges were filed," Rowan said.

Rowan filed charges on August 6 against James L. Hearn, director, Water Management Administration, MDE, and Barry O'Brien, P.E., chief, Supply Facility Inspection Division, Water Supply Program, MDE, the two who officially requested the Garrett County Sanitary Commission to dismantle the water system. After over a month, Rowan says he has seen no action.

Repeated attempts to contact State's Attorney James Sherbin for comment were unsuccessful.

Rowan's original charges against the three Sanitary Commission men who dismantled the system, and their MDE supervisor, have been pending since April 2, shortly after the March 27 incident. The old system, which served fewer than 30 homes, was cut and broken in "at least 15 places," according to Rowan.

The reason for the state's dismantling of the system was the alleged presence of fecal coliform bacteria, which would make the water unsafe for consumption.

Rowan states, however, that water tests have been done several times, and are still continuing, and that the water has so far been found safe to drink.

The town had been served by the old system for several decades until the mid-1980s, when the Garrett County Commissioners received an CHAMPION SKIPPER — Each year the Deep Creek Lake Yacht Club sponsors the Commodore Cup Regatta over the Labor Day weekend, a five-race sailing event for Flying Scot sailboats. However, the results of the B fleet competition were somewhat special this year because the winner of that event was 9-year-old Chad Lovett, of Deep Creek Lake. Chad is definitely the youngest skipper ever to win a Flying Scot competition at Deep Creek Lake and probably in the world. He also captured second place in the July-August race series at Deep Creek. Chad (he's the one without the mustache) is pictured above with his father, Bill, who crews for him. See story on page A-12.

Hospital Foundation Has Purchased Nearly $100,000 Of New Equipment

An activity report was released by the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Foundation after its quarterly meeting Tuesday, when it was noted that the Foundation has purchased eight pieces of hospital equipment totaling $98,083 over the past three years.

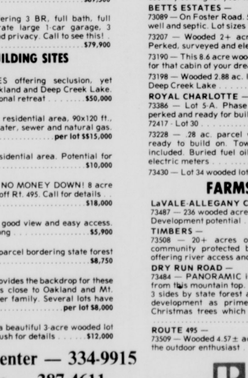

These purchases include the Lifepak 5 Defibrillator/ECG Monitor, a Life Stat 200 Blood Pressure Monitor, an OTV-F2 Endoscopy Monitoring System, a gastroscope, a Metro Lifeline crash cart, a 115XRE Dedicated Mammography System, an ABL 500 Blood Gas System, and an OSM3 Hemoximeter.

"Several additional equipment purchases are currently being investigated and will be announced over the next couple months," commented William B. Grant, Foundation chairman.

The Capital Campaign, which raised $1,576,464 in gifts and pledges, is currently in its third year of pledge payments. During the campaign, donors had the option of making their payments over a three- to five-year period.

A Barbecue at the top of Marsh Mountain at Wisp Ski Resort has been planned for this Saturday, September 15, from 2 to 7 p.m. Attendees will have the option of taking the chairlift or riding the van to the summit of Marsh Mountain. Tickets are still available by contacting the Foundation Office at 334-2155. The price is $35.00 per person ($25 is tax-deductible).

The Foundation's purpose is long term. As the cost of maintaining quality medical equipment is constantly on the increase, the Foundation plans to assist the hospital offset this expense. The Foundation is directing its energies to the development of other programs designed to encourage long-term support for the hospital," Grant concluded.

Two Lonaconing Women Injured In Friday Mishap

Two Lonaconing women were injured Friday in a two-vehicle accident that occurred on U.S. Route 40, according to reports filed by the Maryland State Police.

Dawn M. Hetz, 19, and Barbara A. Hetz, 48, were both treated and released from Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland following the 8:15 a.m. accident.

The accident occurred when the 1980 Datsun, operated by Dawn Hetz, was traveling east on U.S. Route 40 and impacted with a 1990 Honda Accord, driven by Helen K. Munson, 38, Frostburg.

Munson reportedly pulled out from a private driveway and was turning left when the mishap occurred. Upon impact, the Hetz vehicle overturned.

The injured were transported to the hospital by the Northern Garrett Rescue Squad.

Tpr. S.W. Vincent investigated and charged Munson with failure to stop before entering a highway. Vincent noted in his report that there were heavy rain conditions at the time of the accident.

A Mtn. Lake Park couple received minor injuries as the result of a single-car mishap last Thursday, according to State Police reports.

Bertha E. Thayer, 58, and George E. Thayer, 61, were treated and released from Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

The 12:50 p.m. accident occurred when Mrs. Thayer was operating a 1979 Oldsmobile on U.S. 219 South of the Glendale Road and reportedly blacked out at the wheel as she approached a construction area.

The vehicle ran off the right side of the road and struck a tree.

The couple was taken to the hospital by Southern Rescue Squad personnel. Tfc. J.K. Moore investigated.

A young Pennsylvania boy was injured in a September 1 accident, that was reported just this week by the Maryland State Police.

Planning Commission Hears Concerns Of DCL Plan Evaluation Comm.

The Garrett County Planning Commission met last week with the Plan Evaluation Committee to exchange ideas and discuss recommendations for changes to the Deep Creek Lake Plan and Zoning Ordinance.

John Nelson, planning and zoning administrator, first summarized three main concepts put forth by the committee regarding a proposal that emphasizes more land-based recreational use around Deep Creek Lake.

Those concepts include the designation of a new zoning district that would allow for only light, or non-intensive, industry; lowering the density of development on acreage around the lake; and attempting to transform the area into a "class resort."

Nelson then reported that the committee had, more recently, discussed the possibility of broadening the scope of the Deep Creek Lake zoning ordinance jurisdiction.

"There are areas around the lake," he said, "that are considered part of the resort area but are out of the Deep Creek Lake watershed boundaries."

Committee member Ralph Burnett explained that these areas are considered "functionally" part of the Deep Creek Lake/McHenry resort area.

Planning Commission Chairman Charles Bender noted that broadening those boundaries was a good suggestion but asked the committee to more clearly define the delineations before presenting a formal recommendation.

Another concept put forth by the committee to develop three land-based recreation areas in the county was met with the question of how to deal with increased traffic once that development takes place.

Burnett explained that the original concept of the zoning ordinance — adopted approximately 25 years ago — was to develop land-based recreation, "getting the recreational use off the lake and onto the land," he said.

He further stated, "Historically, roads do not come before development."

Nelson noted that the committee will continue to review each section of the Deep Creek Lake Plan and Zoning Ordinance, and will meet again in early October.

State, County Jobless Rates Rise In July

Slower job growth in seasonal summer employment pushed Maryland's estimated unemployment rate up from 3.9 percent in June to 4.5 percent in July, despite the increase in employment of more than 31,000 workers, according to statistics released by the Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development (DEED).

The Garrett County's jobless rate increased from 7.7 percent in June to 8.8 percent in July. The July 1989 rate was 6.6 percent.

The July 1990 unemployment estimate for Maryland, while above last July's rate of 3.6 percent, is a full percentage point below the national rate of 5.5 percent.

The employment increase raised total employment in Maryland to 2,482,034. However, the increase in employment was offset by an additional 47,827 new and re-entering jobseekers joining the labor force over the month. As the result of the labor force increase and slower job growth, Maryland's jobless rolls increased by 16,800 people.

In manufacturing, vacation shutdowns reduced employment in apparel and textile products. Also, the closing of an appliance plant in Howard County cost an estimated 500 jobs. In the state, there was a small increase of 100 jobs in the construction industry. Employment for general building contractors was static.

In the Baltimore metropolitan area, the jobless rate rose from 4.3 percent in June to 5.0 percent in July. Howard

Flu, Pneumonia Vaccine Clinics Are Scheduled

Influenza and pneumonia vaccines will again be available through the Garrett County Health Department clinics in October and November.

According to a Health Department spokesman, the influenza vaccine protects against three types of influenza viral infections of the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs. Accompanying symptoms may include fever, cough, chills, and soreness in the back, arms, and legs. Most healthy people recover in a few days, however there are people who develop more serious complications. The people at greatest risk of serious complications include the elderly and people with health problems such as chronic lung disease, heart disease, diabetes, kidney disease, and frequent respiratory infections.

The pneumonia vaccine stimulates, resistance to the 23 most common types of pneumonia. Like the flu viruses, pneumonia can be life threatening, especially for people who are elderly or have chronic diseases. The spokesman emphasized that the pneumonia vaccine is given only once and should provide lifetime protection.

The flu vaccine will be offered at a cost of $3.00. The cost of pneumonia vaccinations is covered by Medicare and persons not covered by Medicare will be charged according to income with the maximum cost being $12.

Clinics will be held as follows: Oakland, October 4, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., October 5, 1 to 4 p.m., November 1, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., and November 2, 1 to 4 p.m.; and Grantsville, October 18, 2 to 6 p.m.

Arrangements are being made to offer the vaccine in various other locations around the county. These dates and times will be published in the near future.

Primary Election Results Include Butscher Victory Over Gregg

Unofficial primary election results, held Tuesday with an approximate 44 percent voter turnout, indicate that District Three Garrett County Commissioner candidate Brenda J. Butscher defeated incumbent Ernest J. Gregg Jr. by a narrow margin. In the District One race, however, incumbent Commissioner Elwood L. Groves II retained his seat, which was challenged by Russell T. Sines and Jon Thayer.

District Two Commissioner, incumbent John G. Braskey, was unopposed.

Butscher received 1,488 votes in the District Three race; Gregg received 1404, and George J. Brodak, also a candidate, received 550 votes.

Groves received 1,383 votes in the District One race while his opponents, Sines and Thayer, received 1,080 and 892, respectively.

In the Republican District One Senatorial race, Frostburg resident John J. Hafer will face Democrat Daniel F. McMullen III, Cumberland, in the November general election.

Hafer, who received 1,319 votes in Garrett County, barely edged out opponent Alan Douglas, with 1,310 votes.

Incumbent John N. Bambacus chose not to run for a third term.

In the Sixth District Congressional Democratic race, incumbent Beverly B. Byron received 990 votes in Garrett County, winning handily over Anthony Patrick Puca, who received 324 votes.

Byron went on to take an easy win in the District.

In the Republican race, local candidate Kenneth Warren Halsey captured the largest number of Garrett County votes, but Christopher P. Fiotes, Montgomery County, was the overall district winner, and will face Byron in the general election.

Also running was Frank K. Nethken, Allegany County.

In the gubernatorial race, the team of incumbent Maryland Governor William Donald Schaefer and Lt. Governor Melvin A. Steinberg won Garrett County, as well as statewide support, in their bid for the Democratic candidacy.

Schaefer will square off with the Republican team of William S. Shepard and his wife and running mate, Lois B. Shepard, who won support for the GOP side from Garrett Countians and Marylanders.

Incumbent Maryland Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein, Democrat, will face challenger Larry M. Epstein, Republican, in the general election.

Back on the Garrett County front, incumbent David K. Martin, with 1,712 votes, retained the Clerk of the Circuit Court seat, winning over challengers Saundra J. Kolb, whose votes totaled 1,067, and DeCorsey Bolden, who received 522 votes.

Martin was recently appointed by Garrett County Circuit Court Judge Fred A. Thayer to fill the position following the retirement of Clifford C. DeWitt.

Three candidates were chosen in the primary election for Judge of the Orphans' Court. They were Clifford C. DeWitt, with 2,069 votes; Joseph A. Peck, 1,752 votes; and Wilmer W. Margraff, 1,388 votes. Peck and Margraff are both incumbents.

Other candidates in that race were George R. Zimmerman, who received 1,236 votes, and Josephine Long, with 778 votes.

Six candidates were chosen in the eight-candidate bid for Garrett County Republican State Central Committee representatives. Winners in that race included H. Wayne Wilt, 1,890 votes; William E. Crawford Jr., 1,539; Richard F. Green, 1,520; John E. Hinebaugh, 1,440; Patricia S. White, 1,394, and R. Ann Groves, 1,165.

Two other challengers, Saundra Walker Shockey and James M. Raley, received 1,113 and 1,106 votes, respectively.

In the eight-candidate race for Garrett County Democratic Central Committee, the six challengers with the most votes were George E. Brady, 791 votes; Donald H. Fratz, 758; Charles P. Nolan, 679; Ruth H. Ryan, 665; Harold D. Trickett, 665, and Bruce B. Opel, 606.

Other candidates included Spencer R. Schlosnagle, who received 532 votes, and Theodore Raynovich Sr., with 500 votes.

It should be noted that committee members could change as absentee ballots are counted.

Two Anne Arundel Men Nabbed On CDS Charges

Two Anne Arundel County men were arrested by Maryland State Police Wednesday on drug charges following a routine traffic stop.

Patrick C. Heilmann, 36, and Andrew James, 30, both of Arnold, were charged by Tpr. S.W. Vincent with possession of a controlled dangerous substance and possession of drug paraphernalia. Marijuana was reportedly found in the automobile.

The arrest occurred at 2:40 p.m. on the eastbound ramp of Md. Route 42, according to police reports.

Both men were detained at the Garrett County Jail where after bond review hearings they were released until their trial date.

Miss Maryland, Kim Grimm, Returns Home To Garrett County

THERE SHE IS — Kim Grimm, Garrett County's own Miss Maryland "did her state proud" during the competition at the Miss America Pageant held last week in Atlantic City. Her week was full of singing, dancing, parades, interviews, swimsuit and evening gown competitions. Above, left, Miss Grimm gives her rendition of the song "One, Two, Three," made popular by Gloria Estefan during the talent competition. Shown center, Miss Maryland and companion share a laugh while waiting to enter the parade in Atlantic City. Above, right, Miss Grimm undoubtedly dazzled the audience and judges in the evening gown competition. Below, Miss Grimm beams during registration as she displays her "Maryland With Pride" name tag. by Gene Welk

"Glad to be going home" was the reaction of Kimberly Ann Grimm, Miss Maryland 1990, after the conclusion of this year's Miss America Pageant.

Miss Grimm, Garrett County's Miss America representative, has worked tirelessly for the national competition since winning the state title in June.

She now hopes to take a week or two to rest and relax, as well as take some time off from her regimen. This included daily saturation of television newscasts and nightly singing and practice schedules.

As for the future, it's already too late to continue her studies at Frostburg State University — classes began two weeks ago — but Miss Grimm has plans to return to school in time for the winter semester.

She hopes to eventually receive her bachelor's and master's degrees in computer science.

The current Miss Maryland and her parents wanted to thank everyone from this area whose support contributed greatly to the success of her Miss America competition. They said the local support made the trip to Atlantic City "easier and more enjoyable."

Relieved, but Ready
by Pam Ashby

When Kim Grimm was asked about her general reaction to the Miss America Pageant, she simply stated, "Relieved . . . it's good to be home."

She then added, "I wouldn't give or take one minute away from the wonderful experience I just had, but still it's nice to be back."

When pressed for more details about the pageant, she stated, "The pageant was everything I expected and more. I talked with former Miss Marylands and they all gained something different from the pageant. They felt differently than I did. Mostly, I gained a lot of experience."

Indeed, Miss Grimm is happy to be home, but her year as Miss Maryland has only just begun. As a matter of fact, she will be appearing in a parade in Baltimore this very weekend.

She said the month of October is already filled with many activities, including being a special guest in Garrett County's own Autumn Glory Grand Feature Parade.

Her stint as Miss Maryland will find Miss Grimm in many parades, giving motivational speeches, being the spokesperson at awards ceremonies and singing the National Anthem at various state functions.

Additionally, she will most likely be asked to promote products, places and activities during her reign.

Miss Grimm said many people asked her about Bert Parks and his well-publicized mistakes during the pageant. "This was meant to be a special time for him since it was the 70th anniversary of the pageant," she stated. "Some things did not go as planned and we were on a very tight time schedule, but we all make mistakes. It was a shame, however, that some of the former Miss Americas were omitted from the program. They were naturally disappointed."

People who know about the Miss America Pageant know that those chosen for the production number are normally selected alphabetically. They very rarely got to the letter "M" for Miss Maryland. However, someone apparently noticed that Kim Grimm was a terrific dancer and the hometown fans happily got to see more of Kim than her opening introduction.

Rumors of backbiting and camera-hogging always abound following a pageant, but Miss Grimm said, "Most of us got along so well together. We're even thinking of having a reunion in the future."

Miss Grimm's rigorous physical fitness program prior to the pageant kept her stamina up, but this week she said, "It's (fatigue) catching up with me. I need to rest a little."

Miss Maryland's parents echo their daughter's sentiments.

"The pageant was quite an extravaganza," stated Francis Grimm, Kim's father. "While in Atlantic City, Kim did an excellent job. We saw no errors, but not everybody can be Miss America. We know Kim did her very best"

"It's all a judgement call," he added, "and who knows, maybe eight different judges would have selected 10 different finalists."

Miss Grimm's parents said she had gained a lot from her experience and agreed that she was in good spirits and full of self-satisfaction.

"The past 16 days have been intense and she's exhausted, but looking forward to her duties as Miss Maryland," said her father.

The Grimm family said they have also been made to feel like celebrities. "We're still getting calls. The support from the community and beyond has been overwhelming," Mr. Grimm concluded.

Miss Maryland's mother, Rita Grimm, has been busy packing the three carloads of Kim's wardrobe, but she says it is a labor of love and that she is very proud of her daughter — and so is the rest of the town, county and state.

Heather Hamilton Is Semifinalist, Merit Scholarship

The names of more than 15,000 Semifinalists including one from Garrett County, in the 1991 National Merit Scholarship Program are being announced today by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation. Heather B. Hamilton, a student at Southern High School, is included on the list.

These academically talented high school seniors represent about half of one percent of each state's graduating class. Semifinalists have an opportunity to continue in the competition for some 6,000 Merit Scholarships, worth approximately $25 million, to be awarded next spring. In addition, by announcing their names, National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC) hopes to broaden the educational opportunities of these students and to increase public interest in academic excellence.

More than one million students in over 19,000 U.S. high schools entered the 1991 Merit Program as juniors by taking the 1989 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT), which served as an initial screen of the large volume of entrants. Those designated Semifinalists in each state are the top scorers who must now advance to the Finalist level of the competition in order to be considered for Merit Scholarships. To qualify as a Finalist, a Semifinalist must have an outstanding academic record, must be endorsed and recommended by the school principal, must confirm PSAT/NMSQT performance on the SAT, and must complete a detailed scholarship application that includes a self-description and information about scholastic accomplishments, school and community activities, and educational plans and goals.

About 90 percent of the Semifinalists are expected to become Finalists, and all Merit Scholarship winners will be chosen from the group of exceptionally able Finalists. Award recipients will be the candidates judged to have the greatest potential for success in rigorous college studies.

Three types of Merit Scholarships will be awarded in 1991, supported by some 600 sponsor organizations and institutions, and by NMSC's own funds. Every Finalist will be considered for one of 1,800 National Merit $2000 Scholarships that are allocated on a state representational basis.

NMSC is a not-for-profit organization whose scholarship activities are funded by independent program sponsors. Merit Scholars in the class of 1991 will join some 121,500 other academic champions who have been awared Merit Scholarships worth $379 million between 1956 and 1990.

Local Man Found Guilty On Child Battery Charge

An Oakland man was found guilty of battery on a juvenile in District Court proceedings last week and given a one-year suspended jail term, fined $50 and ordered one year's supervised probation.

Judge Jack Turney accepted Ronald D. Harrison's guilty plea before rendering the verdict.

Conditions of Harrison's sentence included alcohol counseling and no violent contact with or abusive conduct toward children.

Charges against Harrison stemmed from a March 25 incident involving a three-year-old male.

A Grantsville man pleaded not guilty to assault, but was found guilty, and pleaded guilty and was found guilty for being disorderly in a public place.

Merrill T. Bittinger, 18, was handed a one-year suspended jail term, a $100 fine and placed on one year of supervised probation for the assault charge. For the disorderly charge he was given a 60-day suspended jail sentence, ordered to pay a $50 fine and placed on one year of supervised probation, to run concurrently with the sentence of the first charge.

Judge Turney also ordered Bittinger not to enter the property of Darren Kamp, to totally abstain from alcohol and illicit drugs and to pay his fines and court costs in 30 days.

Charges had been brought against him following a March 24 incident at the Kamp Apartments.

Keith A. House, 23, Friendsville, pleaded guilty and was found guilty of malicious destruction of property.

House was given a 60-day jail term, a $50 fine and placed on 12 months of supervised probation. He was also ordered to pay restitution to Ken's Tavern, Friendsville, where the destruction took place on May 2.

Eric S. Butler, 22, Ft. Myers, Fla., pleaded guilty to and was found guilty of theft.

He was given a one-year suspended sentence , a $25 fine and ordered to pay $150 restitution to Hilltop Auto Sales.

Charles E. Sliger, 42, Oakland, pleaded not guilty to disturbing the peace and being disorderly in a public place, but was found guilty by Judge Turney on both counts.

He was handed a 30-day suspended sentence, a $50 fine, and six months of unsupervised probation. He was also ordered to display no further acts of disturbing the public peace.

Wayne C. Yutzy, 20, Frostburg, who had been found guilty of possession of marijuana on May 4 was initially sentenced to 30 days in jail, all of which was suspended but 48 hours, and 90 days of unsupervised probation.

At a sentence revision hearing last week, Judge Turney ordered probation before judgment.

LWV To Meet With Commissioners On Growth And Development Study

All local League of Women Voters (LWV) in the state of Maryland have been requested to participate in conducting a managing growth and development study, according to an LWV spokesman.

The LWV of Garrett County will meet with the Board of Garrett County Commissioners on Tuesday, September 18, at 11 a.m. Concerned citizens are encouraged to attend.

Notice

The Republican learned at press time that the Board of Garrett County Commissioners declined to meet with the League of Women Voters on Tuesday, according to Connie Margison, president of the Garrett County LWV. The story appears as originally written in the event that the commissioners elect to reschedule the meeting.

Questions to be answered at that time include:

1. What state regulations affect local growth management and development?
2. How do state resources now contribute to local management of growth and development?
3. What state resources would you like to have?
4. What role should the state play in growth and development management? (assistance, regulations, services)
5. Should the state establish minimum standards and guidelines for overall land use? If so, for what areas?
6. What effect has growth and development and its management in adjacent counties had on your county?
7. What coordination and cooperation do you have with adjacent counties in growth and development management?

The national and state LWV have taken the following positions:

1. U.S. Natural Resources — Promote an environment beneficial to life through the protection and wise management of natural resources in the public interest by recognizing the inter-relationship of air quality, energy, land use, waste management, and water resources.
2. Resource Management — Promote resource conservation, stewardship, and long-range planning with the responsibility for managing natural resources shared by all levels of government.
3. Environmental Protection and Pollution Control — Preserve the physical, chemical and biological integrity of the ecosystem, with maximum protection of public health and environment.
4. Public Participation — Promote public understanding and participation in decision-making as essential elements of responsible and responsive management of our natural resources.
5. U.S. Transportation — Promote energy-efficient and environmentally sound transportation systems that improve the well-being of cities and other communities and afford better access to housing and jobs.
6. Md. Land Use — Action to encourage the state to establish minimum standards and guidelines for overall land use, with local implementation of land use policies.
7. Md. Housing — Action to develop a state housing policy responsive to the need for more affordable housing, and to clarify landlord/tenant relationships.

Election Reflection . . .

The 1990 primary election is history, but certainly will not go down in history as one of Garrett County's more exciting competitions. In fact, there were many Democrat voters who did not bother going to the polls because there were so few choices for them on the ballot.

The overall voter turnout in the county was in the neighborhood of 44 percent, which in and of itself is a less than desirable showing. This means, of course, that a minority of our voters are making these decisions for all of our citizens.

However, while voter apathy is a major problem, we do not believe that it can be targeted as the single reason for low voter turnout, especially this past Tuesday in Garrett County. We think that many of our voters believed that the selection of candidates was somewhere between slim and none, and for most of the races we tend to agree with them. In fact, for many offices there were no races at all because there were no opposing candidates. There will also be many unopposed candidates on November's general election ballot.

One can draw a number of conclusions, and some questions, from this situation. We know there are many extremely competent people in Garrett County who would be good county commissioners or good board of education members, for example, but they have no desire to become politicians and run for office. They also may not have the money it takes to fund a campaign. There has been plenty of griping lately about the board of education, yet only TWO candidates, other than the incumbents, have filed for the office. Once again, we knew it was a major mistake to change board of education positions from appointed to elected.

And what in the world are our central committees doing? Very little, it seems. Why are there no Republican candidates in commissioner district 2? Why are there no Democrat candidates in districts 1 and 3? Why are there so many other races for which there are no opposing candidates? It is our understanding that one of the basic functions of the central committees is to find candidates for these races.

We do not mean to imply that there are no competent people in the various races, or that all unopposed incumbents are not doing a good job. People like Joe DiSimone (register of wills) and Van Evans (sheriff) are doing a fine job. But if voters knew they had a good selection of candidates, more of them would show up at the polls and we would also have overall higher quality leadership from our elected officials.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I have been so disgusted with some statements and ads of so many of our officials and those holding high office. I wonder how long Garrett County can sustain this rhetoric and survive, as I wonder about our USA surviving the terrific mess we are in. The pretense, the hypocrisy sickens me.

No wonder there was no write up in the local newspapers of the two important meetings held at GCC on the 25 and 26 of August; I refer to the Property Owners Association of Deep Creek Lake and the League of Women Voters political forum. Both were sickening to me and no wonder there were more candidates than audience at the forum. What a sorry state we have come to in a forum when none other than strictly controlled canned rhetoric can be heard, acknowledged or recognized as being revelant by those in charge. What a waste of time and energy except for the new candidates at the forum who were outstanding by and large. The fresh ideas were so welcome but will they have a chance with what I perceive to be special interests dominating our life here as it does in Washington?

All the School Board candidates were like a breath of fresh air and I thoroughly enjoyed their honest responses and ideas. Many of our new candidates for County Commissioners were impressing and realistic, but will the many candidates split the vote and defeat the new candidates? Somewhere some consensus has to be reached in the Republican and Democratic national and state committees and local level on candidates who are where they can be elected in spite of the special interest groups, who now dominate the USA and Garrett County.

When I learned the McHenry Condominium expansion was a result of an error in the zoning law too late discovered and remedied, I wonder how that could be when Tim Dugan was an excellent trained zoning director, and with the Deep Creek Advisory Board supposed to have been functioning and overseeing the Lake development, with Ernie Gregg and other prominent so called "educated persons" of the POA on that board? Was the error slipped by intentionally for special interests?

How many people do we have on our county and state payroll supposedly receiving excellent salaries for which they are not educated or prepared to handle properly?

We pay zoning, planning, attorneys, development administrators, county commissioners, clerks administrator in GCC office plus endless executive secretaries at all levels, states attorney and all the court people, but who is really looking out for the best of Garrett County and its ordinary people?

How could an adultress, prostitute, adopt an infant and still have her no one is still doing anything real about it after 10 years? Legal justice here? Social services awake? Brandy White? Others? No wonder I wonder we are now told the developers have folded up their tents and fled McHenry, but we have a real overbuilt glut on the market and still building and what a mess on the lake and elsewhere. We are overbuilt by housing that was never intended or never should have been allowed on Deep Creek which is not a Chesapeake Lake or River.

At what cost to we permanent residents? Our taxes raised every year by state and local and what's the difference when the taxpayers pay them and no writeoff for the middle and little taxpayer.

Then the state and local authorities are playing "Tootsies" with each other and there are no checks and balances we go on and on in the debacle.

The mentally ill have no 24 supervised home here and jail is the solution to their problem and who cares? The Bible (who remembers it) says "We are our brother's keeper." there is an after life, but that doesn't help us "now" here in this debacle.

Where, Ernie Gregg, do you really stand in your responsibilities to the mentally ill and the monthly advisory board meetings. You never attend and it is your responsibility! Both Gregg and Groves said that Dr. Archer being here will solve the Health Department's mental health problems. I have news for them, they should have learned years ago the county commissioners, all the local legislators, all the local "Big Wigs," as well as the people have to push advocacy for the mentally ill and that has never been true here, only for the mentally retarded has it happened. It's respectful here to admit you have a M.R. family member, but not for a mentally ill person.

The alcoholics, the workaholics, the wobbly fat people,, the drugheads, the publicity hounds who must be chairmen of everything and those who every week must tell the world whom they had dinner with, week after week; what is their problem. What do they think is their problem? The socalled "crazy people" are most often less dangerous than these and many others parading as normal people!

Open, responsive administration of government says Groves ad — when I can't get answers or an appointment through the autocratic clerk administrator Fousek, who seems to think he owns the County Commissioners office and who knows maybe he does; It's supposed to be the taxpayers elected government officials and they are supposed to be there and be available but rarely are except on Tuesday and just try to get an appointment. Mr. Groves your ad says also we as Garrett Countians must not needlessly be hindered as we strive and work in this place we call home: How sweet if true! How much would you like it if you bought as I did, 50 plus years ago with my hard earned dollars, 2.33 acres of Deep Creek Lake property (152 feet of Lake front), then a few weeks ago in writing from the Lake Manager, Mr. Durham be informed that by 1993 I possibly will not have a dock permit, which we have now and have had all these years and that you may have to be part of a Common Dock and that isn't positive. As all the new condominiums advertised for sale, their facilities, boat slips and all, how do you think after 50 plus years as a taxpayer 25 years and a permanent resident. I should feel real good about this debacle you commissioners have cooked up with your pal Governor Schaefer and Torrey and special interests or what have you done about it all? Playing "Tootsie" with Governor Schaefer who doesn't respond to letters and Torrey Brown, who after his drunken debacle is still secretary. Credibility? Honesty? Has the POA been also playing "Footsie" with the special interests? Greed? Avorice? Help yourself to all you can while you can or what? Our country wasn't founded on these principles and I didn't ruin my health on foreign shores 50 plus years ago for this debacle! Give the new county commissioners candidates a chance, please. It couldn't be much worse here. This is my opinion.

Think please,
Mrs. Louise V. Harvey

Editor's Note: The following letter was written by Cpt. James Schreiner to his parents, Herb and Mary Sutcliff, Deep Creek Lake. Cpt. Schreiner, a F4 fighter pilot with the 561st Tactical Fighter Squadron, is presently in Saudi Arabia.

Dear Mom and Dad,

I guess you are wondering where I am — well, I can't tell you except it is someplace in Saudi Arabia.

We are housed in an air conditioned building, but it is quite crowded. The food is not bad, considering. It is cooked by Indians or Pakastanis and the main dish is some kind of curry. We get chicken, but they take the chicken and chop it up into pieces — bones and all. We also get something like cole slaw without the slaw — it is just chopped up lettuce.

After a long flight, a nice cold beer would taste good, but the Saudis don't believe in alcohol so we don't get that.

Yesterday I went on a sortie and the temperature outside was 120 degrees. We had to put on a flight suit, helmet, mask, etc. and although the plane is air conditioned, it takes about 45 minutes for it to get the plane cool. I carried two bottles of warm water with me and have lost 4 lbs.

Next week we expect to go up more often. There is not much to do here. Some of the guys brought board games from home and we read old magazines. You can send anything up to 12 oz. Please foreward all of my mail, especially magazines . . . even junk mail.

I hope you are not having any problems taking care of my bills, etc. My neighbor, Chip, is watching my house.

I love you both,

Editors Note: The writer of the following letter to the Garrett County Commissioners requested that it appear in this column.

Dear Commissioners:

With this letter I am presenting for your consideration petitions signed by more than 1,000 persons expressing their opposition to what seems to be the current plan for the construction of the Glendale Bridge.

The people who signed this petition come from all walks of life in Garrett County. Many are full-time residents and registered voters; some own and operate businesses and services that will be severely affected; more than a few have jobs that they are afraid of losing; others are property owners and part-time residents who perceive the damaging effect the current plan will have. Regardless of their superficial differences, however, ninety-five percent (95%) of these people who signed this petition have one trait in common: AS TAXPAYERS, THEY BELIEVE THAT THEIR LEGITIMATE CONCERNS ARE BEING IGNORED, AND THAT THEIR TAXES ARE NOT BEING MANAGED RESPONSIBLY.

I can count on less than one hand the people I have met who think the current plan is good from a standpoint of engineering or economics. Conversely, I have met scores of people who feel frustrated, angry, and even intimidated by the current state of affairs.

On behalf of all of the people who signed this petition, I hope and ask that you will LISTEN to what is being said and will meet with concerned citizens to discuss and resolve these issues. We do not, and will not, agree on every point, but we all want what is best for Garrett County — and what is best for Garrett County does not lie in what seems to be the current plan for construction on the Glendale Bridge.

Sincerely,
Jan Finkel

I am reaching out from prison in hopes you may assist me to find friendship, anyone of any nationality, to correspond with. The friends I once had only lasted through the good times which are now gone, so I do not have anyone writing or visiting me. I am very lonely and alone!

Since my incarceration, I've come to realize the vital importance of receiving mail and being in touch with society. Without communication, a person's mind becomes stagnant, then they become institutionalized. I'm reaching out to prevent this from happening! Despite my many attempts of reestablishing some level of communication, it has been in vain. I believe now that out of sight is out of mind! The reality of being forgotten really hurts. Loneliness is very devastating, a very sad state of mind.

The Mind Wanders

by Sherry Frantz

As I sit alone in the woods on this very still day, feeling quite distant from the rest of the world, I wonder why the wisdom has not accumulated as rapidly as the years. And why, for instance, the more aware I become of one or another societal, political, educational or environmental problem, the less able I am to accept the established reasons for their existence.

This vein of thinking was prompted, most recently, by the discovery that Ellis Island — that famous clearinghouse for immigrants that witnessed the greatest human migration in history from 1892-1924 — was recently renovated and, this week, has been opened as a museum.

As with any news event reported in any given week, it is never difficult to spot another recently unearthed report that lends to each an air of irony.

The other report of which I speak conveys the message that racial prejudice — racial tension — is, once again, resurfacing. (If it was ever truly absent.)

In either case, the proximity of those two news items leads to some rather unsettling conclusions. Is it just me or can America truly, sincerely celebrate or honor this famous site of mass immigration of "non-Americans" from mostly European countries and still allow private and public segregation from Afro-Americans?

It may seem as though this "unsettling conclusion" is also a bit too broad or sweeping but it should serve to illustrate that, as a people, we really are not 'acceptably accepting' of the integration of cultures — at least not in our own homeland.

Too easily, we seem to have forgotten what the "concept" of America is.

Consider this. When you inhabit a region for a period of time, you naturally begin seeing it as your region, your territory, your land. Which, of course, leads to the next natural occurrence of protecting your land, your territory, your "stake." And when strange people place their feet on that personal property, they are viewed with varying degrees of caution.

Nowhere is that phenomenon more evident than here in the mountains. It's easy to understand and, inherently, not a bad behavior. Indeed, the practice is encouraged in many ways.

But that natural territorial practice, unfortunately, seems to lead logically to the detrimental and prejudicial attitude that attempts to keep blacks out of white clubs and whites out of black clubs. And often produces resentment when one or the other does occur, either by social pressure or legislative mandates.

And so it would seem that our American heritage, not to mention our anthropological roots, dictates a mode of behavior that is then shunned by civilization.

Is it just me?

Or is the reverence to Ellis Island an empty gesture imposed by civilization, thus enabling us to reconcile our ill-treatment of those unlike us?

FRIENDS OF THE RUTH ENLOW LIBRARY

by Carol Canan

Two representatives from Garrett County will be among the 202 delegates attending the Maryland Governor's Conference on Libraries and Information Services, September 23-25, in Baltimore.

Dana Shimrock, Garrett Community College library director, and Sybilla Sharps, president of the Ruth Enlow Library Board of Trustees, will be the local participants.

Mrs. Sharps is a member of the Advisory Board of the Library Services and Construction Act (LSCA), which meets quarterly to evaluate federal grants. In addition to her position on the Ruth Enlow Board of Trustees, she serves as liaison to the Friends of the Ruth Enlow Library group.

Ms. Shimrock has been library director at GCC for one year, and is a member of the Maryland Library Association and the American Library Association.

Conference participants will submit five resolutions vital to the future of Maryland libraries to Governor William D. Schaefer.

Their report will then be presented by Maryland's representatives at the White House Conference on Libraries and Information Services, July 9-13, 1991.

The 202 delegates were selected from statewide nominations in four categories: citizens, such as library volunteers and friends; library and educational board members; federal, state and local government officials; and librarians from the public, academic, school, special, state institutional, federal, and military levels.

The main issue, as far as the two local delegates have determined, is the lack of certified librarians in the public schools. Only the two high schools have certified media specialists; the middle schools have fulltime media assistants, and elementary schools use part-time media assistants.

Media assistants, while they do a very good job, are neither certified librarians nor teachers. In every Maryland county except Garrett, school systems start library instruction in the elementary schools.

Because of their more extensive training and experience, media specialists can provide more help to students in learning how to locate information in what Ms. Shimrock called "this information explosion we're having."

According to Gary "Dusty" Stanton, library media resource teacher for this county, no school system in Maryland meets the state standards for libraries. He cites lack of state and local funding as the chief reason.

During a state evaluation four years ago, it was recommended that certified media specialists be hired for all school libraries, in addition to assistants. It was also recommended that funding be increased for all phases of the media centers — books, films, computer science, and so on. Another major recommendation was the hiring of a library supervisor. Garrett County has not met the above mandates.

200 Issues So Far

Maryland schools spend an average of $10.72 per pupil for secondary books, but the average price of a book is $35.35. Average library media center collections in the state are 33 percent below recommended guidelines.

Among the more than 200 issue statements already submitted for consideration at the conference, are charging for services, such as video cassette borrowing, online database searching, interlibrary loans of materials, reserving books, and user fees for outside groups.

This would help to defray the high costs of new technology used to access information for users. Libraries are also concerned about special needs groups, such as the mentally and physically handicapped, illiterate adults, inmates, and bilingual librarians and materials.

Some have proposed a "library lottery for literacy." The Governor's Conference is promoting, as its goal, expansion of the role of Maryland libraries as the central source of information for democracy, literacy, and economic development.

Citizens from the state can provide input by contacting either Mrs. Sharps or Ms. Shimrock before the conference or by contacting any branch of the Ruth Enlow Library or the Division of Library Development at 1-301-333-2117.

Delegates at the first Governor's Conference in 1978 passed 99 resolutions resulting in library improvements statewide.

Facts From The Mental Health Advisory Committee

GARRETT COUNTY MARYLAND HEALTH DEPARTMENT

EATING DISORDERS DISRUPT LIVES

by Linda DeWitt

Eating disorders disrupt millions of lives. They are progressive and potentially fatal causing major health problems which affect a person — physically, emotionally, and spiritually. Many who have a problem are of normal weight and may go undetected for years as they are very clever at concealing their abnormal eating patterns.

Contrary to popular belief, will power alone cannot control this unhealthy obsession with food. Compulsive eating is not a "person" problem, it is a disease (much as diabetes) and must be treated as a disease. The first step to take is to seek help before it is entirely out of control and results in physical problems requiring hospitalization and long-term therapy.

If you have any of the following symptoms you should contact your local mental health care facility, physician or local support group:

- Distorted body image (no matter how thin you are, you think you are fat).
- Major weight loss (20% or more).
- Great fear of obesity.
- Compulsive preoccupation with diets and handling of food.
- Extreme mood swings — from depressed to hyperactive.
- Increasing loneliness, insecurity and social separateness.
- Quickly eating large amounts of food in usually less than two hours.
- Frequent weight changes (more than 10 pounds).
- A fear you cannot stop eating.
- Excessive feelings of guilt and regret following a bingeing episode.
- You attempt to control your weight by fasting, vomiting, laxatives, diuretics, compulsive exercising, etc.
- Eating when you are not truly hungry but are feeling happy, unhappy, depressed, lonely, angry, helpless, etc.

Senior Citizens' Menus

The Area Agency on Aging/Garrett County Community Action Committee announces the Senior Nutrition Program menus for the week of September 17-21 as follows:

September 17 — Tossed salad with carrot, radishes, and cheese sticks, stuffed pepper with tomato sauce, corn on cob (canned corn), wheat bread, and lime sherbet.

September 18 — Cole slaw, baked ham, candied sweet potato, fresh green beans (canned), oat bread, and cinnamon apples with raisins.

September 19 — Tomato on lettuce with hard boiled egg, cheese rabbit on toast, buttered peas, and yellow cake.

September 20 — Sunshine salad with carrots, chili con carne, corn bread, and baked custard.

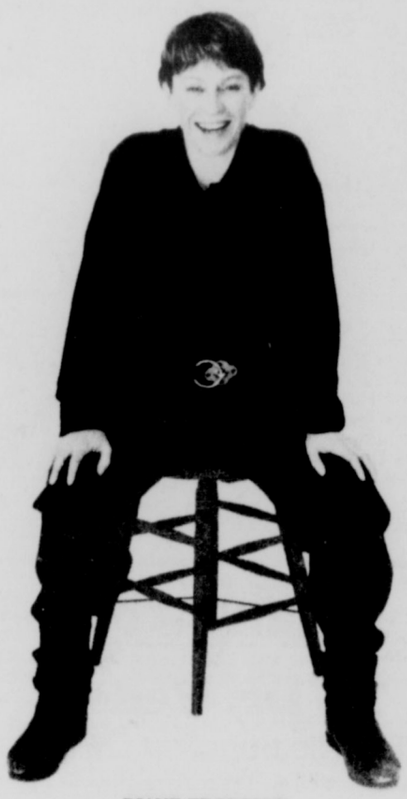

September 21 — Spinach salad, roast beef with gravy, whipped potatoes, sauteed zucchini, and cherry pie.

Milk, coffee, and tea are served with all meals.

"Eating Together" sites that operate five days per week will be following the menu as is. Those that operate only two or three days per week have the option of choosing menus within the same week.

On occasion, a site may opt to make a substitution in the menu. Senior citizens who wish to eat at one of the "Eating Together" sites are asked to call the individual site to check the menu for the day and to make reservations.

Telephone numbers of individual sites are as follows: Flowery Vale Senior Center, Accident, 746-8824; Bull's Restaurant, Bloomington, 359-3035; Finzel Fire Hall, Finzel, 689-8388; Old Mill Grill, Friendsville, 746-5414; Old Mill Restaurant, Gorman, 334-4865; Casselman Restaurant, Grantsville, 895-5092; Jennings Community, Jennings, 245-4204; Kitzmiller Community Building, Kitzmiller, 453-3445; Oakland Senior Center, Oakland, 334-3399; and Swanton Community Building, Swanton, 387-9191.

Autumn Storytelling Festival Set Sept. 21-22 At GCC, Friendsville

The Autumnal Equinox Storytelling Festival of Western Maryland will be held September 21 and 22 in Garrett County. Both day and evening performances are planned to celebrate literacy and the beginning of fall with tales and tunes about nature, animals, and humans in their delicate balance of life, peace, and happiness, according to Dr. Gail Herman, coordinator.

The Festival will begin at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 21, with an olio of stories, music, and a time for questions in a "Meet the Storytellers" event at the Garrett Community College auditorium (or art gallery area), McHenry, hosted by the Garrett Community College Library and the Garrett County American Association of University Women. Two storytellers and two storyteller-musicians will perform both original stories and adapted folklore from cultures around the world.

On Saturday Sept. 22, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. the Festival will continue at Friendsville School Amphitheater on the grass, hosted by the Friendsville Town and Community Women. The public is invited to bring lawn chairs or blankets to enjoy the music and folktales. In addition, several folk dance workshops will be offered in the gymnasium and the Slovenian Folklore Ensemble from Pittsburgh will give a folk dance performance. The Ensemble consist of six dancers who are a part of the larger Slovenian Heritage. A final event of the day will be a story sharing session where local and visiting audience members will be invited to share stories.

The folk dancers and three of the storytellers will join forces for the final performance of the festival on Saturday evening at 7:30 at the Garrett Community College auditorium.

Storytellers will travel from as far away as New England and New Jersey, as well as from distant points of Maryland, to attend and perform at the festival. Although many stories, too numerous to mention, will be told throughout the weekend, the following is a sampling.

Storyteller Annie Lynn Sloan from Marlton, N.J., will perform during the day event. She specializes in Stories for Tots in Nursery School, women in folktales, and Jane Yolan stories. She has performed for the Philadelphia Folk Fest and Patchwork Storyfest.

Actress, nature lover, and storyteller Diane Edgecomb from Hyde Park, Mass., will perform "The Voice of the Dar" a gripping legend from deep in the rain forest, and "What Now Cloacina?," the hilarious original adventure story of a water sprite caught in a sewage system. Edgecomb developed a nature program called Wilderwalks Storytelling. Her goal is to "reconnect people to the wilderness so that they will desire to walk and look at the natural world anew." She says she loves seasonal stories, environmental tales, and stories about loons. She has performed for the Boston Planetarium, the Maine Annual Loon Festival, and the Massachusetts Audubon Society.

Katie Holwager, a teacher of French and Spanish in Allegany County, uses folk stories in her high school classes to introduce students to aspects of the cultures. She will share (during the day event) and African folktale about "why we must now work for our food instead of being able to pick it from the sky!" Holwager has studied drama in addition to languages at the United States International University in California and she has traveled widely in French- and Spanish-speaking countries.

Michael Punzak, fiddler, teacher, global educator, and storyteller, will entertain throughout the weekend with his tunes and tales from around the world. Punzak said, "In the world's folktales reside the ageless truths that keep humanity alive and kicking and, most importantly, laughing at itself." Punzak holds a degree from Harvard Divinity School and has performed often for the popular New England REVELS directed by author and musician, Jack Langstaff.

Dr. Herman, of Swanton, will also perform stories from around the world, including tales from Taiwan, Japan, and Africa. She taught storytelling last summer for Frostburg State University and will teach storytelling this fall for Garrett Community College. GRACE D. FRIEND VANSICKLE
On Her Birthday, September 11

When lines of life are broken and loved ones have to part,
It leaves a wound that never heals and ever-aching hearts.
When we get together, there are those we fail to see,
It fills our hearts with sadness, thinking of how it used to be.

Congregation Celebrates 200 Years Of Church Life At Red House

St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church

To commemorate a church life lasting 200 years, 1790-1990, the congregation of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church will be holding a three-day celebration at their church in Red House. The event will begin on Friday, Sept. 14 and continue until Sunday, Sept. 16.

The organized congregation of St. Luke's Lutheran Church began in 1790, when some of the first Christian settlers were "given a sermon book and the rest was up to them," according to the written history of the church.

John Stauch was among these first settlers in Salem, what is now known as Aurora, W.Va. He was joined by six other families in 1790, and was chosen to be lay-reader to conduct the worship and prayer in the group. Stauch's services were demanded by other colonies nearby which included the present day Sunnyside area.

The congregation held their weekly services in various buildings throughout the years, beginning in a building called Reinhart's Tavern, which also served as a dance hall and an inn. The first Lutheran ministers came to this tavern, sent from Cumberland.

In the 1820's, a log structure was built in the Yough Valley Glades. The building was named "Sussan's Church," reportedly as a tribute to Mrs. Reinhart, whose maiden name was Susannah Wiles.

The present building site was secured in 1860, and a building known as the "Plank Church" was erected. This structure served the congregation until 1907, when it was torn down to begin construction on the present facility.

The cornerstone for the present-day St. John's Church was laid on July 7, 1907. Almost one year later, on June 14, 1908, the new church was dedicated.

To mark this point in time, a committee of St. John parishioners has organized the weekend celebration.

The event will begin with a "Musical Evening," on Friday, Sept. 14, at 7:30 p.m. Selections by parish choirs, the youth choir, and various soloists will be presented.

A Rededication Service will be held on Saturday, Sept. 15, at which time Pastor Richard Rutkauskas will lead the congregation in the dedication of a commemorative plaque.

Pictured on the plaque is a sketch of the first log church and the inscription, "Founded two miles north of this location in A.D. 1790. Now commemorating two hundred years of service in Christ Jesus our Lord A.D. 1990."

A social reception will follow the program.

An Anniversary Service with holy communion will be held on Sunday, Sept. 16, at 10:30 a.m. Rev. L. Alexander Black, D.D., Bishop of the W.Va./Western Md. Synod, will deliver the sermon.

A covered dish meal is scheduled for after the service.

Each attendee will receive a history booklet about the church, and an anniversary bookmark, according to a spokesman. The sale of a commemorative plate which displays the church will also be included.

The committee members for the celebration are Steve and Janet Cosner, Elaine Gnegy Roth, Barbara Bachtel Flinn, Cecil Kight, Alice Ann and Kenneth Ridder, and Melanie and Richard Rutkauskas.

Future Transportation Of Region To Be Topic Of Meeting At FSU

What does the future hold for transportation in the tri-state corridor of Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Maryland between Pittsburgh and Frederick in Maryland? This question will be addressed and discussed at a seminar on plans and proposals and their impact for "Transportation in the Future of the Tri-State Region of Maryland, West Virginia, and Pennsylvania" to be held Thursday, September 27, in the Lane Center at Frostburg State University.

Maryland Secretary of Transportation Richard H. Trainor, Secretary of Transportation from West Virginia Arch Gleason, and Larry M. King, a special representative of Secretary of Transportation from Pennsylvania Howard Yerusalim, will share their views of the future for highways, railways, and airport facilities in the region and the importance of interstate cooperation.

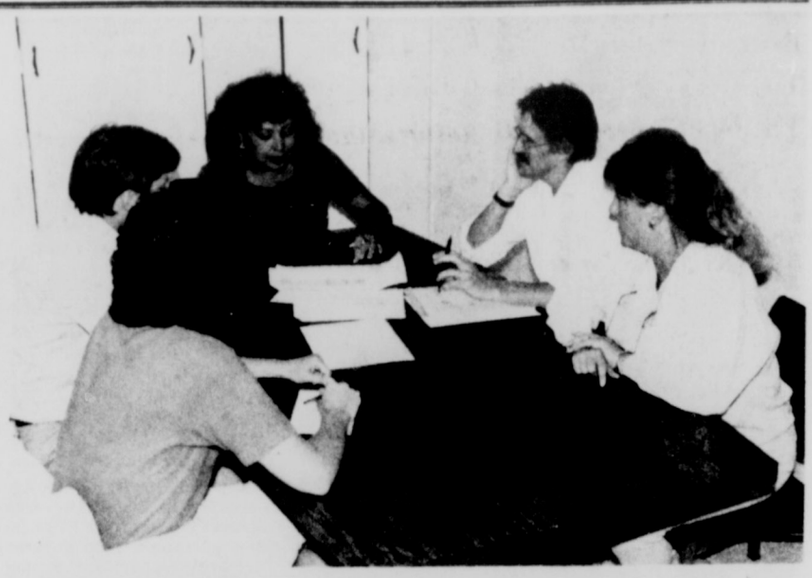

There will be a graphic overview of future plans and proposals presented by David Yoder, transportation co-chair of the Mon Valley Tri-State Network, Inc. The overview will include the proposed extension of U.S. 48 (National Freeway) into Ohio, other Appalachian development highways, and interconnecting highways. Also included will be airport improvements and proposals in the Monongahela Valley, Allegany and Washington counties, Maryland, and in the West Virginia panhandle at Martinsburg. The latter is being considered as an aircraft maintenance facility for a major airline. Yoder will also touch on the light rail proposal in Frederick and Montgomery counties, Maryland.

The "flying train" based on magnetic levitation will be the subject of a special presentation by Dr. Richard Uher from the Carnegie-Mellon Research Institute. The regional implications for such a system centered in Pittsburgh will be the subject of this audio-visual presentation.

The seminar will be concluded by Gilbert Gude, former U.S. congressman and author. He will give his response to the plans and proposals and their impact on the quality of life in the tri-state region.

The seminar will be moderated by George Allen, chairman of the Upper Potomac Roundtable, one of the co-sponsors of the meeting. The other co-sponsors are the Mon Valley Tri-State Network, Inc., based in Morgantown, and the Regional Education Service Agency (RESA) located in Cumberland.

GCC Appoints New Director Of Resort Mgmt.

Beverly R. Plachta has recently been appointed as director of the new Resort Management program at Garrett Community College. Plachta, who holds a master's degree from the School of Hotel Administration at Cornell University and a bachelor's degree from the University of Maryland, assumed this position September 1.

Plachta comes to Garrett with wide experience in the field of resort management, according to a GCC spokesperson. For the past five years, she and her husband have been owners/operators of a bed and breakfast, restaurant and bar facility in Londonderry, Vt., where she also worked as reception for a condominium management company. She has been an instructor in the Hospitality and Tourism program for high school students in the Vocational-Technical Center in Springfield, Vt., and assistant manager of the Amelia Island Lodging Systems in Florida, where she supervised staff, coordinated housekeeping and maintenance services, developed a reservation system, and handled bookkeeping and client accounts.

During her years in graduate school, Plachta worked as house director for Pi Beta Phi Sorority at Cornell, where she supervised house staff and 40 residents, assisted with menu planning and meal preparation, and provided hospitality to parents and guests. In the summer of 1985, she and her husband served as managers of the Deep Creek Yacht Club on Turkey Neck.

Plachta says she was attracted to the program at Garrett Community College because of the emphasis on tourism in this area and in the state of Maryland. "We will have a professional program," she says. "Our students will have a greater respect for their jobs, and more respect for themselves. Everyone will benefit."

She emphasizes the practical experiences required in the program, in which students will receive "hands on" experience in all phases of resort management, by working in local business establishments, and requests that local employers interested in having student interns contact her. Students in this program will have many field trips to restaurants, resorts, and places of interest in the area so they know what is available to tourists.

Her game plan to recruit students includes visits to high schools and special events that will attract people to the college.

William S. Bever, Bloomington, reported that someone entered his home on September 9 between 6 p.m. and 9:15 p.m. and stole a 17-inch color television, a Sears VHS VCR, and eight check books containing blank checks.

Tfc. D.W. Broadwater is investigating.

Jimmy L. Ringer, McHenry, reported that someone stole a tool box and tools from the bed of his pickup truck while it was parked on U.S. Route 219.

The theft occurred on September 5 between 3 p.m. and 3:15 p.m.

Tfc. J.K. Moore is investigating the reported theft of gasoline from the Accident Amoco Station on September 10 at 5:35 p.m.

CONSTITUTION WEEK was proclaimed for September 17-23 by the Garrett County Commissioners on Sept. 12. The purpose of the proclaimed week is to raise awareness of the United States Constitution, and, according to the proclamation, to remind citizens that "it is of the greatest importance that all citizens fully understand the provisions and principles contained in the Constitution in order to support it, preserve it, and defend it against encroachment." The proclamation also urges all citizens to "pay special attention...to the advantage of United States citizenship." Pictured above, left to right, Commissioner Ernie Gregg, Jr.; Martha Kahl, registrar of Youghiogheny Glades chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution; Ruth T. Calderwood, Constitution Week chairman; and Commissioner Elwood L. Groves.

Tpr. S.W. Vincent is investigating a destruction of property case reported by John A. Cosner.

Cosner told police that on September 8 at approximately 8 p.m. someone shot three holes in the window of his parked, unattended vehicle with an unknown make of firearm.

TAP Project To Be Topic Of Public Meeting

The Governor's Office for Handicapped Individuals, Technology Assistance Program, invites any interested parties to a public meeting taking place Friday, September 21, from 1 to 3 p.m. at Garrett Community College. The meeting, which will be held in room CE 306, will focus on how the Technology Assistance Program (TAP) can work with local agencies, school systems, organizations or individuals to improve the quality of life for persons with disabilities.

The goal of the TAP project is to implement and coordinate a comprehensive statewide system for the delivery of technology-related assistance to disabled persons, according to director Jay Brill.

The project is a response to a grant awarded by the U.S. Department of Education. Brill stated that Maryland was one of only nine states to initially be awarded such a grant. "This is a credit to the outstanding level of service already being provided to thousands of Marylanders with disabilities," he said.

Quality of life issues addressed will range from those of a newborn with a congenital disability to a senior citizen who may be experiencing difficulties due simply to advancing age. Technologies can be as complex as a computer generated speech synthesizer or as simple as a rubber door knob extension.

Available to assist in the purchase of assistive technologies, or in the location of funds to make such purchases, TAP project staff will expand the capacity of existing agencies and resources. "This project is intended to enhance those mechanisms already in place," stated Brill.

Services such as multidisciplinary evaluation, device procurement and modification, training and follow-up will be proivided by the project in cases where services from other resources are unavailable or inadequate.

In order to provide optimum service to every region of Maryland, Regional Technology Specialists are based in Western Maryland, on the Eastern Shore and one will soon be based in Southern Maryland. Regional Specialists serve as liaisons to local service providers, school systems, organizations having interest in individuals with disabilities, and local residents who can benefit from technology-related assistance.

Serving as Western Maryland Regional Technology Specialist is Richard Metheny, an Oakland native. Metheny, who will coordinate the GCC meeting, urges anyone who is interested in the quality of life for disabled persons to attend, stating that public input will be valuable in order to determine how the program can best serve the residents of Garrett County.

Local persons with questions about the meeting or the project in general may contact Metheny at the TAP Western Regional Office, P.O. Box 283, Corriganville, MD, 21524, telephone (301) 264-3412 (V/TDD).

Persons who are unable to attend the meeting may send written comments to: Mr. Jay Brill, Project Director, Technology Assistance Program, Governor's Office for Handicapped Individuals, 300 W. Lexington St., 1 Market Center Box 10, Baltimore, MD, 21201, telephone (301) 333-3098 (V/TDD).

The Technology Assistance Program is administered by William D. Shaefer's Governor's Office for Handicapped Individuals under the direction of Marion Schooling Vessels.

Southern Band Captures 2nd In Pa. Competition

The Southern Garrett Marching Band received second place in a marching competition on Saturday, which took place at Kiski Area High School in Vandergrift, Pa.

The band competed in class "AA" against five other groups. The class in which a band competes is determined by the number of students marching.

Southern's band was judged on marching, musical ability, and overall performance to receive their second place standing.

Out of the eleven bands in the entire competition, Southern's drum line received the highest rating in the contest, according to a spokesman.

The band will be traveling to Pennsylvania again on September 15 to compete in two shows. The first will take place in Waynesburg, beginning at 1 p.m., and the second in McKeesport at 7 p.m.

The group will also present their show on Friday evening at halftime during the Southern Rams versus Central Preston football game.

Sines Leads Huskies Past Cavaliers For 34-0 Win

Senior quarterback Chad Sines recorded 100 yards and two touchdowns through the air Friday night to guide the Northern High Huskies to a big 34-0 opening-game victory over Central Preston at the Cove.

Sines, a four-year starter for Coach Tom Vent's teams, connected on seven of 12 passes against the Cavaliers, who came into the game with an 0-2 record.

The Huskies took a 3-0 lead in the first quarter when junior Jon Houser booted a 34-yard field goal.

Sines hit senior tight end Mike Fike with a seven-yard scoring strike in the second quarter and Houser's conversion kick gave the Huskies a 10-0 halftime lead.

Northern added 18 points in the third period, as Sines connected with senior split end Chris Jenkins for a 16-yard touchdown, sophomore tailback Allen Bittinger added a six-yard scoring run, and Houser broke loose for a 28-yard dash for a touchdown.

Fike scored his second touchdown of the evening and the final points of the game when he picked up a Cavalier fumble on the Central Preston 45-yard line and carried it into the end zone. Fike also finished with five receptions.

The Northern defense forced seven Central Preston fumbles, three of which were recovered by the Huskies. Northern mishandled the ball four times, but lost it only once.

The Huskies finished with total offense of 218 yards, while Central recorded 130.

"We were really pleased with the kids' enthusiasm," Coach Vent stated. "They really wanted to play and they wanted to win. It was a total team effort."

Vent praised Sines for his offensive effort and noted the performance of Chris Jenkins in the defensive secondary.

"Our whole defense played very well, though," he said. "We know that, because of our small size, we have to 'make things happen' this year by being very aggressive. We were able to do that Friday night and hope we can continue."

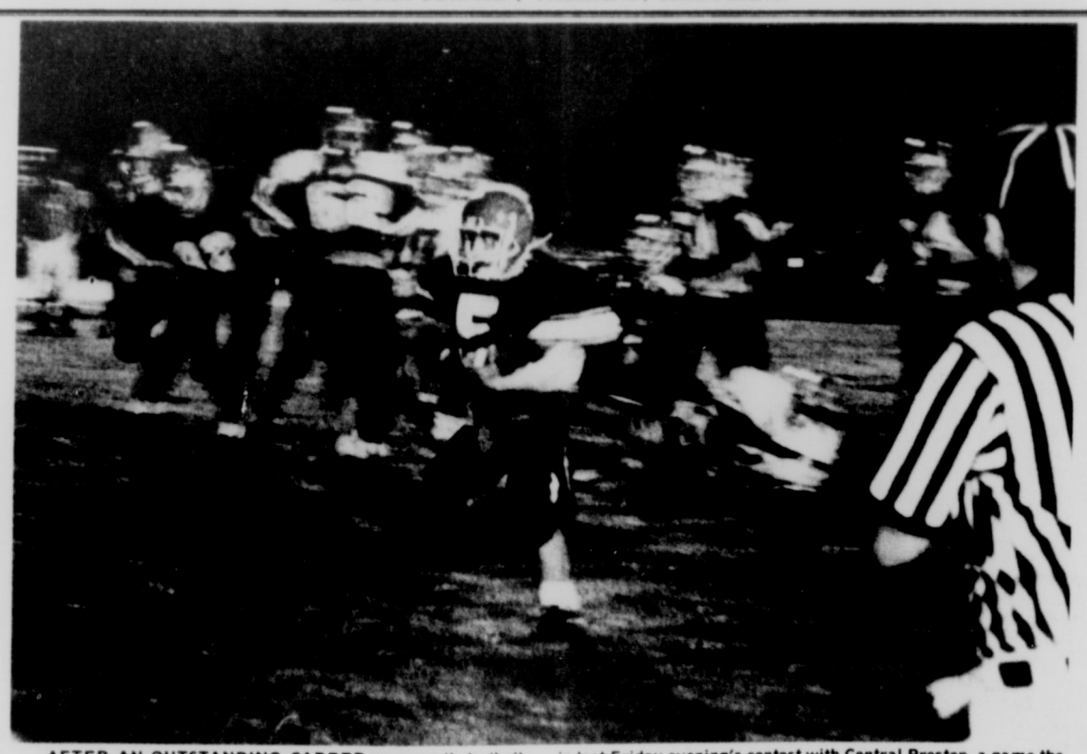

Vent said the Huskies came out of the Central Preston contest without any new injuries to the starting personnel. He said that split end and corner Chris Wachter is still nursing a sore knee, while back-up tackle and guard Steve Fazenbaker is dealing with a hamstring injury. Both are listed as questionable for this Friday night.

The next opponent for the Huskies is Hancock, a team that is 0-1 after losing to East Hardy last week. While Vent knows that Hancock is also a young team with a relatively low number of players, much like the Huskies, he said he does not know a whole lot more about them.

"Apparently they lost several kids because of the eligibility rule," Vent said, "and they only have about 23 players on the varsity, just like us. But we didn't have an opportunity to look at them last week."

AFTER AN OUTSTANDING CAREER as a youth football league player, tailback Allen Bittinger is continuing his winning ways as a member of the Northern High School varsity team. Bittinger is shown above enroute to a touchdown for the Huskies in last Friday evening's contest with Central Preston, a game the Huskies won easily, 34-0. Northern will seek win number two this Friday night at Hancock.

Vent said that if his team continues to play with the enthusiasm he saw last Friday night, they should fare well against this week's opponent.

The kickoff at Hancock is set for 7 p.m.

The Northern junior varsity, which opened in a rain-shortened contest last week at Southern, will host Allegany this evening at 7 p.m. The junior Huskies were leading Southern 7-0 last Thursday night when a second-quarter thunderstorm caused officials to postpone the game.

GCC Volleyball Team Opens At Essex Tourney

The Garrett Community College volleyball team opened its 1990 campaign at an invitational tournament this past weekend at Essex Community College.

The Lakers, coached by Margaret Quinn, defeated Potomac State, 15-5 and 16-14, before losing to Essex, 15-13 and 15-12; to Delaware junior varsity, 15-13 and 15-11; to Charles CC, 15-1 and 15-9; and to Delaware Tech, 15-7 and 15-8.

The Lakers trailed Potomac State 14-2 in the second game with the Catamounts, but came back to score 14 unanswered points and fight off five game points to record the victory.

"With only seven days of practice, I was pleased with Saturday's performance," Quinn stated. "I expect that we will improve with every day of practice and become a very competitive team."

The Lakers will play a tri-match this evening at Penn State Fayette against Fayette and Kent State East Liverpool. They will open their home season Saturday at 1 p.m. when they host McKeesport.

Southern Girls Whip Allegany In Volleyball

The Southern High varsity volleyball team evened its season record at 1-1 last night by defeating visiting Allegany in a four-game match.

Sheila Butt led the Rams with 17 service points, as Southern won the first two games, 15-6 and 15-0, lost the third, 15-13, and won the fourth, 15-8.

Julie Tichnell finished with 11 points and five kills, Rebecca Few added nine points, including five aces, and Jessica Friend and Cindy Beckman each contributed eight points. Friend also had four kills, while Elaine DeBerry recorded five aces, four kills, and four placements.

Angie Frankfort led Allegany with six points.

The Southern junior varsity upped its record to 2-0 by topping the jayvee Campers in the preliminary match, 15-2 and 15-6. Danielle DeBerry and Crystal Sines led with nine and seven service points, respectively, while Rebekah Friend, Keri Kratofil, and Trisha Marple were all perfect from the service line.

The Rams will travel to Northern next Wednesday.

Moomau Pick-Off Leads Raiders Over Vikings

An 80-yard return of an interception by Adam Moomau was the only score of the game, as the Oakland Raiders edged the Parsons Vikings, 6-0, Sunday afternoon in Mt. Top Youth Football League Action.

The defensive struggle kept the game scoreless until Moomau grabbed the interception with just 10 seconds left in the game and raced down the field as time expired.

Rams Open 1990 Campaign With Easy Win Over Indians

An impressive performance by the offensive backfield and a defense that showed considerably more quickness than in recent years highlighted a 43-0 opening season win by the Southern High School Rams over Berkeley Springs Friday evening in Oakland.

Junior tailback Richie DeWitt rushed for 123 yards on 14 carries, a touchdown, and a two-point conversion, while sophomore tailback Jeremy Bosley recorded two six-pointers and 102 yards on 21 carries. He also scored a third touchdown on the return of one of two passes that he intercepted from his defensive secondary position.

Fullbacks Shawn Ryan and Jason Rinker also picked up key yardage, as did sophomore quarterback C.J. Getson, who had his first start for the varsity Rams at that position. Getson scored one touchdown and a two-point conversion.

Meanwhile, the Southern defense frustrated the Indians all evening, yielding only 67 yards on the ground and 22 through the air. Berkeley quarterback Matt Clem completed only four of 22 passes and had four of them picked off.

The Rams' first score of the game came at the 5:41 mark of the first quarter when Bosley intercepted one of Clem's aerials and returned it 24 yards to the end zone. The run for the conversion failed.

Southern made it 14-0 on the first play of the second quarter when Bosley scored on a seven-yard run and DeWitt ran in for the two-pointer.

The Rams extended their lead to 22-0 with 10:16 remaining in the third period when DeWitt ran 28 yards for a touchdown and Getson added the two-point conversion.

Then Bosley scored again at the 1:15 mark of the third period on a six-yard run to give the Rams a 28-0 advantage.

Most of the fourth period was all defense until there was just 1:02 left on the clock when Getson scored on a 12-yard option play. Ryan's conversion run made it 36-0 and the stands began to clear at the Southern field.

However, with just 10 seconds to play, junior defensive back Raymie Sherwood grabbed a final Clem pass and raced 53 yards for a touchdown. Shane Skipper booted the extra point to finally conclude the scoring.

The Rams finished with 362 yards of offense, all on the ground, as Coach Tom Woods elected to not put the ball in the air at all.

"Once we got settled down in the first half, we played reasonably well overall," Woods said. "It was obvious that it was our first game, though, and we have a whole lot of room for improvement.

"One of the good things we noticed, that was lacking last year, was our quickness," he continued. "We thought our tandem of running backs played very well, as did C.J. in his first start at quarterback. Defensively, we played with a lot of aggressiveness and quickness, but our tackling was really sloppy.

"We also seemed to tire out in the third quarter, so we really aren't quite in 'game shape' yet," he said.

Defensive standouts, according to Woods, were tackle Brett Glotfelty, ends B.J. Shaffer and Mike Freyman, and Bosley, Sherwood, and Skipper in the secondary. "We intercepted 10 passes all last season and we have four in just one game," Woods noted.

Woods said that another area that needs improvement is the Rams' kicking game and plans to utilize B.J. Shaffer for kickoffs this week.

When asked why he didn't use any passing against the Indians to give Getson some experience, Woods said that he and his assistants decided that it would be better for the offense to keep the ball on the ground and avoid the potential for interceptions and sacks since it was Getson's first game at the helm. "We almost went to the air once, but C.J. panicked a little bit and we thought we would just work on our ground game the rest of the evening and not put him in a situation that might hurt his confidence," Wood said.

Although the Rams came out of the contest without any major injuries, Ryan sustained a bruised thigh and Brett Glotfelty a bruised knee, while David Biser is still nursing a broken finger that he sustained three weeks ago. All are expected to see action this week, however.

The Rams will again be a heavy favorite this week when they travel to Kingwood to play the Central Preston Cavaliers for the final time.

Central Preston is currently 0-3, with their latest defeat coming at the hands of the Northern Huskies just last Friday night (see separate story).

"Before the season began, we thought Central Preston would be fairly strong because they returned a lot of starters," Woods said. "But they have been making a lot of mental and fundamental mistakes."

Among their better players is senior tight end Jason Elliott (6-2, 225), who is described by Woods as "one of the best tight ends we'll see all season."

Other offensive leaders are tailback K.D. Childers (6-2, 178) and tackle Travis Jennings (6-0, 240). Regular starting quarterback Bobby Whetsell, a 197-pound senior, has been sidelined with an injury and junior Scott Argabrite (6-3, 160) has taken his place.

The Cavaliers are primarily an I-formation team and run a lot from the slot-I, but also use the wing-T. The bootleg run/pass and the option pitch are plays they run well because of their good quickness in the backfield.

Their 6-2, 5-2 defense is led by Jennings at nose guard, Mike Case, a 6-0, 200-pound junior at linebacker, and senior end Jason Hershman (6-1, 185). They often utilize an eight-man defensive front and they play man-to-man in the secondary, like Berkeley Springs.

"Very few times have we come out of Kingwood as a big winner," Woods said. "It's usually a real struggle over there, plus we have to guard against a letdown by our kids."

The kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m.

Local Soccer Club Captures First Victory

Bill Mead's penalty kick with less than four minutes remaining in the game sent A&A Realty/Deep Creek Soccer Club to its first victory of the season this past Sunday in a 2-1 battle over Little Caeser's of Cumberland. The game was played on a muddy Southern Middle School field which saw a steady downpour throughout the entire first half.

Neither team was able to generate much of an offense in the first two quarters as both sides were able to get only three shots apiece on goal in the first half. However, as the rains subsided at halftime, players were able to control the ball with more skill, which led to more scoring opportunities.

Little Caeser's Jeff Shimko, last season's leading scorer, put his team on the board ten minutes into the third quarter when he took a Billy Bridges' pass and hit a low hard shot that skipped on the wet turf past goalkeeper John Steele. A&A answered seven minutes later as Mike Hoffeditz, playing on an injured left ankle, took an Eric Biser pass and converted it.

The fourth quarter saw great play by the goalkeepers as both were able to thwart numerous shots on goal. Then, with three and one-half minutes to go in the contest, sweeper Mark Gwaizdowski carried the ball into the left side of the penalty box and attempted to cross the ball into the goal area. Little Ceaser defender, trying to make a tackle, tripped up Gwaizdowski. The referee signaled for the penalty and Bill Mead drilled home the winning tally.

Although the wet and muddy field was a factor in slowing down the high scoring Little Caeser's team, the A&A defense held Jeff Shimko to one goal. In their two confrontations last year, Shimko tallied five goals.

The A&A Club will be back in action this Sunday as they meet Valley Automotive of Mt. Savage at Southern Middle School. The match starts at 1 p.m. Fans are welcome.

Southern Golfers Place Second In Triangular Match

The Southern High School golf team took second place in a triangular match yesterday at Polish Pines Country Club in Keyser. Winning the match was Keyser with a score of 160, followed by Southern with 168, and Tucker County with 192.

Southern's Matt Hill had the best score on the day with a 35, while Keyser's Corey Glass fired a two-over 36.

Dan Nordeck and Scott Meyers each carded 44s for the Rams.

Nine-Year-Old Captain Sails To Victory In Commodore's Regatta

Over nine years ago on July 3, 1981, on the first day of the annual Firecracker Regatta, three blue flags flew from the yardarm of a sailboat on Deep Creek Lake, announcing the birth of a son to Carole Ann and William L. Lovett, Swanton.

On Labor Day weekend of this year, that same boy, Chad William Lovett, age 9, placed first in the five-race series Commodore's Cup Regatta, the youngest skipper ever to win the race.

When asked if he was surprised at the victory, Chad said it was a tight race.

"There was one other guy who was really close to us. It was sort of 50-50."

Chad was also recently honored at the close of the July-August series of races at Deep Creek, as his cumulative number of points for each weekend of racing granted him second place overall among B Fleet, Flying Scot skippers.

Chad, who is a fourth-grader at Broad Ford Elementary, began sailing a Sunfish at the age of 5, and crewed for (assisted) his father in the Flying Scot at age 6. He learned the techniques of "skippering," or being the captain of the boat, operating the tiller and determining the boat's speed and direction.

At age 7, Chad was the captain in a few July races, and at 8 years old, he skippered his first winning race. He is the youngest captain ever to win a Flying Scot trophy at Deep Creek Lake, possibly in the world.

Chad races in the B Fleet, where all other skippers are adults. His father, Bill Lovett, crews for him in all races.

The young captain plans to continue racing, and although he has not decided what he will be when he is an adult, Chad says he knows he'll still be sailing.

GNB Charity Golf Tourney Deadline Noted

The Garrett National Bank announced this week that the deadline for organizations to submit a request to be considered as the benefactor of the 1991 annual GNB Charity Benefit Golf Tournament is October 10, 1990.

Luke Stuart, of Garrett National and chairman of the selection board for the tournament, said that among the guidelines for selection is that the applying organization must be a local charity with its principal funding coming from donations by citizens and businesses. Organizations wishing to apply should submit their requests in writing and address them to Luke Stuart, Garrett National Bank Charity Benefit Tournament, c/o Garrett National Bank, P.O. Box 239, Oakland, MD 21550. He said to include a brief outline of the purpose and goals of the organization.

In its first two years, the tournament has raised a total of $24,000 for two local charities — the Garrett Organization for the Handicapped and the Friends of Ruth Enlow Library Children's Book Fund. Stuart said the third annual tourney next year is expected to be equally successful.

The selection board consists of a band representative, a representative of the previous year's recipient, and four independent business persons. Other members of the board, besides Stuart, are: Jim Wallin, local retired businessman; Don Sincell, editor of The Republican Newspaper; Gary Daniels, of Four Star Broadcasting; Tom Gearhart, consultant; and Sull McCartney, of Potomac Engineering and a representative of the Friends of Ruth Enlow Library.

Law Changes Noted In New Hunting Guide

A number of changes in Maryand hunting laws became effective July 1, 1990, and those changes are highlighted in the Guide to Hunting and Trapping in Maryland, published annually by the Department of Natural Resources and given to every person who buys a Maryland hunting license.

"Changes included the price of the non-resident hunting license and what that license permits non-residents to hunt. Also new for the 1990-91 hunting season are separate "second deer" stamps for archery, muzzleloader and firearms deer seasons," explained Wildlife Division Director Gary J. Taylor.

A non-resident basic hunting license for the 1990-91 season will cost residents of Delaware and Pennsylvania $83; residents of West Virginia, $85; and residents of Virginia $120. Residents of other states will pay $120.50 for a Maryland non-resident hunting license this year. The price of the 3-day license has not changed. The non-resident license allows the holder to hunt all legal game except deer during the archery and black powder and waterfowl. Separate archery and black powder deer stamps and federal and Maryland waterfowl stamps may be purchased for use with the non-resident license.

Resident and non-resident second deer stamps are now available for the firearm, archery and muzzleloader deer seasons. The second deer stamp will cost $5 for resident and $10 for non-resident hunters. The second deer stamp entitles the holder to take one additional deer during the season for which the stamp is valid. Unlike last year, the second deer taken during the firearm season in Allegany, Carroll, Frederick, Garrett and Washington counties may be antlerless if the hunter possesses and antlerless deer permit and a second deer stamp-firearms and the first deer bagged during the firearm season was antlered. Also new this year is that only one white-tailed and one sika deer may be taken per day, except in Dorchester County where two of each species may be taken on same day.

The following are among other changes appearing in the 1990-91 hunting guide:

Backtags do not have to be worn during the spring turkey season but they must be in the hunter's possession.

Non-residents who own farmland in Maryland and hunt only on that farmland are now required to purchase a non-resident basic hunting license.

A person hunting turkey during the spring season is allowed to use shot no larger than #4 and no smaller that #6

To the Editor:

It's a silent cancer that will strike 106,000 American men this year. It will kill 30,000. One in 11 men will get the disease; among black men, one in nine. Most men won't even know they have prostate cancer because the disease usually spreads without symptoms.

Prostate canceris the most common cancer of men and their second leading cancer killer. But there is good news, prostate cancer can be cured if caught early. Hospitals in Maryland will be among 600 across the country offering free prostate exams for men.

The second annual "Prostate Cancer Awareness Week," a national education and screening program, is slated for September 16-23. Last year, 91 hospitals across the country offered free prostate exams to almost 15,000 men age 40 and over. Regular exams become even more important as men get older, especially over age 50.

The Cancer Information Service of Maryland is joining hospitals and organizations throughout the state to educate men concerning prostate cancer, and to make men aware of facilities offering free prostate exams.

We hope you will share this important information with your readers, encourage them to find out about prostate cancer, and to participate in free screenings by calling the Maryland Cancer Information Service, toll-free, at 1-800-4-CANCER.

Donna S. Cox

To the Editor:

While serving as Press Secretary to President Reagan, a man named John Hinckley shot me during his failed attempt to assassinate the President. Hinckley easily purchased his concealable Saturday Night Special at a Dallas pawnshop. In Texas, as in more than half of the states in America, there is no "cooling-off" period to give police the chance to run a background check on the buyer. Each day I live with the consequences of that easy gun sale.

The U.S. House of Representatives is set for a showdown on several important gun control bills this fall. The one I'm watching with the most interest is supported by 91 percent of the American people, every major police organization in the nation, and is vital if America hopes to reduce its ever-escalating level of handgun violence.

This legislation is known as "The Brady Bill" (H.R. 467) and would require a national, seven-day "cooling-off" period before the purchase of a handgun. During those seven days, local law enforcement officials would have the opportunity to run criminal record checks of handgun purchasers. This cooling-off period would prevent the John Hinckleys of the world from easily buying handguns over-the-counter.

Last year, 9,536 Americans were murdered with handguns. And according to a Justice Department study, 639,000 violent crimes a year are committed by criminals armed with handguns. No American is safe from the threat of handgun violence.

We fell a few votes short of passing the Brady Bill last time, but each Member of Congress will have the chance to vote on this key bill within the next several weeks. My wife, Sarah, and I are asking all Americans to help pass this public safety bill by writing their Representatives urging a vote for the Brady Bill. Because seven days can save a life.

Sincerely,
James S. Brady

Angry Residents

order from the MDE to replace or install an "adequate" water system. To comply with that order, Shallmar was connected to the much newer water system of nearby Kitzmiller, but mandatory hookup was not enforced. Some Shallmar residents chose to continue using water from the old system. They claimed that the Kitzmiller water, which came from Wolf Den Run, was treated so heavily with chemicals that it was inferior to the water they had been drawing from Short Run and piping into their homes without treatment.

The order was made to permanently disconnect the Shallmar system because of MDE concerns that the Kitzmiller water would become contaminated after the discovery that some Shallmar residents had "cross connections" between the two systems.

The dismantling of the system, according to Rowan, was carried out with hacksaws and sledgehammers, and allegedly involved the workers' trespassing on property where they had been specifically asked not to go by the owner.

Another problem that arose because of the cross connections was that water from the Kitzmiller system was reportedly escaping into the Shallmar pipes, causing incidents of unreasonably high water bills.

"(They have) assigned a punitive water rate to an impoverished community for an inferior product they formerly supplied themselves, free of charge and of a higher quality," stated Rowan. "We do not wish to politicize this issue, but we will if we have to. We are prepared to take our problem to whatever court is necessary."

GCC Offering Playing The Recorder Course

A new course in instrumental music being offered by GCC this semester, "Playing the Recorder" (MUS 119-C), is open to anyone with an interest in music who is willing to practice, according to instructor Dr. Dan Muss. The course will start on Thursday, September 24, at 6:30 p.m. in the music room of the college.

Students in this class will learn to read music, and to play music of the 14th, 16th, and 17th centuries — the periods in which the recorder was the primary wind instrument used in dance and court music. Dr. Muss plans to base the course on the alto recorder, but will be flexible to allow for a wider range of instruments in the recorder family.

Because the recorder is a consort instrument (designed to be played in groups), members of the class will learn to play in small groups. The class will be limited to ten students. Dr. Muss will order a recorder for any student who does not have one. Cost of the instrument and book will be approximately $60.

Dr. Muss, who holds a Ph.D in Physics from the University of Pittsburgh, has played with the "Musical Offerings" recorder group in Pittsburgh for fifteen years. Although he has no formal training in music, he played guitar and banjo with a bluegrass group until a shoulder injury led him to take up the recorder. He recently retired as manager of the Applied Science Division of Westinghouse Research and Development Center, and is now a half-time resident of Garrett County.

Students may register for the recorder class for one college credit, or they may audit the course. Registration will take place at the Registrar's Office on weekdays during business hours. Persons desiring further information about this course may call Joan Crawford at the college at 387-6666.

Giving The Water Of Life

THE LATE DR. SCOTT GLOTFELTY

Editor's note: The following article is being reprinted with the permission of the Carroll County Times newspaper editor.

by Patti Bair Price
For Neighborhoods,
A Weekly Edition Of The Carroll County Times

Deep in the African country of Togo, a new Peace Corps volunteer puzzled over the sick chickens a native man brought to her.

She knew natives occasionally gave chickens as gifts, but sick chickens.

The bewildered young woman didn't know what a delivery of sick chickens meant.

Later, the natives explained: "The man who was here before cured our chickens." They just assumed she would be another Scott Glotfelty.

Dr. Glotfelty, she learned, knew exactly what to do with sick chickens — or goats or sheep — while he was there as a Peace Corps volunteer.

The natives missed Dr. Glotfelty, who was killed in Togo by swarming bees in March, 1988.

The 27-year-old veterinarian from Accident, Md., planned to serve in Togo, a narrow country west of Nigeria, for two years. He had only been there nine months when, en route to a village market, he fell victim to the deadly bee attack.

Dr. Glotfelty had already endeared himself to many natives. They appreciated how he healed their animals, helped with farm projects and lived among them as a friend, says his aunt, Helen Englar, of Westminster.

At the Peace Corps' invitation, Mrs. Englar and her sister, Betty Hummel, of Olympia, Wash., journeyed to Togo recently. These aunts of Dr. Glotfelty attended the dedication of a community well built in their nephew's memory.

Dr. Glotfelty's family and friends financed construction of the well through memorial donations channeled to the Peace Corps Foundation.

They felt Dr. Glotfelty would be pleased that a desperately-needed well was being provided near Mandouri, the village where he last lived and worked.

"Water is at a premium there," Mrs. Englar explains.

An existing well in that area often ran dry, leaving residents to depend on a single waterhole — where murky water was used for drinking, washing clothes, and bathing, as well as by animals.

The new concrete well, built by Peace Corps workers and natives, includes a run-off trough for the animals. The villagers now have hope there'll be water year 'round.

Getting a new well was cause for great celebration in Mandouri, as Mrs. Englar and Mrs. Hummel discovered upon their arrival there June 23.

To reach Mandouri, located in northeastern Togo, the sisters flew to Lome, the country's capital on the southern coast, and then travelled several days by car — over some rough roadways.

Mandouri's suis-prefet, a local government official, greeted the women as they arrived in the village.

Peace Corps representatives then escorted them through a field leading to another village near Mandouri. "When we got close by, you could hear drums beating, people cheering," Mrs. Englar recalls.

Villagers warmly welcomed the aunts of their late friend, the animal doctor. They presented handmade garments for the women to wear over their American clothes.

The natives proceeded with a curious ceremony, mixing together sorghum meal and water, and pouring it on the ground. They also killed a chicken, slitting its throat so that blood would drip over the meal mixture.

Mrs. Englar still isn't sure what the ritual meant.

The natives then brought three horses — for Mrs. Englar, Mrs. Hummel and the Togo Peace Corps director to ride upon.

"We rode through this crowd of people who were dancing, singing, yelling and the drums were beating," Mrs. Englar recalls. Many, many appreciative natives had gathered.

The entourage trekked to a nearby shelter, which offered shade from the blazing sun. There the Peace Corps director, a native chief and other dignitaries gave speeches for the occasion.

Fortunately for Mrs. Englar and her sister, a missionary sat next to them to translate the French and native languages being used by speech-makers.

"In between each speech there were animations, which were dances," Mrs. Englar says.

One was a funeral dance, performed by native women. Mrs. Englar believes they were dancing in memory of her nephew.

"The people felt they never really had a chance to say goodbye to him," she explains. After his death, the Peace Corps quickly returned Dr. Glotfelty's body and belongings home to Accident, where his mother, Ruth DePaolo, still lives.

When the speeches and dancing ended, the crowd walked a few paces to the well site. Mrs. Englar and Mrs. Hummel inaugurated the well by pulling up buckets of water — in symbolic representation of other family members who couldn't attend.

They then unveiled the well's memorial plaque, which carries the epitaph found on their newphew's tombstone in Accident: "I expect to pass through this world but once. Any good, therefore, that I can do or any kindness that I can show to my fellow creatures let me do now."

The villagers continued the dedication festivities by hosting a dinner in a small shelter. Togo beer was offered as an apertif: Mrs. Englar says she took "a sip" to be polite.

The meal commenced with natives serving up fufu, a mush, accompanied by lamb prepared "in a very, very hot sauce."

The menu also featured a dish of goat meat and wild rice "which was delicious," Mrs. Englar says.

When natives passed around cacao beans to finish the meal, Mrs. Englar only took a taste. She was warned that a heftier portion would likely keep her awake all night.

That evening, Dr. Glotfelty's aunts stayed in the same hut their nephew once called home. Built from cob, a mixture of clay and straw, it had a metal roof instead of more commonly-used thatching.

The hut was now home to Debra Reich, that young Peace Corps worker so perplexed by sick chickens.

Many natives came to visit the women at the Peace Corps hut, eager to share their remembrances of Dr. Glotfelty.

One young man was proud that he had given the veterinarian a bird caught in the forest. A local midwife came to apologize for missing the well dedication, explaining that she had delivered four babies that day.

"I think they missed Scott and the fact he was trying to help them" Mrs. Englar says of the natives who came to pay respects.

As Mrs. Englar went to sleep that night, she could hear the sounds of drums beating in the distance. "It was like an old movie . . . I really felt like I was in Africa."

Before leaving Mandouri for the return trip to Lome, and a flight home, Mrs. Englar distributed gifts to Togolaise children: She brought balloons, Maryland coloring books, crayons, and pencils.

She also distributed T-shirts designed by Dr. Glotfelty's brothers and sisters. They were silkscreened with French and English words for "friends," and showed a black hand and a white hand clasped together.

The T-shirts were given to Peace Corps workers, local officials and native residents, Mrs. Englar says.

Mrs. Englar also left with Ms. Reich a special gift package earmarked for students of the local school, which just closed for summer recess.

When those Togolaise students return to school in September, they'll be surprised to find that youngsters from another school, far away, had sent them 11 storybooks.

The French-language books were bought by third-graders, and some second graders, from Winfield Elementary School who saved money for the project in May.

The Winfield students also wrote letters to the Togolaise students, telling them about schools, industry and having fun in Carroll County. They even wrote about the latest in computers.

The Winfield students learned about the Togo trek from Pat Minnich, a teacher of the gifted and talented who is also a friend of Mrs. Englar.

Although Mrs. Englar was disappointed she couldn't personally deliver the Winfield gifts to the Togolaise children, she's sure they'll be thrilled.

Mrs. Englar says "everybody we met in the whole country was so friendly and open and easy to talk to."

They are hard-working people, too. Throughout Togo, the natives use primitive tools and oxen-drawn plows to raise manioc, sweet potatoes, peanuts, corn, sorghum and millet, she notes.

Women would carry a heavy load of wood or tub of water on the top of their head while carrying a baby on their backs.

Mrs. Englar says she even saw a little boy, maybe 7 or 8, "just trotting up the road" with a bundle of wood "taller and bigger than he was" on the top of head.

Mrs. Englar was also impressed with the country's interesting array of animals. Stopping at game reserves along the road leading north out of Lome, she saw gazelles, baboons, gorillas, and wart hogs.

In one game reserve, she even had a chance encounter with Togo's famous renegade elephant. "We saw this big, huge bull elephant. We kept going and he kept coming."

The massive creature stopped suddenly just in front of the car carrying Mrs. Englar, her sister and their driver. "He turned and posed and then started tearing up a tree," she says.

She later found out that the elephant is known for attacking cars.

"This trip was the adventure of a lifetime," Mrs. Englar remarks.

She said it was worth every penny she spent, to experience for herself the place her nephew cherished, the place where he died.

"He wanted to travel and he wanted to serve," Mrs. Englar says of Dr. Glotfelty. "He wrote at one point that he felt so puny; there was so much to be done.

"But he had a good time in Togo," she continues. "He made a lot of friends."

Thanks to his American friends and family, Dr. Scott Glotfelty's friends in Togo now have a new well to go along with their memories of his stay among them.

Wetlands Status

Jim Torrington, a member of the Garrett County Wetlands Advisory Committee, provided a status report to the commission on the wetlands issue, stating that, as of September 21, the state will have the authority over wetlands of 10 acres or less in the state.

This authority was issued by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers — the federal wetlands authority — following a recent request by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources.

Torrington also stated that a letter sent by the Garrett County Commissioners to DNR Secretary Dr. Torrey Brown, requesting that DNR set up a local review office in Garrett County, has not yet received a response.

The advisory committee, he said, has suggested to the commissioners that the present advisory committee be utilized (or a new one established) "to monitor state activities, hear citizens' concerns, and keep the board of commissioners informed of wetlands issues."

Savage River State Park Plan

Nelson reported that Maryland Department of Natural Resources is currently undertaking a resource plan for Savage River State Forest, and has appointed a 32-member advisory committee to make recommendations toward that end.

Nelson said the committee, composed of members of county and state government, the Sierra Club, Wildlife Administration and Forest, Park and Wildlife Service, among others, serves as "a public forum response to DNR as how best to utilize the state forest."

The committee has so far conducted three meetings, and is currently studying multiple uses of the forest, including recreation, forestry, harvesting, wildlife, wildlands and fisheries.

Planning Commission member John Forman stated that a Wildlands Commission has recommended 9,000 additional acres be set aside in wildlands — this, in addition to 3,000 acres already set aside.

Nelson reported that the resource plan is scheduled to be completed by July, 1991.

Thomas Jefferson was the first president to wear long trousers instead of knee-breaches.

Harvi Griffin Concert Slated In Petersburg

A veteran of several White House performances, Harvi Griffin, harpist and vocalist, will perform at the Petersburg, W.Va., Presbyterian Church Fellowship Hall on Wednesday, October 3, at 8 p.m. Sponsored by the Grant County Arts Council, Community Sponsors Linda and Duke McDaniel and James and Cynthia Geary, the event is also made possible by a grant from the West Virginia Arts and Humanities Division.

Griffin's program will contain music from such diverse repertoires as jazz, contemporary rock, spirituals and classical music, and unusual program for an instrument that many consider strictly traditional. Griffin sometimes includes in his programs a number that he has composed himself. His vocals provide an extra variety to his performances and his voice is described as rich and sure.

A native of Detroit and a graduate of Michigan State University, he has studied further at the Mannes College of Music in New York and the Eastman School of Music. He has presented over 1,000 concerts throughout the U.S., Europe and Asia and has been acclaimed by critics and his colleagues. His performance at the 1987 World Harp Congress in Vienna, Austria, garnered three standing ovations, and his performance became the subject of a half-hour television documentary beamed throughout Eastern and Western European countries. Sought after for private performances, he has been featured at U.S. Governors' Conferences, before U.S. Supreme Court Justices and at meetings at several major U.S. corporations.

Griffin's performance will be preceded by a brief performance by the Petersburg High School Brass Ensemble and it will be followed by refreshments. In the Kitchen

Pears are classified into two groups — dessert or cooking. Dessert pears have a wonderfully sweet flavor and are excellent served fresh. Cooking pears, such as Anjou and Bosc, hold their shape well during baking and cooking. Unlike apples, pears are best picked from the tree just before they ripen. The tree-ripened pears develop a coarser texture than those allowed to ripen at room temperature after picking. In fact, pears to be used in baked or cooked desserts are best when firm.

OLD-FASHIONED PEAR-APPLE PIE

4 medium Granny Smith apples, peeled, cored, and thinly sliced (about 4 cups)
4 large pears, peeled, cored, and thinly sliced (about 4 cups)
½ cup packed light brown sugar
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup all-purpose flour
¾-1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
Salt
Flaky Oil Pastry:
2⅓ cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup plus 1 tablespoon salad oil
3-4 tablespoons cold water

In a large bowl, with rubber spatula, gently toss first 7 ingredients and ¼ teaspoon salt until well mixed, set aside. Prepare Flaky Oil Pastry. In medium bowl, stir flour and salt. Stir in salad oil until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add cold water, a tablespoon at a time, into mixture, mixing lightly with fork after each addition until the pastry is moist and cleans the side of bowl. Shape the pastry into a ball. Moisten counter top. Place two 15-inch-long strips of waxed paper on top, overlapping to make a 15-inch square. For bottom crust, place two-thirds pastry in center of square, cover with another square of waxed paper. With rolling pin, carefully roll pastry into a 15-inch round. Line pie plate with the pastry, trim edge, leaving ½-inch overhang. Spoon fruit mixture into pastry-lined pie plate, dot filling with the butter or margarine. Preheat oven to 425°F. For top of crust, roll remaining pastry between two 12-inch squares of waxed paper into a 12-inch round, place over filling. Make Fork Edge. Fold the overhang under, press it down lightly. Trim the pastry even with the rim. With floured, fourtined fork, press pastry to rim, leaving a 1-inch gap between the fork marks. With sharp knife, cut a few slashes in top crust to allow steam to escape during baking. Bake pie 50 minutes, or until crust is golden and fruit is tender. If pastry browns too quickly, cover the pie loosely with foil to prevent over-browning. Remove pie from oven and cool on a wire rack 1 hour, serve warm. If you like, cool completely to serve later.

SPICED PEARS WITH CHOCOLATE SAUCE

4 small pears
3 cups apple juice
¼ cup packed light brown sugar
1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
6 3-inch long cinnamon sticks
6 whole cloves
Bittersweet Chocolate Dessert Sauce
½ pine vanilla ice cream

Peel the pears. With an apple corer, remove the cores from the bottom of the pears, but do not remove the stems. This will make pears easier to serve. In 2-quart saucepan over medium heat, heat pears and next 5 ingredients to boiling. Reduce heat to low, cover, simmer 30 minutes, turn occasionally. Spoon pears and liquid into bowl cover, refrigerate until well chilled, about 4 hours, turn occasionally. About 10 minutes before serving, prepare chocolate sauce. Place 4 dessert dishes in refrigerator to chill. Remove the chilled pears from their liquid, reserve the liquid for use another day. In each of the chilled dessert dishes, place ¼ cup ice cream, arrange a pear on top of the ice cream. Drizzle the chocolate sauce in an attractive pattern over the fruit and ice cream in each bowl. Serve at once.

BITTERSWEET CHOCOLATE DESSERT SAUCE

In a heavy 1-quart saucepan over medium heat, heat ⅓ cup sugar with ⅓ cup water, 2 squares unsweetened chocolate, 2 squares semisweet chocolate, 2 tables butter or margarine, and 1/8 teaspoon salt to boiling stirring frequently. (Mixture will look separated). Reduce heat to medium-low, simmer, uncovered, until sauce is smooth and thickened, about 3 minutes, stirring mixture constantly. Remove saucepan from heat, stir in ¾ teaspoon vanilla extract. Serve sauce warm over poached pears, sauteed bananas, ice cream, or pound cake. Or, refirgerate sauce to serve later, reheat in heavy 1-quart saucepan over low heat, stirring mixture constantly. Keeps up to 1 week in the refrigerator. Makes about 1 cup sauce.

DELICIOUS PEAR PIE

Pastry for double-crust 9-inch pie
¼ cup sugar
1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
¾ teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
6 medium baking pears, peeled and thinly sliced
½ cup sugar
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
3 tablespoons butter or margarine

Roll half of pastry to 1/8-inch thickness on a lightly floured surface. Place in a 9-inch pieplate, set aside. Combine ¼ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, cinnamon, and nutmeg in a bowl, stir well. Add pears, stir well. Spoon into pastry shell. Combine ½ cup sugar and 3 tablespoons flour, cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse meal. Sprinkle over top of pears. Roll remaining pastry to 1/8-inch thickness, transfer to top of pie. Trim off excess pastry along edges. Fold edges under, and flute. Cut slits in top crust for steam to escape. Bake at 425° for 45 to 50 minutes. Cover edges of pastry with strip of aluminum foil to prevent excessive browning, if necessary. Serve warm or cool. Yield: One 9-inch pie.

NATURAL PEAR-APPLE PIE

3 large cooking apples, peeled and sliced
¾ cup dark or golden raisins
¼ cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon whole wheat flour
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
2 medium pears, peeled and sliced
Pastry for double-crust 9-inch pie
1 tablespoon dark rum or cognac

UP TO THE HIGHEST HEIGHT

To climb a mountain is a test and a challenge. Setting off to reach the pinnacle requires good equipment, proper clothing and training. It takes skill, physical fitness and determination to endure the harshness of the climb. Once invaded, the mountain throws obstacles in the path of the invader. As if to say,

"I will not give up my silent majesty easily."

Many climbers have heard the voices of the mountain and experienced its anger. The howling winds, the bitter cold, lack of oxygen and exhaustion face the intruder who dares conquer it. But once conquered, the victory is sweet.

Like the mountain, neither will God give up His silent majesty easily. Obstacles thrown in our path may make us falter and fail. But He gives us new strength with every new difficulty.

To reach God's summit is to climb heavenward. Seek His strength and refuge this week.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

FACING THE MUSIC
September 16, 1990

Background Scripture: 2 Samuel 11:1 through 12:25
Devotional Reading: Psalms 51:1-15.

What is harder than "facing the music"? What is more soul-wrenching than acknowledging that we have greviously sinned? What is more difficult for the human mind than to accept the consequences of our own choices?

In fact, it is so difficult for many of us that the only way our minds can grasp these realities is to be tricked or finessed into it. Faced with an accusation of wrongdoing, our minds become miraculously inventive in finding legitimate reasons for what we have done. We are rarely more creative than when trying to rationalize our sins. In fact, that's one of the reasons that the word "sin" is no longer in vogue. It is too stark, too clear-cut. What we want is something a bit more fuzzy and equivocal.

The prophet Nathan was facing just such a situation with King David. Nathan knew that David had sinned greviously: coveting another man's wife, committing adultery with her, and then plotting to have the husband killed to cover up Bathsheba's pregnancy. But he also realized that if he confronted David, the clever king would not admit that he had sinned. Perhaps he anticipated that David would become extremely angry and even do violence against him.

When we are cornered with our sins, we very often respond by projecting our anger with ourselves to someone else.

SETTING UP THE KING

So, Nathan cleverly "set-up" the king by asking him to render judgement upon the acts of another man. Nathan knew that David, like all of us, loved to judge the deeds of others, particularly their bad deeds. David is certainly not alone in that, is he? Most of us enjoy, secretly or admittedly, executing judgements upon other people. Often, it makes us feel better about ourselves if we can condemn the actions of others.

The story he told David was obvious in its implications. The "rich man" had obviously sinned in taking from the "poor man" his one little ewe lamb. "Then David's anger was greatly kindled against the man," we are told. "As the Lord lives, the man who had done this deserves to die; and he shall restore the lamb fourfold, because he did this thing, and because he had no pity" (12:5,6). Who among us cannot join with David in righteous indignation over the "rich man's" evil deed?

YOU ARE THE MAN

What a dramatic moment when, with these words still vibrating on David's lips, Nathan replies: "You are the man!" (12:7). This rascal who "deserves to die," this "rich man" who must give restitution, is really the king himself. It is to David's credit that he no longer fights the verdict. Instead of protesting his innocence or "extenuating the circumstances," David acknowledges that Nathan is correct when he charges: "You are the man!" Sometimes when we're caught in our own standards of judgement, we insist that "this is different." But David replied: "I have sinned against the Lord" (12:13).

What about you? Are you rather quick in your moral judgements upon other people? By what standards do you judge others? And when you are confronted with your sin, do you have the courage and integrity to acknowledge what you have done? Can you face the music?

New series inspired by 'Ferris Bueller's Day Off'

By Steven Alan McGaw

Monday nights this fall, NBC is offering a series based on the hit 1986 movie Ferris Bueller's Day Off. Titled simply Ferris Bueller, the series stars Charlie Schlatter as the irrepressible teen who determines not to let high school interfere with his life. I haven't seen the series yet, so let's look back at the movie, a video rental I make every so often.

Ferris Bueller's Day Off (1986)

John Hughes was in the midst of a roll (Sixteen Candles, Pretty In Pink) when this film came out, and it definitely galvanized his Hollywood clout. The real credit, however, goes to star Matthew Broderick, whose electric, charming performance as Ferris really makes the film. With another star, this movie could have been wearying, tiresome; Hughes' script, while imaginative and containing some great moments, gets a little thin at times. Terrific supporting work comes from Alan Ruck (who makes a whole-hearted investment in his character's "I-hate-my-father" theatrics), Mia Sara as Ferris' sexy, patient girlfriend, and Edie McClurg as the principal's hip secretary. It is the principal, played by Jeffrey Jones (Amadeus), who almost steals the show from Bueller.

NBC's show has a tough act to follow in Ferris Bueller's Day Off. When you're not catching up with the new season shows, give yourself one hilarious "Day Off."

New season's personalities share thoughts

Actor longed to return to TV

By TVL Critics

During the July television critics' press tour in Los Angeles, celebrities from upcoming programs shared their thoughts on a variety of issues with the press. Here are a few of their more notable comments:

In CBS' Thursday night drama Sons And Daughters, Lucie Arnaz plays a single professional whose life is complicated by several generations of family, a father (Don Murray) who has married a woman much younger, a brother whose new baby has drastically changed his yuppie lifestyle, and her own adopted daughter, who is looking for a father figure from her as well. Arnaz commented about plans for a movie being made about her real-life parents.

She said of the network that gave her parents their break, "CBS should be the network to tell their story when it's ready to be told, and when they can tell it absolutely accurately. And I don't think anybody can do that right now. Not even me, so I won't be involved in it."

In what is bound to be the year's No. 1 show on ABC, James Earl Jones stars as Gabriel Bird, a man who was sentenced to life in prison without parole during the turbulent '60s. Gabriel is released from jail after a determined and highly principled defense attorney discovers inconsistencies in his trial. Jones should win an Emmy for his portrayal of a man trying to resurrect himself as he rediscovers the world he's been denied so long. Having been considered for both a sitcom and for this role, Jones was surprised at ABC's decision to cast him in Gabriel's Fire.

"I said, 'well, I would do either. I want to do a series so bad, I will do either the drama or the sitcom.' As it turns out, they chose, to my surprise, the drama, which says something exciting to me, that ABC was ready to deal with the serious side of, not black life, but the kind of a character I'm playing. What excited me was dealing with the re-entry, of him coming into a world he hasn't seen for 20 years," Jones said.

Popular author Jackie Collins has combined two of her best-selling novels into scripts for a six-hour mini-series titled Jackie Collins' Chances and Lucky. The steamy stories will star Nicollette Sheridan, whose personal life has made the rounds of the tabloids of late. But did Sheridan's real-life have any bearing on her being cast?

"When we were casting we were very lucky to get Nicollette because I think she was everybody's first choice," Collins said. "I think she has that combination of being an incredibly attractive woman, but one who also has the strength of a very strong woman. And I don't think that we looked on the front page of The Enquirer and said, 'oh, this is the woman we must have.' I think we just thought, 'she's a hell of an actress and she's going to capture this role.'"

Lucie Arnaz stars as Tess Hammersmith, the elder daughter and self-proclaimed matriarch of a large, boisterous and loving clan in Sons and Daughters, a new one-hour comedy drama broadcasting Thursdays on CBS.

42nd Annual Emmy Awards note excellence in TV

Past winners up again this year

By Amy Schmidt

The 42nd Annual Primetime Emmy Awards promises to be an evening of celebration for all those who enjoy television, as well as for those who have helped shape its success.

The program, to air Sunday, Sept. 16, on FOX affiliates, is a presentation of the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences.

In addition to the awards presentation, the telecast will feature a tribute to the late Jim Henson, who set new standards of quality in children's programming.

Many of last year's winners again are up for honors, including Cheers and L.A. Law as best comedy and drama series, respectively, and Candice Bergen, Dana Delany, Richard Mulligan, Rhea Perlman, Melanie Mayron, Woody Harrelson and Larry Drake as best lead and supporting actresses and actors.

Quality does seem to recur, as witnessed by the following list of "mosts" regarding past Emmy presentations:

*M*A*S*H*, with 99 nominations, was the program nominated the most times, while The Mary Tyler Moore Show, with 29 wins, won the most. The biggest winning miniseries and TV movie were Roots, with nine awards, and Eleanor And Franklin, with 11. Producer Dwight Hemion is the individual most recognized by the academy, with 35 nominations and 15 wins. The most Emmys won in a single year by a network was in 1973-74, when CBS walked away with 44 awards. Hill Street Blues was the the show which won the most Emmys during one season, and during its premiere season. It won eight Emmys in 1981.

Television's most talented stars will compete for top honors in the 42nd Annual Emmy Awards, broadcast again this year on FOX, Sunday.

Laila Robins stars as attorney Victoria Heller in ABC's Gabriel's Fire, Thursdays.

Burt Reynolds plays a has-been football star come-home on CBS' Evening Shade, Fridays.

After six years, Fred Dryer teams up with a new partner, actress Darlanne Fluegel, on NBC's crime drama Hunter. The change is one of many the networks are making.

Returning series add twists to remain interesting

New faces appear in older series

Anne Wheeler

Returning series don't want to get lost in the premiere season dust, so every now and then a twist is added to the storyline.

On CBS' Designing Women, for example, Julia (Jean Smart) must cope with her boyfriend's (Hal Holbrook) fatal heart attack, while Anthony (Meshach Taylor), the ex-con who has been their delivery driver, becomes part owner of Sugarbakers.

Life is not a piece of cake for Major Mac MacGillis and his family on Major Dad, either. The Major moves his family to a base in Virginia where he becomes aide to Maj. Gen. Marcus Craig, played by Jon Cypher.

ABC has some changes in store for its returning series as well. Breaking the assumption that young viewers do not stay home on Saturday nights, ABC will be offering The Young Riders, China Beach and the acclaimed Twin Peaks on Saturdays.

Don Franklin (Nasty Boys) joins The Young Riders as Noah Dixon, the son of a free black man who has never known the bonds of slavery. When China Beach returns this fall, the series will sometimes explore what's in store for the characters as far into the future as 1985.

Talking about time travel, NBC's Quantum Leap will start off with an unusual episode. Sam Beckett (Scott Bakula) will leap into his own life in 1969 at age 16, knowing what lies ahead. Also on NBC, Sgt. Rick Hunter (Fred Dryer) is teamed with attractive but tough officer Joanne Malinski (Darlanne Fluegel).

State Fairgoers Find $326,611 In Unclaimed Funds

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said efforts to locate unclaimed funds for visitors to the State Fair in Timonium this year were highly successful. "Out of the 13,936 fairgoers who stopped by the Comptroller's Office booth, 1876 — or about one in seven — found unclaimed bank accounts, insurance benefits, refund checks and other money worth $326,611.16," Goldstein said. "That was beyond our expectations."

Comptroller's Office personnel manned four computer terminals at the State Fair August 25-September 3, in a first-of-its-kind effort in Maryland to locate the rightful owners of about $50 million in unclaimed funds on the comptroller's records.

"The largest amount identified for a single individual was $13,510, and the average amount found for visitors to the booth was $174," Goldstein said. Included in the money located for fairgoers were also state income tax refund checks totalling $4,986.

"While the largest number of visitors to the booth during the 10-day fair came on September 1, the largest amount of money located on a single day was on August 30 when we found $50,612 for visitors to the booth. We located money for individuals from as far away as New York, and from all over Maryland," Goldstein said.

Even though some fairgoers were skeptical in the beginning, as the days progressed several people started coming to the booth saying, "This is the one place we were looking for."

Visitors to the unclaimed property booth, who found money or other funds, walked away astonished and praised the services provided by the comptroller. A teenage boy and his sister were surprised when they found out about $200 in their deceased father's name.

In recent weeks, the comptroller has also expanded the computer capability at branch offices located throughout Maryland. "Our branch offices are reporting that hundreds of citizens throughout Maryland have checked our unclaimed property files with a telephone call to a local office, or stopped by one of our local offices instead of having to contact us in Baltimore," Goldstein said.

"People can visit or call our branch offices on any working day and check for free if they are the owners of any unclaimed funds," he said. "Telephone numbers are listed in local telephone directories," Goldstein added.

Financial institutions, insurance companies and corporations are required to report bank accounts, contents of safe deposit boxes, wages, insurance benefits, security deposits, stock dividends and other funds to the State Comptroller's Office if they remain unclaimed for five years or more.

Once money is reported to the state as unclaimed, the Comptroller's Office attempts to locate rightful owners by mail and through advertisements in local newspapers. Additional outreach efforts, such as the State Fair booth, are also used to locate rightful owners. If the money remains unclaimed, it is turned over to the state.

"However, Maryland's law is custodial, meaning that there is no time limit under which the property or its monetary equivalent may be claimed," Goldstein said. "You or your legitimate heirs may claim the funds at any time."

Garrett County citizens may call 334-8880 to find out if the comptroller has records of any unclaimed funds in their name.

MSN Program Proposed For Area

A master's degree in nursing outreach program to begin in the fall of 1991 is being proposed for the Frostburg/Cumberland area by the University of Maryland at Baltimore School (UMAB) of Nursing.

The program's majors would include a nurse practioner track. According to Dr. Helen Kohler, director of nursing outreach programs at UMAB, she will pursue funding for a 1991 Western Maryland program if there is enough interest among local nurses with BSN degrees.

Outreach classes would be scheduled in the Cumberland/Frostburg area. The ability to obtain funding is linked with the amount of enthusiasm generated by area nurses with BSN degrees.

A minimum of 15 students is required to begin a program. Dr. Kohler requests that any nurse with a BSN who is interested in pursuing a master's degree in nursing contact her immediately at 1-301-328-7387.

Byron Seeking Free Mailing For U.S. Troops

In the four days since her return from Saudi Arabia as part of a 22-member Congressional leadership delegation observing Operation Desert Shield, Rep. Beverly Byron (D-MD) has crafted and introduced legislation that she says will give U.S. troops stationed in the Persian Gulf free mailing privileges for 90 days.

Byron said that because of the enormous scale of the airlift to the Persian Gulf area, military post offices had yet to be set up so that even if troops had the money to pay for stamps they would be unable to find them.

"It's very important for our troops in the Gulf to be able to share their experiences and observations with their families back home. Remember that this was a quick deployment. Many of our men and women never got to say goodbye to their family members. The infrastructure is coming together in Saudi Arabia, but until post offices are established I want these men and women to be able to communicate with the people they left behind," Byron said.

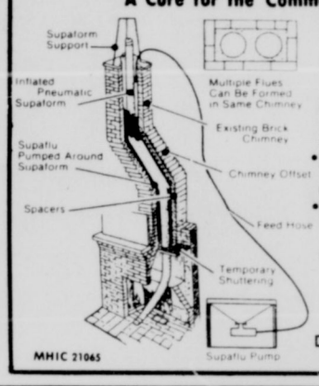

The bill, which is expected to see quick action on the House floor, will permit any member of the Armed Forces stationed in Saudi Arabia or any other country in the Persian Gulf region as part of the Desert Shield operation to send mail without charge for 90 days or until an Armed forces post office is set up.

"The troops are living under extremely difficult conditions over there, but the morale is very good. Being able to stay in touch with their families goes a long way in helping to maintain that," Mrs. Byron said.

"New Teachers" Program Begun By GC School System

A "beginning teacher" program has been implemented in the Garrett County School System for the school year 1990-91. The objective of the program is to provide new teachers with information and skills to be effective in their delivery of instruction.

According to the program coordinator Ed Green, supervisor of staff development and coordinator of the Teacher Education Center, the program serves to both orient new teachers to the system and provide an understanding of system and school priorities, policies, and procedures.

The program began with an orientation for 31 new teachers at the Garrett County Board of Education building on Aug. 29. The group heard several speakers, including Dr. Jerry Ryscavage, Superintendent of Schools, who discussed his expectations of new teachers.

Jim Raley, president of the Garrett County Teachers' Association, spoke of the many positive aspects of teaching in Garrett County, and Assistant Superintendent Al Ringer explained the new Maryland Performance Program, stressing the message that "all students can learn."

Luther Parrack, director of secondary education, advised the new teachers of the importance of good planning and classroom responsibilities. Also speaking at the orientation was Joe Winters, director of Camp Hickory, who made the new teachers aware of opportunities to utilize that outdoor facility.

Other speakers at the orientation included John Morris, assistant superintendent; Al Coviello, director of pupil services and special education; Chuck Trautwein, computer resource teacher; Dusty Stanton, media teacher; and Jim Hart, planetarium teacher.

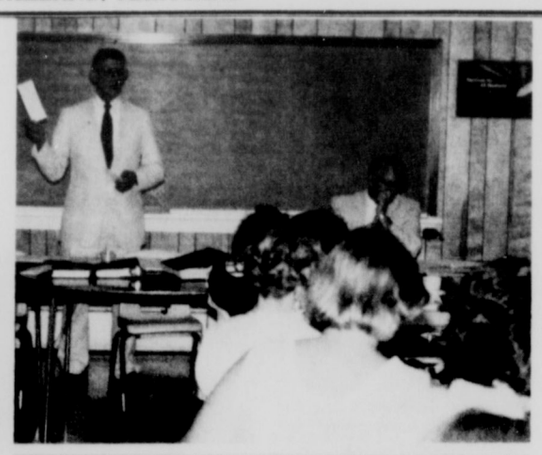

As the second phase of the program, the new teachers reported to their respective schools in the afternoon for continued orientation with their principals.

The third component of the program will be the offering of a three credit graduate course through Frostburg State University, entitled "Theory to Practice." This course is for beginning teachers only, and will target specific teaching skills needed by the new teacher. Seventeen teachers have enrolled in the course.

In the fourth phase of the program, an experienced master teacher in each school, identified by the school's principal, will act as a mentor for each beginning staff member in his or her building. The mentor's role will include providing assistance and advice as needed.

The final phase will incorporate the system's employee evaluation process, according to Green, which will provide for ongoing formative staff development.

Green said it is hoped that the beginning teacher will grow in confidence and skill by working closely with the school administration, effective teachers, and county supervisory staff.

GCMH Giving T-Shirts To Sept. Babies For Safety Seat Awareness

SOME BUNNY LOVES YOU is the logo on the t-shirts being given to each baby born in the month of September at Garrett County Memorial Hospital. The t-shirt depicts a baby bunny in a car seat. Pictured is Debbie Durben, R.N./obstetrics department supervisor, presenting a t-shirt to Dawn Bowman for her new baby boy, Samuel Levi.

Garrett County Memorial Hospital is giving a t-shirt to all babies born in September to increase parents' awareness of the importance of safety seats.

This is just one of the activities the hospital has sponsored as a participant in the Maryland Hospital Challenge. The Maryland Child Passenger Safety Association, Maryland Committee for Safety Belt Use, Maryland State Police, National Highway Traffic Safety Association, and Project KISS (Kids in Safety Seats) challenged all Maryland hospitals to participate in the program to promote the proper use of all occupant restraint devices by their employees, their patients, and visitors.

The National Safety Council says 81 percent of America's children ride totally unprotected. Each year, nearly 700 children under the age of five will be killed in automobile accidents, said a hospital spokesman.

During a crash, unprotected occupants will be thrown around inside the car after the vehicle hits an object and halts. Even a sudden stop can hurl unprotected children through a car like missile.

A child held on an adult's lap "for protection" may be crushed against the dashboard by the adult's weight. No one has the strength to keep a child from smashing into the car's interior, or from being ejected from the car during a crash.

"Taking your baby home from the hospital in a car safety seat is the best way to start," said the spokesman.

Parents may rent a child safety seat through Project KISS by calling 334-8111 to make arrangements.

Persons needing additional information about child safety seats may call the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration's toll-free Safety Hotline at 1-800-424-9393.

Children and houseparents will welcome visitors into their homes from 4 until 5 p.m., according to a press release.

The Maryland Salem Children's Trust, which provides a Christian home and care for 24 needy children, is located on Lower New Germany Road. Currently, there are three homes for children at Salem, with a fourth home expected to open this fall.

During the summer, the children worked intensively in activities designed to encourage and build self-esteem. The programs to be presented will demonstrate their growth and development in specific areas.

Persons requesting more information may call Salem at 301-689-8176.

GCC Foundation Sept. Meeting Set

The Garrett Community College Foundation has set September 25, at 7 p.m., as the date for its annual meeting. The public is invited to attend.

In other business, Dr. Brenda McCartney, GCCF treasurer, reported that the foundation, to date, had raised over $175,000 in pledges. The foundation needs to raise another $75,000 to reach its goal. With the state match of one dollar for every dollar donated, the GCC Endowment Fund would then have $500,000 to support education at the college.

President Andy Messer named a nominating committee of Ann Smith and Anna Mary Fratz. The committee will recommend candidates to fill directorships becoming vacant at the end of the calendar year.

The foundation then divided into groups to plan the 1990-91 fund drive to begin shortly.

I wish to thank the following people for purchasing my 1990 market animals:

Beef-Bruceton Farm Service, Accident, Md.; Hog-Red House Service Station, Red House, Md.; Sheep-J.V. Jones, Oakland, Md.

And a special thank you to the Garrett County Livestock Association for presenting me with The Hard Luck Award.

Thanks Again,
Krista Knox

Gov. Schaefer Announces New Lending Program

Governor William Donald Schaefer, in cooperation with Sovran Bank/Maryland, has announced a new state-sponsored financial assistance program to encourage economic development.

The program, called the Sovran Taxable Adjustable Rate Structured (STARS) program, provides flexible financing to qualified businesses seeking to locate new industrial or commercial operations in Maryland; to expand, renovate or refinance existing facilities; or to acquire new facilities in Maryland.

Under the new program, Sovran will offer loans at terms significantly more favorable than those available through conventional bank financing. To fund the loans, the Maryland Industrial Development Financing Authority (MIDFA) will issue taxable notes that will be sold by Sovran to investors. Interest earned by investors in STARS notes is exempt from Maryland state income tax.

"This STARS program brings together the private sector, local government and the state in a joint effort to encourage firms to invest in Maryland," Governor Schaefer said. "This is the kind of innovative approach we need to keep Maryland competitive."

The program resulted from a cooperative effort between MIDFA, a financing authority within the Department of Economic and Employment Development, and officials in Montgomery County. It is a means of encouraging development in the county with benefits for the state as a whole.

James F. Van Prooyen, executive vice president of Sovran Bank/Maryland, said, "We're pleased to be working with the Maryland Industrial Development Financing Authority to implement a program that we believe will be very beneficial to economic development in Maryland."

In addition to long-term loans at higher loan-to-value ratios and below market interest rates, the STARS program also offers participating Maryland firms significantly reduced closing costs.

Under the STARS program, loans can be made to finance up to 80 percent of the cost or value of equipment, or 90 percent of the cost or value of real estate, depending on the type of financing sought. The minimum loan amount is $1 million.

The STARS program is open to both current Sovran Bank/Maryland customers and to borrowers who want to become customers of the bank and is intended primarily for owner-occupied industrial or commercial facilities. Retail establishments, restaurants, marinas, hotels and speculative projects are not eligible for financing under the program.

Dailey Awarded Scholarship By German Society

Jennifer Lynn Dailey, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George R. Dailey, McHenry, was awarded a $1,000 scholarship by the German Society of Maryland for the academic year 1990-91. Dailey is a senior, majoring in accounting, at Frostburg State University.

Each year the German Society of Maryland awards scholarships to students of German ancestry residing in the state of Maryland and enrolled at a Maryland four-year college or university. The German Society of Maryland has been active since 1783 in giving assistance and advice to persons of German ancestry and their descendants arriving or residing in the state of Maryland. According to a Society spokesman, early generations of the German Society aided those who followed them into the new country and protected them from exploitation and abuse. As times changed, new fields of service were explored. In 1959 a scholarship fund was established.

All leads have been exhausted in both cases. Any person with information about either crime is asked to contact Garrett County Crime Solvers at 334-1975. Callers do not have to give their names nor appear in court.

Hospitality, Maryland-Style, Course Scheduled

A mini-course designed to emphasize the importance of customer relations is scheduled to begin October 1 at Garrett Community College. According to a GCC spokesman this class is being offered at community colleges through out the state in an effort to make Maryland's hospitality "the best around." It is intended to develop telephone and interpersonal skills, as well as listening and questioning techniques. The course will also highlight the importance of product/service knowledge, managing priorites, and handling problems and complaints. Participants will learn the importance of a positive attitude, enthusiasm, courtesy and tact.

"Hospitality Maryland Style: Customer Service and Satisfaction" will meet from 6:30 to 9:15 p.m. for three consecutive Mondays at the McHenry Campus.

The spokesman said this is one of a series of GCC classes planned to offer practical learning experiences which can immediately be "put to work" in business. It is cosponsored by the Continuing Education Division of GCC, the Small Business Administration, and the Western Maryland Small Business Development Center. Anyone wishing to register for this course or obtain additional information, should call the Continuing Education Division of the college at 387-6666, ext. 169.

Daina A. Savage, George J. Dailey Exchange Vows In June Ceremony

Daina Ardslea Savage and George Joseph Dailey, both of Lancaster, Pa., were wed in a 1 p.m. ceremony June 23 at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, Oakland, with Father John Grant officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Drs. William and Ruta Savage, Deep Creek Lake. A 1986 graduate of Southern High School and a 1990 graduate of Dickinson College, she is employed as a staff writer by the Lititz Record Express Newspaper.

The groom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. George Dailey, McHenry. A 1982 graduate of Northern High School and a 1986 graduate of the University of Maryland, he is the art director at the Lancaster Intelligencer Journal Newspaper.

The bride was attired in a designer gown of ivory matti taffeta featuring a V-neckline with short drape sleeves falling in soft folds. The fitted bodice was heavily encrusted with sequins and pearls over re-embroidered Venice lace. The basque waistline held a full skirt with a deep front pleat edged in matching pearl and sequin trimmed lace extending to a cathedral train. Her headpiece consisted of a wreath of roses, lilac, baby's breath and pearls with a detachable ivory veil. The bride's jewelry consisted of her grandmother's amethyst teardrop earrings and her great-grandmother's Latvian engagement and wedding rings.

Tara Rivetti, Hermitage, Pa., friend of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Heather Savage and Elizabeth Savage, sisters of the bride; Jennifer Dailey, sister of the groom; and Daina Mednis, Howell, N.J., cousin of the bride. The bridesmaids wore tea-length, floral design gowns, with necklines similar to that of the bride. Carol Cervi, McHenry, designed the bride's crescent-shaped bouquet of roses, lilac and baby's breath. The bridesmaids carried similarly designed nosegay bouquets.

Best man was Kevin Selby, McHenry, friend of the groom. Ushers were Gordon Savage, West Point, N.Y., brother of the bride; Gary Agness, Michael Agness, and Kevin Agness, Audubon, N.J., cousins of the groom. The groom and groomsmen wore "after six" lightly striped gray tuxedos with tails.

The ceremony, held on Midsummer Night's Eve, was preluded with Handel's "Water Music," Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," and Vivaldi's "Spring" from "The Four Seasons". The processional was "Canon in D" by Johann Pachelbel and "Trumpet Voluntary" by Jeremiah Clarke. The recessional was Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" from A Midsummer Night's Dream.

The couple was honored at a reception at Will O' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake. Lani Illick, sister of the groom, hosted the event. A three-tiered ivory wedding pound cake and chocolate groom's cake were created by the groom's mother and grandmother, Carol Dailey and Freda Dailey.

Bridal showers were given by the bridesmaids and by her college friends.

Following a wedding trip to the Grand Tetons, Wyo., the couple now resides in Lancaster, Pa.

Clippings from the Headlines

Two studies of a total of more than 130 convicted rapists and child molesters have found that most used pornography while preparing to commit an offense.

Pornography finds more victims.

In LaRue County, Kentucky, 40-year-old Phillip Clopton, a repeat rapist, sex offender and avid pornography fan, was recently shot to death by a 15-year-old girl he had tied to a tree for three weeks and repeatedly raped and performed unnatural acts on. The girl managed to free herself and shot him with his gun.

Sex crimes decrease as porn outlets close.

Does pornography cause sex crimes? In 1984, there were at least 163 sex-related businesses in Oklahoma City. Forty-two were prostitution rings listed as escort services in the Yellow Pages. Since efforts to close down pornography outlets and prostitution rings in Oklahoma City began in 1984, over 150 sex-related businesses have been shut down and prostitution has declined sharply. According to the FBI's 1989 Uniform Crime Report, rape was down in Oklahoma County 26%. In the rest of the state, where no similar effort has been made, the rate increased 20.8%.

Murder soars in South Africa since TV came.

Additional disturbing evidence has been produced by a University of Washington behavioral scientist and medical doctor who said last year that TV is responsible for half of North America's murders and rapes.

According to Dr. Brandon Centerwall's conclusion, TV also has more than doubled the homicide rates in South Africa, adding to its other problems.

Centerwall reported his new figures in an address to the annual conference of the American Psychiatric Association. Network executives at the conference disputed the validity of his study.

Let us boycott the pornography sellers.

ARE YOU CONTINUALLY ADJUSTING THE VOLUME?

This is a common complaint that we hear from many hearing aid users. With the new Cleartone hearing aids you will not have feedback once the hearing aid is completely in your ear. You will not have to continually adjust the volume control, because the hearing aid will automatically reduce the loud noises for you.

We have found that it even helps those who have Tinnitus "ringing ears".

START A "HOME RATING GUIDE"!

If you plan to purchase a home soon, how will you make your choice? Will you want to see every home currently for sale? With so many choices, how will you recognize that one very special home? Begin by deciding on some basic requirements, i.e. general location, price range, acceptable styles. Then, focus your search only on homes which meet those basic criteria.

Before inspecting individual homes, create your own personal one-page "Home Rating Guide". This simple device allows you to make notes about each home you see, rating features and amenities offered by the home. At the end of the day, if you have inspected seven homes, you will also have seven "Home Rating Guide" pages to help make your choice.

You can make your own "Home Rating Guide" with a legal pad, ruler and pen. Across the top of the pad create two lines titled "Address" and "Date". Next, create three vertical columns on the legal pad. At the top of the three columns write "Features", "Rating", and "Why?" Finally, enter the specific features and amenities you most desire in a home in the "Features" column, numbering each line as you go, i.e. No. 1 - 4 bedrooms, No. 2 - 2 baths, No. 3 - brick ranch. Enter as many as you want, up to fifteen or twenty. Create a separate page for each home you inspect.

As you begin your tour of homes, enter a rating beside each feature. If a feature offers more than expected give a rating of A+. If the feature meets your expectations, give it an "A", or if it does not fully meet your needs give it an "A-" or less. In the "Why?" column write down your reasons for the rating assigned.

At the end of the day, you will have a collection of "Home Rating Guide" tally sheets, one for each home seen. It will soon become apparent from your notations which homes best meet your needs and expectations. The result can be an informed and satisfying home purchase!

Trust Seeking Applicants For CLG Program

The Maryland Historical Trust, an agency of the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development, is seeking applications from qualified local governments that wish to participate in the State's Certified Local Government (CLG) Program.

Under provisions of the National Historic Preservation Amendments Act of 1980, Congress expanded the successful federal-state preservaton partnership to include participation by counties and incorporated towns. "Certified Local Governments" are responsible for the review and evaluation of properties from within their respective jurisdictions nominated for listing in the National Register of Historic Places, and are eligible to apply to the State Historic Preservation Office for matching funds earmarked for Certified Local Governments.

In order to become certified, a local government must have enacted an historic preservation ordinance and appointed an adequate and qualified historic district/preservation commission, among other requirements.

Approved Certified Local governments are eligible to apply for a share of matching federal Survey and Planning grant-in-aid funds, made available through the Maryland Historical Trust. The Trust must make available to these governments at least 10% of its federal allocation for FY 1991, estimated to be approximately $67,000.

Certified Local Government status is required before local governments may apply for FY 1991 CLG-share matching funds. To date, eleven Maryland jurisdictions, the City of Annapolis, Baltimore County, the Town of Bel Air, Calvert County, the Town of Chestertown, the City of Frederick, the City of Hagerstown, Montgomery County, Prince George's County, the City of Rockville, and Talbot County, have been approved and are participating in this program.

Although all qualified project proposals will be considered, Certified Local Governments are encouraged to tailor proposals to help achieve the following FY 1991 state priorities for preservation projects:

•Preparation of a local government version of the state preservation plan, including the generation of goals and objectives for actions to be taken for the development of folklife/oral histories, the preparation of "historic contexts", and the survey, registration, and protection/treatment of historic and archaeological resources;

•Production of multiple property National Register nominations for historic resources (i.e., historic district, thematic groupings, and a combination of archaeological and architectural resources for a given geographic area); and

•Production of educational tools to educate the general public about the value of historic preservation.

Criteria used to evaluate and rank each application include compatibility with broad goals of The Maryland Comprehensive Historic Preservation Plan (1986) and a variety of other factors including historical significance of the resource involved, equitable statewide geographic distribution of funding, administrative capability of the project sponsor, and information, education, demonstration and innovation value of the project.

Applications for funding are due no later than November 1, 1990. For more information, to obtain a copy of the Maryland CLG procedures or an application for FY 1991 matching funds, persons may contact Michael K. Day, Administrator, Local Preservation Programs, Maryland Historical Trust, 45 Calvert Street, Annapolis, Maryland 21401 or call 974-3642.

Farm Bureau Board Determines Priority Issues Of Farm Bill

The 1990 farm bill should reaffirm current market oriented policies by providing market clearing loan rates, flexible planting options and income protection, the American Farm Bureau Federation board of directors said last week.

Meeting in Chicago, the AFBF board considered several priority items in the House and Senate farm bills. A conference committee will craft a final measure from the bills this fall. The board stressed the conference version should maintain target prices at 1990 levels, set loan rates more in line with the 1985 farm act's guidelines and should provide greater planting flexibility than contained in either of the versions approved this summer.

Farm bill conferees will develop a package containing certain or some provisions from each bill, and compromises by the committee. The administration also will be actively voicing its concerns on policy issues and program costs during this process, according to AFBF President Dean Kleckner.

"We will push for market orientation in all farm programs, from loan rates to environmental program," he said.

"The conference committee may consider concepts that would reverse course on major accomplishments of the 1985 farm bill. Because agricultural commodities are interrelated, and because one section of the law affects other sections, we must maintain market based priorities throughout the farm bill," said Kleckner.

Target prices are one priority: AFBF believes they should not fall below 1990 levels. Although there is relative agreement on the issue, Farm Bureau prefers the Senate version which freezes target prices for all crops but oats at the 1990 level.

Farm Bureau will continue to emphasize the need for market-clearing loan rates. Currently, neither version sufficiently ensures competitiveness.

AFBF supports amending loan rates to more closely follow the 1985 farm bill which set rates at 75-85 percent of the five-year average market price, excluding highs and lows. In addition, Farm Bureau supports giving the USDA secretary authority to make Findley adjustments as much as 20 percent to remain competitive in world markets.

The proposed House formula calls for slightly higher loan rates, which could cause build-ups in government grain stocks. The Senate version proposes marketing loans which would keep grain moving into markets, but could become a "budget buster."

On planting flexibility, the House more closely follows Farm Bureau's goal of limiting non-program crop planting on program acres. The House also makes more acreage eligible for planting flexibility to allow farmers to respond to changing markets.

Neither acreage reduction proposal is totally acceptable to AFBF, but acreage reduction levels in both versions are based on stocks-to-use ratios. That concept is similar to Farm Bureau's policy of acreage reduction levels based on stocks as a percentage of world use.

AFBF also favors the Senate's lower acreage-reduction percentages for wheat and feed grains, while stocks-to-use ratios applied in the House version are preferable for rice and cotton.

The AFBF board outlined its views and support of other issues, including:

*Provisions of both houses' farmer-owned reserve programs, which allow a farmer to market grain at any time during the contract and equalize farm storage payments with commercial rates.

The House program is preferred because it is more market oriented, though AFBF prefers a nine-month loan extension rather than the House's six-month extension.

*The Senate version of payment limitation guidelines, extending the current policy of a $50,000-payment limit and a $200,000 limit on marketing loan gains and Findley payments.

*The Senate dairy program, triggering a supply management program at seven billion pounds. The AFBF board also voiced support to give the USDA secretary discretionary authority to adjust price support levels, such as in the 1985 farm bill.

*The Senate sugar program, an extension of the current program.

*The House version of the oilseeds is preferable to the Senate version. However, the potential budget exposure of a soybean marketing loan, given increased planting, flexibility, remains a concern.

While the farm bill conference committee will hammer out details later this month, the legislation's final dimensions will not be clear until Congress and the White House reach a budget agreement.

"A budget summit agreement likely will be the key in farm bill deliberations," Kleckner said. "Amid all this uncertainty, we need to make sure all commodity programs are treated as fairly as possible."

Dr. Lee Majeskie Honored By State Holstein Assoc.

Dr. Lee Majeskie, Extension dairy specialist at the University of Maryland, was given a high honor Monday, September 3, after the Holstein show at the Maryland State Fair. He was given the Distinguished Service to Maryland Holstein Award.

Also recognized was Dr. Majeskie's wife, Sapienza. "Not just for the support she gives Lee, but for sharing her time with us, helping at the shows, for her friendship and her genuine interest in our livlihood," commented the announcer.

"Rare is the person who is not greeted by Lee's smile and warmth. He may best be described as a 'friend to all' — an example for each and everyone of us. It is with sincere appreciation that we present the 1990 Distinguished Service Award to Dr. Lee Majeskie," the announcer read.

Dr. Majeskie, Extension dairy specialist at the University of Maryland since 1975, was born and raised on a Holstein farm in Wisconsin. He received his college education in both Wisconsin and Kansas, and served as a Brown Swiss fieldman prior to coming to Maryland.

In introducing the honoree, the announcer read further:

"A man of little pretense, he is familiar to each and everyone of us as Lee. He is known for his eagerness to meet every dairyman in the state and we recognize him today for his efforts which far exceed the requirements of the job. The enterprising role he plays in our Association goes far beyond his involvement in our shows and conventions as seen in his active participation on the breed improvement, program development and evaluation, scholarship, and show committees. His input is one of forward ideas, helping keep Maryland Holsteins on the cutting edge, as well as being a person of action.

"Beyond working for the betterment of the Association, Lee's sincerity shines through the true interest he takes in the individuals who make up the Association. Many a testimonial can be given for Lee, the counselor, who lent a listening ear to decisions that affected us far beyond the farm.

"In a day when agriculture in Maryland is increasingly overshadowed, and a like phenomenon is occurring at the University of Maryland, Lee provides us, as both Holstein breeders and dairymen, a voice. One who has always been willing to stand by his convictions, Lee's is a voice in which we can have confidence.

"His dedication to young people is particularly evident in his judging team work, and successes not just measured by his national winning teams, but more by the loyalty and respect he receives from the team members to whom he offers his influence and encouragement.

"We appreciate and share with pride his recognition as a nationally and internationally acclaimed judge and recognize the momentum he provides to our Association through liaison work he does for Maryland Holsteins and Maryland Holstein breeders."

To The Citizens Of Garrett County:

WHAT IT IS, IS A SINCERE THANK YOU FOR MAKING WFRB GARRETT COUNTY'S MOST LISTENED TO RADIO STATION. SINCE WE CANNOT WRITE YOU A PERSONAL LETTER, AND SINCE WE KNOW THAT THE REPUBLICAN NEWSPAPER REACHES PRACTICALLY EVERY HOME IN GARRETT COUNTY, WE HAVE DECIDED ON THIS METHOD OF COMMUNICATION.

We would also like to inform you that WFRB AM has expanded its programming by presenting a very controversial talk show at 12:05 p.m., Monday through Friday. You may hate him, you may love him, but you will listen to him. RUSH LIMBAUGH is the nation's most listened to talk show host. He is now on nearly 300 stations, and what he deals with will make you sit up and take notice. Subjects such as the Middle East crisis, the equal rights movement, abortion, animal rights, promiscuity. No subject of current interest is outside his domain. He tells it as he sees it, along with a generous sprinkling of humor, fun and satire.

If you crave for something different in radio programming, then be sure to catch RUSH LIMBAUGH, Monday through Friday, only on WFRB AM 560. He may be right, he may be wrong, but he will stimulate your thought processes to the limit.

Again, thank you for making WFRB Garrett County's number one, and most listened to, station.

Farm Bill Takes Back Seat To Middle East Crisis

Congress returned to Capitol Hill on Monday with the first order of business being a budget-deficit "summit" to determine just how much money will be available to fund farm legislation or anything else.

The 1990 farm bill, virtually ready for conference committee reconciliation, may be delayed or scraped by Iraq's occupation of Kuwait and the Middle East crisis and confrontation. "World events will determine both whether and when we get a farm bill," said a source close to Sen. Patrick Leahy (D-Vt.) who is chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Leahy had planned to call House and Senate conferees into session within a week or 10 days of the congressional return from the summer-Labor Day recess.

Leahy indicated he would give the "summit" a week or so but that he was anxious to move to final enactment of the farm measure by mid-September so that it might be on the desk of President George Bush by October 1 for signing. U.S. Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter has warned that if the farm bill does not fall within spending guidelines recommended by the administration, he might urge a Presidential veto.

Capitol Hill sources also suggested that because of the world situation, unless a major shift for the better has occurred soon, Congress might meet very briefly and recess again until a post-election "lame duck session" to take up pending matters such as the farm bill.

Failing in that, it was further hinted that because of numerous uncertainties, Congress might simply extend the 1985 farm act for one more year and wait until 1991 to consider a new one.

New Book Tells Story Of New Holland Company

The first in-depth story of New Holland Machine Company from 1895 through its sale to Ford Motor Company in 1986 will be told in a privately-printed limited edition to be published soon this fall.

"The Innovators" is based on official company files and the memories of many of the people directly involved in the success of the Lancaster County company which rose to the top of its segment of the worldwide farm equipment industry. The book is being published this year to mark the 50th anniversary of the 1940 reorganization of the company and the commercial production of the automatic hay baler.

Founded as the New Holland Machine Works in 1895, the company was incorporated as New Holland Machine Company in 1903 by the founder, Abram Zimmerman. In 1940 the struggling company was purchased by a group of Lancaster County men employed by the former Dellinger Manufacturing Company. Active in the reorganized company in the early 1940s were the late Raymond D. Buckwalter, Irl A. Daffin, George C. Delp and the late Rev. J. Henry Fisher.

Key to its first major increase in business was the acquisition of the world's first automatic pick-up hay baler invented by Edwin B. Nolt. In 1947 the Sperry Corporation bought the company but left management in the hands of Delp and his team after Daffin resigned to develop his own business.

Significant detail is given to New Holland's innovative methods of managing its line and staff divisions on a global basis. Each division's sometimes unique, often non-traditional, way of doing business is discussed in this first "inside" report on what became known as the "New Holland Way."

As one of the major, and many times the most profitable, Sperry divisions, New Holland became the world's largest manufacturer of specialized farm equipment, selling in more than 90 countries. Even though New Holland never had a tractor in its line, in later years it was usually among the top five of all farm equipment companies.

New Holland hit its first billion dollar year in 1980. After the downturn in the agricultural economy in 1983, and the merger of Sperry and Burroughs, New Holland was purchased by Ford in 1986 and is now part of Ford New Holland, third largest farm equipment company in the world.

More information about the book may be obtained by writing the author, Homer K. Luttringer, 1359 Mission Road, Lancaster, Pa., 17601. Luttringer, who joined the company in 1947 as press relation manager, was vice president for worldwide marketing and communications when he retired in 1980.

Honey Month Is Being Observed In September

September has been declared National Honey Month by the National Honey Board, honoring the contributions of the nation's honey bees.

In Maryland, honey production is a growing business. There are 1,802 registered beekeepers and 13,828 honey bee colonies in the state. Honey yields vary from 20 to 80 pounds per colony. In 1987, fewer than 100 new honey-related products were introduced in major supermarkets; last year, nearly 200 new products containing honey made it to the grocery shelves.

The honey bee also contributed to the health of Maryland agriculture. Crops pollinated by honey bees include apples, zucchini, cucumbers, melons, berries and lima beans. Moreover, honey bees pollinate much of Maryland's woodlands and flower gardens.

There are approximately 211,600 beekeepers nationally, who tend more than four million beehives. Each spring, commercial beekeepers transport colonies to major agricultural areas where honey bees pollinate fruit, seed, nut and vegetable crops, providing increased yields and higher quality products. In the process, honey bees are responsible for pollinating approximately 80 percent of all insect-pollinated crops.

September is set aside as the month to honor the honey bee because it marks the beginning of the honey harvest and is the sweetener's most popular time of the year.

Soybean Development Progressing Normally

By September 9, 86 percent of Maryland's soybean acreage was setting pods, ahead of last year's 82 percent and only slightly ahead of the five-year average of 85 percent. An average of 6.3 days was suitable for fieldwork during this week according to the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service. Across the state, no topsoil was very short of moisture, 20 percent was short of moisture, 80 percent was adequate, and none was surplus. Subsoil moisture ended the week as follows: none very short, 5 percent short, 95 percent adequate, and none surplus. Field corn, soybeans, and pasture were in good condition across the state. Apples were in fair to good condition and peaches were in fair condition. Hay supplies were adequate.

Maryland's progress for the week ending September 9 are as follows:

Crop Stage: Corn dough, 95, 94, 94; Corn dent, 81, 77, 82; Corn mature, 24, 31, 38; Soybeans bloomed, 97, 96, 97; Soybeans setg pods, 86, 82, 85; Soybeans turned, 13, 7, 13.

Crops Harvested: Corn grain, 4, 5, 8; Corn silage, 25, 33, 44. Alfalfa 3rd cut, 95, 94, 93; Alfalfa 4tth cut, 30, 33, 33; Other hay 4th cut, 10, 5, 2.

Potatoes, 98, 77, 84; Snap Beans, 94, 97, 92; Tomatoes, 90, 90, 92; Sweet Corn, 91, 93, 94; Lima Beans, 58, 83, 78. Apples, 30, 40, 32; Peaches, 94, 91, 92.

WEATHER

Maryland weather for the week ended September 7, was warm with little or no precipitation. Precipitation for the week averaged 0.10 inch ranging from zero at ten of the twenty stations to 1.15 inch at Oakland. Western and North Central Maryland averaged 0.37 inch and 0.11 inch respectively. Southern Maryland west of the Bay and the Eastern Shore averaged 0.02 inch and 0.01 inch, respectively. Temperatures averaged 73.7 degrees, 2.2 degrees above the normal of 71.5 degrees. Minimum temperatures for the week were mostly in the mid 50's to low 60's except in extreme Western Maryland where minimums were in the low 50's. Maximum temperatures for the week were in the high 80's to mid 90's, except the low 80's in extreme Western Maryland.

Management Replaces Need For Corn Silage Preservatives

Though preservatives and inoculants are sometimes used for ensiling corn silage, the increased value of the corn silage doesn't usually warrant treatment. The high carbohydrate content of corn forage is usually sufficient in itself to produce a high quality feed if good management practices are followed. Such practices include harvesting the corn at the proper stage of maturity, filling the silo rapidly, and chopping short enough to ensure good packing (most particles should be about one-half inch in length). The ideal harvest stage is when the corn contains about 65% to 70% moisture. That's when the corn kernel is in the early dent to black layer forming stage.

The use of anhydrous ammonia to boost the crude protein content of corn silage to 12%, up from the normal 8% is a different matter. But anhydrous ammonia is an additive, not a preservative. To figure out whether this practice will pay, compare the cost of applying the recommended rate of seven pounds of anhydrous ammonia per ton of silage with the equivalent of 68 pounds of 44% soybean meal. In addition, anhydrous ammonia may retain more dry matter and energy in the silage and prolong its bunk life.

Beef Production Tips

TIME FOR FALL POUR-ON, September and early October is the time of year to use systemic pour-ons or spot ons to rid cows and other cattle of grubs and lice. These systemic materials should go on after heal fly season is over and before November 1. There are a number of good materials on the market. Pay your money and take your choice, but do read the label before putting the material on the cattle. Follow instructions.

ACORN POISONING, Acorns from Oak trees are responsible for a significant number of deaths of cattle nearly every fall in Maryland. Acorn poisoning generally deals its most severe blow in the month of September and in very early October. It seems that cattle like those newly fallen acorns. If you are grazing cattle in pasture with Oak trees and thus acorns, take proper precautions. Clinical signs are loss of appetite, listlessness, weakness, constipation early followed by diarrhea that may be dark colored or bloody and animals will appear bowed in the back. Animals get weaker and eventually go down. Affected animals may show yellow color, bloody urine and dehydration. There are no specific treatments for this condition other than rumen stimulants (mineral oil and the like) and fluids for dehydration. Treatment of downed animals is rarely successful while early treatment of cases is helpful. If possible, the removal of animals from the source of poisoning will greatly reduce the losses and increase the success rate of treatment. A preventative ration of 10% to 15% calcium hydroxide in a high protein feed is helpful. It may take about 4 pounds of this mix per day per cow and 2 pounds per day for younger animals. If acorn poisoning is a threat, cattle should perhaps be removed from the pasture with the Oak trees producing acorns or be fenced from these wooded acres.

First Organic Week Proclaimed In Maryland

Secretary of Agriculture Wayne A. Cawley Jr., announced today that September 10-16 is "Organically Grown Week in Maryland."

"The movement that is occurring in Maryland," Cawley said, "is being repeated nationally."

The Committee for Sustainable Agriculture, (415) 924-0929, will be holding a press conference in Washington, D.C., on September 10, to kick off the week. A number of food co-ops throughout the state will be holding special events to promote awareness of organically grown products.

Recognizing the consumer demand for a clear definition of "organic," the Maryland Department of Agriculture has been working with the Maryland Organic Food and Farming Association (MOFFA) to establish a program for organic certification in Maryland. It is expected that Maryland shoppers will soon be able to confidently purchase certified organic prooduce grown in Maryland.

Ralph Hemphill, MDA's Director of Agricultural Development and Marketing, stated "there is a critical need for the general public to have a substantial, reliable source of information about organic foods and the marketplace."

For membership information, interested persons may contact MOFFA president, Eric Rice, 6201 Harley Road, Middlwtown, MD 21769, (301) 371-4814.

California Voters To Decide On Food Safety Alternatives

Farmers and ranchers across the United States will lend moral and financial support to California farmers to help win voter approval of Proposition 135. That California ballot initiative is a common-sense food safety alternative to Proposition 128, the "Big Green" initiative.

California voters will decide the fate of both propositions in the November election.

The American Farm Bureau Federation has pledged financial support to a group called "Californians for Responsible Food Laws" (CAREFUL), backers of Proposition 135, also known as the CAREFUL Proposition.

At a fund-raiser in Stockton, Calif., American Farm Bureau Federation President Dean Kleckner presented a $100,000 check in support of the CAREFUL campaign.

The California Farm Bureau and several other of the state's agricultural groups are supporting Proposition 135, as a common-sense, food-safety alternative to Proposition 128. If voters approve both propositions, the one with the greatest number of votes will prevail on pesticide use matters.

Proposition 128 seeks to ban pesticides without regard to their benefits. An estimated 70 percent of the state's commonly used pesticides could be banned if Proposition 128 passes. The proposition would also regulate products entering California.

According to Kleckner, the initiative would increase food costs in California by curtailing production and restricting the flow of agricultural products into the state.

"This broad support for a sensible alternative to the politically-motivated Proposition 128 shows that farmers across the country fear the threat this represents to agriculture nationwide," he said.

"I can't imagine the type of voter who could support Proposition 128, knowing it will result in high-priced food."

"California agriculture would be crippled without practical alternatives to the crop-protection tools Hayden wants banned," Kleckner said.

On the other hand, the CAREFUL initiative serves as a responsible alternative, according to Kleckner. Proposition 135 requires implementation of food safety measures to protect infants, children and the elderly. It also strengthens workplace safety programs for farm workers and re-evaluates pesticides controls.

The measure also improves food testing and requires research into alternative medfly eradication methods. Also included are provisions for comprehensive water resources protection and the creation of a new Food Safety Division within the Department of Food and Agriculture.

Other common-sense provisions of Proposition 135 outlaw transport of food by trucks which haul hazardous materials and provide for collection and disposal of pesticides.

"Proposition 135 allows those who grow our food and fiber continued access to safe pesticides," Kleckner said. "It mandates tougher testing of foodstuffs and water. Proposition 135 addresses the concerns of those who fear chemicals."

In presenting AFBF's contribution Kleckner challenged the audience to meet the evening's original $100,000 goal. That didn't take long. Including AFBF's $100,00 contribution, the fundraiser successfully tallied $206,000 for CAREFUL's "YES on 135" campaign.

According to Bob Vice, president of the California Farm Bureau and co-chairman of CAREFUL, contributions have been received from a number of state Farm Bureaus as well.

ASK THE SENATOR by U.S. Senator Barbara A. Mikulski

"Ask the Senator is a twice a month column where U.S. Senator Barbara Mikulski answers questions from Marylanders.

Crop Insurance

Dear Senator,

I farm in Southern Maryland. A couple of years ago, Maryland went though a severe drought, and my crops were hit hard. Now I hear that Congress is reforming the farm program again -- I don't think we need more paperwork. When are we going to let the farmers do their job?

I think American farmers do a great job! We have the best food supply and selection in the world, and I appreciate the hard work and long hours that the family farmer puts in to keep our grocery shelves stocked.

The Senate recently passed the Farm Bill of 1990, and during the spirited debate I was fighting for reforms to make the crop insurance program easier to use and more effective. When I wanted to know what the problems were, I went to the farmers. At my request, a task force of Maryland farmers was appointed; their recommendations led to my bill to reform the Crop Insurance program.

Federal Crop Insurance covers all natural risks, including losses due to drought, hurricanes, tornadoes, and destructive rain and wind. Also covered are losses due to floods, insect infestation, wildlife and plant diseases. This program is administered by the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, an agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

After the costs of direct disaster payments soared in the late 70's, the crop insurance program was extended to all commercial crops in all agricultural counties. But farmer participation did not increase -- and many were not covered when major disasters like the 1988 drought hit.

One of the points my task force focussed on was the frustration of many farmers and agents with the constant changes in program rates, rules, and policies. They told me that there wasn't a good local source of information and that many farmers didn't even know that the program was available. And when they did know about it, they were discouraged by the tangle of policies and regulations.

The task force suggested that the local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) offices could send out regular updates on crop insurance with other farm program information. I got this cost-free improvement accepted as part of the Farm Bill that just passed.

I want to see that the federal government works as hard for the farmers of Maryland as our farmers do in putting food on our tables.

For more information on the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation:

Help Save Our Environment By Recycling

Many products you use and dispose of every day are recyclable. The benefits of recycling are so numerous that Revco wants everyone to be aware of them.

The most obvious benefit is the reduction in garbage entering our landfills. Ten years ago, the United States had almost 18,000 landfill sites. Today only a third of them remain.

Many recycling centers will pay you for aluminum and newspaper, and some will donate money to local charities. Imagine helping needy children simply by recycling.

None of this can happen without you. Get involved. Start a recycling campaign in your neighborhood. Look in your Yellow Pages to find a recycling center close to you.

Gregg, Sines File This Week As Write-Ins

It was announced this week by incumbent District Three Garrett County Commissioner Ernest J. Gregg Jr. and by primary election candidate for District One Garrett County Commissioner, Russell Sines, that each would seek to overturn the results of the recent election by conducting write-in campaigns.

Gregg's recent loss in last week's primary to Brenda J. Butscher (who garnered 1,575 votes to Gregg's 1,484) led to Gregg's decision, which was prompted, he said, "by a great number of people, county-wide, encouraging me to conduct a write-in campaign."

Gregg stated that, even though he accepted the results of the election, "there were extenuating circumstances with the election process" that he felt unnecessarily led to his defeat. He explained that "a great outcry" had come from members of the Democratic Party, the Independent Party, and those citizens who felt that Gregg's retention of his seat was inevitable, and so, hadn't bothered to vote.

He also reported being told by some of his constituents that, "If he could endure seven more weeks of campaigning, a number of people would be willing to perform the mechanics." Basically, he was told to "Go for it,." he said.

He stated, "There is a credibility problem with the opponent's campaign and, although I will not conduct the same kind of campaign, I do intend to deal head-on with the rumors and the distortion of facts."

He went on to say, "This is not a sour grapes campaign. Even though I didn't like the outcome of the primary, I did accept it. It was because of the outpouring of encouragement I received that reflected Garrett County's desire to keep experienced leadership in office in these difficult times that I made the decision to run."

SOMETHING NEW HAS BEEN ADDED to the already wide variety of recreation and sports available to local youngsters, as the Mountaintop Youth Soccer League is off and running. Eight teams in two age divisions have been formed, as approximately 100 youngsters ages 8-13 are participating. The various teams hold practice sessions twice each week and meet for intra-league games every Saturday morning at the Southern High School track area. Rick DeLoach and Ned Holloway are the coordinators and primary instructors, while Tom Peterson is serving as league president and Carole Ann Lovett as secretary/treasurer. See more information in the sports section.

Board of Ed. Extends Asbestos Removal; Approves Various Policies

The Garrett County Board of Education agreed to give an extension to Brico Environmental, Inc., the company contracted to remove asbestos at Southern High School. This decision was one of several this week made by the board members at their monthly meeting, which was held on Sept. 13, and continued on Sept. 17.

The removal was to be completed last week, but because of an unexpected amount of asbestos and difficult removal, the project has been extended, re-scheduled to end on Sept. 23.

According to Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, Garrett County Schools Superintendent, one example of the problems encountered by Brico involved the floor tiles, which had to be removed to begin the project. The company's original assumption that the floor tiles would lift up easily was soon proved incorrect as the workers discovered that the tiles were worn so thin that a speedy removal was not possible. This project alone caused a setback for the company.

Another time-consuming obstacle was the discovery of more asbestos than what was first believed to exist in the building.

Dr. Ryscavage stated that the setback should not hinder the rest of the renovation, most of which is scheduled to be completed in August 1991.

The board recently received two bids on oil for the schools, and rejected both. Dr. Ryscavage stated that the board will re-bid the contract, and that local oil companies are urged to participate.

Md. School Performance Program

Maryland State Department of Education Liaison Paul Harr showed the board a video tape presentation entitled, "The Promise: Success for All Students - The Maryland Performance Program." The video gave details on the Maryland Performance Program (MPP), which is a new plan implemented by the state containing specific goals, including the monitoring of attendance, new testing methods, higher promotion rate, and lower drop-out rates.

Garrett County schools have been following a plan entitled "The Rural Schools Enhancement Project"(RSEP) for the last few years, the goals of which are similar to those of the MPP. This year, the schools must juxtapose the two programs in order to meet the state standards of MPP while continuing the goals of the RSEP.

The MPP will be implemented over the next

State School Enrollment Projected To Increase, Garrett's To Decrease

Maryland Office of Planning Director Ronald M. Kreitner has announced that Maryland's public school population is expected to increase 18.3 percent over the next 10 years. However, Garrett County's school population during the same period is expected to decrease by .07 percent.

According to Office of Planning projections, Maryland will have 812,390 students enrolled in kindergarten through grade 12 by the beginning of the 1999 school year. In 1989 there were 686,568 students enrolled in the state's public schools.

Garrett County's 1989 total was 5,034 and the projected figure for 1999 is 5,000.

Planners attribute the projected State growth to three factors: a continued in-migration of new residents, a greater number of births in recent years, and a trend toward more students attending public schools.

"As Maryland's economy continues to expand we can expect to continue seeing increases in the size of our public school enrollments," Kreitner said.

"But as the state grows we must keep in mind the need to direct that expansion where it will benefit all Marylanders. A step in that direction would be the use of existing state and local investment in public facilities and infrastructure," he added.

According to the projections, Howard County is expected to see the largest percentage increase in student enrollment, with an anticipated growth rate of 49.2 percent. Other jurisdictions with rapidly growing stu-

Lillian Chisholm Estate Provides $99,665 To Hospital Foundation

The Garrett County Memorial Hospital has been the beneficiary of several large estate bequests over the years. One of the most recent bequests was the estate of Lillian Chisholm. The estate provided $99,665 with the request by the late Mrs. Chisholm that the funds be used to benefit children.

Mrs. Chisholm's friends remember her as a "feisty, patriotic, and very sweet lady." Having resided along Route 135, her neighbors remember that she flew an American Flag every day and had a bell that she rang on the Fourth of July.

Lillian Chisholm's husband, Wlliam, was the last known county survivor of the Spanish-American War. Their only child, a son, died at the age of 4 while they were residing in the Philippines.

Mrs. Chisholm, in her generosity and love for children, opened her home and raised two other children.

A plaque commemorating Mrs. Chisholm's bequest is being planned for the pediatric area of the hospital. The funds have been placed under the management of the Hospital's Foundation.

"Bequests and other methods of planned giving have been a part of Garrett Memorial's history since the hospital's beginning, forty years ago. The Foundation has assembled a committee of trained professionals that can assist anyone wishing to discuss a planned gift." commented William B. Grant, Foundation chairman.

"Lillian Chisholm will always be remembered for her generosity and her love for children." concluded Grant.

Firemen's Parade, Oktoberfest To Highlight 23rd Annual Autumn Glory

The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department will open Garrett County's 23rd Annual Autumn Glory Festival by hosting a variety of events on Thursday, October 11, in downtown Oakland.

The first event on the Autumn Glory agenda will be the annual Oktoberfest meal at the Oakland Fire Hall on Third Street, featuring German-style food and drink. Advance tickets for the dinner will be on sale at noon at the fire hall, and the meal will be served from 4 p.m. until 7:30 p.m.

The Fireman's Parade at 7 p.m. will feature bands, drill teams, fire equipment, antique fire apparatus and rescue apparatus from the surrounding area. Participating departments are judged in several categories. This event invites firemen from Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and the surrounding areas to join the parade. Prior to the parade, apparatus judging will be held at the Farmers' Market parking lot on Route 219 north of Oakland from 5:30 p.m. until parade time.

Wrapping up this evening of entertainment will be the annual Oktoberfest Celebration at the fire hall immediately following the parade. The celebration includes "fun for the whole family" with German-style food, drink, and a live "Oompah" band, conducted by Maestro Manning Smith. The Fireman of the Year Award and the Training Award will be presented at this time by the Garrett County Firemen's Association. There is no admission charge. Third Street will be blocked off during the parade and Oktoberfest, allowing the crowd to spill out into the street for dancing and socializing.

For more information on this event or a free festival brochure, persons may contact Festival Headquarters, Deep Creek Lake-Garrett County Promotion Council, Courthouse, Oakland, MD 21550, telephone (301) 334-1948.

32nd Rabies Case Confirmed By GC Health Dept.

The Garrett County Health Department confirmed the 32nd rabies case in the county after examing a raccoon killed by a dog in McHenry.

The incident occurred at the Harold Kahl residence on Bumble Bee Road. The dog, who is the Kahl's pet, killed the raccoon while the family was not at home. Upon their arrival, Mrs. Kahl petted the dog, not knowing about the animal's encounter with a rabid raccoon.

After an examination, physicians determined that Mrs. Kahl would not have to undergo the post-exposure rabies treatment. The dog had been vaccinated against the disease and was given a booster. The pet will be watched for 90 days.

Garrett County Health Department Sanitarian, Tina Buckel, urged pet owners not to touch confined pets for two hours after a suspected rabies encounter. This time-span allows the virus to die if it is on the coat of the animal.

If persons need to handle their pets to confine them after an encounter, handlers should wear gloves and be extremely careful, Buckel said. After the animal is confined, it should not be handled in any way for two hours.

Persons should also immediately contact Garrett County Central Alarm or the health department if rabies (rhabdovirus) is suspected.

Ms. Buckel also stated that the health department does not handle live nuisance wild animals. She said that if persons are concerned about live animals' behavior and suspect a problem, they should contact the Department of Natural Resources rather than the health department.

The health department's final series of dog and cat rabies clinics will be held from Sept. 24 through 29. See the schedule of times and dates elsewhere in today's issue of The Republican.

Miss Grimm recently returned from competing in Atlantic City, N.J., for the title of Miss America 1991. A daughter of Francis and Rita Grimm, she is a 1987 graduate of Southern High School and a 1989 graduate of Allegany Community College, with a associate of arts degree in computer science. She is currently employed by A&A Realty/Better Homes and Gardens, but will continue her education at Frostburg State University in January 1991.

After winning the Miss Maryland title in June 1990, Kimberly moved to Bel Air to prepare for the Miss America Pageant. She won over $10,000 in scholarships. She has a full year of personal appearances, including being featured with the Miss Maryland Troupe, giving motivational speeches, and being a guest of Governor Wm. Donald Schaefer at the State House. This was Ms. Grimm's second try at the State title, after being a Top 10 finalist in the Miss Maryland pageant last year. She was a preliminary talent and overall interview awa winner at the 1990 State pageant. Kimberly has had two semesters of voice instruction from Frostburg State University and coaching from opera star Jenny L. Kelly.

The Autumn Glory Festival Grand Feature Parade is sponsored by First United National Bank and Trust and Ms. Grimm will be sponsored in the parade by First United and by Gregg's Pharmacy of Oakland.

Friday Accident Injures Two Women; Three Vehicles Involved

Two women were injured Friday as the result of a three-vehicle accident on U.S. Route 219, just south of Oakland.

Injured were Sandra J. Nesline, 42, Bittinger, and Grace A. Cole, 36, Eglon, W.Va. Both were transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital where they were treated and have since been released, according to a hospital spokesman.

According to a report filed by Tfc. P.R. Brown of the Maryland State Police, the accident occurred as Nesline was operating a 1989 Oldsmobile Calais north on U.S. Route 219.

She reportedly failed to reduce speed and her vehicle struck the rear of the 1985 Dodge Aries, operated by Cole.

Police said Cole was stopped on the highway preparing to make a left turn into Ringer's Gas Station. On impact, Cole's vehicle propelled into the path of an automobile operated by Edwin E. Miller, 47, Belle Rive, Ill.

Miller then reportedly steered his vehicle to the right to avoid a collision with the Cole vehicle. The attempt was unsuccessful, however, and the vehicles did collide.

Nesline was charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid a collision in the 4:10 p.m. mishap.

Oakland volunteer firemen were also dispatched to the scene by Garrett County Emergency Management.

A Baltimore man was injured Sunday in a three-wheeler accident.

Peter L. Kuhn, 32, was injured when the 1984 Yamaha three-wheeler he was operating on private property overturned and rolled down a hill.

Kuhn was taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Garrett Rescue Squad where he was treated and later released.

No charges were filed by Tpr. W.E. Dixon who investigated the 2:30 p.m. mishap.

Numerous charges were filed against Judy L. Hunter, 21, Friendsville, following another Sunday accident.

Hunter was reportedly east-

State Certifies GCC's Drug Prevention Plan

Garrett Community College has recently received certification from the U.S. Department of Education that is has adopted and implemented a drug prevention program for its students and employees, according to a college spokesperson.

This certification signed by Dr. Stephen Herman requires that the college distribute annually in writing to each employee and to each student the following information: standards of conduct that clearly prohibit the unlawful possession, use or distribution of illicit drugs and alcohol by students and employees on its property or as part of any of its activities; a description of the legal sanctions for the unlawful possession or distribution of illicit drugs and alcohol; a

TWO INJURED IN CRASH — A Bittinger woman and an Eglon, W.Va., woman were both injured in a three-vehicle mishap last Friday on U.S. Route 29, south of Oakland. GCC Trustees Plan Future Of College At Two-Day Retreat

The GCC Board of Trustees met recently over a two-day period to review plans for the future of the college. The board noted that GCC had made great progress over the past four years and that the time had come to look toward the future and even greater achievements.

Main topics of discussion included the board's responsibility for keeping current with main developments at GCC and in higher education and the board's role in institutional leadership, especially in strategic planning.

At the invitation of the trustees and GCC President, Dr. Steve Herman, Ms. Jacqueline Woods joined the first day of the board's session. Woods has an extensive background in higher education. She was vice president for Programs and Public Policy with the Association of Governing Boards; Director of the Washington, D.C. office of the American College Testing Program; and a program development officer with the American Association for Community and Junior Colleges. She is also the author of numerous articles on topics in higher education.

Woods administered a trustee audit that allowed the board to evaluate its performance to date. According to Woods, the audit showed that the GCC Board was doing an outstanding job and that the board was well advanced of many college boards throughout the nation.

On the second day of the workshop, the trustees focused on their role in guiding and setting GCC's strategic plans. Working with the president, the administration, the faculty and staff, the students, and the community, the board will assess GCC's strengths and opportunities and develop plans accordingly. The primary areas of board attention in the next five years will be academic success, teaching excellence, and student life.

At the conclusion of the two-day session, Chairman of the Board of Trustees Wayne Hamilton commented, "This was a workshop we have been looking forward to for a long time. We wanted to look at our role and the directions we wish to go. We've covered a lot of ground in the last two days, and we have established goals so we can do even better for GCC."

FLU CLINIC ON WHEELS — The Garrett County Health Department will be touring the county offering flu vaccinations for one month, beginning on October 2. The mobile unit, named "Health Express," will be at each location. See the schedule of the flu clinics elsewhere in today's issue. Shown above, right to left, are "Health Express" representatives Sharon Buckel, Beth Newcomb, Pauline Faucett, and Helen Heath.

GCC Trustees Meet; Discuss Various Topics

The Garrett Community College Board of Trustees met Tuesday evening to discuss a variety of topics.

Wayne Hamilton, chairman, welcomed the members present and announced that board member, Charles "Bus" Bender, is hospitalized in intensive care as the result of injuries sustained in a fall. The board wished Mr. Bender a full recovery.

TRUSTEE RETREAT

Hamilton reported on the successful two-day retreat held recently by GCC trustees. The retreat was deemed a success as it focused on goals to make the college an institution of excellence (See separate story on the retreat in today's edition of The Republican.)

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

GCC President Dr. Stephen J. Herman reported on the recent Community College President's Association meeting.

He noted that the group is looking at a new state formula for funding community colleges.

Dr. Herman said the association is seeking $25,000,000 in new money but added that the group is not optimistic at this point since the state budget is in difficult straits.

"However, the main goal of the association is to get a restructuring of the state formula," he concluded.

Dr. Herman then commented on an articulation agreement between Garrett Community College and Allegany Community College.

He said the agreement, which has been signed by both college presidents, would make it easier for GCC students to access ACC programs and vice versa.

A similar agreement with Frostburg State University is currently in the works, according to Dr. Herman.

ACE REPORT

Dean of Academic Affairs Dr. Lillian R. Mitchell reported on the Academic Council of Excellence (ACE) which is comprised on 10 volunteer staff members, with Dr. Herman as chairman.

"ACE is looking at college excellence from all perspectives," said Dr. Mitchell.

She noted that three subcommittees met over the summer months to deal with (1) motivation; (2) placement testing and exit criteria; and (3) academic standards.

ACADEMIC REPORT

Dr. Mitchell stated that she was enthusiastic about the newly-named Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology program course.

Working with Jim Allen and Kevin Dodge, Dr. Mitchell met with ACC officials recently to determine if the program would infringe on the ACC forestry program.

"All agreed it would not infringe," said Dr. Mitchell. "The State Board for Community Colleges, as well as ACC, are supportive of the title change and they do not foresee any problems."

Dr. Mitchell also reported that the college is in the process of developing an agreement of articulation with the Garrett County Board of Education regarding office technology programs.

She said Kenneth Bittinger, director of vocational education for the county school system, is eager to work with her to obtain up to a $5,000 grant to implement a Department of Vocational and Technology Education.

The purpose of the agreement would be to encourage the natural flow for students into pre-requisite courses in the field.

"There would be no repetition of high school and college courses," said Dr. Mitchell.

Dean Mitchell then reported on the "College and Me" program.

The three-phase program was begun last year when county fifth-graders took advantage of the mini-courses at the college. Phase II this year will involve present sixth-graders.

Dr. Mitchell also announced that Michael Will had resigned as assistant professor for business and accounting courses.

She said that the college had employed "some fine adjunct instructors for the fall semester to fill the void."

She added, however, that it was important to fill the position as soon as possible for a full-time instructor. The search will begin shortly.

GOVERNANCE CHARTER

The Board of Trustees approved and adopted a new governance charter Tuesday night.

Dr. Herman noted that the revised charter is more easily understood with the wide scope of services and staff the college now employs.

ENROLLMENT FIGURES

As of Tuesday, GCC enrollment figures showed 640 students, compared to 634 at this time last year.

In fulltime equivalency (FTEs), that equates to 195.8 this year, compared to 199.16 last year.

"Enrollments are not all in and there will be some 'no shows,' but we are running about even with last year's enrollment figures," said Dr. Mitchell.

She added that 39 courses are filled and that only five had to be cancelled.

"That represents a significant improvement from the past," said Mitchell.

FINANCIAL REPORT

GCC Comptroller John Culp projected a "good cash flow throughout the year."

He attributed the sound fiscal position to improved planning and guaranteed investments.

Culp said that 15 percent of the budget has been expended which equates to 1.67 percent below even spending. He noted an increase in spending in instructional areas.

"With all this excellence comes a price tag," he joked.

The next board meeting is slated for October 16 at 8 p.m.

Thefts In County Investigated By State Police

The Maryland State Police, McHenry Barrack, is currently investigating the report of two cases of theft in the county.

William C. Maclane told police that someone had taken a Marlin rifle from his vehicle parked along Maple Street in Friendsville on Thursday, September 13 between 9 and 10 p.m.

Tfc. J.E. Foley is investigating.

Joann L. Shank reported that someone had broken the right windows from her parked vehicle and removed her AM/FM radio between Saturday, September 15, at 6:30 p.m. and Sunday, September 16, at 4 p.m.

Tpr. G.S. Becker is investigating.

P.O.W./M.I.A. Day Proclaimed Friday

National P.O.W./M.I.A. Recognition Day has been proclaimed for this Friday, September 21, a day when the members of V.F.W. Post 10077 in Deer Park urge all citizens to take a moment to remember all of those soldiers still listed as prisoners of war or missing in action.

According to national statistics, the total number of Americans listed as missing in action from both world wars, the Korean and Vietnam wars is 92,693.

Local VFW members also ask persons to remember the families of these missing Americans on Friday.

Local Man Pleads Guilty To Child Abuse

An Oakland man's guilty plea to child abuse was accepted by Judge Fred A. Thayer in the Garrett County Circuit Court on September 13.

Larry G. Streets, 22, originally pleaded "not guilty" to the charge, which stemmed from a March 21 incident involving a 7-month-old female. According to the case document, Streets was babysitting the child when he shook her violently to stop her from crying. When the baby's mother returned, she immediately detected a problem and took the child to the hospital.

A spokesperson from Ruby Memorial Hospital, Morgantown, W.Va., reported that the baby was suffering from "shaken baby syndrome," a condition brought on by being shaken hard enough to cause hemorrhaging in the eye, brain, and spinal cord area.

Judge Thayer ordered a presentence investigation in the case, and revoked the defendant's bail.

Defense attorney for Streets was James P. Donahue.

A mistrial was declared by the court in a sex offense case when the jury could not reach a verdict after a two-day trial.

Bail was continued for Gary L. Durst, 38, Accident, who is accused of several sex offenses, child abuse, and assault and battery against a 9-year-old female.

The incidents allegedly occurred over six months, beginning in June of 1989.

Attorney Robert Watson defended Durst.

Benjamin B. Preston, Jr., 20, Frostburg, was sentenced to one year in the Garrett County Jail on the charge of conspiracy to distribute marijuana.

A Pre-sentence investigation had been ordered by Judge Thayer earlier this year for Preston, who was charged after allegedly selling a quantity of marijuana to an undercover policeman on U.S. Rt. 40 in October 1989.

Judge Thayer suspended all but time served of the sentence, and ordered two years of supervised probation for Preston.

Other counts of distribution and possession of marijuana were not prosecuted.

Trailer Destroyed By Fire; Crellin House Damaged

Local fire departments have been busy the past week responding to a variety of incidents, the most serious being a fire in Friendsville on Wednesday that destroyed a mobile home.

Friendsville and Accident volunteer fire fighters were called to the residence of Ralph Sines at 10:37 a.m. and found the structure fully involved in flames upon their arrival. They were able to salvage some items from the trailer and there were no injuries reported.

Also responding to the scene were the air cascade vehicle, currently being housed at Oakland VFD, and the Northern Rescue Squad. The incident is under investigation by Guy Carola, deputy state fire marshal for Garrett and Allegany counties.

Further details of the blaze were unavailable at presstime.

Among several calls answered by the Oakland VFD during the week was a reported structure fire on Main Street in Crellin on Monday afternoon.

Thanks to quick action by a neighbor, the two-story wood frame house owned by Mabel Sines was saved, according to Bob Rudy, Oakland fire chief.

Rudy said the fire started in the kitchen of the house, probably as a result of an overheated coffee maker, and the flames spread throughout the kitchen. A neighbor of Mrs. Sines saw the fire and was able to extinguish it with a garden hose. There was considerable smoke damage throughout the remainder of the house.

Also called to the 4:24 p.m. incident was the Terra Alta VFD and the Southern Rescue Squad. Fire personnel remained on the scene until 5:05. There were no injuries.

Flu fires, vehicle fires, and automobile wrecks accounted for most of the other calls received this week by local fire departments.

Sheriff's Office Notes Arrests

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office noted various arrests this week including three for violators of probation and one for DWI.

David W. Troshak, 32, Winter Garden, Fla., was recently served a warrant for violation of probation. Troshak's original charges were battery, disorderly conduct, and resisting arrest.

The warrant was served by Det. Kelly.

A bench warrant was issued for Keith A. House, 23, Friendsville. House was also charged for violation of probation. According to the police, original charges against him were DWI and DUI.

A violation of probation charge was brought against William J. Burns, 24, Cumberland. Burns was arrested in Allegany County and transported back for an appearance before Judge Thayer. The probation was ordered on the original charge of third-degree sex offense.

Mike Maranich, 70, Grantsville, was arrested for DWI on Sept. 12. Dep. J. Murphy made the arrest in Grantsville at 8:30 p.m., according to the report.

Maranich was released on his own recognizance shortly after the arrest.

A criminal summons was issued for Fern E. Fitzpatrick, 43, Oakland, after she reportedly pointed a shotgun at a 15-year-old female during a dispute between Fitzpatrick and the mother of the juvenile.

Fitzpatrick was charged with two counts of assault, one count of battery, and two counts of reckless endangerment.

Arthur E. Fazenbaker, 56, was served a criminal summons after the same incident. According to the report, the 15-year-old's mother had gone to Fazenbaker's residence to retrieve her car which was parked there. Fazenbaker allegedly would not allow her to take the vehicle, at which time the dispute ensued, and she left the property.

Fazenbaker was charged with car theft.

Robert L. Stark, 24, Deer Park, was arrested on the strength of two bench warrants for failure to pay district court costs totaling $550. Original charges against Stark were DWI and driving an uninsured vehicle.

Theft, D.O.P Noted

James McCartney of the Loyal Order of Moose, Oakland Lodge 292, reported the theft of a red Lawn Chief push mower from the lodge on the night of Sept. 15.

McCartney told police that the mower had been relocated from the basement of the building, which is located on Rt. 39, to the lawn in order to make room for a scheduled dance. When the dance ended, McCartney discovered that the mower was missing.

The value of the mower is $200.

In another case, Jessie L. Bowser, Friendsville, reported to the Sheriff's office her suspicion that someone tried to pry open her front door on Sept. 10 between 7 and 10 p.m.

Damage done to the door was approximately $200. Investigations into both cases are continuing.

Clarification

In last week's edition of The Republican, it was reported that Joseph Dolan, 70, Accident, had been arrested for breaking and entering the house of Alice Long, Accident. It should be noted that Mrs. Long was not the individual who pressed the charges against Dolan.

Oakland Police Probing Thefts In Oakland

The Oakland City Police are currently investigating two thefts at the same location.

The theft of a Commodore Computer system and other components from McLaughlin Enterprises on Oak Street in Oakland was reported on Sunday.

Pfc. Shawn Groves said the suspect(s) apparently forced open the front door to gain entry.

Loss is valued at $1,500.

Chief John K. Sines then reported that speakers, 25 cassettes and a brief case were taken from a parked vehicle outside the same establishment on Monday evening.

DO YOU HAVE FEEDBACK OR WHISTLING WITH YOUR HEARING AID?
ARE YOU CONTINUALLY ADJUSTING THE VOLUME?

This is a common complaint that we hear from many hearing aid users. With the new Cleartone hearing aids you will not have feedback once the hearing aid is completely in your ear. You will not have to continually adjust the volume control, because the hearing aid will automatically reduce the loud noises for you.

We have found that it even helps those who have Tinnitus "ringing ears".

Too Complacent? . . .

An otherwise boring general election ballot for 1990 suddenly became far more interesting this week with the announcement that at least two and maybe more persons will run as write-in candidates. County Commissioner Ernie Gregg, who was edged out by Brenda Butscher in the primary, and Russell Sines, who lost by a relatively small margin to incumbent Elwood Groves, have already filed as write-in candidates.

No one has ever won a major county or state office in Maryland via a write-in campaign; however, according to the Garrett County Board of Election Supervisors, at least five Maryland counties will have write-in candidates on the November ballot. Most of them involve incumbent officials who, like Gregg, lost by slim margins in the primary. This may be the year that a few of these candidates will make history by being elected.

From this situation one can draw a number of conclusions. It seems that too many incumbents were complacent about their positions and did not hit the campaign trail as they should have. Even Commissioner Gregg admitted that complacency, both by him and his supporters, was a factor in his defeat.

It also seems to indicate that those citizens who bothered to vote are dissatisfied with the status quo and believe it is time for a change. We wonder if this is the year that some of the long-time incumbents in Congress are also upset in their bids for one more term.

The argument over whether or not all elected officials should be limited to a specific number of terms in office is also quite active right now. On the one hand, it seems that as long as an elected official continues to effectively serve his constituency, then the voters should have the right to continue to put him or her back into office. That's the American way.

On the other hand, we believe we have a serious problem in Congress, where several incumbents have become legends and are returned to office year after year, regardless of their effectiveness. Again, it is true that the only way they are returned to office is by the voters, but the power of incumbency is mighty in terms of influence, control, and money. They become so entrenched that it is almost impossible to remove them, despite the calibre of their opponent and regardless of their own record in Congress. Much of the blame can also be directed toward the voters, who do not take the time to check their elected officials' performance in office.

We limit the president of the United States to two terms in office. Yet we allow Congressmen to go for as many terms as they wish, even if they reach the point where they can't find their own way to the bathroom.

Perhaps a competency test is the answer.

Gov. Schaefer Speaks Out

FAST FOOD AND GOOD GOVERNMENT
by Governor William Donald Schaefer

I admit it. I love fried chicken. I love hamburgers. I even love those breakfast biscuits with eggs and cheese and sausage. No question about it. I am a fast food fanatic.

While this diet may not be good for my waistline, it has served me very well indeed during my years in public life. In some ways you might say I owe some of my success in politics to my penchant for fast food.

Some politicians rely on polls. Others devise sophisticated surveys and extensive phone campaigns. My approach is much simpler — and more nourishing. When I want a reliable gauge of public opinion and citizen interest, I visit the nearest fast food outlet.

It is not as strange as it sounds. Spend an hour at the local McDonald's, Roy Rogers, or Hardee's and you encounter a very real cross section of the people in our state. Grandmothers, teenagers, plumbers, and stockbrokers all find their way to the counter.

Over the years as I have become better known, my fellow patrons have been more willing to seek me out and tell me what they think. They are always a little reluctant to approach me at first but before long, someone comes over and asks, "Are you really the governor?" And since I am, we start a conversation.

Sometimes the discussion is very personal. They like — or don't like — something I am doing. Other times they want to talk about what is going on in the community around them. Maybe they need a new road or they are concerned about a crowded school building. Recently there has been a lot of talk about drugs and crime. But no matter the topic, I always feel I have learned something that helps me to do my job better.

I remember a stop we made at a fast food restaurant very early one morning in Prince George's County. I went up to the counter and ordered a cup of coffee and sat in the nearest booth. Within a few minutes, an older couple came over and began to talk. We talked for almost half an hour about their grandchildren, their hopes for retirement, their concerns about taxes and affordable housing.

It was not an extraordinary conversation. Probably the same kind of conversation many of you have with your neighbor or with a friend at the supermarket. But for me it was a significant reminder of just what is important to the people of our state. And a reminder of what is important to me as governor.

So the next time you visit the corner deli or the hamburger place in the mall, take a look around. And if you see a familiar face, come up and say hello. I would like to meet you.

In the meantime, write to me, Governor William Donald Schaefer, The State House, Annapolis, MD 21401.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Commissioner Ernie Gregg's recent statements on the radio and through the local newspapers are disturbing to say the least. Mr. Gregg's statements are an insult to the voters and particularly to candidate Butscher, whom he accuses of "mudslinging" and stealing the election. I think Mr. Gregg's allegation that the election was stolen by Brenda Butscher is as moronic as his assertion that the county was "in a state of shock" following the announcement of the election results. Everyone who wanted to cast their vote had a perfect opportunity to do so. The issues were clear and the weather was perfect for a trip to the polls. Mr. Gregg is evidently basing his decision to file as a write-in candidate on his after-thoughts about how he should have conducted his campaign and on what the voters response would have been had he done so.

In closing, I think Mr. Gregg should accept his own tidbit of wisdom that "we all have to be gracious whether you win or lose" and accept the fact that he lost. Although the process allows Mr. Gregg to file and run as a write-in, I think it is demeaning to the electoral process and is a blatant attempt to undermine the integrity of the very process by which he was elected to his three terms of office.

Edward Fitzwater
Mt. Lake Park

To the Editor:

(An open letter to Ernie Gregg, Garrett County Commissioner).

Mr. Gregg, I strongly resent your suggestion in the Cumberland Times/News that my vote for Brenda Butscher was a misguided one; "stolen," I believe was your word. In truth, it hit the Bull's Eye dead center, creating the desired effect of retiring your candidacy . . . at least as a Republican.

Wake up and smell the roses Mr. Gregg, your "experienced leadership" has resulted in a "bad experience" for the residents of Garrett County. We don't like "closed government" and "political favoritism" . . . and least of all, we don't like living in a county so tightly controlled by a small group of people that the majority are easily and consistently denied their rights; at times, even basic rights. Where an explosion of growth, new money and people (independent of County Government, unless Mr. Gregg intends taking credit for THE LAKE being where it is) seems only to benefit the insiders and the wealthy, while the rest of us sadly watch our children forced to leave the county in order to find a decent paying job, and our taxes and cost of living here continue to escalate.

And speaking of "stolen" elections, you forgot to mention your most vocal champion "of the moment," your ex-opponent, Mr. "Chameleon" Brodak, who is presently beating his breast and proclaiming his intention to spend whatever it takes to insure your re-election . . . surprise! Surprise! Even the most unsophisticated voter knows, as a general rule, the best way to insure an incumbent's re-election is to split the opposition's vote. Having failed there, Mr. Brodak has now come out of Mr. Gregg's closet. We'll let the voters decide in November who put him in there in the first place, and who really tried to steal an election.

By the way, Mr. Gregg, if you lose again in November, will you then threaten to take your ball and bat and go home? Promise?

Ronald R. Rowan
Shallmar, MD

Letter to Editor:

Did you lose your vote in the recent Primary Election? Did you realize that in Maryland's closed-primary system, voters that registered as "undeclared" cannot vote on candidates, and unless there are questions on the ballot, cannot vote at all in the Primary Election.

Now is the time to change your registration if you are not registered in a party. Do it while you are thinking about it!

Registration can be changed at the Supervisors of Elections office on the upper level of the Courthouse Office Building, Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m., September 24 through October 8, and 8:30 a.m.-9:00 p.m. October 9. After the General Election, party affiliation may be changed Monday through Friday 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. from November 23 on.

Don't lose your vote next time!

Sincerely,
The LWV of Garrett County

To the Editor:

This letter is short and quicky to the point — our country is in a very serious economic situation!

Can you name one good thing that the American labor unions have done for the benefit of our country in the past 20 years? Can any of your staff or readers answer that question?

Most will quickly say, "sure." "Then uh — uh — uh —." One newspaper editor to whom I asked that question said, "Give me a couple weeks." That was over a year ago. No answer yet!

Even editors whom I have contacted of major newspapers and major news magazines cannot, or prefer not, to answer that question. Why? Is it "union phobia?" If not, why?

Here are some of the not so beneficial things that the American labor unions have done during this past 20 years, 1970-1990:

1. Reduced the USA from the most productive creditor nation in the whole wide world, down to a low productivity debtor nation of sales and service for products made in and imported from foreign countries. It is now rare to find products marked, "Made in the USA."
2. Increased consumer prices 310%.
3. Increased industrial wages 320%.
4. Increased Social Security payments 350%.
5. Increased National Debt 874%.
6. Increased interest on the National Debt 1260%.
7. Increased federal deficit 7860%.
8. Increased congressional salaries 120%.
9. Increased heating oil prices 590%.

Most of the above increases are tied directly or indirectly to the increases in the CPI, which was 100.0 in 1967. The new CPI set at 100.0 in 1982, has no relation to the above data.

If no one can identify at least one good thing that the American labor unions have done for the benefit of our country in the past 20 years, that would certainly reflect adversely on the integrity of the American Labor Unions.

The American Labor Union monopoly is not solely responsible for our economic decline in these past 20 years.

Greedy personal financiers, and greedy banks, S&Ls, etc, and stock market gamblers are not without blame. Monoply prone industries and businesses are somewhat held in check by the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, but are not completely free of blame.

Is there any cure for "unionitis" and these other factors? Union COLAs got us into this economic dilemma, by increasing consumer product prices 217.4% in 9 years, 1972-1981. That put American made products off home and foreign markets, and put many millions of American workers out of creative productive jobs.

The Middle East situation is complicating the World's economic problems, including our own.

Hopefully, some stroke of nature, a severe storm, an earthquake, or a volcanic eruption, will get Saddam Hussein out of the way before it is too late.

Quick action by President Bush, with Congress and the news media free of union domination, and with full cooperation of all loyal American citizens, we might avoid the Great Depression of 1990-1991, and regain our former status as the most productive creditor nation in the world, able and willing to aid other nations as needed.

Hopefully,

To the Editor:

My letter was delayed a week in your paper last week. By that time Mr. Paul Durham, Lake Manager, had renewed the prospect of our lake property dock for which we are very grateful!

That, however, does not help our neighbors who have been deprived of their docks for three years, who have had docks for 25 years, and one longer, even before our property! We do not understand actions such as these from the DNR, nor anyone who is in charge of any aspect of this "debacle."

Thanking you,
Mrs. Louise V. Harvey

To the Editor:

Last week I received a postcard in the mail, and to the person or persons who sent it, you forgot to sign it, or were you so busy writing the other one you sent that you just didn't have the time to sign either one of them, or maybe you were ashamed to sign them? Only God knows who you are. May he forgive you — I do!

Praying for you

AFBF Calls For Two-Year Federal Spending Freeze

Citing President Bush's call for fairness in any deficit reduction package, the American Farm Bureau Federation has called for a two-year freeze in all federal spending, including farm programs.

"We feel that an across-the-board spending freeze at the department level is the only fair way to reduce the deficit without disproportionally impacting sectors of the budget," said AFBF President Dean Kleckner. "Such a freeze is needed until discipline and responsibility are added to the congressional budgeting process."

Kleckner said the fairest way to balance the federal budget is to freeze all its spending categories at the current 1990 levels. This will keep revenue flowing into the treasury while spreading the burden among all federal programs.

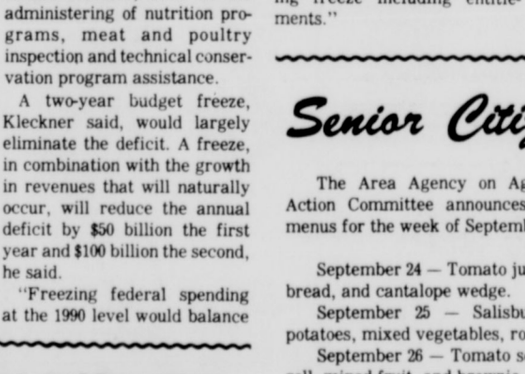

Kleckner said the automatic cuts required under the Gram-Rudmann-Hollings balanced budget law would have far worse effects than a two-year budget freeze. Farmers, he said, would lose $2.8 billion in direct and indirect payments under the 31.9 percent automatic cuts. Both farmers and consumers would be denied essential services, such as the administering of nutrition programs, meat and poultry inspection and technical conservation program assistance.

A two-year budget freeze, Kleckner said, would largely eliminate the deficit. A freeze, in combination with the growth in revenues that will naturally occur, will reduce the annual deficit by $50 billion the first year and $100 billion the second, he said.

"Freezing federal spending at the 1990 level would balance the federal budget in two or three years and would spare us the unfair, selective cuts under sequestration," Kleckner said.

Kleckner has sent telegrams to President Bush and the budget summit negotiators, urging them to reject tax increases and adopt a budget freeze.

"Farm Bureau members, who will flock to the polls in November, do not favor tax increases," Kleckner said. "Instead, they believe in a spending freeze including entitlements."

The Mind Wanders

They Made Me Laugh
by Pam Ashby

It was with much trepidation that I entered the work force at Garrett County Memorial Hospital as a nursing assistant some 20 months ago.

I had laid down my pen and put the dust cover on my typewriter to pursue a nursing career. I was certain God wanted me to dedicate my life to helping others.

As a reporter, I felt I had become too hardened to life — a life full of political scheming, crime and punishment, ill-prepared expansion and development of the county.

I never realized just how tough life really was until I joined the ranks of health care personnel. Never before had I experienced the physical, mental and spiritual weariness I had felt so many times at the hospital. If I learned nothing else, I learned the destiny of life and the eventuality of the end of life — not to mention the heaven and hell in between.

I digress. I have traded my "whites" and my rubber gloves for my pen once more, but I write now with a new perspective on life.

My friends at the hospital must be commended for their part in my growth as a human being.

I will never forget the first time I found a dead person in her hospital bed. I was in a state of shock and disbelief. I had talked with the little old lady just 10 minutes before. Two other very understanding assistants walked me through the procedure. They they let me cry and fall apart when it was all over. In no time at all they had me laughing again. When I expressed my guilt about laughing, they said simply, "Life goes on."

"But I felt as if we should have all been praying for her," I protested.

"We all were," they said.

I learned an important lesson that night. In the midst of all the business of life-saving techniques, there is always time for a silent prayer.

In time, I was finally granted my wish to enter the world of obstetrics. I was flying high with thoughts of rocking sweet-smelling babies to sleep while happy mothers slept. It wasn't long 'till reality set in.

Reality reared its ugly head when a baby was born lifeless; when a mother didn't want her baby; when a mere child was having a baby herself; when I couldn't anticipate the needs of a doctor or nurse.

But they, too, made me laugh. When they sensed I wasn't coping they told me a funny story. When they saw my frustration with myself, they encouraged me. When they sensed my sorrow, they cried with me. When they witnessed my insecurity, they suddenly remembered the silly mistakes they had made.

Thank you, my dear friends. You've enriched my life more than you'll ever know. And my "pen and pencil" are more important to me now than they ever were. Perhaps my words will give as much comfort as your healing skills give others.

Maryland EMS — Saving Lives By Design

EMS WEEK OBSERVED — Emergency Medical Services Week was officially proclaimed for the week of September 16-22 by the Board of Garrett County Commissioners recently. In their proclamation, the commissioners recognized the Maryland EMS system as a national and international model in the expert delivery of rapid and skilled care to seriously ill and injured persons. They commended the thousands of individuals working as 911 dispatchers, first responders, emergency medical technicians, paramedics, MSP Medevac pilots, nurses, physicians, and therapists who serve thousands in need of emergency care — and who do it with skill, professionalism, and compassion. The commissioners said it was important that all citizens recognize and applaud the vital work of these EMS providers. On hand for the proclamation signing held at Garrett County Memorial Hospital were, left to right, Linda Beachy CRT, NGCRS, EMS Council; Rayma Weeks, EMT, SGCRS president, EMS Council; Ben Rosenthal, hospital administrator; Commissioner Ernest Gregg Jr.; Charlotte Bock, R.N., nursing administrator; Fran Pope, CRT, Region I council president, SGCRS; and Commissioner John G. Braskey.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS represent only one situation in which emergency fire and rescue personnel spring to action. The local rescue squads also respond to hundreds of incidents of illness and injury in the home and the workplace. The photo above, which demonstrates care-rendering by both rescue and fire volunteers, as well as law enforcement officials, was taken last Friday along U.S. Route 219 south of Oakland.

What would you do if you were faced with a life-threatening emergency? Would you panic, or would you take charge and be able to get help?

Your best chance of getting appropriate help is to call 911 and set Maryland's Emergency Medical Services system in motion.

This week, September 16-22, is Emergency Medical Services Week, a nationally designated week geared to increase public awareness of the EMS system and provide the knowledge to prevent injuries. It is also a time to recognize the volunteers and professionals who treat medical emergencies.

"Maryland EMS — A System Saving Lives by Design," Maryland's theme for the week, focuses on the team that makes the system work, from dispatchers to prehospital care providers and emergency department personnel.

"The goal of EMS is to return a productive individual back into the work force," said Bill Hardy, EMS prehospital care coordinator for Garrett and Allegany counties.

The key to saving lives in an emergency is cooperation and coordination between all phases of Emergency Medical Services.

"The design of Maryland's EMS program is the chain of life," said Dave Ramsey, regional coordinator in Garrett and Allegany counties for the Maryland Institute for Emergency Medical Services Systems (MIEMSS). "It has to be designed or it won't work." The chain of life Ramsey referred to is the chain of human and physical resources which makes up the EMS system.

"I think the design of the Maryland system as far as its training program and statewide emphasis on trauma centers is superior," Hardy said. "I don't think there's another state that can match us in that aspect."

Maryland's system is not just a hodgepodge of people and equipment thrown together. It is designed to provide emergency care to injured and ill individuals as quickly and as effectively as possible. "Maryland has been cited as the pioneer in prehospital care," said Jeff Hinebaugh, captain of Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad.

MIEMSS was founded in 1973 as the first statewide EMS system in the country.

The EMS chain of life begins with the person who either witnesses the emergency or reaches the scene first. Whether or not that person is medically trained, he or she is responsible for setting the EMS system in motion by dialing 911 and giving important information including incident location and type of emergency. Without that initial call, the EMS system could not work.

The next link is the 911 dispatcher who alerts the appropriate ambulance company, as well as a rescue truck, police and fire apparatus if required. The most obvious link is the trained ambulance crew, which arrives equipped to give the injured or ill person the best possible chance to survive.

From this point several variables enter into the decision of where and how to transport the patient. The patient will either be taken to the hospital by ambulance or by the Maryland State Police Med-Evac helicopter based in Cumberland. The helicopter is currently available from 7 a.m. to 3 a.m., and speeds up transports, traveling up to 201 miles an hour.

The next link in the chain of life is the hospital staff, first in the emergency department, and then in other areas of the hospital once the patient is stabilized. Depending on what type of injuries the patient has, the chain may lengthen to include specialty hospitals such as a burn center or a trauma center and a rehabilitation hospital.

As in any chain, the EMS system is only as strong as its links. If any link does not hold up and do its part, the system fails. According to Ramsey, Maryland's EMS system is strong because there are no weak links.

The only major problem the Maryland EMS system faces is providing daytime ambulance coverage, and Garrett County is no exception. Because of changes in society which have created more and more two-income households, there are less trained EMS personnel available during the day. "Many other jurisdictions have gone to paid coverage during the day," Ramsey said.

In Garrett County the first EMS personnel an injured person will see are volunteers. They are men and women from the community who have been trained to provide medical care and transportation as either Emergency Medical Technicians, Cardiac Rescue Technicians, or Emergency Medical Technician-Paramedics. (See box for clarification of training levels.)

"Volunteer EMTs, CRTs, and EMT-Ps provide the same emergency care as professional crews," said Bill Shomo, EMT and second lieutenant of Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad, "with an added sense of pride in knowing that they are helping friends and neighbors where paid personnel are not available."

Some volunteers, such as Hinebaugh, see the EMS system at work from several different viewpoints. As well as being a rescue squad captain, he is an EMT-P and acting charge nurse of the Emergency Room at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

"What keeps me involved in the EMS system is the gratification I get from being out there helping people in the community," Hinebaugh said. But even the satisfaction of helping others may not be sufficient to draw enough people to keep an all volunteer system functioning as the county population increases.

"I think ultimately we will have to consider paid services," Ramsey said, "especially if we're talking about CRTs and EMT-Ps, but I don't know how our tax base can support it."

The rescue squads in the area are actively seeking new members, especially anyone who could provide daytime coverage. "The people who are in there now are doing so much," Ramsey said, "it's hard on them. We need the help."

In Garrett County during 1989 the rescue squads responded to a combined total of 2033 calls.

"There are few things as rewarding or as satisfying in terms of immediate return as providing EMS care," Ramsey said. "It's one of the best things someone can do for the community."

"I would encourage anyone interested in this field to contact their local rescue squad for information about joining the organization," Shomo said. Anyone interested in joining a rescue squad in Garrett County may call one of the following numbers: Northern Rescue Squad, 746-8500, week nights between 6 and 11 p.m.; Southern Rescue Squad, 334-3000, daily between 6 and 11 p.m.; or MIEMSS regional office, 895-5934 or 746-8636.

You could be the link needed to help save someone's life.

Training Levels

Emergency Medical Technicians (EMTs) provide basic life support: patient assessment, oxygen administration, suctioning, lifting and moving patients, extrication, assisting childbirth, fracture stabilization and emergency care for bleeding, shock, heat and cold emergencies and burns. Training consists of 110 hours of classroom and skills instruction. Garrett County has 210 EMTs.

Cardiac Rescue Technicians (CRTs) receive at least 160 hours of training beyond the EMT level. EMTs selected by their companies participate in the CRT training program, learning advanced life support skills such as heart monitoring, intravenous therapy, defibrillation and administration of some medications. Garrett County has 25 CRTs.

Emergency Medical Technician-Paramedics (EMT-Ps) provide the highest level of prehospital care in Maryland. EMT-Ps received more in-depth training in medical and trauma emergencies, administer a greater variety of drugs and perform endotracheal intubation. The training program covers 300 hours of instruction beyond the EMT level. Garrett County has 7 EMT-Ps.

To maintain certification at each level of training, persons must remain active in their ambulance service and attend continuing education sessions and recertification classes. CRTs and EMT-Ps must recertify every year, and EMTs every three years.

Pentaura Quintet To Perform At WVU

The Pentaura Quintet will return to West Virginia University, Morgantown, to perform in the Creative Arts Center Choral Recital Hall Sept. 27 at 8:15 p.m.

The performance, one of four special concerts presented around the state, is sponsored by Atlantic Financial of W.Va. There is no admission charge. The group performed last January at the CAC under the same arrangement.

"Pentaura" is a Greek word meaning "five winds" — a fitting name for five musicians performing on wind instruments.

The group includes: Ellen Beal, flute; Lorraine Dorsey, oboe; Robert Turizziani, clarinet; Marsha Palmer, horn; and Klif Hodgkin, bassoon. Quintet musicians are also members of the West Virginia Symphony in Charleston.

West Virginia University Division of Music Faculty member John Weigand, clarinet, will join the Quintet on Poulenc's "Sonata for Two clarinets" and Leos Janacek's "Mladi (Youth)."

Beal says the program will also include Reicha's lyric "Quintet in B-flat Major" and Irving Fine's energetic "Partita."

Since their debut in May of 1987, Quintet members have performed as artists-in-residence at "The Festival" in Sandpoint, Idaho, and in Benjamin Britten's chamber opera "Albert Herring" at the Banff Centre in Alberta, Canada. They have coached with artists Sol Schoenbach, Gunther Schuller and other international musicians. Excerpts from one of their concerts were broadcast on National Public Radio's music program, "Performance Today." They made their Washington, D.C., debut in the fall of 1989.

Byron Asks Defense Secretary To Authorize Hazard Pay For Troops

In a letter to Defense Secretary Richard Cheney, Rep. Beverly Byron (D-MD) said she saw no difference between the current situation in the Persian Gulf and the threat U.S. troops faced during the 1988 reflagging of Kuwaiti tankers, and asked the secretary of authorize imminent danger pay immediately.

Imminent danger pay can be authorized at the discretion of the defense secretary and would amount to an additional $110 per month for personnel deployed as part of Operation Desert Shield.

Byron's request comes after her return from Saudi Arabia as part of a 22-member congressional delegation sent by the House leadership over the Labor Day weekend to observe the airlift of U.S. armed forces to the Persian Gulf region.

In her letter to Cheney, Byron said she thought that, if anything, the Navy's role in enforcing the embargo against Iraq is more dangerous than the reflagging mission of 1988 during which U.S. servicemen were killed when an Iraqi fired Exocet missile struck the USS Stark. "In short," Byron's letter read, "I believe that we have underestimated and failed to respond to the toll that the current threat in the Persian Gulf exacts from our people."

Bloodmobile To Visit Grantsville

The Garrett County Chapter of the American Red Cross is sponsoring a bloodmobile on Monday, Sept. 24, from 12:30 to 6:30 p.m. at the Grantsville Volunteer Fire Hall.

Over 3,000 units of blood are collected in the Johnstown Region in one week to meet the needs of residents and patients hospitalized in its 64-participating hospitals. "Giving blood is safe and easy. The process includes a mini-physical to protect you and the prospective recipient and it only takes about 45 minutes of your time to give someone else a lifetime," said a spokesperson from the American Red Cross.

Volunteer blood donors contribute 98 percent of the blood and blood components transfused in the United States, and to meet the demand of blood products, 30,000 donors are needed daily.

Each person gives one unit, approximately one pint, which can be restored by the body in two to four weeks. According to the American Red Cross spokesperson, "You can save up to four lives with your donation, so give another chance. Give blood."

Bloodmobile Visit Collects 31 Pints

The Red Cross bloodmobile collected 31 pints of blood at the September 7 visit to Friendsville, according to Esther Benedict, chairman.

Thirty-six donors presented themselves, three of whom were first-time donors. Five were deferred for various reasons.

Giving their eighth pint of blood and thus becoming one-gallon donors were Mary Jane Fike and Peggy Bowser.

Volunteers assisting with the visit were Kathy Swartzentruber, Sophie Benedict, Mary Teets, Kay Perry, R.N., and Esther Benedict, R.N.

Local Physicians Pass Geriatric Medicine Exam

Two local physicians, Dr. Robert M. Coughlin and Dr. Donald R. Richter, have recently successfully completed the American Board of Family Practice Geriatric Medicine Examination. They have been awarded a Certificate of Added Qualifications in Geriatric Medicine for 1990-2000. Both Dr. Coughlin And Dr. Richter are on staff at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Geriatric medicine is the type of health care provided for all aspects of the aging process and its consequences. The changes that occur with the normal process of aging require supportive care and services to help prevent disease and maintain the older adult's ability to function.

Dr. Coughlin joined the staff at Garrett Memorial in 1986. He received a B.S. degree in pharmacy from the University of Connecticut and recieved his medical training at the University of Vermont, College of Medicine in Burlington, Ver. He completed his family practice residency at the University of Wisconsin's Wausau Family Practive Program. He is a board certified family practitioner and is certified in advanced cardiac life support. Currently practicing as a solo family physician in Eglon, W.Va., Dr. Coughlin also provides services as an emergency room physician at Garrett Memorial and provides services to inmates at the Garrett County jail. He was recently elected vice president of the medical staff at Garrett Memorial.

Dr. Richter has practiced in the Oakland area since 1985. He attended the Johns Hopkins University where he earned an undergraduate degree in biology. He graduated from the University of Maryland School of Medicine and completed his residency in family practice at Franklin Square Hospital in Baltimore. He is board certified in family practice and opened his solo practice earlier this year. He was recently elected secretary of the medical staff at Garrett Memorial.

Student Record Policy Noted By Board Of Ed.

The Garrett County Board of Education is required by its own policy and by Federal and State Law to annually notify eligible students and parents who have children attending public school of the policy regulating the handling of student records and the information contained within them.

The provisions of this policy are intended to preserve the right of students and parents to have full access to all official records about the students which are maintained by the Garrett County Public Schools; to have removed from these records any information about the student which is determined to be inaccurate or misleading; to enjoy confidentiality and privacy in regard to the disclosure of information contained in those records to outside agencies; and to provide for efficient student records management.

Individual pupil records maintained by teachers or other school personnel under the provisions of this policy are to be confidential, and access to such records may be granted to professionals who are directly involved with the educational process of the individual student in a teaching, guidance/counseling, or consulting situation.

Individual student records, with the exception of such records as are designated as permanent, and with such other exceptions as provided by the law, should be destroyed when they are no longer able to serve professionals who are directly involved with the educational process of the individual student in a teaching, guidance/counseling, or consulting situation.

Institutions of elementary and secondary education of the Board of Education of Garrett County shall not permit access to, or release of education records of students, or personally identifiable information contained therein (other than directory information), without the written consent of the parents of the eligible student.

Education institutions of Garrett County, however, shall make the cumulative records of a student available to officials of other elementary or secondary schools or another school system in which the student seeks or intends to enroll. The institution of elementary and secondary education of the Board of Education of Garrett County will forward without consent cumulative records on request to a school in which a student seeks or intends to enroll.

Directory information means the student's name, address, telephone number, date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of members of athletic teams, dates of attendance, degrees and awards received, the most recent school attended by the student, and other similar information. Directory information may be made public without the consent of parents or eligible students.

The policy goes on to spell out the types of data in a pupil record, the types of student records, and how the records are transferred between schools, individuals, institutions, and agencies.

If access to a student's records is desired by an eligible student or parent, he/she should contact the appropriate school principal. In most cases, there is a charge for copies of student records.

Rams Struggle, But Record 14-0 Win Over Cavaliers

Although most local high school football fans predicted that the Southern High Rams would run all over the Cavaliers of Central Preston, in fact Coach Tom Woods team came home from Kingwood Friday night with a rather modest 14-0 victory, their second win in as many starts this season.

While the final statistics were leaning heavily towards the Southern side, with the exception of the score, the Rams missed a number of opportunities to put more points on the board as several drives were stopped, for various reasons, inside of the Cavaliers' 10-yard line.

Southern had only six offensive series in the contest and punted only once, as one drive was stopped inside the three-yard line when time expired in the first half, another was halted by a fumble, another by a penalty, and another by an interception.

The Rams rolled up 458 yards of total offense, compared to 139 for Central Preston.

A four-yard run by Richie DeWitt on the Rams' first possession, followed by a two-point conversion bootleg run by C.J. Getson gave Southern an 8-0 lead at the 5:02 mark of the first quarter.

Most of the rest of the game was all defense, as the Rams were able to move the ball up and down the field, but could not score.

0	First Downs Penalty	0
19	Total First Downs	4

7	Passes Completed	2

4-40	Penalties-Yards	3-18
2-1	Fumbles-Lost	1-0
458	Total Offense	139

Then with 37 seconds remaining in the game, Jeremy Bosley broke loose for a 23-yard touchdown run to conclude the scoring.

Woods received another balanced running attack from his offense, as Bosley finished with 127 yards on 17 carries, DeWitt added 73 yards on 15 attempts, and fullback Shawn Ryan recorded 59 yards on 10 carries.

"Central Preston played very well against us, and I would be the first to congratulate them on their performance," Woods said. "They were the underdog, but the longer they stayed close to us, the more confidence they gained, and the more frustrated we got."

Woods noted that in coverage of the game in the Morgantown newspaper, Central Coach Mike Contic accused Woods and the Rams of "running up the score" on them. In response to that, Woods said, "If Coach Contic really believes we did that, then I want to apologize to him and his team. But I have to say that anytime my team has only an 8-0 lead, we are going to try to score more points.

"Plus, on that final drive we did not put the ball in the air. It just happened that Jeremy (Bosley) broke loose and was able to score. You can't tell a kid to not play hard or to try not to score under those circumstances."

Earlier in the game Woods did have sophomore quarterback C.J. Getson go to the air, where he completed seven of 12 passes with one interception.

"We wanted to try a little bit of everything, including throwing the ball," Woods said.

Woods noted the offensive performances of Bosley and his two tackles, Jason Bateman and Brett Glotfelty and the defensive efforts of Mike Stewart, Ryan, and Garth Glotfelty, all linebackers.

Injured in the contest was Raymie Sherwood, who broke a finger and sprained his wrist. Joby Tasker is also still hobbled by an ankle injury. Both are listed as "probable" for Friday night, but Woods said their effectiveness remains to be seen.

By far the biggest challenge so far in the young season, and one of the three toughest teams on the Rams' schedule, will be met this Friday night when the Musselman Applemen arrive in Oakland.

The 3-0 Applemen have yet to be tested this season, having defeated their first three opponents by at least three touchdowns.

"They are, as usual, a well-coached, very physical, diverse team that is the biggest I've seen since I've been at Southern," Woods said, noting that both the offensive and defensive lines average 220 pounds from tackle to tackle.

"They are more power-oriented rather than speed-oriented like most of their recent teams," he said. "They are running a lot more off-tackle and less to the outside."

The offense is being led this year by senior center Eric Chrisman (6-2, 217), senior guard Jon Wright (6-0, 231), running back Tom Shelton (5-7, 160), and senior fullback Dave Clark (6-1, 208).

They run primarily from the wing-T, with Clark and Shelton, an all-state selection, dominating their running game. While they still use the option, they are not throwing the ball as much nor trapping as much as Musselman teams of recent years.

The 5-2, 4-4 defensive units are led by Clark and Chrisman at the ends, and Wright at linebacker.

"Their defense as a whole really attacks the ball very well," Woods said. "While we think their offense is similar in potential to last year's offense, their defense doesn't seem to be quite as awesome. Our game plan is to use power football and keep the ball inside our tackles most of the time. Last year we tried to run ouside on them and they really stuffed us.

"We hope it's a low-scoring game, and with the weather the way it is this week it seems inevitable that we will be playing on a muddy field, which may be to our advantage," he said.

"This game is really key to our season, and to theirs. It is always a good measure as to how good a team we really have," he continued. "Hopefully, our frustrating effort against Central Preston woke us up and will work in our favor this week."

Friday's kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m.

BREAKING FREE from Central Preston Cavalier defenders in the above photo is Southern High School tailback Richie DeWitt, as he gains some of his 73 yards last Friday night in Kingwood. The heavily-favored Rams just missed on a number of scoring opportunities, but still came home with a 14-0 victory, their second win in as many starts this season. Also identifiable in the photo is Southern's Garth Glotflety, No. 16. The Rams will meet one of their toughest opponents on their schedule this Friday night when they host Musselman.

Woods Paces Ram Jayvees Over Elkins

Josh Woods carried the ball only 12 times, but recorded 205 yards and 16 points Tuesday evening when the Southern High School junior varsity whipped visiting Elkins, 36-16.

The Rams, coached by Jim and Tom Bosley, recorded the first points of the game when Steve Eyler ran four yards for a touchdown in the first quarter. Woods ran for the conversion.

A two-yard run by Brandon Ross in the second quarter gave Southern a 14-0 halftime advantage.

The Rams added two touchdowns in the third period, one a one-yard run by Mark Elliott and the second a 22-yard scoring run by Woods. Woods also scored the conversion following Elliott's touchdown.

Woods scored his second six-pointer in the final period.

Eyler finished with 61 yards on nine carries.

Raiders Record Second Shutout

The Oakland Raiders of the Mountaintop Youth Football League upped their season record to 2-2 with a second straight shut-out Sunday afternoon, defeating the Thomas-Davis Rams at the Tucker County field in Parsons, W.Va., 20-0.

The Raiders took a 2-0 lead in the first quarter on a safety and made it 8-0 in the second quarter when Scott Dawson ran for a 47-yard touchdown. Dawson finished with 138 yards and two touchdowns.

Adam Moomau, who recorded 50 yards, broke loose in the third period for an eight-yard scoring run to make it 14-0 and Dawson scored again in the fourth period to conclude the scoring.

Ben Getson added 35 yards rushing and Jamie Tasker hauled in a pass for 25 yards for the Raiders.

Coach Dave Martin credited his entire defensive unit for keeping the Rams out of the end zone.

The Raiders will face the Oakland Jets, also 2-2, this Saturday, Sept. 22, at the Southern High School field. Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m.

Bittinger Powers Huskies To Second Straight Win

Behind a 137-yard, two-touchdown performance by sophomore running back Allen Bittinger, the Northern High Huskies recorded their second win in as many starts this season by defeating host Hancock, 27-14, Friday night. The Huskies will host undefeated Beall this Friday evening.

The Huskies took a 14-0 lead in the first quarter as Bittinger scored on a 15-yard run and Mike Fike followed with a fumble recovery and five-yard scoring run. It was the second return of a fumble for a score by Fike this season, as he did the same thing the previous week against Central Preston.

Jon Houser booted both extra points.

Hancock reponded with an 80-yard scoring run by Eric Moats, who also ran for the conversion to cut the Huskies' lead to 14-8. Moats finished with 120 yards, as he accounted for half of Hancock's rushing total on his scoring run.

Hancock knotted the score at 14-14 just before halftime when Moats tossed an 11-yard touchdown pass. The run for the conversion failed.

The Huskies took the lead for good in the third period when Bittinger raced 85 yards for a touchdown. Houser's kick for the extra point was no good.

Houser added an insurance score later in the same period when he broke free and raced 30 yards to the end zone. He also tacked on the extra point.

Houser also recorded 78 yards on 12 carries and averaged 45 yards on four punts. Two of his punts landed inside Hancock's 10-yard line.

The Northern defense held Hancock to 184 total yards, as Fike spearheaded the unit with his fumble recovery and nine tackles. Larry Wakefield finished with eight tackles from his defensive end position and Todd Burdock blocked a punt.

Hancock, now 0-2, was led defensively by Moats, who was credited with 10 tackles.

"I think our kids were really looking ahead (toward Beall) a little bit," Northern Coach Tom Vent said. "They really shouldn't have scored on us. But fortunately we re-grouped and came back in the second half for the win."

Vent noted the performances of Bittinger on offense, Fike and Wakefield on defense, and Houser with the kicking game. "They really did a nice job for us," he said.

Bittinger came out of the contest with a severe leg bruise, however, and is listed as questionable for this Friday's contest with Beall.

NHS CHEERLEADERS EARN TOP HONORS — The Northern High School cheerleaders recently attended a National Cheerleaders Association summer camp workshop at the University of Pittsburgh, Johnstown Campus, where they received the Staff Award for being the squad that exemplified excellence in squad unity, leadership, and all-around cooperation. The camp, which was attended by over 200 cheerleaders, also included training on all cheerleading techniques, as well as leadership skills, sportsmanship, organization, crowd participation, and dedication. Pictured left to right, front row, are: Cyndi Kolbfleisch, Shelly Oester, Amy Glotfelty, Tracy Murray, Heather Golden, Jennifer Rephann, and Jackie Campbell. In the second row, same order, are Jennifer Stark, Amy Hughes, Carla DeWitt, Kelly Friend, Jamie Strawser, and Trina Green.

Vent will need a good performance from all of his players when the 2-0 Beall Mountaineers come to the Cove Friday evening. Coach Bill Patterson's squad has wins over Hampshire and Berkeley Springs and is led by four-year starting quarterback Shannon McKenzie, a 6-3, 192-pound senior.

"For five years now I've been saying that we want to raise Northern's program to the level that we can be really competitive with Frankfort, Beall, and Southern," Vent said. "Last year we played tough against Beall and we played well against Southern. Hopefully we can play at that level this Friday night. It's a very big game for us."

Besides McKenzie in the Beall backfield, there is senior fullback Jason Robison (5-10, 180) and senior tailback Danny Dixon (5-4, 154), who scored a pair of touchdowns for the Mountaineers in a 34-6 thrashing of Berkeley Springs.

The offensive line is huge, with tackles such as Jason Bittner, Ed Crowe, and Sean Morton, all juniors, who weigh 251, 229, and 260, respectively.

Defensively, Beall is led by Jason Robinson at linebacker, his brother, Jeremy, a junior tackle at 5-9, 201 pounds, Crowe and Bittner also on the line, and Dixon in the secondary.

"In looking down Beall's schedule, I really don't see any teams that are going to present a major challenge for them," Vent said, "except, hopefully, for us. They are a sound football team and we are going to need a great effort to beat them."

Vent described McKenzie as an "outstanding, all-round athlete, who can 'do it all' and is a good leader."

"We've had a great week of practice, with a lot of enthusiasm," Vent said. "If we can go into the game with that same enthusiasm and keep it through the game, winning will take care of itself."

The kickoff is slated for 7:30 p.m. at the Northern field.

Northern Girls Whip Allegany And Southern

The Northern High School volleyball team opened its season this past week with a pair of wins, topping Allegany on Monday in three games, 15-9, 15-5, and 15-6, in Cumberland and then edging arch-rival Southern last night in a five-game match at Northern (see separate story).

Pam Miller led the Huskies with 21 points against the Campers on Monday, while Audra Speicher added 11. Jodi Taylor paced Allegany with eight points.

The Northern junior varsity was also victorious, topping the Camper jayvees in three games, 15-9, 13-15, and 15-0.

GCC Volleyball Team Wins First League Match

The Garrett Community College Volleyball team won its first league match on Tuesday at home against Frederick Community College. After losing their first two games (3-15, 11-15) of the best-of-five match, the Lakers rallied to win the next three games, 15-8, 15-7, and 15-9. Also participating in the tri-match was Penn State-Fayette Campus, who defeated Garrett, 8-15 and 11-15.

Last Thursday the Lakers traveled to Penn State Fayette Campus, where they were defeated in five games, 8-15, 16-14, 12-15, 15-13, and 7-15.

Garrett hosted a tri-match with Penn State McKeesport and Prince George's Community College on Saturday. The Lakers defeated Prince George's, 15-12 and 15-9, and lost to McKeesport, 13-15, 11-15.

The eight-roster volleyball team consists of two returning players, Katie Groves and Kathy Kimble, while six players are new to collegiate volleyball.

"Valerie Teagarden has added maturity and intensity to the team," stated Head Coach Margaret Quinn, "while setters Kim Mackall and Katie Groves are running the 6-2 offense for the squad.

"Cathy Kimble, a former Southern High standout, is doing an excellent job of executing the offense, in addition she has been serving with great consistency," Quinn said.

"Tracy Jones, of Oakland, is continuing to add to the offense by developing her hitting ability. As the season progresses I look for her to be a dominent figure in our offense," she said.

"Hitter Becky Evans is rounding off the Garrett offense and is being a prominent figure in back row play," she noted.

New to the game and rounding off the squad are Kenyatta Brown and Kim Copeland. "As skills develop I look for them to play an important role in the offense," stated Assistant Coach Susan Sanders.

The team record is 2-3, while their league record is 1-0. The Lakers traveled to Hagerstown yesterday for a tri-match with Hagerstown Jr. College and Boyce. The next home match is next Tuesday, featuring a tri-match with Montgomery Rockville and Penn State, New Kensington. Game time is 6 p.m.

Husky Jayvees Mash Allegany

The Northern High School junior varsity football team manhandled the Allegany jayvees Tuesday evening at Northern, 26-0, as four different Huskies scored a touchdown.

After a scoreless first quarter, Tim Hinebaugh picked up a Camper fumble and raced 48 yards for a touchdown. Rob Speicher ran for the two-point conversion to give Northern an 8-0 halftime lead.

Derrick Mason connected with Billy Younkin on a seven-yard scoring strike in the third period. Allen Sebold and Tim Forney then added touchdowns on runs of four and 55 yards, respectively, in the fourth quarter to conclude the scoring.

Sebold, Younkin, and Jamie Yoder spearheaded the Northern defensive unit.

The 1-0 Huskies will host Beall's junior varsity on Monday, with kickoff set for 7 p.m.

A&A Soccer Team Topped By League Leader

The A&A Realty/Deep Creek Soccer Club was handed its second loss of the season as league-leading Valley Automotive scored a 3-1 victory Sunday at Southern Middle School. A&A, playing its second game in a row on a wet and muddy field, was unable to crack the tough Valley Automotive defense for more than one goal, which was the first scored upon Valley this season.

A&A took an early 1-0 lead late in the first quarter as Bill Mead took a Mike Hoffaditz cross and drilled a low hard shot on goal. The Valley goal keeper made a diving deflection of the shot, but Bob Issacson, standing 10 feet from the goal, put the rebound into the back of the net.

Valley tied the score late in the second period and took the lead five minutes into the third period. A&A was able to surmount some offensive thrust in the second half, but on four different occasions saw their attempts stymied by shots hitting the goal post or crossbar.

Valley scored a 60-yard empty net goal in the last minute of the game as A&A had pulled everybody forward for one last attempt to tie the score. A&A's goalkeeper, John Steele, had six saves in the game, including one spectacular diving save late in the fourth period to keep A&A in the game to the end.

A&A will try to get back in the win column when they travel to ACC this Sunday to face Valley Electronics. The starting time will be 1 p.m.

"FITNESS IS AGELESS" — That's the motto of this young team, Power Pac, and their organization's premier team, The Aerobic Diehards. Both groups will be performing at the Mid-Atlantic regional event of the Reebok National Aerobic Championships in Baltimore, September 22 and 23. The competition is the leading event for adults participating in competitive aerobics. Brenda Brosnihan, coach of both teams, stated, "The Aerobic Diehards have received many opportunities from their past performances at the contest. We are optimistic that someone will see the groups and another new adventure will be in store." Power Pac is the youngest and the largest team to perform at this event. Each of the Aerobic Diehards received another new pair of Reebok shoes from the company to wear throughout the weekend event. Members of Power Pac include, left to right, first row, Brianne Meyers, Carrie Carpenter and Sara Thomas; kneeling, Jennifer Teagarden, Sheri Perando, Heather Malcomb, Ann Sebold, Stephanie Miller, Kristin Spurrier, Stephanie Ballard, Bethany Savage, Angel Sharps and Heather Hanline; standing, Tonya Livingood, Amy Evans, Rachel Paugh, Amanda Palmer, Holly Shaffer and Wendy Bray. National Hunting And Fishing Day To Be Celebrated

The Turkeyfoot, Pa., Fish & Game Association, Inc., will join millions of sportsmen across the country to celebrate National Hunting and Fishing Day, September 22.

The Association will celebrate the event with a wide variety of free demonstrations and exhibits for the Youghiogheny Dam Outflow Campgrounds. Among the activities scheduled are conservation displays, shooting demonstrations, and shooting matches.

The shooting match schedule is as follows: Muzzleloader, 1 p.m., Archery, 2:30 p.m., and Shotgun Shoot (12, 16, and 20 gauge only), 4 p.m. There is an entry fee required for the Shotgun Shoot, but none for the Muzzleloader or Archery contests. Prizes will be awarded for all three events.

More than 15 other sporting and conservation groups will participate in the 19th annual celebration of NHF day.

Organizations including the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Pennsylvania Game Commission, Pennsylvania Fish Commission, Pennsylvania Trappers Association, Ducks Unlimited, and other sportsmen's and conservation groups, sport shops, and taxidermists will be on hand with exhibits on practical wildlife conservation and displays of outdoor equipment, along with "how to" demonstrations in a variety of outdoor sports.

three years, according to the video presentation. Harr explained to the board members that this program will put the school system into "a whole new era of accountability" and that the system is entering "uncharted waters."

Dr. Ryscavage stated that he felt the schools "have a good start," because of the already active RSEP.

The board will discuss further information on the program at their next meeting.

Fund Raising Policy

A new policy was approved at the meeting which lists school fund-raising guidelines. At previous meetings, concern had been raised that because of the reduced budget, students may be involved in more fund-raisers this year. The board members felt that guidelines for these activities should be created, as some of the money-raising schemes actually provide little or no profit to the school in the end.

Dr. Ryscavage requested an itemized, detailed list from all county school principals in early summer. The board was given the combined lists at the last meeting, as well as Dr. Ryscavage's tentative guidelines.

In the discussion about the activities, Board Member Charles Teets voiced his concern about incentives for young children, such as the promise of a toy if a child sells a certain amount. He felt this was an unfair and improper method, as few children actually sell the quota to receive any prizes, and the focus of the project is solely on the incentive, not on the school's benefit of the activity.

Mikal Moomau added that certain items sold are not in the best interest of students, such as chocolate bars and candy.

The guidelines that the board approved include a new rule which disallows fund-raising activities that involve individual incentives to students in grades pre-kindergarten through eighth.

The policy also states that whenever possible, the fund-raisers should be used as an educational vehicle through activities such as book fairs and

Criminal Charges Pending In Theft Of 630 Trees From Wildland Area

It was recently announced that Maryland Department of Natural Resources officials are still trying to decide if criminal charges should be levied against a local logger who allegedly stole a total of 630 trees in approximately 35 acres of Savage River State Forest in late May.

The illegal cutting of those trees took place in the Pea Patch Ridge area, which recently was recommended as a possible site for the designation of wildlands.

According to Larry Maxim, Savage River State Forest manager, members of a group known as Outward Bound, an educational outdoor group, discovered a logging crew cutting down the trees and notified park rangers. The crew was then ordered by the rangers to leave the area but it was then discovered that they had returned and cut more acreage.

The estimated value of the trees, of which a large percentage were mature Red Oaks, is $33,829, according to DNR officials.

Maryland Assistant Attorney General, Pam Quinn, stated that the alleged thief's identity could not yet be revealed pending a decision by DNR on how to proceed with the case. That decision, according to Quinn, is expected to be forthcoming shortly.

Tree poaching on state land is generally handled by fining the guilty party, but because of the magnitude of the theft, criminal charges are also being considered.

Maxim stated that, with approximately 53,000 acres of land in the state forest, it is nearly impossible to police all of it in an adequate manner.

Maxim also termed the theft as a "high-grading" operation, meaning that all the valuable trees were taken and the "junk stuff" left behind.

Gypsy Moth Forum Reveals Concerns About County's Aerial Spray Program

by Sherry Frantz

"We have never successfully eliminated any organism that has come into this country once it has become established."

These were the words of Susan Cooper, staff ecologist from the National Coalition Against the Misuse of Pesticides (NCAMP), as she addressed a group of concerned citizens at the Gypsy Moth Forum held recently at Garrett Community College.

The forum, sponsored by the local group CARE (Concerned Area Residents for the Environment) was also host to three other speakers, all credentialed in various aspects of the gypsy moth problem — a problem that has now become Garrett County's.

Those speakers, in addition to Cooper, were Dr. Ray Hicks, professor at West Virginia University with the Forestry Division; Dr. Kurt Gottschalk, U.S. Forestry Service; and Dr. Ralph Webb, entomologist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Beltsville Agricultural Research Center.

Also on hand were resource personnel, Dave Cohen, Maryland Department of Agriculture; Steve Hamilton; Maryland Department of Natural Resources, Forest, Park and Wildlife Service; and Alice Hevner, Garrett County Extension Service.

The forum was organized and presented as part of CARE's ongoing effort to inform the general public of the environmental consequences of planned activities, and consisted of presentations from the four speakers followed by a question and answer period.

Members of the audience, as well as CARE representatives, raised numerous questions to the panelists reflecting concern about Garrett County's gypsy moth suppression program which, in large part, employs Dimilin (diflubenzuron) — an insecticide that inhibits the formation of chitin, thus preventing insects and crustaceans from developing their outer coverings.

Dr. Ray Hicks, who presented an overview of the history of the gypsy moth in the United States and its mode of behavior, first explained that management depends on information. "Information," he said, "on your forest and your objectives in that forest."

It is essential, he said, that residents make themselves aware of the types of forests that surround them, and of the management techniques employed on public forest lands.

One also must determine "how much money and effort one is willing to spend" on a suppression program, he stated.

Addressing the dilemma of choosing the right method of action (or no action), Hicks stated, "What is the right decision? Are pesticides the right decision? Well, I wouldn't necessarily say that, although pesticides have a role, I think. Certainly, Bt (Bacillus thuringiensis) is one that is widely used and considered relatively safe. Dimilin is another one that is widely used. It's very effective — maybe more so than Bt — but there are some environmental questions about Dimilin."

He continued, "Dimilin does kill some organisms which you may not want to kill but it is not a 'poison' in the same sense as something like DDT."

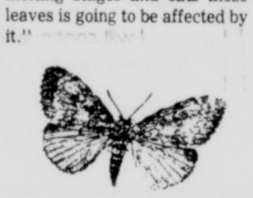

NCAMP ecologist Susan Cooper, however, voiced a cautionary note following Hicks's speculation about the harmful effects of Dimilin, stating, "We hear a lot of reassurances about pesticidal controls. They tell you Dimilin is safe, but they don't really know that — they're just assuming it."

She explained that this assumption was based on tesing of the "active" ingredients (those designed to perform a pesticidal action) of Dimilin but that a significant part (75 percent) of the formulation is composed of "inert" ingredients. She noted that this description is somewhat misleading to the lay person because inert, in this case, simply means "those ingredients which the manufacturer does not claim to have pesticidal action."

Some of those inert ingredients include materials that allow the formulation to hold to the leaf surface or to flow smoothly through the applicator.

So, notwithstanding the fact that the active ingredients in Dimilin are still under the scrutiny of scientific research because it is a relatively new product on the market and because, as Cooper said, it is an almost impossible task to "scientifically" prove anything, inert ingredients are afforded "trade secret" status and, even under the Freedom of Information Act, their identities can not be obtained.

"In the case of Dimilin, you're talking about something which stays on leaf surfaces for as long as ten months," said Cooper, "which means that any insect which goes through molting stages and eats those leaves is going to be affected by it."

While research at this stage indicates harmful effects to other insects and crustaceans (ranging from all moths and butterflies to the bay crab), even less is known about the pesticide's effect on bees, birds, small animals, and — at the top of the food chain — humans.

One of the questions asked by a Garrett County resident attending the forum was, "Considering that the human system is an ecological, water-based system, at what point does the study of the effects of the microbial life on the skin and in the lung tissue enter the research process?" And, further, "At what point does the human recipient of the spray get to enter the decision-making loop?"

Dr. Ralph Webb, entomologist, answered that research is currently being conducted on animal models with corresponding microbes to the human. "I don't know that anyone actually looks at the skin microflora, but what they do look for are effects on the skin," said Webb. He also noted that effects on analogous systems, such as fungi (which contains chitin) are also being studied.

Cooper stated that skin rashes in humans may well have been the result of the inert ingredients in the pesticidal formulations. "Since we don't know what they are," she said, "we can't tell you what the toxicological effects are."

Cooper further explained that "chemical sensitivities" should not be confused with allergic reaction, stating, "The immunological response to chemical sensitivity is completely different from an allergic response, which typically involves histamines. A chemical sensitivity can and does, in many cases, have very severely debilitating immunological effects."

She also noted that chemical sensitivities are only now beginning to receive serious scientific consideration.

The question of human health in the face of Dimilin, then, would seem to be one that just cannot be answered — even by the experts — at this stage of the game. One need only look back through the history of insecticides and pesticides, though, to realize that (1) direct correlations are not easily drawn between the use of such chemicals and their effects on human health because of the abundance of variables in the human and ecological environment, and (2) it typically takes many years to affirm any correlations that have been drawn. (Such was the case with thalidomide and DDT.)

And while it is generally accepted that chemicals on the market today have been proclaimed safer than their counterparts of former years, one must acknowledge that "safer" is indeed a relative term, and then make a personal choice about "how safe is safe?" when confronted with the insecticide question.

But even assuming that human health is not at risk, the world of scientific research has indicated that other organisms do, indeed, suffer adverse effects that could, potentially, lead to their extinction.

Some of those other organisms happen to be beneficial ones. Still others are those which are able to biologically control the gypsy moth.

Dr. Webb explained that since the use of Dimilin is questionable, and since Bt, although identified as a safer alternative, must be applied within a "narrow biological window" to be effective, the scientific community is currently working on biologically based gypsy moth management.

"There are a number of alternatives that are environmentally compatible, including many disease agents that attack insects, such as bacteria, fungi, viruses, nemotodes, and so forth," stated Webb.

Further, he said, "A lot of emphasis is now being placed on a virus that occurs in the nucleas of the insect cell."

Dr. Kurt Gottschalk then explained that some biological controls have been around since the early 1900's, "travelling with the gypsy moth but not at the same rate."

Gottschalk went on to say that gypsy moth infestation occurs in cycles, but those cycles vary from one geographical location to another and were somewhat dependent on climate and other geographical factors.

He stated, "Although no general pattern has been determined, some places experience heavy defoliation for many years, and other places with gypsy moth infestation are not defoliated."

"But we have seen," he said, "that a couple of years into an outbreak, natural controls (like viruses) begin to catch up with the gypsy moth."

Gottschalk stated that climate seems to be a major factor in how much damage will be done, and noted that the gypsy moth "prefers a warmer, dryer climate" than Garrett County usually experiences.

"In cool, moist conditions, outbreaks seem to be much less frequent and much less drastic," he said.

Gottschalk also addressed the question of silvicultural practices intended to aid in gypsy moth suppression, stating, "Although forest management is a scientific discipline, it is open to interpretation, and the major question facing forest managers is 'At what threshold of infestation does one take action?' "

He emphasized the importance of flexibility in forest management programs in the light of "political and economic" decisions that were also taking place surrounding the gypsy moth issue.

Gottschalk also noted that forests change constantly, ecologically, and that silvicultural techniques attempt to manage that change to benefit various resources — timber production, wildlife, recreation, and water and fisheries.

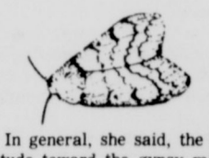

He stated, "The gypsy moth also creates an ecological change. We try to minimize or slow down those changes by reducing the amount of oaks (one of the gypsy moth's most preferred species). Reducing the oaks reduces infestation and increases forest diversity."

More diverse stands prevailed around the turn of the century, Gottschalk explained, and, because of past logging practices and fires, the oak stands are maturing and "we're seeing a progression of these stands, ecologically, back to more mixed stands."

Susan Cooper carried that fact a step further, stating that a great deal of this area of the country, 400 years ago, was not all dense oak stands, and a wider variety of wildlife existed in the area that is now inhabited by the gypsy moth.

"So, clearly, the ecology of the area is able to withstand a diversity of tree species and still have a very diverse wildlife ecology," Cooper stated.

Cooper stressed the importance of area residents making an informed decision about using aerial spray programs to combat the moth. "We have to decide if it's important to us to spray on a yearly basis — almost indefinitely. The gypsy moth is not going away. It's been here for over a century and continues to expand its range," she said.

In general, she said, the attitude toward the gypsy moth problem has been a short-term one because of "political considerations" and because people are, rightfully, concerned about the aesthetics of the trees around their houses, the value of their property if those trees are gone, and of course, the defoliation of oak stands.

"But, if it's not going away," she said, "are we talking about spraying every year, indefinitely, because we've decided we want to maintain oak forests of a certain type? Is that something we're comfortable with?"

"Widespread aerial campaigns are expensive over the long run. Other options need to be considered. Other management strategies are available to us, such as beginning to implement changes in the kind of trees that are out there. "This may cost more money, initially," she stated, "but also will have much more long-term benefits."

The panelists were in agreement that the only thing that had ever been shown to achieve long-term, ongoing control of a pest introduced to a foreign environment was biological control.

Dr. Gottschalk echoed that sentiment, saying, "The spray operations are strictly providing foliage protection and nuisance protection for the areas being sprayed. Period. That's what they're designed to do."

He also reported that some New England states, as well as New York State, have abandoned their spray programs because it was discovered by "veterans" of the gypsy moth infestation that mortality rates in trees decreased in subsequent attacks by the gypsy moth.

Other questions from the audience revealed concern about the many bodies of water in Garrett County and the efficiency of spraying without damage to aquatic wildlife.

Another concern voiced was that of the inherent problems of the drifting of aerially sprayed insectide onto non-target areas — specifically, vegetable gardens, which are in their early stages when the Dimilin is being applied, and are harvested while the spray ingredients are still on the leaf surfaces.

Cooper validated this concern, noting that only 50 percent of an aerially sprayed insecticide reaches its target. "When you're spraying hundreds and thousands of acres with any compound that's toxic to a wide variety of wildlife and other organisms," she said, "I think you're setting yourself up for some potentially serious problems."

She continued, "It takes money and time, but people need to think more about long-term control and investing in methods that are going to be effective for 200 to 500 years — not just two to five years — that are going to impact the trees your children see growing here."

Defoliation of a large number of trees by the gypsy moth would, indeed, upset the ecological balance, but an informed decision about the effects — and the effectiveness — of a widespread spray campaign with a questionable insecticide must be made after all other factors are weighed and balanced.

The Dimilin Dilemma

by Pam Ashby

A resident of the Bray School Road (let's call him Mr. B) opted to have his property sprayed with Dimilin this past summer to help combat the gypsy moth caterpillar. After too many unanswered questions and unnatural phenomena occurring, he has now decided that he will not have his property sprayed next summer. Mr. B, like many citizens, weighed the positives and negatives and now hopes he has made the right decision.

"I live on the boundaries of an oak forest. My main objective was to save those oaks," said Mr. B, "but not at the risk of other wildlife or at the risk of my family's health. I'm not saying I know that Dimilin is bad. I just don't know how good and safe it is, considering that it only takes a teaspoon per acre to use."

Mrs. B also has concerns and recounted this story:

"I saw a small animal run toward the woods one day, not long after the Dimilin spraying. I wasn't sure what it was so I got a closer look. Its lips and stomach were all swollen and it had flies all over it like it was already dead, but it wasn't. It did die the next day, though. I found out it was a weasel. I also saw a smiliar condition with a toad. Its swollen stomach felt like dry, parched paper."

She continued, "This has been the strangest summer. We could even eat outdoors and not be bothered by any insects there for a while. There were no June bugs, very few Japanese beetles, hardly any bees . . . and come to think of it, the birds weren't as plentiful. My garden acted funny, too. My mother and uncle were both hospitalized with breathing problems right after they sprayed Dimilin. I don't know if all this is just a coincidence or not, but I hate to take the chance of spraying again if Dimilin caused any of this."

Following the recent CARE forum on the gypsy moth, a Grantsville couple also decided not to have their 40-acre farm sprayed next year. With the information presented to them, they made a choice. They now know both sides.

Just a short time after the spraying of Dimilin in the county, some hospital employees were wondering — not accusing — just wondering about the high incidence of pre-mature births and babies being born with respiratory problems. Again, this could be coincidence. Hopefully so.

An Oakland woman explained, "As a test, I chose not to spray my backyard garden with anything this year. While I did lose some of my crops to various bugs, I still canned and froze as much produce as I have in the past. Through broom-bashing and tree-taping, I had pretty much controlled my gypsy moth infestation long before the county dumped all that Dimilin on me. The thing I noticed missing this year were the bees. I also noticed some leaves dying on my ornamental trees and bushes. Maybe it was a blight, but they sure were healthy before the Dimilin. I just think we need to study this stuff more if we're going to be hit with it again next year."

None of the aforementioned concerns should be taken lightly even if they are coincidences. What if they are not coincidental? What if we are unwittingly killing our small animals, our bees, other insects, our own offspring? What if we further disturb the food chain in Garrett County and the effects are irreversible? It is food for thought.

Most people who are wary of Dimilin do not blame any particular person or group for the spraying of the insecticide. They simply would prefer more studies on the active and inert ingredients of the substance.

If Dimilin can stay on a leaf for up to 10 months, it is most likely going to be ingested by more than just the gypsy moth caterpillar. And since Dimilin works by breaking down the chitin, (the stuff that makes a bug go "crunch") then surely we'll lose other chitin-producing species.

Additionally, it is known that Dimilin breaks down much better in alkaline water. It is also known that Garrett County has acidic water.

While we may have enjoyed relatively bug-free picnics this summer (when it wasn't raining), did we really gain anything? We can only hope that Dimilin is as safe as government officials tell us it is. Yet we still worry that the inconclusive studies of our scientists will come back to haunt us someday. And if we are being led astray, then surely our offspring would like to know whom to blame 100 years from now.

If farmers lost 30 percent of their crops before insecticides were introduced and farmers lost 30 percent of their crops when using insecticides, what's the point?

Man has a tendency to shrug off what he doesn't understand. He wants to move or eradicate any obstacles immediately without first thinking through the consequences. He genuinely wants to do the right thing — but he wants to do it right now.

Some chemical companies seem to hard-sell and defend their insecticides. Some environmentalists appear to carry their causes too far. The rest of us are floundering somewhere in the middle.

Will this summer or next summer be known as our "Silent Summer" somewhere hence?

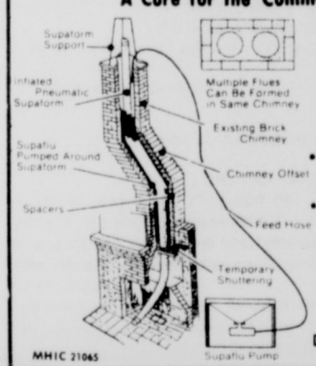

And the debate over the Dimilin dilemma continues.

Health Officer Answers Common Questions On Flu, Announces Clinics

Dr. Rex Archer, Garrett County Health Officer, states that many serious complications from influenza type illnesses can be prevented if more persons were immunized with flu and pneumococcal vaccines. Below are common questions asked each year and answers by Dr. Archer.

Q. What is Influenza?

A. Influenza, or "flu," is a respiratory disease caused by a virus. There are two main types of influenza virus — A and B. Each type includes many related viruses or strains, each slightly different from the others.

Q. How serious a disease is influenza?

A. Influenza illnesses range from very mild to severe, depending upon such factors as the individual's susceptibility and general physical condition. Influenza can cause life threatening complications in high risk individuals or, rarely, in normally healthy individuals.

Q. Why are some people referred to as "high risk?"

A. The risk of developing severe complications with influenza increases with age (particularly among those cases 65 years of age or older) or in individuals (of any age) with chronic medical conditions. The chronic conditions which present the greatest risk for serious complications or death from influenza are problems such as diabetes, diseases of the heart, lungs, or kidneys, severe anemia, or chronic illnesses (or medications) which lower the body's resistance to infection.

Q. How is influenza spread?

A. Influenza spreads from person to person through droplets of moisture expelled into the air when a person with influenza sneezes, coughs, or talks. These droplets contain viruses which, when inhaled by other people, can cause infection in those who are susceptible. The incubation period for influenza (the length of time between a person's exposure to disease and actual development of symptoms) typically ranges from 1-3 days.

It has also been shown that influenza spreads very rapidly over great geographic distances.

Q. How is influenza diagnosed and treated?

A. Usually, the diagnosis is based on the appearance of "classic" flu symptoms which include fever, chills, headache, cough, and sore and aching muscles in the back, arms, and legs.

There is no specific treatment, but bed rest, drinking more than usual amount of liquids, and taking pain relievers help reduce the discomfort of the illness.

Aspirin, however, should not be given to children or adolescents because of the risk of Reye syndrome. Because influenza is a viral illness, antibiotics are of no use except treating bacterial complications such as pneumonia. One drug, amantadine hydrochloride, has been licensed for use and may prevent illness when given early after infection with type A influenza viruses. Amantadine is not effective against type B influenza.

Q. Every year there seems to be a new influenza virus going around. Why?

A. The influenza viruses frequently change; thus from time to time, new strains of influenza virus appear. Epidemics then occur because people have not had previous exposure which would allow them to build up specific immunity (protection) against the new strain.

Q. What kind of vaccine is available for the 1990-91 season?

A. Influenza vaccinations should be given annually. A trivalent (three strains), "killed virus" vaccine containing A/Taiwan (HINI), A/Shanghai (H3N2), and B/Y Yamagata has been produced for use in 1990-91. Persons nine years of age and older will require only one dose. For maximum effectiveness, children under nine will require two doses of "split virus" vaccine about 1 month apart, unless they received influenza vaccine previously (in which case only one current dose is needed).

Q. Who should receive influenza vaccine?

A. To maximize protection of those at high risk of developing complications from influenza, both the persons at risk and their close contacts should be vaccinated. This includes (but is not limited to):

*Persons aged 65 years and older;

*Residents of nursing homes and other chronic-care facilities housing persons of any age with chronic medical conditions;

*Adults and children with chronic disorders, especially pulmonary and cardiovascular disorders, including children with asthma;

*Adults and children who have required regular medical follow-up or hospitalization during the preceding year because of metabolic or renal disease, hemogloginopathies or immunosuppression (including HIV infection);

*Children and teenagers receiving long-term aspirin therapy;

*Those proving care to high-risk individuals, including health care givers; and

*Household members of high-risk persons.

Q. How safe is the influenza vaccine?

A. Vaccines in recent years have been associated with only a few reactions. Inactivated influenza vaccine should not be given to persons known to have anaphylactic hypersensitivity to eggs (a very severe allergic reaction). Some people may have a sore arm for one or two days. Others may have fever, chills, headache or muscle aches within the first 48 hours after vaccination. However, it is important to remember that you cannot get infectious influenza from this vaccine.

The vaccine is safe for pregnant women, and such women should be vaccinated if they belong to any of the high-risk groups.

Q. Where can I get the vaccine?

A. This year the health department will be cooperating with the Area Agency on Aging in providing the clinics at Senior Citizen Meal Centers and other community locations throughout Garrett County.

Friday Accident

bound on the Mayhew Inn Road when she lost control of the 1981 Chevrolet Citation she was operating.

The vehicle slid across the road and back across before striking a ditch on the left side.

Tfc. D.W. Broadwater investigated the 12:50 p.m. accident and charged Hunter with negligent driving, driving an unregistered vehicle, driving without current registration plates, knowingly driving an uninsured vehicle, and failure to wear a seat belt.

In yet another Sunday accident, a Gaithersburg woman was charged with excessive speeding by Tfc. J.E. Foley.

Kristin K. Miesse, 21, was charged after the 1984 Datsun she was operating skidded off the right side of the road on U.S. Route 40, struck a guardrail and crossed back over the road before striking the ditch on the left.

Neither Miesse or her passenger, Nick Athas, 20, Baltimore, were injured in the 4:30 p.m. accident.

A Pittsburgh, Pa. man was charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol in another Sunday mishap.

Robert C. Peiffer, 51, was charged with DWI by Tfc. J.K. Moore following the 9 p.m. accident.

Moore's report indicated that Peiffer was traveling south on the Cranesville Road when a deer allegedly ran into the path of the vehicle he was operating.

Peiffer reportedly swerved to the right and ran off the road and into several trees. The vehicle then overturned.

A McHenry man was cited for DWI, negligent driving and failure to remain at the scene of an accident following a Friday incident.

Eric A. DeWitt, 21, was reportedly operating a 1988 Ford F-150 pickup truck when he pulled into the private driveway of Mrs. Gladys Savage. The truck struck the garage, damaging the garage door.

DeWitt then allegedly backed up and left the scene of the accident.

Tfc. J.K. Moore investigated the 12:39 p.m. mishap.

A Grantsville woman was injured in a 4:50 a.m. accident last Thursday on the Westernport Road.

Darlene F. Harkins, 29, was injured when she lost control of the 1989 Subaru she was operating, causing the vehicle to leave the road and travel down an embankment where it overturned.

Harkins was transported to Frostburg Community Hospital by George's Creek Rescue Squad where she was treated for injuries and later released.

Tpr. S.H. Anderson investigated for State Police.

Robert D. Sweitzer, 23, Swanton, was treated for injuries he sustained in a 12:30 a.m. accident last Thursday.

Sweitzer reportedly lost control of the 1987 Chevrolet Cavalier he was operating north on Route 495. The vehicle left the roadway and struck a utility pole, police said.

Sweitzer was taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by his father.

Tpr. W.E. Dixon investigated and charged Sweitzer with failure to reduce speed in dangerous weather conditions and failure to wear a seat belt.

A September 10 accident report just recently released by the McHenry Barrack of the State Police indicated that three persons were treated for injuries sustained in that accident.

Treated and later released from Garrett County Memorial Hospital were Patti J. Glotfelty, 21, Deer Park; Jerry L. Bolyard, 40, Terra Alta, W.Va.; and Sandra S. Burkett, 46, Oakland.

The 11:40 p.m. accident reporteldy occurred when Glotfelty, operating a 1987 Ford Ranger, was passed on a double-line by an AMC wagon. At the same time, a third vehicle, operated by Burkett, approached from the other direction.

Both the Glotfelty and Burkett vehicles were forced off the roadway. Glotfelty released the brake, which caused her vehicle to accelerate , cross the road and strike the Burkett vehicle on the driver's side.

The Burkett vehicle continued down over an embankment.

The AMC wagon came back past the accident scene and the driver, George W. Pepper Jr., was apprehended and subsequently charged with DWI, negligent driving, improper passing and driving while revoked.

Glotfelty was charged with DWI and failure to drive on the right side of the road by Tpr. W.E. Dixon who investigated the accident.

Southern Rescue Squad personnel transported the injured to the hospital. Oakland firefighters were also dispatched to the scene by Garrett County Emergency Management.

DWI ARRESTS

Maryland State Police reported four additional DWI arrests this past week.

Tpr. P.R. Brown charged Bruce R. Waslow, 35, LaVale, with DWI on September 15.

Tpr. Brown also charged Robert C. Glass, 20, Accident, with DWI on September 16.

A DWI charge was lodged against Jeffrey J. Bittner Sr., 24, Oakland, on September 16 by Tfc. J.K. Moore.

Moore also charged Gary E. Feller, 23, Oakland, with DWI on September 16.

EMS WEEK

National Emergency Medical Services week is being observed this week, September 16-22. Members of Union Ambulance Association are doing blood pressure screenings at both the Maple Spring Church and the Aurora Squad Hall on September 19, and they recently displayed the equipment in the ambulance and told of their service and training to the Eglon Mountaineer 4-H Club, all the commemoration of this week when people should be made aware of the volunteers who serve these smaller communities.

MOUNTAINEERS HOST EMTs

In celebration of National Emergency Medical Services week, three members of the Union Ambulance squad presented a program on the history of the squad, the training required to become an EMT, and showed some of the equipment used in the field to members, leaders and parents of the Eglon Mountaineer 4-H Club at their September 10 meeting. David Martin, medic, Diane Bachtel, EMT, and Sue Mayne, driver, were present to demonstrate Mast trousers and the EKG monitor, and also handed out first aid information, membership forms, and 911 stickers. Rhett Beckman volunteered to be monitored by the EKG machine and, following presentation, a question and answer session was held.

Melissa Evans reported on the flag raising ceremony at the Potato Festival. Plans for Buckwheat Festival participation included volunteers for lamb dressing contest, for serving buckwheat cake dinners on Friday, September 25, and for hosting the Berkeley County 4-H exchange members who will be visiting on Saturday, September 29. Other plans for the Berkeley County visitors include a 5 p.m. dinner at Cathedral State Park for Mountaineer members and their families. Volunteers in the community who wish to help with buckwheat dinners are asked to contact Elaine Roth or Linda Lewis.

Livestock project books must be turned in for grading prior to October 3. Leader Linda Lewis should have them by that date. The club plans a trash pickup along Route 24 on Saturday, September 22, beginning at 9 a.m.

National 4-H Week is designated for October 7-14 and the Eglon Mountaineers plan to observe that occasion by wearing their 4-H shirts and pins to school and will be putting placemats at Silver Lake Restaurant.

Enrollment cards for the new year were given out and they are to be returned by September 22. Prospective members Sarah Snyder and Micah Feather were in attendance.

Results of the election of officers were: Mark Utterback, president; Emily Lewis, vice president; Kevin Harsh, secretary; and Katie Utterback, reporter. Members of the club are currently selling meat (pork, beef, lamb) tickets for the Preston County 4-H Foundation. Proceeds benefit both the local clubs and the county foundation.

The next meeting will be October 8 with the program to be on pumpkin designing. Each member is asked to bring his own pumpkin. Hosts will be the Harsell and Harsh families.

The Snyder and Feather families were hosts for the evening and served refreshments to the following: Rhett Beckman, Brian and Kevin Corbin, Beth and Melissa Evans, Jeremiah and Micah Feather, Tim Harsh, Carroll Hartsell, Kelly Kowalski, Emily Lewis, Amy and Lisa Moats, Michelle Shaffer, Regina Shaffer, Becky and Sarah Snyder, Tom Teets, John, Mark and Matt Utterback, Becky and Elizabeth Wotring, parents and leaders Robin Feather, Judy Shaffer, LaDeana Teets, Mary Harsh, Linda Snyder, Linda Lewis, and Elaine Roth.

PIONEERS PREPARE FOR NATIONAL 4-H WEEK

At their September 10 meeting in the Aurora School, posters and badges were made in plans of observing National 4-H Week which is October 7-14. Opening devotions were provided by Lalinda Mayne using the theme, "Hands."

Vice president Jessica Lants presided at the meeting.

An important meeting will be held October 4 at the Aurora School. Parents of members, prospective members and their parents, are all asked to be present. Those who desire further information concerning the Aurora Pioneer 4-H should contact the new leader, Stacy Fint, at 735-5429.

Meghan Durst and Courtney Fint led the music and recreation.

Members are selling tickets for beef, lamb, and pork. Members should return any unsold tickets to Kitty Myers as quickly as possible. This effort supports both the local clubs and the Preston County 4-H Foundation.

Those in attendance were Chad Arnold, Adrain Stemple, Stephanie Moats, Mike, Michelle and Shawn Sisler, Courtney and Joey Fint, Carla and Tina Fint, Darrell Fint, Christina Slaubaugh, Malinda Mayne, Meghan Durst, Kimberly Fike, Beth Hauser, Jessica Lantz, Lori Dixon, Missy Callahan, and adults Sandy Callahan, Sandra Hauser, Debbie Fike and Betty Fint. 50th Anniversary Of Buckwheat Fest To Be Commemorated In New Book

The people of Preston County will celebrate the golden anniversary of the Buckwheat Festival in 1991, and the Kingwood Volunteer Fire Department yesterday announced efforts to publish a special book commemorating that historic event.

Golden Harvest: 50 years At the Preston County Buckwheat Festival will be compiled and edited by former Preston County News editor Bob Teets, and will be published through the facilities of Headline Books, Inc., Terra Alta, W.Va.

"This is going to be a most unique publication," Teets, co-author of several books, said, "because we are hopeful that, like the Festival itself, this book will be the result of the efforts of residents from throughout Preston County."

Teets said the KVFD hopes the book will feature photos and stories produced by Prestonians. "We need the people of Preston to search their attics and scrapbooks for festival photographs taken during the past 50 years," he said. "And I'm counting on each community in the county to produce a writer who will volunteer to write a feature story about a local person's or a group's unique contributions to the past success of the Festival. Any contributor whose works are used will receive recognition in the book, as well as a free copy."

The book will be divided into chapters representing each of the past five decades, with additional sections highlighting king and queens, agriculture, notable personalities and other festival lore. Original artwork by local artists will also be featured.

For marketing, KVFD officials sought the county-wide participation of Preston County Homemaker's Clubs whose members are now taking orders for the book in return for a share of the proceeds. "People may place orders right now in their own hometown," Teets noted, "simply by contacting a member of the local Homemaker's Club." Others may place orders directly with the publisher at P.O. Box 52, Terra Alta, W.Va. 26764. For those visiting the Festival this year, an order blank is featured on the last page of the official 1990 Buckwheat Festival program book.

Two versions of the 8½"x11", 128-page book are planned, a Heritage Edition, which will be hardbound in special cloth, and a Collector's Edition, limited to just 500 copies, which will feature an identical finish with a matching slipcase. Both will be available in advance of the 1991 Festival with an exclusive 50th Anniversary decal affixed to the cover. Prices through December 31, 1990 are $20.95 for the Collector's Edition and $15.95 for the Heritage Edition, and will be $2 higher after that date. Any orders placed with the publisher must include an additional $2.75 to cover postage and handling. A check or money order must accompany each order.

KVFD officials are advising those interested in purchasing the Collector's Edition to reserve copies immediately, due to the limited quantity scheduled for printing. Orders are processed on a first-come, first-served basis.

"It's a gargantuan task," Teets said, "trying to fit 50 years of such community involvement into a book. But the people of Preston County come together once a year in a most unique celebration of our culture and of our future during the Buckwheat Festival. So now, I'll be turning to those same people, the residents of the county, and asking them to make contributions to this book.

"Given the nature of the people of Preston County and their close cooperation in making the Festival so successful," he said, "I can promise that this book will be a celebration in print. Everyone will want a copy."

To submit photographs (which will be returned in original condition to the owners after publication), or to volunteer to write stories, Teets may be contacted at the publisher's address.

Conference To Focus On Needs Of Children

Parents, educators, health care providers and public officials will gather at Canaan Valley November 9 and 10 to develop strategies for improving the level of services available to children with special needs.

"The Surgeon General's Follow-up Conference for Children with Special Needs: West Virginia's Response" is a project of the W.G. Klingberg Center for Child Development, at West Virginia University, West Virginia Handicapped Children's Services, and the Federal Bureau of Maternal and Child Health.

"A great many people in West Virginia are working hard to provide care and services for children with special needs," says Dr. Chet Johnson, who is a faculty member of the WVU School of Medicine and directs the Klingberg Center. "But the sad truth is that thousands of West Virginia children are not getting the help they need, early enough in their lives, to give them the opportunity to grow into healthy, productive adults."

Parents of special needs children are often frustrated by a complex bureaucracy which can seem unresponsive to their requests and unsympathetic to their difficulties, Johnson says. A major objective of the conference will be on family empowerment, and strengthening the partnerships between parents and professionals.

"We are also going to use this gathering to showcase some of the strategies that work for families of children with special needs," Johnson says.

The meeting will include workshops on special education, family support, health care and the financial support of families with special needs children.

"We want to involve everyone in West Virginia who has been wrestling with these problems in a joint effort to come up with some solutions," says Johnson. "This conference will be a working session."

Among those scheduled to participate in the conference are Rachel Worby, music director, Wheeling Symphony Orchestra; Margie Hale, executive director, Governor's Task Force on Children, Youth and Families; Dr. William Neal, chair, Department of Pediatrics, WVU; Betsy Anderson, director, Federation for Children with Special Needs; Dr. Merle McPherson, director of the Federal Division of Services for Children with Special Needs.

Financial assistance and reduced-cost registration are available to assist parents of special-needs children who wish to attend the conference.

Registration materials and additional information are available from Carrie Westbrook, Klingberg Center, School of Medicine, WVU, Morgantown, WV 26506; telephone (304) 293-7331.

Revival Services Set In Terra Alta

There will be revival services at the Whitedale Brethren Church, Terra Alta, W.Va., September 20-22 at 7:30 p.m. and September 23 at 11 a.m. The guest speaker will be Keith Hensley, pastor of the Pleasant View Brethren Church, Vandergrift, Pa.

Stanley Waybright, pastor of Whitedale Church, invites the public to attend.

WVU Enrollment Exceeds 20,000

For the first time since the 1983-84 academic year, West Virginia University's enrollment has topped the 20,000 mark, with an unofficial count of more than 20,700 students, President Neil S. Bucklew announced this week.

Total enrollment, still unofficial until the Board of Trustees announces the official tally in October, indicates a 3.5 percent overall increase, or approximately 700 more students than last fall's 19,997 head count. (WVU's all-time enrollment high was 21,565 students in 1977-78.)

The most significant fall increases, the president noted, are in the number of transfer and graduate students enrolling at the university.

Transfer students total approximately 840, a 17 percent increase over last fall's figure of 721. The number of graduate students attending WVU is on the rise as well, with approximately 4,360 students enrolled this fall compared to 4,165 in the fall of 1989 — a 5 percent increase.

The number of minority students attending WVU also has increased steadily: approximately 1,056 enrolled this fall compared to about 959 a year ago — a 10 percent increase. Total African-American students, who make up the largest proportion of minority students, grew from 528 to 586 — an 11 percent increase.

Joe DiSimone Presents Program To Civic Club

After a luncheon and business meeting at the Will O' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake, Joe DiSimone, Garrett County register of wills, presented a talk on "Estate Planning and the Living Will". Many questions were asked and explained as they pertained to his office.

Two new members, Lucy Shorb and Eleanor Plachta, were introduced, welcomed, and inducted by President Martha Jachowski.

Yearbooks were distributed and with them all members were asked to complete a volunteer hours sheet and return by the November meeting. All volunteer hours for any organization are to be recorded on these sheets so the club will receive credit.

The 1990-91 operating budget was prepared and presented by Ann Grant, Martha Jachowski, and Shirley Panther. The budget was approved.

A letter of thanks for a donation to the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad was read.

Shirley Panther, Chairperson, reported on the Autumn Glory Antique Show to be held at the National Guard Armory. All booths are filled and schedules are being made for members to work serving food, baked goods and to help make pies at St.

A GLOBAL WALK FOR A LIVABLE WORLD is an effort currently underway involving approximately 80 people who began their trek across America in Los Angeles in February and are expected to arrive in New York City on October 24, United Nations Day. The walk is being conducted to "raise awareness about the environmental crisis and to demonstrate what we can do to reverse the damage already done," according to a spokesperson from the group. Members of the diverse group are shown, above and below, as they enjoyed a break at the Continental Divide in Garrett County along U.S. Rt. 40 on Friday. The walkers, aged two to 72, also include activities such as talks to area schools, churches and civic organizations in their daily agenda as they walk from town to town. One member of the group stated that he was surprised at the almost immediate positive impact they've had on some of the communities they passed through which have now implemented recycling programs, among other positive steps. The walk supports the following concepts: A worldwide ban on chlorofluorocarbons; slowing the rate of global warming and the spread of acid rain by promoting renewable energy and energy efficiency; a halt to global deforestation coupled with a program to plant a billion trees; implementation of strong, effective recycling programs in every community and a ban on packaging materials that are neither recyclable nor biodegradable, and a comprehensive hazardous waste program, emphasizing source reduction, among other things. More information on the group's activities may be obtained by calling Matt Black at 301-264-3060 or Louis Bernstein at 301-777-3212 or 729-3500.

incumbent Elwood L. Groves II, stated that he will also run a write-in campaign in the November general election. He stated that since he and Jon Thayer (also a primary election candidate for the District One seat) earned over 2,000 votes against Groves approximate 1,400 votes, "it would indicate that a write-in campaign would be "a worthwhile effort."

He also told reporters that he would run again because the primary election vote resulted in a nearly 2-1 opposition to the incumbent, that the Democrats should have a choice in the general election, and that he does have support from the Democrats.

Garrett County Board of Elections Supervisor, Fred Sanders, explained that five other Maryland counties are also experiencing a "rash" of write-in campaigns as the result of a number of county or local level incumbents being ousted.

He noted, however, that no one in the state of Maryland had ever won on a write-in campaign.

Sanders stated that although he foresees no major problems with voters following write-in directions, he indicated that canvassing would take a much longer time, and it would most likely take a couple of days before the results would be known.

"Camelot" Set To Be Performed At Potomac State

Highland Arts Unlimited is pleased and proud to announce its production of the musical "Camelot", scheduled for Monday, October 15 at 8 p.m. in the Church-McKee Arts Center on the campus of Potomac State College, Keyser, W.Va.

According to a spokesman for the touring company of 28 performers and 14 musicians, it has been receiving rave reviews in every city where it has performed. Douglas Keating, writing for the Philadelphia Inquirer, commented, "Camelot is a magical romantic comedy. The delightful score, opulent sets and magnificent costumes will enchant all."

Michael Byrne, in the News of Delaware Co., wrote, "Delightful! Willingham plays the king with intensity and warmth... his Arthur is majestically enacted with conviction and spirit. The musical numbers were superbly augmented by the ensemble. Lancelot's 'If Ever I Should Leave You' brought the enthusiastic audience to its feet!"

"Camelot" is based on the T.H. White novel, "The Once and Future King" published in 1958, which tells the legendary story of King Arthur's court and his knights of the Round Table. Alan Jay Lerner wrote the lyrics and Frederick Loewe composed the music for the show which ran for three years on Broadway.

Presented by the Songs of Broadway Company, the production is directed by Forrest J. Willingham, who also plays King Arthur. There are many changes of scenery as the show winds its way through two acts and 18 scenes, using the original Broadway scenery and 180 royal medieval costumes.

Funding for this program is made possible by memberships, with financial assistance from businesses, Potomac State College and through an Arts and Humanities grant from the West Virginia Commission on the Arts, Division of Culture and History.

Tickets can be purchased at the National Bank and the Farmers and Merchants Bank in Keyser and the Ott Music Store in downtown Cumberland, at $14 for adults and $9 for students. Tickets purchased at the box office the evening of the performance will cost an additional dollar for each designation.

The Church-McKee Arts Center is handicapped accessible.

Only a few changes to the draft were suggested by the board members before a motion was made for its approval. The guidelines include suggestions about trips, as well as new rules.

According to the policy, principals are now responsible for ensuring all field trips are integrated with the curriculum currently being taught. The only exception to this are trips scheduled to Camp Hickory, the planetarium, or one "culminating activity" for the highest grade in each school, such as the senior class trip.

Some debate occurred among members concerning the allowance of one swimming or downhill skiing trip during a student's elementary and middle school years. Beverly Murphy, president of the board, felt the ski and swim trips did not fall into the category of "learning experiences," and that those activites should be provided by parents, not the school system.

Charles Teets disagreed, stating that to send a child skiing with the school is much cheaper for parents, giving the child a chance to learn the sport when he/she may not have the opportunity otherwise.

Mikal Moomau stated that she could understand both sides of the debate, but it was felt a valuable activity for the students, based on her experience as a chaperone on the ski trips.

"If you could watch those kids out there on the slopes, you'd see that it's definitely a learning experience for them," she said.

The board then agreed to keep the allowance in the policy.

Other components of the policy include the distance traveled by each grade. One major trip per year will be allowed for pre-k through eighth, a maximum of 120 miles for pre-k through third, and a maximum of 200 for fourth through eighth. Grades nine and up will be allowed an open number of trips, 200 miles and beyond.

The policy also states that parent volunteers are welcome to chaperone the trips. Volunteers will be sought on the basis of one adult (including staff) per approximately five students in pre-k through third, and one adult per ten students, fourth grade and up.

Both the field trip and the fund-raiser policies are on file at the Board of Education office and are available for public examination, according to a staff spokesperson.

Holiday Displays

Board Member Rodney Durst recently addressed the subject of holiday displays in public schools. Durst stated that several school teachers had conveyed to him their understanding that the display of any Christian symbols at Christmas or Easter was prohibited by the state.

Attorney for the board, Leonard Eiswert, who was asked to investigate the issue, explained his findings at the meeting.

According to the lawyer, based on past court cases, a school may indeed display Christian symbols during a holiday on the stipulation that other religions are represented as well. For example, if a Christian nativity scene is depicted, a Jewish menorah should also be shown, as well as traditional seasonal characters such as Santa Claus and the Easter bunny.

"The display should be a balanced one," Eiswert said.

bulb and seed sales.

Another component of the policy advises that children should not be discriminated against as a result of not wanting to participate in fund-raising activities.

Dr. Ryscavage indicated he may develop additional procedures to insure individual school compliance with the new policy.

Field Trip Policy

Another policy was approved by board members which concerns school field trip experiences. The topic of field trips was discussed by the board at the last meeting, and a draft of guidelines was presented at that time by Dr. Ryscavage.

New Hypertension Clinic Is Now Offered At WVU Health Center

In recent years, the West Virginia University School of Medicine has emerged as one of the leading centers of blood pressure research in the eastern United States. A new hypertension clinic at the WVU Health Sciences Center makes this expertise available to patients.

Hypertension, or high blood pressure, affects more than 60 million Americans and is a leading contributor to stroke and heart disease. West Virginia has a particularly high incidence of hypertension, according to health surveys.

"The clinic will focus on the evaluation and management of hypertension," says Dr. Ronald deAndreade Jr., director of the clinic.

"The clinic offers a multi-disciplinary approach to the diagnosis and treatment of all forms of this disease," he said.

"All of the clinic's physicians are involved in each patient's case. We are trying to provide what a single physician cannot," said deAndrade.

Overbeck, who serves as consulting editor of the journal "Hypertension," and Kotchen are nationally known for their research relating to the potential causes of hypertension.

"The origins of hypertension have been attributed to abnormalities in the endocrine, central nervous, cardiac and renal systems, and that is why the multi-disciplinary approach is so important," said deAndrade.

There are two types of hypertension. Essential hypertension, which ususally precedes many other disease symptoms, is usually treatable with diet, lifestyle modification and medication.

Secondary hypertension, which accounts for approximately five percent of all cases, is caused by another underlying disease. It may be "very resistant" but is potentially curable with proper diagnosis.

Some common forms of secondary hypertension include renovascular hypertension, Cushings Syndrome, primary alosteronism and pheochromocytoma, a tumor of the adrenal glands that make hormones.

In addition to the multi-disciplinary approach, the clinic will eventually offer 24-hour ambulatory blood pressure monitoring.

The monitoring involves the placement of a small blood pressure cuff on a patient's arm that records blood pressure over a 24-hour period.

"The device will be extremely important in dealing with 'whitecoat hypertension,'" he explained, which is hypertension that occurs only when a patient is in a doctor's office.

"With the help of the monitor, we will know whether or not these patients need to be treated for high blood pressure," said deAndrade.

"The early successful treatment of hypertension reduces the incidence of strokes and may reduce heart-related problems in the future," he said.

OHS Reunion A Success; Nearly 300 Present

Nearly 300 former Oakland High School students and their spouses gathered at Brodak's on August 18 to attend the first Oakland High School 1908-1952 reunion. Thanks to the efforts of Nina Gnegy Keefer (class of 1938), organizer, the affair is slated to become an annual event. Plans have been made to hold the reunion every year on the second Saturday in August, at a place to be announced at a later date.

The earliest class represented at the reunion was that of 1920, its member being Mary Bowman Browning.

Other early class members were Carl Everly, George Hanst, and Fred William Reis, 1922; Katherine Stevenson Helbig, 1923; Ruth Lawton Martin, 1924; Nellie White Swartzentruber, 1925; John Wolfe, 1926; Myrtle White Durben and Carlton Bowser, 1927; and the following group from 1928: Evelyn Hinebaugh McIntire, Beryldine Fulk Stanton, Irva Ashby Reedy, Thurl Tower, Mary Grace Shirer Umstot, and Mary Gonder Pollock.

Later years' classes were represented by the following numbers of people: 1930 (3), 1931 (4), 1932 (5), 1933 (5), 1934 (5), 1936 (9), 1937 (5), 1938 (11), 1939 (11), 1940 (11), 1941 (9), 1942 (6), 1943 (9), 1944 (11), 1945 (6), 1946 (7), 1947 (14), 1948 (6), 1949 (8), 1950 (2), 1951 (14), and 1952 (13).

Class members came from many different states, including Maryland, Tennessee, California, Florida, Ohio, Indiana, New York, West Virginia, Virginia and Washington, D.C.

Master of ceremonies for the evening was Judge Fred A. Thayer, who distributed gifts that had been donated by the following establishments and individuals: Foodland, Dee Ann's, Helbig's Jewelry, Hometown Market, Farmers' Market, Bausch & Lomb, Rudy's, Gregg's Pharmacy, Eberly/Wood Distributors, Clyde A. Gnegy, Clara & Katherine Sukow, Cindy Tasker, Lenora's Fabric, members of the class of 1952, Flowers by Webers, and Green Acres. Coca-Cola also donated two large banners which can be kept and used from year to year.

Joe DeSimone and Rev. John Grant led the group in singing "America the Beautiful" and the Oakland High School song, followed by a memorial for deceased members and the invocation by Rev. Grant. A buffet dinner was then served, after which members danced to music from the 1930s, 40s, and 50s. The disc jockey was Dave Zimmerman.

Because of the large number of alumni present, class photos were taken in four groups: 1920-1935, 1936-1941, 1942-1947, and 1948-1952. Copies of the photos, which appear on this page, may be purchased from James Crabtree Photography; they are $8.00 for an 8x10.

Southern-Style Black-Eyed Peas

What would a good, Southern supper be without these? As a main dish or a side dish, this recipe takes away the salty ham and keeps all of the hearty flavor.

1 lb.	dried black-eyed peas	4 oz.	smoke-flavored lean ham, visible fat removed, diced
½	medium onion, diced
1	medium carrot, thinly sliced
1	serrano pepper, seeded and thinly sliced (optional)	5 cups	water

Crockpot directions: Rinse peas under cold running water. Place all ingredients in crockpot. Cook on low setting 8 to 10 hours, or until peas are tender.

Stove-top directions: Place all ingredients in a large saucepan or Dutch oven. Add two additional cups of water. Bring to a boil and skim off any foam. Reduce heat to medium-low. Cover and simmer 2 hours, or until peas are tender.

Serve hot over white rice.

Serves 4 (as a main dish); 1½ cups per serving.

TO FIND REFUGE...

Lightning flashes across the sky. Thunder unleashes its ominous rumblings. The first spatter of rain falls briskly on a nearby row of rocks.

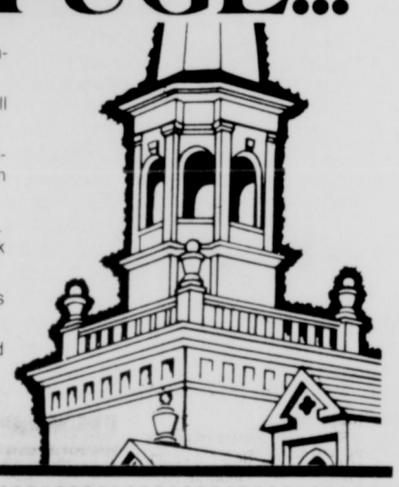

The wind begins an eerie song high above in the swaying tops of tall pines. Sullen banks of clouds blanket the pale moon.

The creatures of the woods scurry to their dens to wait out the approaching storm. Every living thing in the forest seems to be holding its breath . . . in anticipation . . . or in fear.

And this is the way of the world, too. There will always be anxiety . . . always fear. Where, then, do we go for refuge? To what or to whom do we look for comfort and safety?

For centuries God's house has offered protection against the adversities of life. It has provided solace and peace in the presence of grief and fear.

Come to the House of the Lord . . . while the storm is raging . . . and forever thereafter.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE "DIRTY WORK"

September 23, 1990

Background Scripture: 1 Kings 21
Devotional Reading: Psalms 36

I used to know a husband and wife who were as different as day and night. The man was mild-mannered, undemanding, and generally accomodating to people. His wife, on the other hand, was very strong-minded and demanding. Those of us who knew them used to marvel at how different they were. The husband was usually regarded as "Mr. Nice Guy" and his wife gained a reputation quite to the contrary.

At times, we were curious when the husband would turn over to his wife a response that he could just as well have made himself. Eventually, some of us began to conclude that the husband sometimes used his wife to achieve what he wanted without having to bear himself the stigma for her words and actions. This man had learned to a perfection letting someone else do the dirty work.

SULKING FOR PROFIT

The story of Ahab, Jezebel and Naboth is thousands of years old, but is very contemporary in terms of human emotions and motivations. Ahab wanted Naboth's vineyard for himself, but he would not use his power as king to secure it. So, having failed to convince Naboth, Ahab used his tried-and-true tactic of sulking. "And he lay down on his bed, and turned away his face, and would eat no food" (21:4). You can believe that Ahab would not sulk if he hadn't already found in the past that it got him his way. If you have ever tried sulking—as I have—you've found that there's no point to it if someone doesn't respond to it!

He knew his wife Jezebel. "Why is your spirit so vexed that you eat no food?" she wanted to know. Ah, the very question he hoped she would ask! He sounds like a spoiled brat as he tells Jezebel that Naboth won't give him his vineyard. And Jezebel responds exactly as he had hoped: "Arise, and eat bread, and let your heart be cheerful; I will give you the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite" (21:7).

WHOSE STORY?

So, Jezebel, who did not fear God as Ahab did, solved the problem quickly and directly: she had Naboth unjustly charged and stoned to death. Returning triumphantly to her husband, she says: "Arise, take possession of the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, which he refused to give you for money (see, it was his fault for not accepting your offer); for Naboth is not alive, but dead" (21:15).

This was the crucial point for Ahab. He could have said, "No, no, I didn't mean for you to go that far!" But, because the evil deed was done by his wife and not himself, Ahab feels no remorse and "as soon as Ahab heard that Naboth was dead...arose to go down to the vineyard of Naboth, the Jezreelite, to take possession of it" (21:15).

Of course, by now you should be aware that this story is not really about Ahab and Jezebel as much as it is about you and me. Are there not times when we, too, allow someone else to do our dirty work? Other people who we can manipulate? Our company? Our city government? Our nation?

Ahab thought he had kept his hands clean, but he was wrong. Take a look at yours.

SOME MEDICINES NEED SPECIAL PROTECTION

You know what happens to a delicious custard if you permit it to be exposed for some time in a warm place. It can turn into a dangerous killer. Therefore, you refrigerate custards to prevent this. Many medicines must be protected against a similar change or they too can be harmful.

Pharmacists are taught at college how to store all medicines and to date those which lose potency after a certain time. Some of them must be kept away from heat or light. Others we keep refrigerated till ready for use. When dispensing such medicines which are subject to change we will always inform you if there are any precautions you must observe.

PBS begins fall season with 'The Civil War'

Documentary a television event

By Anne Wheeler

No, there are no on-screen performances by favorite big name stars as there were in The Blue And The Gray or in Roots: The Next Generations. But this retelling of the Civil War era may have just as big of an impact on television audiences.

The Civil War, an 11-hour General Motors Mark of Excellence documentary detailing the events surrounding the war, will kick off PBS' 1990-91 season when it airs on five consecutive nights beginning Sunday, Sept. 23.

Based on five years of research and more than 150 hours of footage of photographs and interviews with historians, the series conveys the tone of the nation during the 1860s. However the views brought out are not just from the big name players like Ulysses S. Grant, Robert E. Lee and Abraham Lincoln. This program goes beyond that to reflect the lives of average men.

The Civil War is not a dramatization, but rather a retelling of the 1860s through photographs, lithographs, headlines and diaries of the time. About two dozen stars—from Hoyt Axton to Sam Waterston—lend their voices to the words found in diaries and letters.

Adding vivid realism to The Civil War is commentator Shelby Foote, a Southern novelist who interrupted his career for 20 years to research and write the critically acclaimed definitive history of the war, The Civil War: A Narrative, a landmark three-volume work.

Through his narration in this series, Foote makes not only the war come to life, but also human events that were shaping the era. © TV Listing Inc

Filmmaker Ken Burns (seated) and author/commentator Shelby Foote bring to life PBS' The Civil War to be broadcast Sunday through Thursday.

'Tonight Show' celebrates 28th year

Fred de Cordova still with show

By Amy Schmidt

Between monologues and Carnac the Magnificent skits, Johnny Carson will seek to embarrass his producer of 21 years, Fred de Cordova, by instructing the show's cameramen to pan over de Cordova's way. Used to being off-camera and out of the limelight, Fred good-naturedly tolerates Johnny's prank, and fires back a couple of quick one-liners.

De Cordova denies being embarrassed by such stunts, however: "No, I'm not embarrassed. I had an unsuccessful career as an actor before I became a producer, so I don't mind the attention when it comes my way." Thursday, Sept. 27, the The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson marks its 28th year on NBC, and you can be sure Fred de Cordova will be there, off-camera, the minion of Carnac the Magnificent.

Film clip funnies of guests Don Rickles, Bob Newhart, Dana Carvey, Deborah Norville and Kirstie Alley will be edited together for the prime-time anniversary special. Other highlights include a "strange acts" segment in which a woman plays a nose flute and a man plays a piano with juggling balls, and a look at the comics that have appeared on the show in the last year.

No one needs to be told that The Tonight Show is the longest-running, most successful talk show of all time, and that Carson is the highest paid talk show host. One tabloid, joking that Carson makes a lot of money for working only three days a week, quipped that sidekick Ed McMahon should start saying "Wheeeeere's Johnny?" at the beginning of each show.

But, says de Cordova of the show's success, "If there is any one single reason, it would be Carson."

Carson couldn't get the job done without the help of de Cordova, though. De Cordova is an accomplished producer and director. He has been nominated for 16 Emmy Awards and has captured four. He directed former President Ronald Reagan in Bedtime for Bonzo, and directed Bonzo Goes To College. He has directed or produced such shows as The Burns And Allen Show, The Jack Benny Program, and My Three Sons.

Says de Cordova of his relationship with Carson, "We've known each other for so long, and we, happily, think alike a good deal of the time ... our senses of humor are rather identical. We both get the same ecstatic or queasy feelings about how something is going."

Don't let de Cordova fool you on the acting bit, though. In 1983 he played a producer of a late-night talk show in the film The King Of Comedy, which stars Robert De Niro as a maniacal kidnapper who abducts talk show host Jerry Lewis. Ironically, despite de Cordova's association with De Niro on the film, De Niro declines to appear on The Tonight Show which has eagerly sought him. Apparently, he doesn't do talk shows, he just makes movies about them.

Celebrating the 28th anniversary of NBC's Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson, Carson is joined by his loyal supporters Doc Severinsen (left) and Ed McMahon (right) in a special prime-time program airing Thursday.

Veronica Hamel stars as a rape victim, who becomes the defendant when her attacker (Judd Hirsch) files a slander suit, in She Said No, Sunday on NBC.

'She Said No' shows rape victim's ordeal

Subject important to Veronica Hamel

Mary Ann Townsend

Veronica Hamel returns to television Sunday, Sept. 23, in a powerful movie that is close to her heart.

The actress stars in NBC's She Said No as a victim of acquaintance rape who is raped not only physically but emotionally.

In a departure from his Dear John character, Judd Hirsch plays the rapist, an otherwise respected attorney who wins the criminal trial, then turns around and sues for defamation of character in a civil trial. Lee Grant plays the prosecuting attorney.

Hamel, a board member of the Santa Monica Rape Treatment Center in real life, said the story paints an all-too-real picture of the skepticism rape victims often face.

"Your credibility and believability, particularly with acquaintance rape, is very varied from stranger rape. Your judgement's in question, you know, 'why were you there?' and all those old hackneyed, inaccurate things that even prosecuting attorneys use for rapists, 'What was she wearing?' 'why was she there?'—again dumped on the victm, as if your mode of dress or the hour you were out condones someone violating your body," the actress said.

She Said No is Hamel's first TV movie since 1983's Sessions. In addition to this film, the former Hill Street Blues star has been working on a story idea that is set to begin pre-production in November as a Hallmark Hall of Fame presentation. She was seen this summer in the feature film Getting Down To Business with Charles Grodin and James Belushi. © TV Listing Inc

Gil Gerard, as skilled surgeon John Harding, leads the E.A.R.T.H. Force Saturdays on CBS.

John Hillerman makes the move with The Hogan Family to CBS, airing on Saturdays.

TIME OUT

NBC roster of announcers top of line

By Steve Paschal

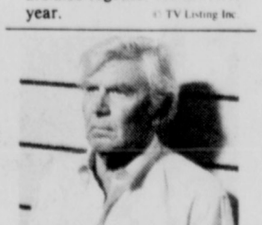

While the National Football League is entering its eighth decade of competition since Fritz Pollard and Elgie Tobin led the Akron Pros to the first championship in 1920, NBC is celebrating its 26th consecutive season of bringing viewers live coverage of regular and post-season professional football games.

Since 1965, NBC Sports has presented every AFL/AFC playoff and championship game and has televised 11 of the 24 Super Bowls played since the old National and American Football Leagues merged. NBC began its tradition of NFL coverage in 1961 by televising Green Bay's 37-0 victory over the New York Giants in the league championship game.

NBC's coverage of the AFC this season promises to be more comprehensive than ever before.

Returning for their second year as NBC Sports' No. 1 broadcast team are Dick Enberg and former San Francisco 49ers coach Bill Walsh. They will be in the broadcast booth during each Sunday's main game during the regular season, and for the playoffs and AFC championship game.

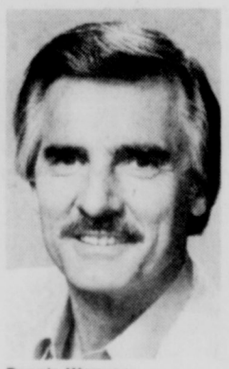

Entering his 31st season of pro football play-by-play, the most in the history of sports television, is Charlie Jones. This season Jones is joined in the booth by former Dallas Cowboy and Oakland Raider tight end Todd Christensen, in his first year of NFL analysis for NBC. Former Cincinnati Bengals receiver Chris Collingsworth, another first-year analyst, is teamed with play-by-play announcer Jim Donovan, while veteran Joel Myers and Ahmad Rashad are also together for the first year. © TV Listing Inc

Andy Griffith is accused of murdering a judge, Tuesday on NBC's Matlock.

Dennis Weaver has unique way of alleviating stress

Dennis Weaver (McCloud) has his own brand of "stress depressors." Weaver finds raising llamas at his ranch in Colorado rewarding in many ways. "You go out there and you're all stressed out or you've got a problem. You just stand amongst the llamas and you look into those soulful eyes and you begin to feel good, everything seems to be OK then. That's why I call them my 'stress depressors.'"

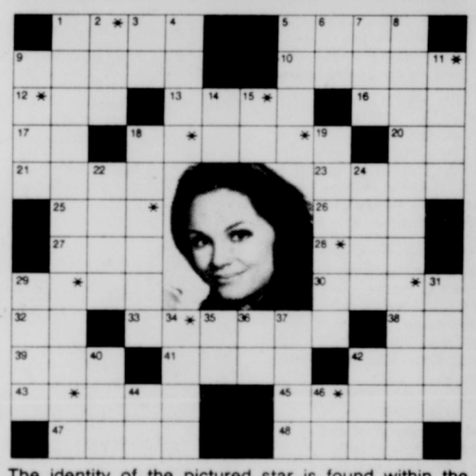

Dennis Weaver

The critically acclaimed one-hour CBS drama series, Wiseguy, has begun production for its fourth season. Steven Bauer has joined the returning regulars Jonathan Banks and Jim Byrnes as disbarred federal prosecutor Michael Santana, a Cuban-American with troubled ties who goes to work for the feds.

Judi Evans, who plays Adrienne Johnson-Kiriakis, has told producers of Days Of Our Lives that she will not renew her contract in November.

Charlie Brown and his "Peanuts" pals were among the recipients of the National Education Association Award for the Advancement of Learning through Broadcasting for their animated special Why, Charlie Brown, Why? telecast in March. In the special, the "Peanuts" gang is confronted with the reality of a child who faces and ultimately beats leukemia. The special was developed in cooperation with the American Cancer Society.

Michael Nesmith declined reuniting with The Monkees

By Polly Vonetes

Michael Nesmith

Q: Are all the Monkees still alive? What are they doing now? Also what is the name of an old movie starring John Barrymore as Gramps and Beulah Bondi as Grandma, who are raising their grandson Pug, and Gramps accidentally traps "Death" in an apple tree? —Linda Mitchell, Griffith, Ind.

A: As of this writing the Monkees are all alive. Mickey Dolenz, David Jones and Peter Thorkelson came out of retirement about four years ago and resumed their careers together. They are on tour, traveling in separate buses with their own families. Mike Nesmith, now a producer of videos and films, chose not to join the tour. Incidentally he inherited at least $25 million from his mother, who invented liquid paper. The film you requested is called On Borrowed Time. It was released in 1939 by MGM, and also starred Cedric Hardwicke, Una Merkel and Bobs Watson.

Q: I just had to write this letter to you and wanted to know if by chance I could get the address of Arnold Schwarzenegger. He was born in Austria in a small town not very far from Graz, Austria. That is where I was born 83 years ago. I heard him on Entertainment Tonight and he told the people about himself. I sure would be grateful for this. —Mrs. Hilda Bolin, Aztec, N.M.

A: The address I have for Arnold Schwarzenegger is: P.O. Box 1234, Santa Monica, CA 90406. I hope this works for you.

Q: I watch Blair Brown in Days And Nights Of Molly Dodd on Lifetime. On the show, she used to work in a bookstore for a man named Moss (played by David Strathairn). What is Moss' last name? I can't remember it and it is driving me crazy! —Maura Farrow, Plano, Texas

A: Well now, we can't have you going crazy over such a simple matter. Moss' last name is Goodman. If you have any other problems just give us a "holler."

Q: I recently read an article about Joe Penny and William Conrad having health problems. Joe had a mystery illness that made him lose weight dramatically and William had to have prostate surgery. Because of their health problems the show, Jake And The Fatman might be finished. I need to know how both of them are doing now and are they returning to the show? —Veronica Velasco, Anchorage, Alaska

A: I haven't any official word on the health problems the stars of Jake and the Fatman may have had. The series is returning in the fall with all new episodes. A major change will involve their return to the mainland. They will no longer film in Hawaii.

Please send your questions about television past and present to: Polly Vonetes, TV Pipeline, P.O. Box 17748, Fort Worth, Texas 76102-0748. Because of the volume of mail, only questions of general interest will be answered.

HOROSCOPE

September 23 through September 29

By C.C. Clark

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22)
New plans will thrive this week and you will feel very lucky. Remember that plans only work when there is action behind them and you have what it takes to make it happen.

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21)
Trust and act on your instincts concerning personal matters this week. Add the final touches to travel plans to ensure a safe and comfortable trip.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21)
You should be careful not to act too drastically in the presence of children or the elderly. You will frighten and worry them. It is time to experience new environments.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)
Quick decisions are likely to get you into trouble this week. Think things through carefully and know that the answer is right there in your head.

AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18)
Don't let your domestic environment get you down. Ask for help, even demand it if you must. Family members don't realize how much pressure you are under. Tell them!

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)
Don't cater to worries this week, they just cause negative energy. Agreements or proposals at work will get the green light and you will be successful in your endeavors.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)
Communication takes the spotlight this week. Verbal and written words can have a serious impact on your future, and it is important that you check all facts and figures twice.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)
Time spent alone will allow you to think more freely and clearly about problems that have been nagging you lately. You need to establish order in your work environment.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)
Financial undertakings should be well thought out. Get an expert's opinion if you are unsure about anything. It is important for you to feel a part of a team this week.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)
Determination and persistence will pay off in big ways this week. Though it is sometimes difficult for you to understand a loved one's denial, it is important to try.

LEO (July 23 - August 22)
Head for the straight and narrow this week and don't deviate from the plan. There are certain things that must be accomplished, and you will do it in record time.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22)
A letter will give you valuable information to be used at a later date. Don't fool yourself into thinking that everything you hear is true. Someone may be playing a joke.

MSP Med-Evac Choppers Flying More This Year

The Maryland State Police Aviation Division has logged a 24 percent increase in the number of emergency medical evacuation flights during the first seven months of 1990.

"We have flown 2,282 Med-Evac missions during the first seven months of this year," stated Major Charles R. Hutchins, Commander, Aviation Division. "There were 1,838 Med-Evac missions during the same period during 1989," Major Hutchins added. Appearing on the Maryland State Police Radio Program, a weekly public service radio broadcast, Hutchins attributed the surge to an increase in the chances of survival among critically injured accident victims.

"People are more aware of the life saving benefits of safety belts," added Major Hutchins. "Their chances of survival have been improved considerably."

The Maryland State Police Aviation Division has logged approximately 40,000 Med-Evac flights since 1970. The Med-Evac flights are among the 170,000 law enforcement and search and rescue missions. The Aviation Division provides round-the-clock service from eight helicopter sections strategically located around the state. The Aviation Division has gained national recognition for its role in the Med-Evac program in cooperation with the Maryland institute for Emergency Medical Services Systems (MIEMSS).

Governor William Donald Schaefer has proclaimed Emergency Medical Services Week in Maryland during September 16 through 22, 1990. During EMS Week, the Aviation Division will be recognized for its "outstanding life-saving services" to the citizens of Maryland.

The Aviation Law Enforcement Association has named Trooper First Class Bart Gottschall as pilot of the year. TFC Gottschall, assigned to the Aviation Division's Frederick Section, has been recognized for a heroic life-saving water rescue over the raging water of the Potomac River in Harpers Ferry, W.Va. TFC Gottschall and flight paramedic TFC Steven F. Proctor are credited with saving the lives of 12 people who were rescued from the water after several canoes capsized during a three-day river excursion.

Retired Sergeant Jimmy F. Walker and Trooper Kevin M. Straight recently received Governor's Commendations for a life-saving water rescue on the Occoquan River in Virginia.

The Aviation Division has completed advanced training and certification requirements for all pilots and flight paramedics. State Police pilots have earned instruments flight ratings and several pilots have been upgraded to instrument flight instructors. State Police flight Paramedics are now registered as EMT-P (Emergency Medical Technicians-Paramedics).

The Maryland State Police Radio Program is a weekly public service broadcast carried on approximately 50 radio stations in Maryland and the District of Columbia. The program is supported by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and the Maryland Department of Transportation.

THE CONVINCER — In conjunction with Emergency Medical Services Week, the Region I EMS Advisory Council presented to Garrett and Allegany county businesses, demonstrations of the Seat Belt Convincer. The Convincer, on loan from Don Beyer Motors, Inc., Falls Church, Va., simulates an eight-MPH car crash and the importance of seat belt use. Al Ward, pictured left, a cardiac rescue technician with the city of Cumberland Fire Department, and a member of the Region I EMS Advisory Council, donated his time and vehicle in transporting the Convincer throughout the region. Companies which utilized the Convincer services included: C&P Telephone Company of Maryland, Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Garrett Community College, Bausch and Lomb, Inc.; Memorial Hospital and Medical Center, Cumberland; Sacred Heart Hospital, Frostburg Community Hospital, Frostburg State University and Allegany Community College. The Convincer, on loan from the Washington, D.C. Police Department, is being taken to high schools in Garrett and Allegany counties this week. Mixer Night Planned By Mtn. Top Promenaders

The Mountain Top Promenaders Square Dance Club has planned a Mixer Night for Monday, Sept. 24, from 7 to 9 p.m. at Dennett Road School gymnasium.

A spokesman for the group said the purpose of the evening is to show new couples what Western Style square dancing "is all about." The evening is free, and refreshments will be served.

If enough couples are interested, the spokesman said, square dance classes will begin in October, to be held on Monday nights from 7 until 9 p.m.

The Promenaders have several activities planned for this fall, including a street dance in front of Proudfoot's Oakland Pharmacy on Saturday, October 13. The dance will be held from 11 a.m. until 12:30 p.m., before the Autumn Glory Festival parade.

The club's Festival Dance will be held on Sunday, Oct. 14, at Southern Middle School from 2 until 5 p.m. Spectators are welcome, the spokesman said.

Plans for a Halloween dance and party are also underway. Bob Boswell, a caller from Cumberland, is the scheduled guest.

A Christmas dinner and dance event is planned for December.

Persons requesting more information may contact Doug Buckley at 334-9253, or Doyle Biser at 334-9724.

Mikulski Backs Anti-Profiteering Act Of 1990

A bill to restrict gasoline price gouging and other profiteering was introduced last week in the U.S. Senate and the U.S. House of Representatives. Responding to gasoline price hikes following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, the National Emergency Anti-Profiteering Act of 1990 would give the President the power to declare a national economic emergency and impose civil and criminal penalties for price gouging on essential commodities. Senator Barbara A. Mikulski (D-MD), who cosponsored the bill, noted that "within hours of Iraq's assault on Kuwait, oil companies were raiding American pocketbooks.

"If you are stealing from the American people," Senator Mikulski said, "whether you use a gas pump or a gun, you ought to do hard time." She went on to call for "economic patriotism" from the private sector, saying that "we drew a line in the sand to protect American lives and hostages, and we should draw a line in the law to protect our own pocketbooks."

Introduced by Senator Joseph I. Lieberman (D-CT), the bill has generated bi-partisan support. Citing the devastating impact that continued sharp increases could have on the economy, Congressional supporters urged speedy consideration of the legislation.

Starting A Small Business Classes Slated AT GCC

A class planned to meet the special needs of those who manage small businesses is scheduled to begin October 3 at Garrett Community College. Success in a small business can be highly dependent on effective financing, marketing, personnel, recordkeeping and customer service, according to a GCC spokesman. This class will focus on each of these areas as well as management of working capital, inventory and growth.

The class is designed to help business owners and managers develop management skills in a practical manner. It will be held on six consecutive Wednesdays, from October 3 through November 7, from 6 to 9:15 p.m. at the McHenry campus.

This class is part of a series of GCC classes planned to offer practical learning experiences which can immediately be "put to work" in business. It is co-sponsored by the Continuing Education Division of GCC, the Small Business Administration, and the Western Maryland Small Business Development Center.

Anyone wishing to register for these courses or obtain additional information should call the Continuing Education Division of the college at 387-6666, ext. 169.

Mountain Square Dance Slated At St. Mark's Church

An old-time Mountain Square Dance, sponsored by St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Oakland, will be held Friday, September 21, from 8-11 p.m. at the church located on Second Street in Oakland.

Live, authentic Appalachian square dance music will be presented and Martha Tyner from Elkins, W.Va., will be the caller.

The cost is $3 per couple or $5 per family. Refreshments will be served.

The public is invited to attend.

Rev. Kauffman To Be Installed

All interested persons are invited to attend the Glade Mennonite Church on September 30, as they license and install their new pastor, Alan Kauffman, who has been serving as Glade's full-time pastor since August 1.

Rev. Kauffman, his wife, Nancy, and their boys, Nate, 11, and Matt, 9, moved into the area the beginning of July from Hesston, Kansas, where Kauffman recently graduated from Hesston College with a degree in pastoral ministries.

Before their time in Kansas, the Kauffmans lived in the Belleville, Pa., area, approximately 150 miles northeast of Accident. There Rev. Kauffman had worked as an assembler for 12½ years at the Ford New Holland plant, located in Belleville. Mrs. Kauffman worked at a bank in the area until having children. While in Kansas, she worked at a medical clinic as a medical records clerk.

The Kauffmans enjoy camping, taking walks in the mountains, and playing table games. Nate and Matt both enjoy playing with friends, collecting baseball cards, and riding bikes. Nancy's hobbies include gardening, stitching/sewing, and many other craft related activities. Rev. Kauffman spends his free time hunting, golfing, biking, and taking photos.

The Kauffmans described their first few months in Garrett County as "enjoyable and interesting as we have met and learned to know so many fine people here. This is also such a beautiful part of the country."

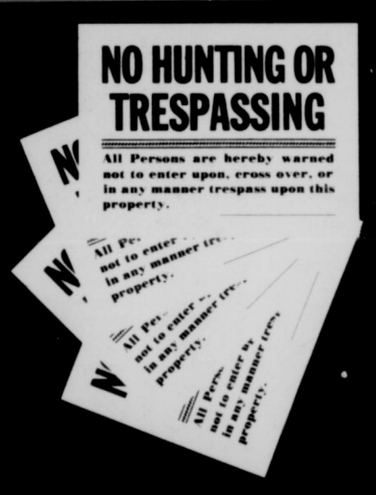

The Sept. 30 service will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the Glade Mennonite Church, located approximately ¼ mile west of Rock Lodge Road on the Accident/Bittinger Road. All are welcome to attend. Persons who have questions about the service may call the church office between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and noon any weekday.

He is also a well-known author, world traveler, editor of the BRF Witness, and on the staff of Brethren Revival Fellowship. He is a former high school teacher, served on the Brotherhood General Board, was an Annual Conference Bible Study teacher, and has preached in all of the denomination's 24 districts as well as Canada, Jamaica, India and the Philippines.

The message will focus especially on Christian duty, with at least one sermon giving Bible teaching on some of the doctrinal instructions of the Bible, along with Bible teaching about some of the practices unique to the Brethren. All are invited to attend, according to William C. Shimer, pastor.

Stroke Club To Meet Tomorrow

Terry Wolff, chairman of the Allegany County Stroke Club, announced that the Club will meet this Friday, September 21, at 1 p.m. The guest speaker will be Dr. Riaz Janjua, a neurologist at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland. The subject of his talk will be, "Recognizing the Early Signs of a Stroke."

Those attending should note a change in the location of the September meeting. The meeting will be held in the club room of the Kensington-Algonquin Senior Housing at No. 1 Baltimore Street, Cumberland. Ample parking is available at the rear of the building. Directional signs will be posted. The club room is accessible from the parking lot by cane, walker, or wheelchair.

B&L DONATES BINOCULARS — The Eyewear Division of Bausch and Lomb, Oakland, donated 10 pairs of binoculars to the Allegany County Hazardous Material Coordinator Program recently. The Bushnell 7 x 35 binoculars will be used by the coordinators when responding to Hazmat incidents or spills. Chuck Wood, leader of the group, stated, "When responding to chemical spills or accidents involving dangerous substances, it is imperative that our people know exactly what they are dealing with. The binoculars, donated by Bausch and Lomb, will allow them to safely read the content placards on trains or truck tankers at a safe distance, assuring an appropriate response without endangering fire or rescue personnel." Federal legislation, enacted in 1986, requires that all counties in the nation develop emergency response hazardous material plans. In Allegany County, this task has been undertaken by a planning group led by Carl Belt Jr. and endorsed by the Allegany County Commissioners. Their plan calls for hazardous material coordinators to assist local fire departments and rescue services in the management of hazardous spills until designated teams can respond from outside the area to provide definite containment and clean up. The coordinators for Allegany County include Chuck Wood, Al Ward, Tim Growden, Jeff Grogg, John Hanson, Ian Reikie, and Gary Uncapher. In the photo, left to right, are David P. Ramsey, Region I EMS administrator; Chuck Wood, MFRI senior instructor and chief Hazmat coordinator; Butch Sumpter, Bausch and Lomb material manager; and Al Ward, Allegany County hazardous material coordinator. Persons desiring more information about the Allegany County Hazardous Material Program, which aids Garrett County, may contact Wood at 724-4970 or Owen Morris, Allegany County Civil Defense at 777-7114.

Mikulski Backs Bill To Extend Industrial Bonds

Maryland U.S. Senator Barbara A. Mikulski has announced that she is the cosponsor of a bill to extend for five years the small issue industrial development bond program.

Under provisions of the law, small and medium size businesses can obtain financing at less than market rates through government sponsored tax-exempt bond issues. State and local governments issue tax-exempt revenue bonds to raise the funds that are in turn loaned to businesses to finance construction of new plants or the expansion and modernization of existing facilities. The program will expire September 30 unless Congress acts to extend it.

"This is a great program for Maryland," Senator Mikulski said. "It's tested, proven and effective. For a few dollars in lost tax revenue, we get new jobs, a stronger economy, and a jump start in the competitive world marketplace. That's an investment I don't want to miss."

The Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development (DEED) has urged the state's congressional delegation to support extension of the bond program.

In a letter to Senator Mikulski and other members of the Maryland delegation in Congress, Benjamin L. Hackerman, executive director of the Maryland Industrial Development Financing Authority, said, "It is critical that we get this program extended. It is an important economic development tool that has helped create literally thousands of jobs in our state."

As an example of the job growth possible through use of Small Issue Industrial Development Bonds, Hackerman said that a Baltimore City bakery was able to increase employment by 65 jobs after receiving a $1.9 million expansion loan under the program.

Senator Mikulski joined as a cosponsor of legislation introduced by Senator Richard Bryan, (Democrat, Nevada). She joins 23 cosponsors. A companion bill has been introduced in the House of Representatives by Representative Ronnie Flippo (Democrat, Alabama).

The program was first introduced under a bill enacted in 1986 and extended last year for nine months. It is estimated that the lost tax revenues under the proposed bill will be $10 million in the first year and up to $600 million over a period of five years. The lost revenue will be more than offset by business and employment taxes resulting from economic expansion stimulated by the program.

Maryland Closes Year With $4.5 Million Surplus

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said the state of Maryland closed fiscal year 1990 on June 30, 1990, with an unobligated general fund surplus of $4,567,108. The state collected 99.5% of the revenue it expected. The remaining revenue necessary to pay for state expenditures came from the previous year's funds and unspent fiscal year 1990 funds reverted to the treasury by state agencies.

"This is the first time since fiscal year 1983 that revenue collections have not quite met estimates, but it shows the importance of maintaining a surplus in good years to help the state meet its obligations in more uncertain times," Goldstein said. "A 99.5% accurate revenue estimate is outstanding considering the uncertainties in the economy that have developed during the past fiscal year."

The fiscal year 1990 surplus resulted largely from higher than expected revenue from the state lottery, the tax on insurance companies, financial recoveries from hospital patients and sponsors and death taxes.

Goldstein cautioned, however, that Maryland's economy and revenues were affected in the second half of the fiscal year by slowing construction activity, consumer confidence and spending, banking and savings & loan credit tightening, which primarily affected sales taxes, income taxes, the property transfer tax and the tax on the net earnings of financial institutions.

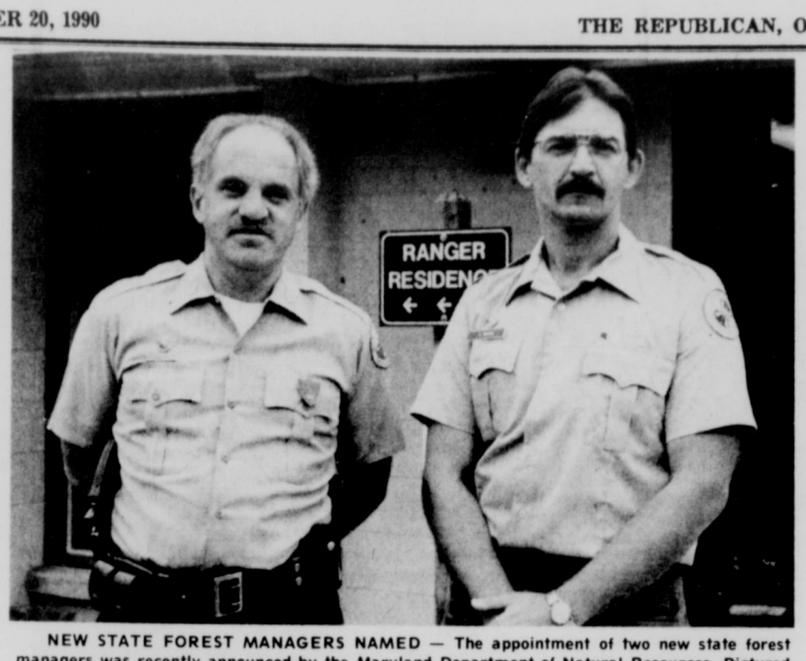

According to the comptroller, state lottery revenues exceeded estimates by more than $11 million, totaling almost $311.3 million in revenue for the fiscal year.

"While Maryland's broad-based economy helps to shield us from the dramatic economic ups and downs experienced by many of our sister states, the national economic conditions resulted in lower than expected revenue from corporation income tax, sales and use tax, individual income tax and interest on investments," Goldstein said.

Corporation income tax revenue was $27.3 million less than expected, reflecting a combination of the national corporate profits picture and refunds paid to corporations because of loss carryback provisions of Maryland tax law, which generate additional refunds of state taxes.

Sales and use tax also produced less than expected revenue, with the general merchandise and furniture, fixtures and appliances categories showing less and less growth as the fiscal year unfolded. The building and contractors category showed only slight growth throughout the year, posting actual declines in January and February 1990, compared with the same months of the previous year.

"The continuing concern about the national economy, together with the uncertainties of the Persian Gulf situation, make it necessary for us to monitor revenues especially closely over the next several months, and conserve the state's financial resources, just as we would our own," Goldstein concluded.

NEW STATE FOREST MANAGERS NAMED — The appointment of two new state forest managers was recently announced by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources. Pictured above, left, is Steve Hamilton, new manager of Potomac and Garrett State Forests. A native of Michigan, Hamilton has been assistant forest manager at Savage River State Forest for the past 13 years, and resides in the county with his wife Ellinor, daughters Valerie and Avery, and son Jonathan. He has been a paramedic with the Northern Rescue Squad for 14 years and is a competitive long-distance runner. Management direction and goals for the forest, he said, are "to manage the state forest for recreation, aesthetics, wildlife and timber with primary concern for the environment and the forest resource." At right is Larry Maxim, a native of Pennsylvania, who is the new forest manager at Savage River State Forest. He was formerly employed by the West Virginia Division of Forestry for four years where he conducted forestry and related research projects. He was also project forester in Washington County for three years for the CFM Program. Maxim noted that his management direction would be to"pursue a sustainable multiple use management approach that provided the greatest amount of benefit to the largest number of people. He resides near Swanton with his wife Joanne and son Nicholas, and daughter Caroline. He enjoys hunting, fishing and gardening.

Building Permits Down Across Md.; Up In Garrett Co.

While the overall number of permits issued for new construction in Maryland for the first seven months of 1990 has decreased only slightly, applications for permits for single-family construction have dropped by more than 12 percent, signaling a slowing economy, according to the Maryland Office of Planning.

Recent data released by the office show that during the January-July reporting period of this year, 21,670 permits were issued for new housing construction in Maryland. The 1990 total represents an eight-tenths of a percent decrease compared to the same reporting period in 1989 when 21,834 permits were issued.

A total of 15,078 permits for single-family homes were issued during January-July in 1990, 12.1 percent fewer than the 17,158 issued during the same 1989 reporting period. During the 1980s, single-family housing construction accounted for about 80 percent of all new housing construction, but for the first seven months of 1990 only 69.6 percent of all construction was for single-family homes.

In Garrett County, there was a 36.3% increase in total housing unit activity over the past year, in contrast to the statewide drop. The total number of housing permits for the January-July 1990 period was 27-8, as compared to the 204 issued in the same period in 1989. The number of single-family home building permits rose by 10 from 192 in 1989 to 202 in 1990. This is an increase of 5.2%. However, the percentage of single-family home permits to total permits went down from 94.1% in 1989 to 72.7% in 1990.

"For the past several months economists have been forecasting a slower economy. The drop in single-family housing construction activity is tangible evidence of a slowdown in this sector of our economy," Office of Planning Director Ronald M. Kreitner said.

The decrease in overall permit authorizations would have been significantly larger had it not been for a surge of units authorized for construction of multi-family structures during January. In January a total of 3,283 units were authorized, approximately ten times the normal January rate.

This surge in multi-family unit authorizations appears to have been influenced by federal housing legislation requiring new multi-family housing to include specific design elements to enhance the building's accessibility. The large number of January authorizations may indicate some builders decided to proceed under previous regulations.

"That last minute rush accounted for permits for about 2,500 new units. Without those added units the overall number of permits would have decreased significantly during the reporting period," Kreitner explained.

County Deputies Teach D.A.R.E. In Area Schools

In an effort to combat drug abuse among children, the nationally acclaimed D.A.R.E. (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program has been added to the agenda of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

Deputies Randy Shaffer and Randy Sines have recently completed 80 hours of specialized training and are now certified to teach the D.A.R.E. program, which instructs elementary school students how to refuse drugs and alcohol. The officers will go into sixth grade classrooms every week for 17 weeks to complete the course.

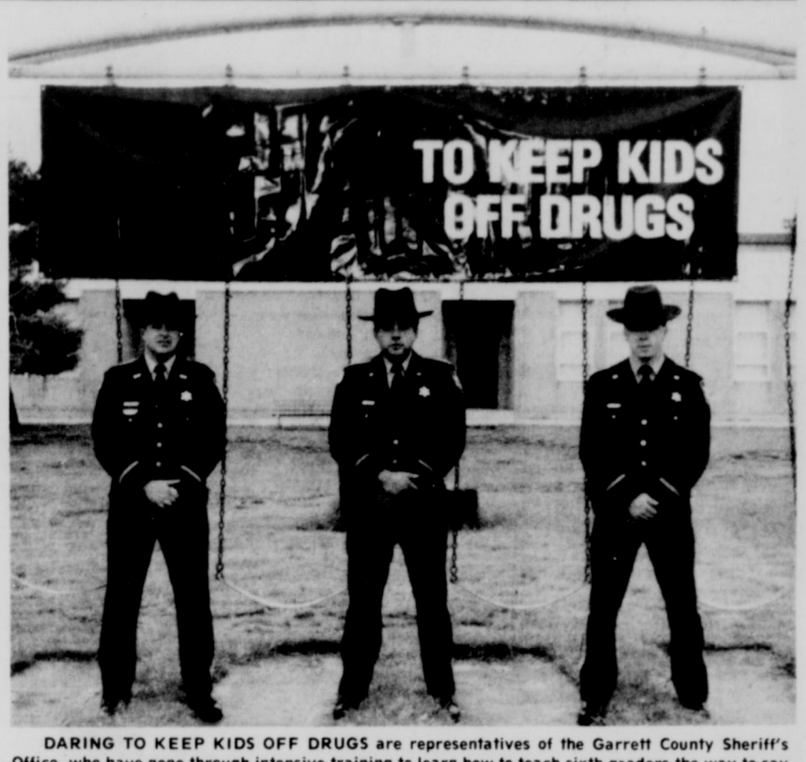

D.A.R.E. lessons focus on four major areas: providing accurate information about alcohol and drugs, teaching students decision-making skills, showing them how to resist peer pressure, and giving them ideas for alternatives to drug use.

The D.A.R.E. program is designed to be taught by streetwise police officers who have seen how drugs and alcohol can destroy lives and who can answer students' questions, based on their training and experience.

In addition to being experienced police officers, Sines and Shaffer were instructed in teaching techniques, elementary school operations, the use of visual aids, officer-student relationships, communication skills, child development, and classroom management.

Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, Superintendent of Garrett County Schools, expects 500 students from the Southern and Northern Middle Schools to go through the D.A.R.E. program this year. The lessons began at Northern Middle on Monday.

Since the program's inception in 1983, D.A.R.E. has become the largest and most successful drug education program in the United States, according to the sheriff's office. In 1990-91, the program will be taught to more than five million students in 49 states.

DARING TO KEEP KIDS OFF DRUGS are representatives of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, who have gone through intensive training to learn how to teach sixth graders the way to say "no!" when faced with drugs or alcohol. The program, called D.A.R.E. (Drug Abuse Resistance Education), will be taught in the county's middle schools, and is a cooperative venture between the Garrett County Board of Education and the Garrett County Sheriff's Office. Shown above, right to left, are Garrett County Sheriff Van Evans, Deputy Randy Sines, and Deputy Randy Shaffer, both D.A.R.E. instructors.

Foster Care Review Board Seeking Members

The Allegany/Garrett County Foster Care Review Board is seeking persons to serve as citizen volunteers in Allegany/Garrett County. The board, which has five members and two alternates, reviews the cases of all children who have been in foster care for six months or more, to determine if appropriate steps are being taken by the local department of social services to find permanent living arrangements for them.

"Volunteers should have an interest in the welfare of children and a willingness to become advocates for them," a Board spokesman said. "It is a unique opportunity to make a real difference in the life of a child."

Board members are appointed by the Governor to serve four-year terms. They meet one day a month on alternating months at the Allegany County Department of Social Services and the Garrett County Department of Social Services to review cases. A two-day initial training course is required.

The statewide system of citizen review of foster care cases began in 1980 in response to national concern over the fact that foster care, which is intended as a temporary measure, had often become a permanent status for children.

Foster Care Review Board members must be residents of the jurisdictions in which they serve. For more information and to request an application for appointment to the Allegany/Garrett County Foster Care Review Board, or to another jurisdiction, interested persons may call collect, (301) 554-5797.

National FARM Safety Week Sept. 16-22, 1990

President Bush Proclaims Farm Safety Week

President George Bush, in proclaiming the week of September 16 through 22 as National Farm Safety Week, has called for a priority commitment to safety and health by those who live and work on the nation's farms and ranches, and for stronger support for community health and safety programs by agricultural organizations.

In his proclamation, the president said: "The abundance of low-cost, high-quality food and fiber produced by farmers and ranchers is vital to sustaining the health and well-being of the American people, as well as the nation's econimic productivity competitiveness."

Tragically, those Americans engaged in agricultural production continue to bear a high rate of accidental death, injury, and illness. The costs in terms of lost productivity are enormous; the toll in personal suffering and loss is immeasurable. Advances in science and technology have made agricultural tools and chemicals safer, but these advances alone cannot eliminate all the safety risks of farming, President Bush said.

According to National Safety Council estimates for 1989, agricultural work-related accidents resulted in 1,300 deaths and 120,000 disabling injuries. Many illnesses and chronic health problems among those who farm are the result of excessive, unprotected exposure to dust, allergens, chemicals, toxic gases, heat, cold, noise, intense sun, insects and long days running hard-riding equipment, Garrett County ASCS Chairperson Kenneth R. Bachtel said.

He said this year's theme, "Cut Farm Safety Risks in the 90s," looks ahead to making real gains in reducing the number and severity of farm accidents beginning right now to help assure a healthy, productive agriculture.

The ASCS official said the president's message reaffirms the need for continuing efforts to reduce farm injuries and illnesses through preventive measures. These measures include the proper and consistent use of standard protective equipment; controlling exposure to toxic chemicals and gases; and training everyone on the farm in safety procedures and first aid.

"The busy harvest season is a most fitting time to express these concerns and strengthen support for farm safety programs," Bachtel says.

President Bush urges all Americans to take part in appropriate activities in observance of the 47th National Farm Safety Week, and acknowledge the many contributions that men and women in agriculture make to the nation. The annual event is sponsored by the National Safety Council, the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

U.S. Meat Packer Concentration Climbed In '89

From wooden feedlot fences to aluminum farrowing houses, uneasiness echoes through the livestock industry due to a growing concentration of the meat-processing business among this nation's top meat packers.

A look at current USDA market-share percentages reveals the reason for concern. Preliminary 1989 figures show the four largest beef packers controlled 70 percent of U.S. fed cattle slaughter. That's up 20 percent from 1985.

The top four hog packers command 34 percent of the market, up only 2 percent from 1985. However, hog slaughter concentration is expected to increase due to expansion among the top four, while smaller plants close their doors.

Concentration among the four largest sheep and lamb slaughterers rose from 51 percent to the latest figure of 77 percent.

The increase of market share held by the four largest packers for each livestock class follows an unprecedented period of mergers and consolidation in the packing industry, according to the American Farm Bureau Federation.

In testimony submitted this summer to the Senate Nutrition and Investigations Subcommittee, AFBF President Dean Kleckner stated packer concentration could reduce the number of livestock buyers and increase packer leverage on short-term supplies.

Decisions by major packers to expand feeding in their own feedlots or use forward contracts to guarantee supplies compounds this issue. Last year, the four top beef firms owned or controlled "captive supplies" of 24.9 percent of the steers and heifers they slaughtered. That's an increase of 4.4 percent from 1988.

This summer's hearing stopped short of a call for action against the largest meat packers, but it did order renewed government monitoring of the industry.

Respect Free Enterprise

Buyer competition is not a problem for Nebraska farmer/cattle feeder Paul Ruwe. He can sell his cattle to several major packing firms. Though he supports continued monitoring of packer-concentration, he also says we must take the bad with the good in the free-enterprise system.

"That's the way it's got to work," he says. "You can't always legislate things. That tends to cause more trouble for yourself than before the government became involved."

Chairman of the AFBF Beef Cattle Advisory Committee, Ruwe's cattle operation near Arlington, Neb. has a one-time head capacity of 600-650. Though he's only about 30 miles from the nearest slaughter facility, he's not always the big winner in the free-enterprise game. He says big packers in his area tend to give premiums to bigger feedyards, which can supply 3,000-4,000 head at a time.

"While people may not like it, had we not had some concentration, we may not have any packing companies left," he said. "They had to do that (increase efficiency) to give us some profit opportunities."

AFBF policy calls for continued monitoring of packer concentration and other trends in the meat packing industry which could derail natural marketing competition. Farm Bureau also supports more aggressive enforcement of anti-trust laws pertaining to packer mergers, market concentration and packer feeding.

A study, supported by allied livestock producer and marketing organizations, including AFBF, will take shape later this year to analyze the impact packer-owned and controlled livestock — through vertical integration and forward contracting — have on cash market prices.

Markets Diminishing

Meanwhile, an earlier Farm Bureau survey discovered the number of markets and slaughter facilities has plunged. The survey of livestock producers in 14 states discovered that slightly more than one-third of the producers had more than two potential buyers — half of what was available just five years earlier.

During those five years, 683 slaughter facilities, 372 dealer and order buyers, 217 auction barns and three terminal markets went out of business.

Experts say concentration currently plays into the livestock producer's hands. According to the USDA, increased slaughter capacity, coupled with reduced livestock numbers, now forces packers to seek available slaughter animals. This boosts prices paid to farmers and ranchers.

Glenn Grimes, professor emeritus in the University of Missouri's agricultural economics department, agrees. He says, up till now, packer concentration has been positive for farmers and ranchers. He estimates the hog market currently benefits anywhere from 50 cents to $1 per hundredweight. However, he questions whether this will hold true once livestock supplies hit the up cycle.

"You're always concerned when you have substantial concentration," Grimes says. "Some people are worried packers will get together and use that economic muscle to their own advantage. I don't even trust myself with too much economic muscle."

Grimes is concerned markets and small packers in fringe livestock-producing states could be squeezed out of business by narrow profit margins, easily swallowed by large efficient firms. A loss of local markets would be bad news for hog farmers in those areas. Concentration in hog slaughter could result in the concentration of hog production itself.

"With hog prices still at around $53 farmers can afford to truck those hogs 300-400 miles and still make money," Grimes says. "What's going to happen a year from now, if we continue to expand production and find ourselves with hog prices pushed below $45? If you are located in one of those fringe areas, and your cost of production is average ($45-$47), the washout of those local markets is going to make it more difficult to compete."

Efficiency is Catalyst

Efficiency is the catalyst behind packer concentration. According to Grimes, gains from added efficiency are being sliced up to benefit producers and consumers, depending on the location in the livestock cycle.

"When there are small supplies, those efficiencies go to producers," he says. "A year from now, when we're likely to have substantially more hogs, the consumer will probably benefit."

Even though concentration in the packing industry has its benefits, Grimes is not convinced it will be good for the livestock industry in the long run. Eventually, slaughter capacity and livestock production will meet. He fears larger packers then will be tempted to widen their own margins at the expense of producers and consumers.

That is where the Packers and Stockyards Administration steps in, but Grimes contends that may be too late.

"They haven't done very much considering what has happened to cattle. We have let it go to the (four-firm, 70-percent) point because of overcapacity," he says. "I don't want it to get to the point to where I can prove (price leveraging). Then, it's too late. We know, based on history, that when we get too concentrated people have taken advantage. That's all I need to know."

According to Calvin Watkins, deputy administrator for the Packers and Stockyards Administration, a violation of the Packers and Stockyards Act occurs when any firm uses its marketing power to control prices or restrict competition. Presently, he says, no evidence exists to suggest violations. But, he believes four firms controlling 70 percent of all U.S. fed cattle slaughter represents enough market power to potentially control prices.

"The question is whether they will, whether they can and whether they want to take the risk," he said.

If they did seek to control livestock and meat prices, violators would be up against anti-trust laws. Such laws, however, are designed to only guarantee competition, not the number of competitors. Watkins also says Americans today do not believe artificial growth limits should be placed on firms. Just because it's big doesn't mean that it's bad.

Actually, the Packers and Stockyards Administration, an arm of the USDA, is only part of the enforcement team in the meat industry. If there is a complaint, the Packers and Stockyards Administration provides information and assistance to the Justice Department, which ultimately decides whether or not to challenge the action.

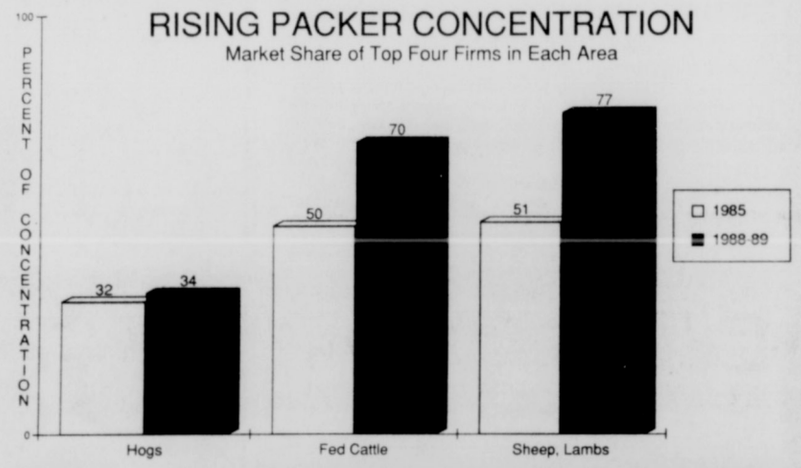

Farm Bureau favors a more active, decision-making role in these matters for the Packers and Stockyards Administration.

Watkins says people in agriculture, especially producers, are more comfortable with the Department olf Agriculture than they are with the Justice Department.

DEEP CREEK REALTY

REAL ESTATE

DEEP CREEK REALTY

SHOPPING FOR DIAMONDS!

Take a momentary mental trip to a jewelry store that offers fine diamonds for sale. You arrive and ask to see the highest quality diamonds offered. The clerk unexpectedly dumps the contents of a dingy cardboard box onto a card table, spilling a variety of raw diamonds, cut glass "costume" jewels and rhinestones for your inspection. He then abruptly asks "So which one do you want?"

Does that sound like an unlikely way to display and sell diamonds? Isn't it more likely that the finest diamonds would be displayed in a secure showcase, spotlighted to reveal every last sparkle of their brilliant color? Wouldn't you place more value on those which were meticulously showcased over the hodgepodge of stones offered in the cardboard box?

Selling a home at the best possible price requires the same planning, preparation and showcasing. Remember, buyers will be looking for a "castle," a home which matches their perception of the "home of their dreams." To attract and hold their attention, your home must match their mental picture of that ideal home.

Start by making necessary repairs and improvements before your home is ever shown. If painting is needed — do it! If screens are torn or windows cracked — replace them! Uncorrected defects are open invitations for low offers on the home.

Next, start packing. Pack away all extra clothing, "bric-a-brac," and other unneeded closet contents. Stack all packed items neatly in the garage. The home will appear more roomy as a result. Clean the home from A to Z, creating a fresh, cared-for appearance. Eliminate any need to apologize for unmade beds, dirty dishes or closets stuffed to the brim.

In summary, when buyers are offered a "model-home showplace," a full-price offer may be just around the corner. The extra effort can provide great rewards!

Understanding real estate dilemmas and their solutions is our business, and we'll happily share our knowledge with you. Why not give us a call at 387-5303, or drop by our office in McHenry, MD.

Six-State Crop Farmer Meeting Scheduled In Harrisburg Area

A two-way satellite TV teleconference exchange with agricultural economists from Ohio State University will highlight this year's Mid-Atlantic Conservation Tillage Conference. Traditional speakers from four other land-grant universities and the Soil Conservation Service will help carry out the conference theme, "Sharpening Skills for the Next Decade."

The 17th annual day-long event is scheduled Dec. 12 at the Penn Harris Convention Center in Camp Hill, Pa. Nearly 800 crop farmers from Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia are expected to attend. Activities will run from 8:30 a.m. to 3:40 p.m.

As in past years, the conference is sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service at land-grant universities in the six participating states, with assistance from interested agribusiness representatives. More than 30 commercial exhibits are expected.

Dr. Ronald L. Ritter, agronomy weed control specialist for the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service, will lead off the morning program with a presentation on "The Latest in Chemical Weed Control."

Then, conference participants will have their choice of attending one of three concurrent breakout sessions on up-to-date topics. Topic areas and speakers are as follows:

Production agriculture: "Ridge Tillage: Is It for the Mid-Atlantic Region?" — Dr. William J. Cox, Extension agronomist, Cornell; "Western Corn Rootworm" — Dr. John J. Tollefson, entomology researcher at Iowa State University; "Soil Nitrogen Test Update" — Dr. Douglas B. Beegle, Extension agronomy soil specialist, Penn State.

Environmental concerns: "Nitrogen Leaching Losses" — Dr. Richard H. Fox, professor of soil fertility at Penn State University; "Wetlands/Sodbusting Regulations" — Barry Isaacs, state biologist, Pennsylvania Soil Conservation Service; "Protecting Groundwater" — Scott A. Harrison, pesticide education coordinator, Penn State University.

Commercial update: Commercial exhibitors at the conference have been invited to make three- to five-minute presentations on new products or recent developments of interest to farmers. A limited number will be selected on a first-come, first-served basis. Lynn D. Hoffman, director of the Penn State agronomy research center, is the coordinator.

The afternoon program will start off with the TV satellite teleconference from Ohio State. A panel of agricultural economists will present a 30-minute "Agritrends" commentary. This will be followed by 30 minutes of questions and answers involving participants in the Mid-Atlantic conference and the ag economists at Ohio State. H. Louis Moore, an Extension marketing specialist at Penn State, will be the moderator.

Closing out the day will be an economic presentation on "Surviving in the 90's" and a repeat of the morning breakout sessions. This will give individuals an opportunity to hear speakers in two of the three topic areas.

Tickets for the noon lunch will be available soon at $4 each from county offices of the Cooperative Extension Service throughout the Mid-Atlantic area. They must be purchased in advance — and not later than Nov. 30.

Chairing the planning committee for this year's Mid-Atlantic Conservation Tillage Conference is Craig W. Yohn, an agricultural Extension agent in Jefferson County, W.Va. The vice chairman is Gary L. Smith, an agricultural engineering specialist for the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service.

Over One-Third Of Field Corn Acreage Mature

By September 16, 38 percent of Maryland's field corn acreage was mature, behind last year's 54 percent and the five-year average of 56 percent. An average of 5.4 days was suitable for fieldwork during this week according to the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service. Across the state, no topsoil was very short of moisture, 28 percent was short of moisture, 67 percent was adequate, and 5 percent was surplus. Subsoil moisture ended the week as follows: none very short, 14 percent short, 86 percent adequate, and none surplus. Field corn and soybeans were in good condition across the state. Apples and pasture were in fair to good condition. Hay supplies were adequate.

Maryland's progress for the week ending September 16, is as follows:

Crop Stage: Corn dent 85, 88, 88; Corn Mature 38, 54, 56. Soybeans setting pods 96, 88, 90; Soybeans turned 23, 12, 24; Soybeans shed. leaves 6, 4, 9.

Southern Maryland West of the Bay and the Eastern Shore averaged 0.31 inch and 0.66 inch, respectively. Temperatures averaged 72.1 degrees, 2.3 degrees above the normal of 69.8 degrees. Minimum temperatures were mostly in the mid to upper 50's, except in Southern Maryland West of the Bay where minimum temperatures were in the mid 60's. Extreme western Maryland had minimum temperatures in the low 50's. Maximum temperatures were mostly in the high 80's to low 90's except high 70's in western Maryland.

The rural farm population dropped by about one million between 1980 and 1987 (to 4,986,000).

Trees & Shrubs

Now is the recommended time to plant or transplant trees and shrubs. This is because woody plants put forth active root growth in the fall until soil temperatures drop below 40 degrees F. Deciduous plants may be successfully planted or transplanted through October. The winter dormancy gives newly planted trees and shrubs a chance to become established before next summer. Evergreens should be transplanted early in the fall so they have enough time to get their roots established for winter. When selecting shade trees from a nursery, look for a quality specimen. A quality shade tree will have a central leader that is straight without narrow branch angles and foliage that is normal in size with good color. When selecting container grown stock avoid trees and shrubs that are too large for their containers. Often they are severely pot bound with twisted roots that may later become girdling roots. Loosen and cut free roots of container grown stock. This is done by making several shallow cuts down the side of the root ball and across the bottom. Spread the roots open to encourage outward growth. Balled and burlapped stock does not require this treatment. The cord and burlap, however, should be cut loose when the plant is set in position. Wire baskets often used on larger trees should also be cut after the tree is placed into the planting hole. The staking and tieing of newly planted trees is no longer recommended. Research has shown that moderate trunk movement stimulates root growth into the surrounding soil. Occasionally a tree planted in a very windy site may require loose bracing to hold the tree straight until the roots grow out and the root ball has settled.

Beef Management Tips

July 1 report shows little change in cattle numbers. All cattle and calves in the United States of July 1, 1990 totalled 108.9 million head, virtually unchanged from the July 1 level of both a year ago and two years ago according to the USDA Ag Statistics Board. This is the second consecutive year that the inventory level has shown a small increase in number. All cows and heifers that have calved at 44.4 million were up fractionally from the 44.3 million on both July 1, 1989 and 1988. Beef cows at 34.3 million were up slightly from July 1, 1989 and up 1% from July 1988. Milk cows at 10.1 million were unchanged from July 1, 1989 but 1% below two years ago. Beef replacement heifers at 5.2 million were up 4% over 1989 and 8% over 1988. Milk replacement heifers at 4.3 million are down 4% from a year ago. Steers weighing 500 lbs. and over at 14.7 million are down 1% over 1989 and 1988 levels. Calves under 500 lbs. at 30.8 million are down fractionally compared with 1989 and down 1% compared with 1988. The only significant change that would affect beef cattle producers is that some heifers have been retained over the past two years so we will see some buildup in beef cow numbers, but it does appear that it will be fairly slow.

Distributors Feel Economic Squeeze Of Gas Pricing

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said independent gasoline distributors, as well as the 50% of Maryland retail service stations they supply, are being strangled by big oil, "and it's the consumer who's paying the piper." Governor William Donald Schaefer joined Goldstein in asking oil companies to treat consumers and distributors equitably and eliminate the price discrimination.

"Preliminary results from our survey of distributors indicates that their cost for gasoline increased about 25 cents per gallon from August 1 through September 12, while big oil only increased costs by half that for retail dealers it supplies directly," said Goldstein. "This is translating into higher pump prices for much of our population and severe financial difficulties for distributors that can easily result in loss of jobs and loss of gasoline and heating oil service to a large segment of our population."

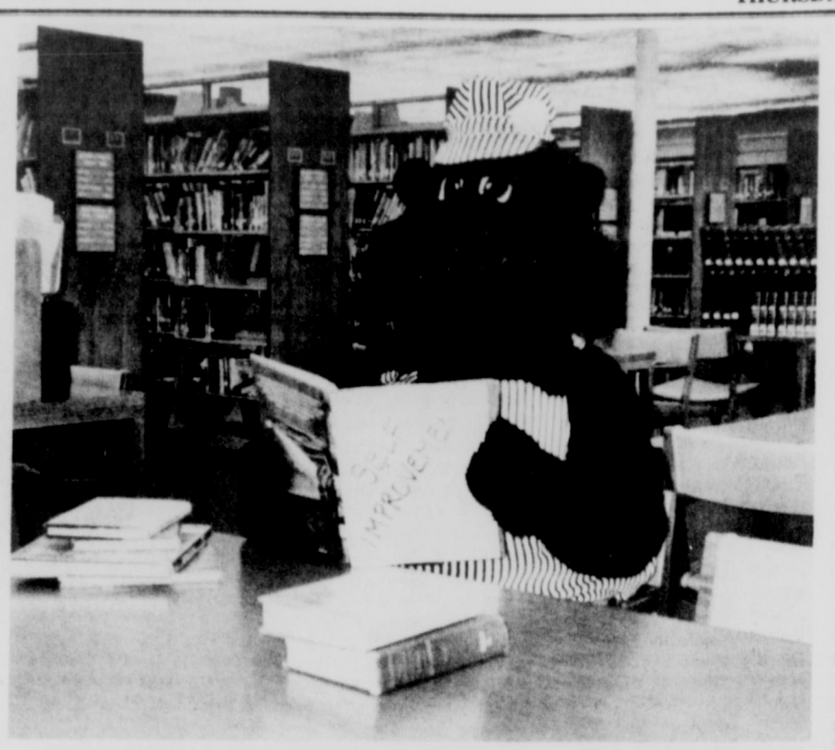

Governor Schaefer and Comptroller Goldstein have contacted major oil companies which supply gasoline to Maryland's independent distributors. They asked the suppliers to stop charging significantly higher prices to the distributors who supply gasoline to about half of Maryland's service stations; stations which sell about 30% of all the gasoline purchased by consumers in the state.

"Neither your company nor other suppliers could service the retail service station, farm and other accounts served by these distributors," the governor and comptroller wrote the major oil companies, noting that service disruptions in Maryland's marketplace would result if independent distributors and the retail stations they serve continue to be subjected to higher prices than directly supplied stations.

"The oil companies' policy of charging higher prices to distributors is already having an impact on consumers, who are finding significantly higher prices outside the major metropolitan areas," Goldstein said.

Some of Maryland's largest independent distributors have notified the comptroller of the potential for severe problems if the discriminatory pricing continues. "These companies supply stations in rural Maryland and the metropolitan areas as well as thousands of heating oil accounts," Goldstein said. "They are an example of the hardship that can result to customers and the economy if this situation continues. We are aware of at least one distributor selling to retail stations at his cost — which is still 14 cents per gallon higher than the cost to retail stations directly suppied by major oil companies."

"I have asked the Maryland Energy Policy Office and the Department of Economic and Employment Development to check into the specific situations coming to our attention and the position of distributors in general," said Governor Schaefer.

Maryland "Make It Yourself With Wool" Contest Set For Oct. 27

It's not too early to begin entries for the 1990 Maryland Make It Yourself With Wool Contest, which will be held on Saturday, October 27, at the Kenilworth Park Mall near Towson.

The annual contest is open to anyone of any age who can sew, knit, crochet, or weave an outfit of wool; the only requirement is that the yarn or fabric used be at least 60% wool fiber. There are four age categories: Preteen (ages 13 and under), Junior (ages 14-17), Senior (ages 18-24), and Adult. By starting early, perhaps you'll have time to make more than one entry, which is welcomed.

Top awards include an Elnita 100 sewing machine donated by Elna, Inc. for the Preteen Champion; trips to the National Make It Yourself With Wool Contest in Long Beach, California, for the Junior and Senior Champions; and a $100 gift certificate donated by G Street Fabrics of Rockville for the Adult Winner. The Adult winner will also receive a gift subscription to "Sew News," and a free membership to the Bishop Sewing Council. The Baltimore County Sheep & Wool Producers will provide roses for the winners.

For the first time, a participant may make any outfit of his/her choosing, as a catchall "other" entry category has been added to the traditional dresses, suits, and coats classes. The Maryland Committee has also added two other categories for adults only: one is for hand-crafted garments (woven, knitted, crocheted) while the other is for an outfit that the adult has made for someone else (child, spouse, etc.). Hand-crafted garments can also be teamed up with sewn garments to make a total outfit. Preteens can choose from a list of seven classes or make a multi-piece entry.

Why Weight Watchers Works Best!

"Weight Watchers works best for me because I lost 30 pounds in 1965, and I've learned how to keep it off forever!" - Norma Malis, Weight Watchers Area Director

"Weight Watchers works best for me because the meetings are convenient. If I miss my regular weekly meeting, I simply go to one at another time. I know they have hundreds of meetings all around Maryland." - Susan Jenkins, Severna Park, Lost 130 lbs.

"Weight Watchers works best for me because I'm always learning from the stories shared in the group meetings. And my group leader has been through the program, so she knows how I feel. Without the weekly meetings, I'd feel lost." - Naomi Dunsen, Baltimore, Lost 41 lbs.

"Weight Watchers works best for me because it's affordable. I had a hard time dieting on my own, but I didn't want the expense of a long-term contract. Weight Watchers was the answer to my prayers." - Lee Kraus, Catonsville, Lost 27 lbs.

"Weight Watchers works best for me because you get to eat real food. I tried another diet where I had to buy their boxed foods. For me, it just didn't work. At Weight Watchers I've learned to eat sensibly, and lose weight." - Rena Hayes, Joppa, Lost 27 lbs.

Coverts Cooperators Ready To Volunteer Assistance To Landowners

Teaching the roughly 96,000 woodland owners in Maryland the benefits of forest management is no easy task, but a group of 30 volunteers representing 11 counties, trained by the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service (MCES), are bringing that goal one step closer.

The volunteers are woodland owners and managers who attended a forestry and wildlife management workshop offered by MCES and the Ruffed Grouse Society, September 6-9, as part of a new outreach program called the Coverts Project.

Attending the workshop from Garrett County were six "coverts cooperators," Alan Arnson, Frank Ross, Donald Hoecker, C.W. "Sonny" Newhall, E. Marshall Stacy, and Al Walcek.

The word "covert" means a thicket that provides sheltering habitat for wildlife, and through classroom training and visits to outside demonstration areas, the volunteers learned firsthand how good forest management practices can improve wildlife habitat for game and non-game species, while enhancing timber growth, aesthetics, and other benefits. These "coverts cooperators" are now ready to share what they learned with other woodland owners and managers in their communities.

"Research shows that many woodland owners will not seek the advice of professionals, but will listen to a friend," says Jonathan Kays, an MCES regional natural resources specialist. "We hope to build a network of volunteers around the state who can help friends, neighbors, and even complete strangers contemplating forest management get the professional assistance they need to implement their land use objectives. They are the key to our educational efforts."

Many landowners believe the best way to benefit the wildlife and the forest is to do nothing with their land, but that's not necessarily true, says local woodland owner C.W. "Sonny" Newhall from Oakland.

"An active management program that includes sound tree cutting and planting practices will produce a diversity of tree growth habitats, increasing wildlife populations and enhancing other benefits," he explains. "Many of our forests today lack this diversity. That's not an optimum situation for many wildlife species," Newhall added.

The September workshop featured intensive sessions on forest and wildlife ecology, woodland income opportunities, forest wildlife ecology and management, forest management planning, initial exposure to outreach planning, developing outreach action planning, action reports and planning sessions.

Speakers for the four-day workshop inluded DNR Forest, Park, and Wildlife biologists, USDA Fish and Wildlife Service wildlife biologists, representatives of the Ruffed Grouse Society, University of Maryland wildlife and forest specialists, private foresters, and specialists from other organizations and universities.

The workshop identified objectives of the Coverts Project, gathered feedback from participants on their expectations, clearly defined the roles of project cooperators, and identified the level of expertise participants hope to gain.

The six coverts cooperators in Garrett County are eager to help other landowners use proper forest management to increase the woodlot and wildlife potential of their land. Anyone interested in receiving such help may contact the Garrett County Cooperative Extension Office at 334-1990.

Persons interested in training to become a coverts cooperator should call Jonathan Kays at (301) 791-2296, or write him at the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service, Western Maryland Research and Education Center, 18330 Keedysville Road, Keedysville, Maryland 21756. Thirty volunteers will be chosen each year.

COVERTS COOPERATORS — Garrett County coverts cooperators, University of Maryland Cooperative Extension agents, Maryland Forest, Parks, and Wildlife service project foresters and Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service personnel are eager to help landowners use proper forest management to increase the woodlot and wildlife potential of their land. The six Garrett county coverts cooperators recently attended a forestry and wildlife management workshop sponsored by the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service and the Ruffed Grouse Society to learn firsthand how good forest management practices can improve wildlife habitat for game and non-game species, while enhancing timber growth. They came home ready to share what they learned with other woodland owners and managers in this area. Pictured above, front row left to right, are Ernie Metz, Maryland Forest, Parks and Wildlife Service project forester; Alan Arnson, coverts cooperator; Frank Ross, coverts cooperator; Donald Hoecker, coverts cooperator; Sonny Newhall, coverts cooperator and president of the Allegany Chapter Ruffed Grouse Society; back row, same order, Terry DeWitt, Maryland Forest, Parks and Wildlife Service wildlife technician; Wade Dorsey, Maryland Forest, Parks and Wildlife Service assistant project forester; Ted Sprangel, Garrett County Cooperative Extension agent; E. Marshall Stacy, coverts cooperator; and Al Walcek, coverts cooperator. Not pictured is Mike Kozier, ASCS executive director.

LIONS HONOR MARPLE — The Deep Creek Lake Lions Club recently honored David Marple on the occasion of his 80th birthday. Marple is a Charter Member of the Club, which was formed in 1971. He was one of the Club's founders and has been "a continuing source of inspiration through his years as a member," according to a club spokesman. A barbecue and corn roast was held at the McHenry Park on September 8 where approximately 60 friends and relatives joined with Club member to surprise Dave on this occasion.

Thousands Visit Garrett County Over Labor Day

Judging from the number of visitors to the Youghiogheny Overlook Information Center on Route 48 and the Deep Creek Lake Information Booth on Route 219, this year's Labor Day weekend in Garrett County was a "huge success," according to the Deep Creek Lake-Garrett County Promotion Council.

The Youghiogheny Overlook Information Center along U.S. Route 48 east of Friendsville provided information to a total of 1,919 visitors for the three-day weekend. This facility is a source of information for the entire State of Maryland, and is open seven days a week, year-round. The Center is staffed by Lee Tacket, Hazel Klotz, Helen Vitez, and Robin Smith, supervisor.

The Deep Creek Lake Information Booth along U.S. Route 219 south of the Deep Creek Lake Bridge, which provides information about Garrett County and Deep Creek Lake, was also extremely busy with 846 visitors for the holiday weekend, with a total of 10,059 visitors for the summer season. This facility is open seven days a week from Memorial Day through Labor Day, and is staffed by William Stemple and Lois Ruhe.

Both facilities are managed by the Promotion Council.

Receives Honor At International Retailer Seminar

A local business owner recently gained recognition at an international symposium for the gift basket trade. Karen Reckner, owner of Presentations in downtown Oakland, attended a three-day seminar held in Chicago. Sponsored by Gift Basket Retailers International, the seminar was attended by more than 500 people representing seven countries including Mexico, Venezuela, and Australia.

Reckner received an honorable mention in the design competition, placing her among the top 10 entries. Gift baskets were judged in nine areas of excellence, including theme, color, product selection and style. Reckner's entry was a basket filled with all the items necessary for a buckwheat breakfast. Decorated in a fall theme, it included items typical of or produced in Garrett County as well as information about the county.

Educational clases were held throughout the weekend in sales, design, and other areas of interest for gift basket retailers. Networking with others in the field was a key attraction for the attendees.

Presentations has been in business nearly two years. The shop specializes in gift baskets and custom designs, and also carries a selection of unique gifts and decorative accessories. Reckner is assisted by Jeanne Kelley and Annette Strawser.

Convicted Rapist Given 10 Years By Judge Thayer

An Oakland man charged with second-degree rape was sentenced to 10 years in the Maryland Department of Corrections by Fred A. Thayer, Judge of the Garrett County Circuit Court.

Robert D. Smith, 22, allegedly raped a 14-year-old female in December 1989. Smith originally pleaded not guilty to the charge, then changed his plea to guilty at an August trial, at which time the plea was accepted and a pre-sentence investigation was ordered by Judge Thayer.

The judge did not suspend any of the 10-year sentence, and Smith was remanded to the custody of the Garrett County Sheriff.

Defense counsel for Smith was Robert C. Hesson.

Duane C. Bolyard, 25, Oakland, pleaded guilty to the charge of false imprisonment, one of several charges brought against him, including kidnapping, reckless endangerment, and assault and battery.

Judge Thayer accepted the plea and ordered a pre-sentence investigation, which is to be completed on or before November 22.

Bolyard's charges stem from an incident in April when he reportedly dragged a woman out of a place of business, and forced her into his vehicle. He drove to a dirt road, stopped the vehicle and hit the victim repeatedly, and then apparently took her to his home.

Later he tried to transport the woman out of state, when he was stopped by a deputy of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, at which time he was arrested. The woman sustained minor injuries during the altercation, according to reports.

Defense for Bolyard was Robert C. Hesson.

Ray F. Fulk, Jr., 29, Bayard, W.Va., was sentenced to the Maryland Dept. of Corrections for three years on the charge of distribution of cocaine.

Fulk was arrested following an incident in July 1989 at the Backbone Mtn. Inn/Bear's Den, located off of U.S. Rt. 50, near Red House.

According to the court document, Fulk sold an "eight ball" (1/8 ounce) of cocaine to an undercover narcotics policeman at the inn.

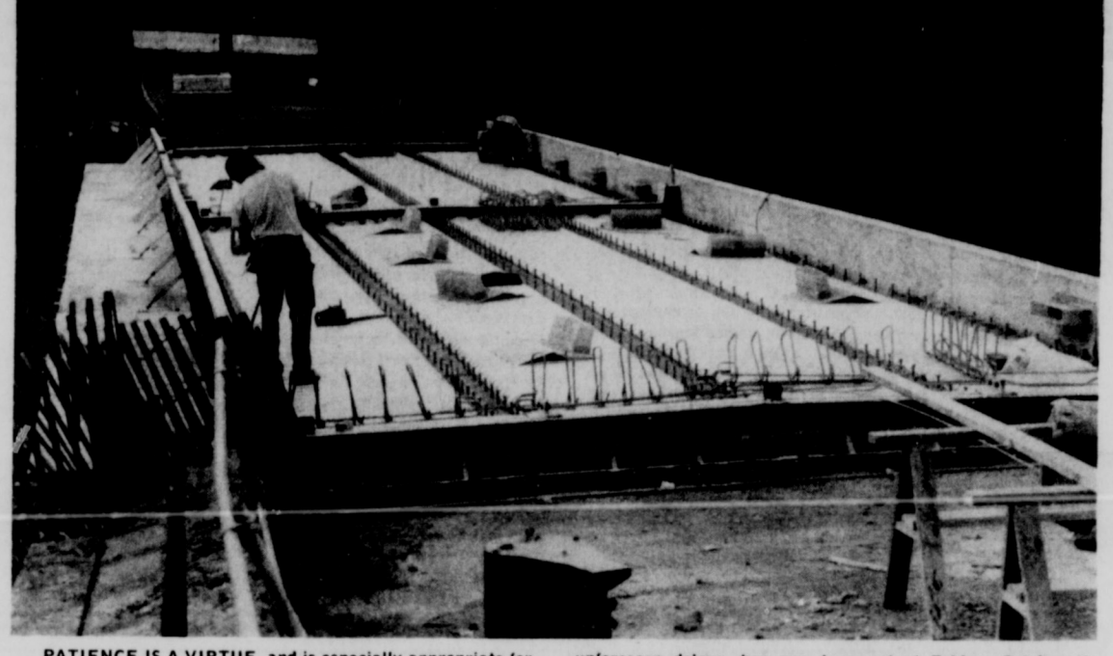

Richard F. Green defended Fulk.

Judge Thayer accepted a guilty plea to possession of marijuana from Raymond L. Rutter, 25, McHenry.

Rutter was found in possession of the controlled dangerous substance in March of this year after being stopped on Spear Road near Accident.

The defendant was sentenced to time already served, which was six days in April.

Richard F. Green was Rutter's defending attorney.

PATIENCE IS A VIRTUE, and is especially appropriate for the county residents who have been inconvenienced by the closing of the bridge that crosses the Youghiogheny River on the Herrington Manor Road, just west of Oakland. The project was expected to be completed by mid-September but, because of unforeseen delays, has now been set at Friday, October 12, according to Garrett County Roads Department officials. The project is one of three bridge projects undertaken in the county this past summer by private contractors.

Friendsville Man Jailed As Result Of Attempted Murder Charge

A Friendsville man remains incarcerated in the Garrett County Jail in lieu of $50,000 bond after allegedly attempting to murder his wife.

William E. Cramer, 45, was charged with intent to murder, reckless endangerment, and assault and battery by Tfc. R.J. Resh of the Maryland State Police, McHenry Detachment.

Cramer allegedly shot his wife Beverly D. Cramer, 41, on Saturday at 1:15 a.m. during a domestic dispute. The weapon retrieved after the incident was a .22 caliber magnum rifle.

The bullet reportedly struck Mrs. Cramer in the upper left arm. She was treated for the injury at Garrett County Memorial Hospital and later released.

In other Maryland State Police news, three visitors to the county were arrested early Friday morning following a complaint of destruction of property and unauthorized use of a vehicle by managers of the Wisp Resort, McHenry.

Donald Catino, 20, Durham, N.H.; Christopher McCarthy, 19, Manchester, N.H.; and Michael Spurr, 21, Somerset, England allegedly took a golf cart without authorization and drove it in a reckless manner on the Wisp golf course.

Damage was set at $2,500.

All three men were charged with two counts each of destruction of property and one count each of unauthorized use of a vehicle.

Catino and McCarthy were also charged with underage drinking.

The arresting officer was Sgt. G.F. Johnston.

In an unrelated case, State Police are seeking a Pennsylvania dealer registration plate, "D69623D," which was taken from a vehicle parked at Pizzaria Uno at Deep Creek Lake on Saturday, September 15.

Trp. W.E. Dixon is investigating.

SHS Teacher Receives Award From MAPCO

James L. Zimmerman, mathematics teacher at Southern High School, was recently given a $500 award for in recognition of Teacher Excellence, Commitment of Education of Youngsters, and Proven Leadership.

The award is sponsored by MAPCO, the parent company of Mettiki Coal Company. Sanjeev Magoon, a former student of Zimmerman's and a recipient of a MAPCO $1000-per year scholarship, nominated the math teacher for the award. When Magoon read about MAPCO's offer of $500 to any teacher whose teaching made an impact on a scholarship recipient's life, he entered Zimmerman's name.

"It was a real surprise," said Zimmerman, who is in his 29th year of teaching mathematics.

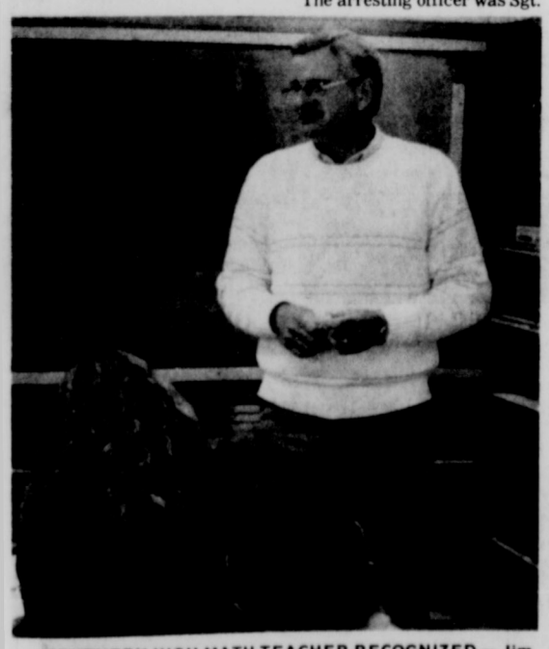

"I think it's a wonderful thing for a company to recognize a teacher in a compensatory way, and it was a wonderful thing for Sanjeev to do, too."

Zimmerman has been teaching at Southern for 26 years, having taught the first three years of his career in Charles Town, W.Va. He received a bachelor of science degree in mathematics at Davis and Elkins College, W.Va.

The high school teacher has also completed a master of arts in mathematics program, as well as 45 hours beyond the degree requirements.

Zimmerman is certified in mathematics and in administration and supervision. He began teaching at Southern

Board Of Ed. Asks Commissioners For More SHS Renovation Funds

Representatives of the Garrett County Board of Education met with the Garrett County Commissioners on Tuesday to request more money for the Southern High School renovation project.

Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, Superintendent of Schools, told the commissioners that two alternatives are outstanding in the project, and that a decision must be made regarding them. Ryscavage said the school board felt "very very strongly" about the need for the alternatives.

The first item Ryscavage discussed was a storage area for athletic purposes. The area was in the original renovation plan, but construction was suspended when budget difficulties arose. At present, the building is financially impossible.

"At this juncture, we have absolutely no place to store athletic equipment," Ryscavage said. "This will pose problems in the future."

Ryscavage explained that the board received bids of $55-60,000 for the area, and the bids were rejected.

"What we are proposing now is to construct an overall 'shell' of the area, including floor joists, the floor, and three doors (two stairwell doors, one double door for the acceptance of equipment).

"There will be no electricity, no paint. We are simply interested in getting the basic shell of the space, which will be completed over time," Ryscavage said.

The cost of the construction has been estimated at $29,100.

The second alternative Ryscavage described was the construction of connecting corridors between the middle wing and the machine shop, as well as out to the vocational-agriculture building.

The entire corridor project was estimated at a cost of $200,000. The board rejected the bid, and is now requesting $13,700 of the commissioners.

Butscher Reacts To Opponent's Write-In Quest

The recently elected District Three Republican candidate for Garrett County Commissioner, Brenda Butscher, Oakland, last week issued a statement regarding the decision by incumbent county commissioner, Ernest J. Gregg Jr., to conduct a write-in campaign in the upcoming November general election, stating that she won the primary election "fair and square."

Butscher defeated Gregg by a vote of 1,575-1,484 in the primary election. "I ran a clear campaign based on facts and issues," she stated, adding, "A number of grass roots people, both Republican and Democrat, worked hard on my campaign. They are ready to work again and I have picked up support that I didn't have in the primary."

Butscher said she realized Gregg was having a difficult time accepting defeat in the primary election because he failed to call and congratulate her. "A gentleman and a politician knows that is the proper procedure," she stated.

She continued, "The voter turnout was better than average for primary elections, and I won the election fair and square. I am the Republican Party's choice for county commissioner in District Three."

Butscher also said that she has campaigned for "open government," a fact, she said, "the present county commissioners cannot deal with because all three want to prevent me from taking office."

Bambacus Touts Savage River For 1996 Olympics

Senator John N. Bambacus, World Champinships, Inc. president, said that with the recent news that Atlanta, Georgia has been designated as the site for the 1996 Olympics, the Savage River should be considered as the venue for the Canoe/Kayak Slalom competition.

In a letter to Governor William Donald Schaefer, Bambacus said, "Sports is big business, and this would be the perfect opportunity for Maryland to be showcased internationally. Maryland has proven itself to be able to handle such international, olympic events and is presently being considered as the site for the 1991 U.S. Team trials prior to the Olympics in Barcelona, Spain."

In addition, Senator Bambacus has been in contact with the Sports Promotion Division of the State Department of Tourism and Promotion, to encourage the support of Maryland as the site for these races and perhaps other sports venues as well. Bambacus and Don Storck, Executive Director of WCI, recently met Secretary C. Randall Evans, Department of Economic and Employment Development, and Secretary Torrey C. Brown, Department of Natural Resources, to discuss future adventure sports possibilities, as well as the Olympic trials.

SHS Renovation Status Update Given By Board

Four contracting firms are currently on site at Southern High School with Carl Belt, Inc., general contractor, coordinating the demolition work and construction, according to a spokesman from the Garrett County Board of Education.

Electrical, plumbing, heating and ventilation, and general trades laborers are working in the A-wing (service and auxiliary gym wing), the Vocational Agriculture area, the main building on the first and second floors, and the new auxiliary gymnasium.

Demolition has been completed on the greenhouse, and is 98 percent completed in the A-wing and the first floor west of the main building, according to a press release.

New construction has included excavation and pouring of footers, block-laying to ground level, and the pouring of the concrete floor for the auxiliary gym. The footers and floors have been poured for the math classrooms, located in the area which was formerly the girls' gym.

Heating has been restored to those portions of the building which are occupied by students.

During the next month, masonry work will be done on the new auxiliary gymnasium and the greenhouse, with work scheduled to begin on the machine shop foundation.

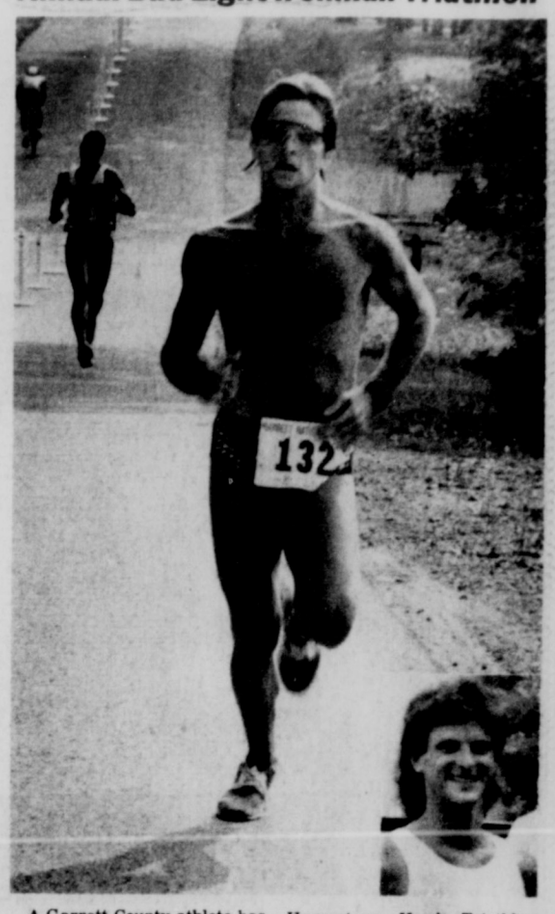

The demolition of the walls in the east wing of the first and second floors will continue, and windows will be removed in order to install double-hung window-walls in the main building.

Work is scheduled to be substantially completed on the auxiliary gymnasium by December 3. Classes now housed in the main gym will be moved to the new auxiliary gymnasium at the start of the year.

A-wing will be completed by April 1, 1991, according to a spokesman for the board, and classes currently occupying B-wing, Vo-Ag, and the trades classes will be moved to the renovated areas.

The main building is scheduled to be completed by mid-August 1991, with occupancy to occur following Labor Day. All other parts of the project are to be finished by October 30, 1991.

Jimmy Railey Selected For 12th Annual Bud Light Ironman Triathlon

A Garrett County athlete has been selected from more than 4,000 applicants to compete in the 12th annual Bud Light Ironman Triathlon World Championship, slated for October 6 in Hawaii.

Jimmy Railey, McHenry, will join other top triathletes from over 46 countries in this event, the most prestigious triathlon in the world. The gruelling competition consists of a 2.4-mile ocean swim, a 112-mile bike race, and a full marathon (26.2-mile) run, all of which must be completed within 17 hours.

Training for the race typically requires 18 to 24 hours per week for six to eight months to develop the stamina and endurance needed to complete the 140.6-mile event.

Railey has been competing in the sport of triathlon for the past four years and has emerged as one of the top triathletes in the area. After placing among the top 15 racers in events last year, Railey has three second place finishes to his credit this year: in the Best of the West Triathlon in Oakland, the Hagerstown Hawk Triathlon, and the Westmoreland Triathlon in Pennsylvania.

Railey said he has trained extensively for the 1990 Ironman and says his main goal is simply to finish the event.

"There are many environmental factors in the Iron man which have to be considered," he said. "The surf can be calm or very rough, the winds can be gusty which make it very difficult on the bike, and the heat is always a big factor for the run."

Railey and his wife, Nancy, will leave this Friday for Hawaii so he will have a week to get adjusted to the tropical climate. They plan to remain there for another week after the Ironman "just to relax and have a real vacation," according to Nancy.

Mark Allen, a 31-year-old triathlete from Cardiff, Calif., holds the Ironman course record, having completed the 1989 race in eight hours, nine minutes, and 15.2 seconds. Paula Newby-Fraser of Zimbabwe set the women's record

"TIE A YELLOW RIBBON 'ROUND THAT OLD PINE (?) TREE..." The staff and students of Broad Ford Elementary School are doing their part to remember and recognize the presence of our armed services personnel in the Persian Gulf. The son of one member of the school staff, U.S. Army Private Shawn Groves, flew out Monday for Saudi Arabia and a special ribbon for him was placed on this evergreen tree at the school. Pictured above holding the ribbon is Shawn's mother, Maxine. His uncle, Ron Sisler, an employee of C&P Telephone Company, brought his rig by the school to help place the ribbons on the tree. Shawn, who was based at Fort Bragg, N.C., where he was recently named Soldier of the Month, is a former Broad Ford student. The staff and students of Broad Ford plan to write letters to all of Garrett County's military personnel now stationed in the Gulf. Parents are asked to send the names and addresses of their sons and daughters to The Republican Newspaper, P.O. Box 326, Oakland. The Republican will publish them in next week's issue, along with general addresses supplied by Proctor Kildow Post 71, American Legion.

TO HONOR U.S. SOLDIERS, Greater Oakland Business Association (GOBA) members are flying American flags with a yellow ribbon with red, white, and blue streamers, affixed to the tops of the poles. Bows and ribbons are visible on various buildings as well, according to a GOBA spokesperson, to express concern for the men and women currently serving in the Persian Gulf.

Springs Folk Festival Slated For October 5-6

The 33rd Annual Springs Folk Festival will be held October 5-6, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily in the village of Springs, Pa., located on Route 669 north of Grantsville. This traditional festival, held each year at the height of autumn, is a celebration of arts, crafts and culture of days gone by.

Craftsmen from several states will offer heritage crafts such as painting, pottery making, wheat weaving, basket making, and quilting. Unique gifts may be purchased at the festival, and live music will be featured, including the banjo and fiddle music of bluegrass performers, the a cappella singing of a Mennonite choir, and the melodies of a mountain dulcimer. Visitors who stroll the forest trail will see pioneer exhibits including maple sugaring, applebutter boiling, log hewing and sauerkraut making, as well as wool dyeing, spinning and weaving, broom making, tinsmithing and cider making.

Hearty Pennsylvania Dutch foods will be offered, including sausage burgers, bean soup, homemade baked goods, doughnuts, funnel cakes and homemade bread. The Springs Historical Museum, located in two large buildings, will be open to the public during the festival. This museum houses a large array of artifacts presenting the history and way of life of the early Springs settlers.

Admission to the festival and museum is $4.00 for anyone 12 years of age and over, $1.00 for children six to 12 years old, and free for children five and under. Admission is $3.00 per person for senior citizens or pre-registered groups of 20 or more, with ample free parking for cars, buses and RV's.

For more information, persons may contact the Springs Folk Festival, Box 293, Springs, PA 15562; (301) 895-5985; or the Deep Creek Lake-Garrett County Promotion Council, Courthouse, Oakland, MD 21550, (301) 334-1948.

LOCAL HERO, the late Sgt. Delmar C. Dilley, who was a highly decorated World War II veteran, will be honored at opening ceremonies for the new addition to the American Legion Home, Post 71, Oakland. Dilley was the first vice commander of Post 71 at the time of his death in July of 1989. An oil painting of Sgt. Dilley by Mrs. Dee Watkins has been donated to Post 71 by Mrs. Watkins and her husband, Jay, who own Jay-Dee Photography, Oakland. Dilley was an active member of the post's building committee, served on the honor guard at funerals, and was an active member of the post for 45 years after returning home from the war. "The new post building will be dedicated to the memory, honor, courage, valor, and dedication of Delmar Dilley, soldier, friend, and comrade," said a Post 71 spokesman. The date of the October opening of the new building will be announced soon. Pictured above, left to right, are Jay Watkins, Mrs. Delmar Dilley (holding the portrait of her late husband), and Dee Watkins.

Theft, DOP Noted By GC Sheriff's Office

One theft and two destructions of property were reported to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office this week, according to police documents.

Shelton Miller, Oakland, reported that a pop-up trailer was stolen from a barn on Mountain Road sometime between Aug. 23 and Sept. 17.

The trailer belongs to Sarah J. Miller, New Providence, N.J., and is valued at $1000.

Det. Kelly is investigating the theft.

Darrell L. Welch, Oakland, reported that an unknown person or persons had scratched the paint on his truck, which was parked at the Elk's parking lot at the time of the damage.

Welch suspected that a sharp object had been used to cut into the paint on the side of the vehicle. Damage was estimated at $500.

In another case of property damage, John Hershberger, Grantsville, reported that a culprit shot open the door of the Garrett County Sanitation Division Treatment Plant on Welch Road, Pleasant Valley. There were five bullet holes in the door, apparently shot from a small caliber weapon on the weekend of Sept. 15-16.

Inside the plant, unknown persons reportedly shot paint capsules against the walls. Damage was estimated at $500.

Investigations are continuing in both cases.

Saturday Mishap Injures Young Pa. Woman

A young Pennsylvania woman was treated for minor injuries following a one-vehicle mishap Saturday night, according to reports filed by the Maryland State Police, McHenry Barrack.

Nicole L. Timothy, 17, Marysville, was injured when she lost control of the vehicle she was operating on U.S. Route 48, just east of the Old Morgantown Road.

Timothy reportedly rounded a curve and skidded on the wet pavement. Her vehicle struck the guardrails, bounced off, struck the guardrails again, and finally traveled across the road and came to rest on the left shoulder.

Tpr. Gregory S. Becker investigated the accident.

Garrett County Emergency Management dispatched the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad to the scene where Timothy was treated for her injuries.

In a separate accident, Karen L. Upole, 45, Oakland, was treated for injuries she sustained in a September 19 mishap which occurred just east of Oakland.

Upole was reportedly operating a 1990 Subaru Legacy east on Route 135 when she allegedly failed to stop at a red signal. As her vehicle continued through the intersection, it collided with a 1984 Jeep Wagoneer, operated by Jeffrey A. Fisher, 32, Oakland, who was entering the intersection from the Weber Road.

Upole was taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Rescue Squad where she was treated and released.

She was charged with failure to stop at a red traffic signal. Fisher was charged with operating a vehicle on unsafe tires.

Tfc. P.R. Brown was the investigating officer.

DWI ARREST

Maryland State Police also noted the arrest of a McHenry man who was charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol.

Charged was William E. Stewart Jr., 38, on Friday.

The arresting officer was Tpr. P. R. Brown.

Kitzmiller Woman Injured When Ejected From Car

A Kitzmiller woman was injured early Tuesday after being ejected from her vehicle on the Hartmansville Road near Elk Garden, W.Va., according to State Police at Keyser, W.Va.

Cynthia June Meyers, no age given, was operating a compact car north when the vehicle ran off the roadway, struck an embankment and overturned, according to police.

Elk District Rescue Squad personnel reportedly found Meyers lying in a ditch.

She was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital where she was treated for injuries and later released.

Police said the mishap occurred at approximately 2:50 a.m.

Our Legacy

By worldly standards Dad's life was not a success. He possessed nothing of material value, nor was he surrounded by friends in high places. What then did he leave us? He left us values to sustain us in difficult times. To deal fairly with everyone, to do our best, never to stop learning . . . or caring for people. To be dreamers and to hope for the impossible. Never to forget how to laugh. If we can live by these principles, he will be at rest and know his life was not in vain. Dad earned the love and respect we have given him. No man can do better than that.

To the people of Garrett County —

THANK YOU for your support!

As a candidate for County Commissioner, I wanted to bring new ideas to government. I wanted to get involved and give voters a clear choice.

I appreciate the support of all of you who took the time to talk with me during the campaign. A special "Thank You" goes out to those who voted for me.

In four years I hope to be a candidate for County Commissioner. Until then, I will continue working to give voters a choice!

Fire Truck Mishap Occurs En Route To House Fire

Extensive damage was done to a 1982 Ford fire truck on Wednesday, September 19, as the result of a mishap. The truck was en route to a reported house fire at the time of the accident, according to reports filed by the Maryland State Police.

The accident occurred when Dean H. Georg, 31, Accident, was operating the fire truck on Md. Route 42 responding to a reported house fire.

As the fire truck entered a sharp curve on the wet pavement, the driver steered to the right to avoid approaching traffic. As a result, the truck ran off the right side of the road and struck a large reflector pole.

The fire truck re-entered the road and then ran off the left side and struck an embankment.

Neither Georg, nor another firefighter in the passenger's seat, Allen O. Bach, 33, Accident, were seriously injured in the accident.

Accident Fire Chief Donald Ringer expects to receive word today whether or not the fire truck will be listed as a total loss.

Southern High Alumni Band To Re-Convene

The alumni band of Southern High School is being organized again, scheduled to march in the annual Autumn Glory Parade for the fourth year.

All past band members of Southern High School are invited to march, whether they graduated in the 1950's, 1990, or anytime in between, according to a spokesman.

All former colorguard members, majorettes, and percussion are invited as well.

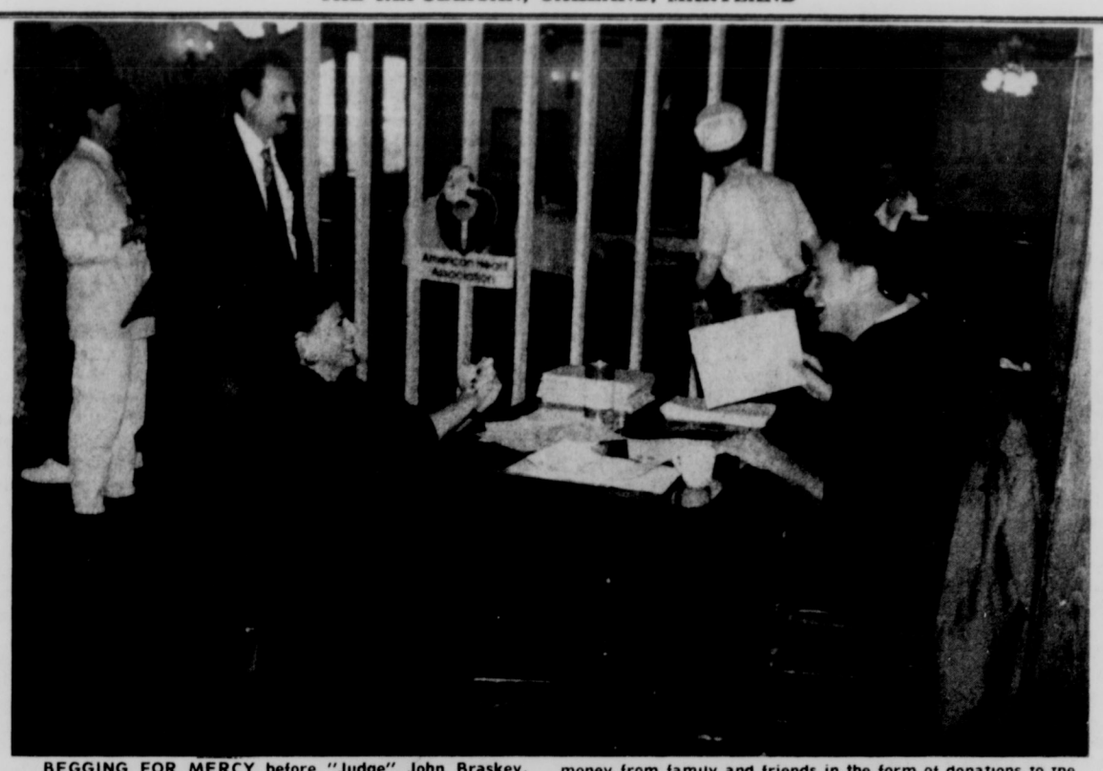

Blair Glass, band organizer, said that some graduates have not participated in the past because they no longer own an instrument or colorguard equipment. He stressed that "something could be worked out for them" and urged that they participate because the event is "all just for fun, anyway."

The group will meet at the Southern Middle School for a 7 p.m. rehearsal on Oct. 12. They will be performing "The Masterpiece," and all graduates who own a copy of the music are asked to bring it to the practice session.

The colorguard will organize a routine at that time as well.

Uniforms for the band will consist of red sweatshirts, jeans, and tennis shoes.

For more information, persons may contact Blair Glass at 334-4839 (answering machine), or Mary Sincell McEwen at 334-1679, after 5 p.m.

BEGGING FOR MERCY before "Judge" John Braskey, Garrett County commissioner, is Garrett County Board of Education member Mikal Moomau, who was nabbed yesterday in the American Heart Association's "Cardiac Arrest" in Oakland. Numerous well-known local citizens were rounded up by local law enforcement personnel and bail was placed by "Judge" Braskey. The defendant was then given the opportunity to raise that bail money from family and friends in the form of donations to the Heart Association. Awaiting his turn before the judge in the above photo is Ben Rosenthal, administrator of Garrett County Memorial Hospital. Below, Jack "The King Pin" King and Butch "Cassidy" Sumpter, both of Bausch & Lomb, are dragged in by Oakland Police Chief John Sines. Favorites Restaurant served as police headquarters and the Cardiac Arrest lock-up.

Arrests Made By Deputies Of Sheriff's Office

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office made several arrests recently, on various charges, including DWI and harassment.

Richard R. Larock, 31, Oakland, was arrested on Sept. 21 after a routine traffic stop. Upon inspection of the vehicle, Dep. Murphy discovered evidence of a controlled dangerous substance in Larock's possession.

Larock's charges were driving while intoxicated (DWI), possession of marijuana, and failure to drive right of center.

An Oakland woman was stopped after failing to dim her headlights as she approached an officer, and was found to be in possession of CDS paraphernalia, including rolling papers and a pipe.

Nancy C. Paugh, 44, was arrested by Dep. Murphy on Third Street, Oakland. In addition to the CDS charge, Paugh was cited for DWI.

Charles T. Herman, Jr., 25, Deer Park, was arrested for DWI by Dep. Murphy on Rt. 135 in Deer Park.

A Ridgeley, W.Va., man was arrested on several license tag violations in the early hours of Sept. 24.

Daniel S. Rhodes, 30, was charged by Dep. Murphy for driving an uninsured vehicle, driving with expired tags, unregistered, and displaying tags registered to another vehicle.

According to reports, the vehicle Rhodes was driving was a 1980 Chevrolet, but the tags displayed were verified to be registered to a 1972 Cadillac.

Several counts of harassment and assault were brought against Michael S. Lewis, 23, Oakland, after he allegedly threatened a family while in a motor vehicle, and harassed them by telephone.

Lewis was served a two criminal summonses on Sept. 23 which charged him with a total of three counts of harassment, five counts of assault, and one count of battery against an Oakland family, including a 5-year-old male.

In an unrelated case, harassment and trespassing charges were brought against Tonya L. Warnick, 18, Swanton. Warnick allegedly entered the property of Mildred Lucas, threatening her with bodily harm.

According to the report, Warnick was also charged for harassing Jeffrey Bittner, Sr., Oakland, on Sept. 18 through 23. Warnick was cited for disorderly conduct as well, on Sept. 20.

A bench warrant was issued for Kenneth L. Stinson, 32, for battery against a Mtn. Lake Park woman. Stinson reportedly repeatedly struck the victim on Aug. 26.

John M. Finch, 23, Gormania, W.Va., was arrested on the strenght of a bench warrant for contempt of district court and failure to pay fines.

Correction Noted

In last week's edition of The Republican, charges brought against Fern E. Fitzpatrick were reported. It should be noted that the police records were incorrect, and that the name of the woman should have been Elizabeth J. Wolfe, not Fern Fitzpatrick.

Freak Accident Injures County Roads Worker

A Garrett County Roads Department worker remains hospitalized in "fair" condition as the result of injuries he sustained in a freak accident Monday involving a County Roads truck.

According to a sketchy report from a spokesman from the McHenry Detachment of the Maryland State Police, Larry Warnick, no age given, Grantsville, was operating a 1984 Mack dump truck on U.S. Route 40 "when there was some type of mechanical failure, causing parts to fly off and strike a 1979 C-60 truck, operated by Darius Miller."

The MSP spokesman said the report of the 10:05 a.m. mishap was incomplete because the investigation was incomplete.

A spokesman from the County Roads Department said a vehicle inspection of the truck had been conducted by the State Police and was termed a "freak accident."

"It's just one of those things that happens once in a million times," the spokesman said.

He further explained that the truck clutch plate exploded, causing the housing to come apart and project through the floor boards. The parts struck Warnick in the legs and projected through the truck and struck the other vehicle.

Warnick was reportedly transported to Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland, by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad.

DNR Ranger Makes Arrest

Charges were brought against Larry D. Wilt (age not provided), Grantsville, by Park Ranger John McNamara for driving while intoxicated (DWI), according to a press release from the Maryland Department of Natural Resources.

The incident occurred at the Casselman River Bridge State Park in the early hours of Sept. 9, according to the Ranger.

In addition to the DWI charge, Wilt was also cited for littering and for being inside park boundaries after hours.

A Note From Home . . .

Tension is mounting daily in the Persian Gulf as Saddam Hussein maintains his grip on Kuwait while George Bush and most of the rest of the world leaders continue to insist that he must return that nation to its rightful owners. While we hope and pray for a peaceful solution, it seems right now that war is almost inevitable.

As more and more of our young people depart for that area, those of us at home may wonder if there is anything we can do to assist with the mission there. Teachers at Broad Ford Elementary School shared an idea with us this past week that we think is a winner. They plan to have their students write letters to the local soldiers now stationed in Saudi Arabia. We want to assist them with this project by collecting and publishing the addresses of our service people. We encourage parents to call us with that information so we can begin our list in next week's issue.

Morale is a major key to success in any undertaking, whether it be one's job, in taking a test, in playing a football game, and certainly in any type of war effort. In many of the recent news reports on our soldiers in the Gulf it is mentioned how important it is to them that they receive mail from home. This is one easy way each of us can get involved, and truly make a positive difference in this crisis. The school students in Garrett County alone could supply several thousand letters, not only to Garrett County soldiers, but to many others who may not be receiving any other communication from home. Teachers could even use this as an instructional tool in writing.

We'll supply the addresses. We hope all our readers will supply the letters to send a message of pride, hope, and encouragement to our youth who have been charged with such awesome responsibility.

Letters to the Editor

Letter Policy

EDITOR'S NOTE: Letters to the Editor encouraging persons to vote for a particular candidate or against a particular candidate will not be published in The Republican. Persons may still submit letters which voice an opinion about decisions made by our elected officials, but those written in the form of an endorsement for or against candidates in the November general election will not be accepted.

To the Editor:

I am appalled after reading the recent letter to the Editor from Ronald Rowan that characterized my running for county commissioner as some kind of devious plot to get the incumbent re-elected.

I am appalled for two reasons. First, it is disturbing to find out that there is a person in this county who could not understand why I decided to run for office. I certainly did not run because I needed a job or because I needed the money. I ran for office because I believe that I have some new and fresh ideas that will help Garrett County grow in the coming decade. Of course, I said that in all of my ads, but Mr. Rowan probably didn't believe me. People who have a hard time telling the truth have a hard time believing the truth!

Second, Mr. Rowan's letter is disturbing because I cannot imagine that he could be so narrow-minded, so uninformed, so one-sided, and so unfair. I believe Mr. Rowan is simply a dupe of another candidate. Perhaps he is living in some kind of fantasy world in which everyone he doesn't know or like is an evil person with devious motives.

Mr. Rowan should wake up and think a little bit. If I wanted to insure a victory by the incumbent, wouldn't I campaign FOR him rather than run AGAINST him? What kind of logic is that, Mr. Rowan?

I have been a resident in Garrett County for more than 20 years. In that time, I have watched this county go through bust and boom, through good times and bad. I decided this year to exercise my right as an American citizen and run for public office. Since Mr. Rowan has absolutely no idea what is happening in his own backyard, I will have to tell him that my campaign cost me a lot of money and time. I don't slander and libel people who are trying to improve their county. I wanted to conduct a first-class campaign. I believe that I had the most professional signs and that my advertising and literature were first-class. I believe that if you are going to do something, do it right!

In the six weeks that I campaigned, I met a great many people. I heard about what they feel is important and what their hopes and dreams are for the coming years. In four years, I plan to run for election again — not because I want somebody else to win, but because I want to help my county! I believe Mr. Rowan wouldn't understand trying to help people.

When I decided to run for office, I swore to myself that I would not attack the other candidates personally. I would point out their political or business failures because that's part of the election process. But, I would not comment on their personal lives. I feel that I conducted an above-board and honest campaign. I didn't take down other candidates' signs and I didn't use smear tactics or a whisper campaign to slander other people.

To the people of Garrett County, I owe a vote of thanks for the privilege of running for office. I want them to know that I hope to continue being active in our community. That's why I have decided to support a basic American ideal — the right to have a free choice in an election. I think the 12,000 registered voters in our district deserve a choice of two candidates. I don't think we should be limited to the single candidate who received fewer than 1,600 votes.

I don't understand a person like Ronald Rowan, the letter writer, who thinks that the way to help a candidate is to run against him; who thinks that it makes sense for a person to spend all this money and time for someone else; and who shoots off his mouth when he hasn't the faintest idea what he's talking about!

George J. Brodak
Oakland, MD 21550

Editor's Note: In a letter to the Editor by Ronald Rowan in our September 20 issue, Rowan referred to George Brodak as a "chameleon" candidate. Such a reference should have been deleted from the letter by us before publishing. As a point of clarification, however, Rowan was not comparing Brodak to this particular member of the animal kingdom, but used the term to allege that Brodak was running for office under false pretenses. We apologize to Mr. Brodak for any misunderstanding.

To the Editor:

For several years I have been renting a parking space from the town of Oakland in the Liberty Street parking lot.

Some time ago, a letter was sent to all of us who are renting spaces to inform us that the lease on part of the lot would not be renewed. As a result, the number of parking spaces would be cut considerably.

On Friday, September 21, I went to City Hall to find out about the status of our parking spaces. I was told that a letter had been sent to each renter, informing them that at 8:30 Monday morning, (that's the time it opens for business) we could come in and pay the rent on a parking space, on a first-come, first-served basis, until all the spaces were rented.

Although I didn't receive the letter (I wonder how many others did not receive theirs), I was at City Hall at exactly 8:30 Monday morning, and was told that all the spaces had been rented. That's quite a trick, considering there were only two other fellows there, and they were also too late.

According to my information, at 8:24 (remember, City Hall doesn't open for business until 8:30) a representative from the Garrett National Bank came in and paid the fee for all the spaces it had been renting, and rented several more. If this is true, the bank was allowed to acquire parking spaces from other renters because they were not given an opportunity to pay for their spaces. I understand there is a town ordinance requiring the bank to furnish parking spaces for its employees. That's the bank's problem and shouldn't be imposed on anybody else.

At 8:15, I saw the son of one of the Garrett National Bank's directors in the office of City Hall. I wondered what he was doing there since it didn't open until 8:30. I learned later that, yes, he did pay the rent on a parking space. His father is still parking in the lot, in a different place than he used to, so I assume that he paid his rent also; before 8:30 Monday morning.

There is one point that is very important that I clarify. Any reference to the bank is not directed at its employees. They had nothing to do with it. This also applies to anyone connected with the Mayor and Town Council who were not involved in what happened. The point I'm making is, some were given preferential treatment by City Hall, including the Garrett National Bank, at the expense of the rest of us.

Early Monday morning, I noticed that my parking space on the front row, next to what used to be the space reserved for the handicapped, (it's no longer there) had been assigned to one of the employees of the Mayor and Town Council. It would seem that the whole thing had been prearranged from the beginning.

I want the Mayor and Town Council, the management of Garrett National Bank, and anyone who "bucked the line" to know that I think it stinks. It was totally unfair to the rest of us and just about as unethical as anything I have ever been involved in, and there is absolutely no justification for the shabby way it was handled.

Yours truly,
Jerry Stewart
Oakland

To the Editor:

The more I watch the TV news reports, the more disgusted I get. ABC, CBS, NBC all have the same format. Switching channels is futile!

In a one-hour news program, there are, of course, 20 minutes for station announcements and commercials, then 5 minutes on the Persion Gulf crisis, 10 minutes local news, 15 minutes on sports, 5 minutes on medical problems, and 5 minutes on economic news — in which no mention is ever made about labor or labor unions.

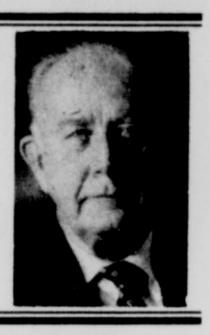

The only recent mention about labor was the General Motor's 3-year settlement, 3% raises each year for the next 3 years. Since each 3% raise is based on the previous year's raise, the total raise for the 3 years is not 9%, but 11%. The 1993 cars will cost 11% more than the present 1990 models.

The American automobile industries might as well close down in 1991, as it probably will have to anyway, due to the "1990-91 Great Depression."

If the Unions had agreed to 20% wage reductions, as the Weirton Steel workers did in

Gov. Schaefer Speaks Out

A GOVERNOR'S JOB: SELLING MARYLAND
by Governor William Donald Schaefer

I had to laugh recently as I picked up the morning paper and saw the headline, "Super Salesman Schaefer Off on Selling Trip to Far East." Probably without realizing it or meaning to, the morning headline writer had composed a pretty good description of just what this job of governor is all about — selling, selling, selling this great state of ours.

Gubernatorial salesmanship comes in many forms, some direct and others more subtle. Sometimes it is as simple as a meeting with the local Chamber of Commerce or Rotary Club to encourage them to support relocation of a new business in their region. Sometimes it involves pulling together a task force or a commission to devise new policies or projects to improve the quality of life for our citizens. Other times, it is as strenuous and as demanding as our recent 7-day trip to Taiwan and Hong Kong.

There was no subtlety about this trip. We went to the Far East to promote Maryland products, Maryland businesses, and Maryland's port. We met with representatives of several international shipping lines and hosted a series of meetings with leading financial investors. We visited the China steel corporation in Kaohsiung, Taiwan, one of the world's largest steel producers. We also talked with top economic and political leaders to alert them to new opportunities for trade with Maryland.

As any salesman will tell you, one of the best parts of the job is when, after months and sometimes years of work, you finally make that sale. The highlight of this trip for me was the visit to Evergreen Marine Corporation in Taiwan where we witnessed the signing of a 3-year lease between Evergreen and the Port of Baltimore for the use of the port's brand new Seagirt Marine Terminal.

Under the direction of Chairman Y.F. Chang, Evergreen has developed a much-deserved reputation as a leader in the maritime industry. In shipping circles, Evergreen is considered a trend-setter, and their decision to come to Seagirt sends a very important message to others considering future leases with the port.

As always, I return to Maryland from these sales trips with new insights into the way we market our state and the challenges we face. And in spite of all the business calls and the meetings, I seem to come home with the clearest impressions of the ordinary people we have met.

In Taiwan, my main impression was one of activity. Everywhere we went, we saw people working. The Far East is a place of incredible activity and enterprise. The people we met were the most enterprising I have ever seen. The message I brought home was very direct. There are many societies and countries in today's world which are actively working to compete with us and to do a better, cheaper job of producing the products and services we market.

That's the challenge I see. We must renew our own spirit of competitiveness and enterpreneurship if we are to succeed in the global economy. We must upgrade our educational system and our job training facilities. We must improve our health care system and rebuild our roads and highways. In other words, we must use every tool we can to build an efficient, competitive, and growing economy which will carry us into the next century.

I would be interested in your ideas about Maryland's competitive future. Write to me: Governor William Donald Schaefer, The State House, Annapolis, MD 21401.

Small Business Scanner

This article is one of an ongoing series designed to support the development of small businesses in Garrett County. It was written by John Gould, a Coordinator for the Small Business Development Center and an Assistant Professor of Business at Garrett Community College. The staff of the SBDC at Garrett Community College invite you to call to set up an appointment to discuss your ideas and receive free help initiating, planning or running your business. For information call Sandy Major, Coordinator of Business Programs for Continuing Education at 387-6666, ext. 180.

If you have decided that you are the "intrepreneurial type," then your next step would be to come up with the right idea for your situation. Keep this in mind: The first year or two will be exciting, but also stressful. The temptation to give up will enter your mind every day. So, it is vital that your idea be one that at some level you love doing so much that your energy stays positive. There is even a book titled, "Do What You Love and the Money Will Follow." This assumes, of course, (a) that you are good at what you do, and (b) people will want what you do enough to buy it. It is safe to say that you should stay with something you already know a lot about and love to do.

Many writers do advise that you look at your hobbies to see if you can make a living doing them full-time. The potential downside is that you may end up hating doing for a living what you used to love doing for fun. Hobbies often serve the purpose of balancing our regular jobs, so if we quit the job to do the hobby, what balances the hobby? Still, you have to have your whole heart in your business. As Joseph Campbell wrote, "Follow your bliss."

It is always best to work in your chosen field before opening a business on your own. You may not like it as much as you thought, and it is better to discover this on someone else's nickel. If you are lucky (smart?) enough to already be working at a job you like doing, but want to do it for yourself, you're way ahead of the game. Your job has served as paid on-the-job-training, and your success will be much more likely.

Then your old boss may become your competitor. Look at all your competition: Is there room for one more? In general you will be better off not going head-to-head with lower prices.

Customers are perhaps not as loyal as they used to be, but they are creatures of habit, difficult to sway your way. It is better to do things better, to offer more service with your product or more product with your service, to offer different lines or styles, upscale or down from your rivals. Entrenched businesses and chain stores can always beat your price. Your niche will best be found by treating your customers like royalty and doing your thing slightly differently and a whole lot better than anyone else.

The Mind Wanders

Oscillating Fans
by John R. McEwen

I have recently had the opportunity to attend two football games at my old alma mater (West Virginia University), those being the Maryland and Louisville games. In other words, I got to watch WVU lose twice in a row. But it's been so long since I've been able to do this, I don't mind their losing; I'm behind the team no matter how they play. I consider myself a devoted fan.

At least I did, until I saw some of the people at the games who undoubtedly call themselves "fans" too. I began to wonder, as I gazed incredulously at these people, if I was behaving properly for a WVU devotee.

The truth is, I haven't been to that many football games in my life (my wife often has to tell me what's going on), and I'm not sure about what is the proper "stadium etiquette." Is this the way Mountaineer fans are supposed to act?

First there was the lady beside us at the Maryland game. This was a middle-aged woman, sort of stoutish, very short, with a cigarette lit throughout the entire game, and vocal nodes. I mean she must have had vocal nodes from the way she was screaming. Sort of a Roseanne Barr type shriek.

And she didn't have one good thing to say about the team. The only way I could tell she was on our side was that she was wearing blue and gold.

"Come on, Mountaineers!" Roseanne shouted. "What's the matter, didn't have your Wheaties today?! What kind of defense is that? Morgantown High could beat you guys!"

She stopped long enough to light another butt while Maryland punted the ball. "Is she rooting for the same team as we are?" I asked my wife. "I mean, we stopped 'em, didn't we?"

"I don't know what her problem is," she said. "Just try to ignore her." But I couldn't help imagining our Roseanne down there on the field, crouched in the quarterback's position, cigarette clenched between her teeth, making the decisions that she felt Greg Jones was incapable of.

But my daydream was cut short by another burst from this would-be MVP.

"Oh come on, Greg!!" she howled. "Who're you passing to? There's nobody there!! You're gettin' sloppy!" Then there was a penalty flag. "Oh, there's a penalty," she said. "Better not be against us."

We endured this for the entire first half of the game, until we got wise and moved to another location, away from Roseanne.

At the Louisville game, we were introduced to another type of "fan." This one certainly could not be accused of heckling the team, as Roseanne did; he was all for them. But I'm not sure he could see them, he was so drunk.

The guy came staggering down the steps and into the seat behind us, with a long, unkempt beard, extremely red eyes that looked like they were about to fall out of his head, and belching every few minutes, like Foster Brooks. And, in his hand was, you guessed it, a smoke.

Hey, I'm not trying to make fun of smokers, but these two seemed to be making fun of themselves, albeit unintentionally.

Foster started in practically before he hit the seat. We could hardly understand what he was bellowing.

"S'go, Mouneeeeees! Tha's the way t'play! C'mon, EEEEEEERS!"(burp)

"Maybe I'm not enthusiastic enough at these games," I said.

"Please," said my wife. "If you ever get like that, I'm not sitting with you." Suddenly we were enveloped in a cloud of beer breath.

"Less go Moun'neeeeeeeerrrrs! Touch. Down. Touch. Down. Touch. Down. Let's getta TeeDeeeee!" Every time he took his cigarette hand up to his mouth, he had to let go of the seat, which caused him to sway scarily, to the chagrin of his immediate neighbors. Each time, we all would involuntarily clench up, expecting to receive him into our laps head first. Luckily, we thought, the cigarette was almost finished.

The ball changed hands, and he changed to a cigar. "Come on, deeeeeefensh! Come on, DEEEEEEE!"

I had to admire him for at least knowing who had possession.

"Cummonnnn, Deeeee! Shrep that ball! Shrep that ball! Shrep. That. Ball. Shrep. That. Ball. Shrep. That. Ball. Shrepatballllll, Mouneeeeeeees!"

"What's he saying to do to the ball?" my wife asked.

"I don't know, strip it, I guess," I said.

"Oh, Okay," she said. "That makes sense." I shot her a confused glance, but didn't pursue it.

For the rest of the game it went on, with this guy screaming and swaying and burping, only pausing to chew his soggy stogie or mumble something unintelligible to his frightened seatmate. He stayed true, right up until we lost. Only then did he finally clam up.

What a fan.

So I begin to wonder which is the best type to emulate. Is it better to be on top of the game and deride the home team if they do poorly? Or to get plastered in the parking lot and then scream utmost support no matter what happens?

I think I prefer to remain in between.

Dr. Friend Declared County Winner Of Md. You Are Beautiful Contest

It was announced this week that Dr. Alvin P. Friend, Oakland resident and doctor of dentistry, has been named the winner of Garrett County's fourth annual "Maryland You Are Beautiful" contest.

The anouncement was made by the Garrett County contest committee chairman Dave Turney after the committee reviewed other names submitted for nomination.

Dr. Friend, who will be honored by Maryland Governor William Donald Schaefer on October 1 and who will be featured in the Autumn Glory parade, October 13, has become well-recognized, in part, because of his volunteer work in Haiti on several occasions. More information about him will appear in next week's issue.

October is "Maryland You Are Beautiful" month, which will be proclaimed by the Garrett County Commissioners October 2. The state award program will be held in Annapolis October 30.

County Agency Heads Voice Concern Over Census Count Shortfalls

The Garrett County Board of Commissioners this week heard concerns from various Garrett County agency heads over reported census count shortfalls that could result in a significant loss of grant monies and other funding to county agencies.

Garrett County Planning and Zoning Commission Director John Nelson reported that the preliminary census count for Garrett County is 27,689 which, he said, is subject to change pending the results of a local review by the Planning Commission.

The county, he said, as well as the state, is currently contesting several "block counts" and is still awaiting word from the U.S. Census Bureau on how to implement the procedure for contesting a count.

Nelson noted that a 1988 study by the Maryland State Planning Commission had estimated the projected population for Garrett County to be 28,200 in 1990.

Garrett County Economic Development Director Tom Jones stated that even that estimate might have been somewhat shortsighted, and pointed out that his office calculated (based on 1980 census figures) that the population would reach approximately 30,500 by 1990.

Jones explained that this estimate was determined by his office based on projections from the 24.2 percent increase seen from 1970-1980. Jones stated that an anticipated 12 percent increase from 1980-1990 would yield that 30,500 population projection.

Jones also noted that a number of municipalities, during the last ten-year period, have "suffered real decreases" despite annexations of some of the towns. However, he said, Accident was, for the first time ever, not the smallest town in the county and, in fact, had the most significant increase (42 percent) of the eight municipalities.

The census shortfall is of great concern to Dr. Rex Archer, Garrett County Health Officer, and to Robert Shaffer, Department of Social Services director, who are not only experiencing budget cuts and a budget hiring freeze as of September 1 from the Maryland Department of Mental Health and Hygiene in their departments, but who greatly depend on accurate census counts to receive sufficient funding for many of their health and social programs.

In the case of the Health Department, Archer stated, "It is critical for our department that the census be accurately reported." He explained that approximately 50 percent of the department's funding comes from federal grants or federal reimbursement programs that are based on population.

He also noted that, according to his calculations, the county could see a $12 million loss in future state and federal funding during the next ten years. This was based on a $400 per person, per year allocation.

As already mentioned, an additional burden will be felt from the state budget crunch, which amounts to approximately $43 million statewide, according to Archer, who noted that he wasn't sure of the exact monetary impact on the county's system. He did note, however, that various positions will be frozen (especially contractual positions, of which the Health Department has about 50).

In other news from the Health Department, Archer noted that the state is experiencing an increase in infectious diseases, such as pertussis, mumps, hepatitus A and syphillis. So far, he said, this increase is being felt most markedly downstate, but history indicates those trends will reach Western Maryland. One case of pertussis has already been experienced in the county, he said.

Archer also reported an increase in the number of persons coming in for AIDS testing. Although there has yet to be an increase in the incidence here, Archer warned that "we have to be aware of it and not close our eyes to it."

Social Services Department

Garrett County Social Services Director Robert Shaffer reported that contractual positions in his department will also be affected but stated, "We're in good shape as we enter this two-year (at least) budget crunch. We should be able to come through real well."

He did indicate, though, that the hardest hit of the services would be contractual positions which will not be renewed if scheduled to end by the close of the fiscal year. Those positions, he said, are mostly held by Child Support Enforcement Program personnel. He noted that a total of $600,000 was collected in support payments last year.

Community Action

Duane Yoder, director of Community Action, explained that his department will also be affected by state budget cuts in the coming fiscal year and he anticipates an eight to nine percent reduction in grant monies. Currently, several grant aplications are on hold, he said.

Yoder added that the federal government is "in more of a mess than the state," noting that no budget has been forthcoming from that source.

In other news, Yoder stated that the department is searching for a new location for the food warehouse, currently located in the basement of the Southern Rescue Squad building in Oakland.

The unheated space, he said, creates problems for the workers there, especially with colder weather approaching. "We're currently looking for a new place, but we don't have a lot of money for that program," he stated.

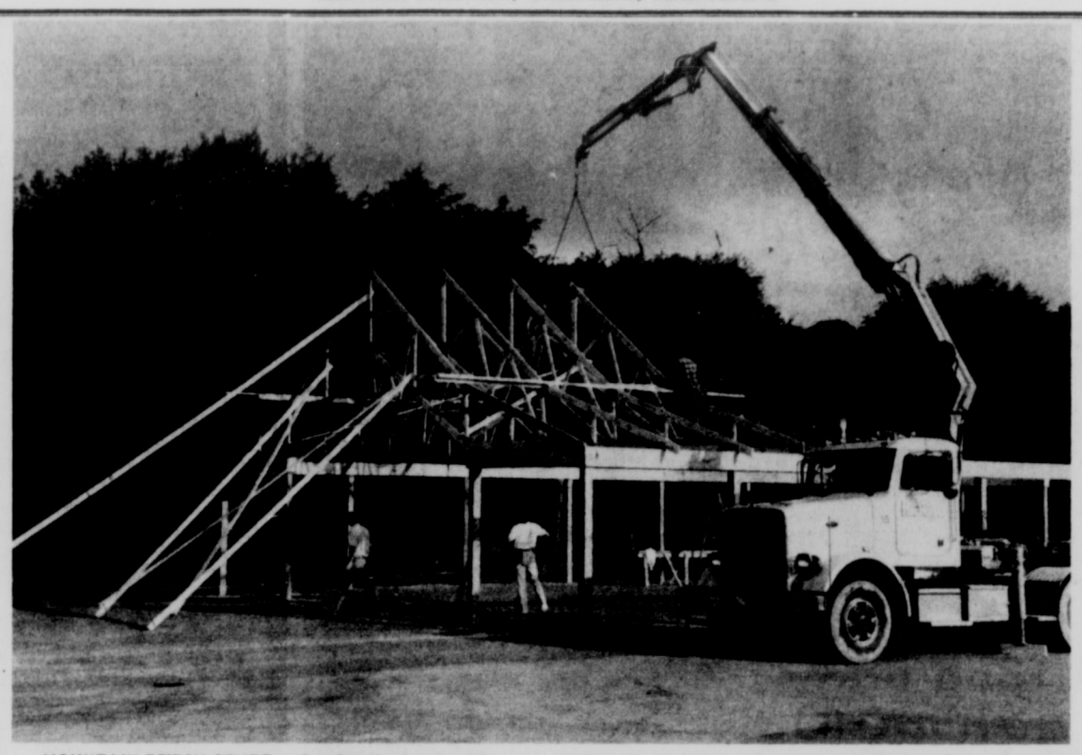

Finally, he stated that the Energy Assistance program is now in operation and several locations have been set up in the northern end of the county to better serve residents there.

Economic Development

Economic Development Director Tom Jones reported that his office is currently working with the Garrett County Forestry Board to develop "enterprise activities to help forestry in our area." Part of the Forest Partners program, four projects have been identified to compete for grant monies in that effort.

The projects include an experiential training center, designed to provide hands-on MOUNTAIN FRESH COVER — Construction is now underway on a building in the Oakland town parking lot where Mountain Fresh Producers sell their wares every Wednesday at 3 p.m. and Saturday at 10 a.m. The building, which measures approximately 35 by 80 feet, is expected to be completed by mid-October, in time for Autumn Glory, according to Pamela Roberts, Mountain Fresh Co-ordinator. Intended to blend in with the decor of the B&O Train Station, the building will provide cover for producers so that produce can be sold even in inclement weather. Four groups (Maryland Department of Agriculture, Mountain Top Chamber of Commerce, the Town of Oakland, and the Garrett County Commissioners) have each contributed $7,500 toward the cost of the building.

Southern Garrett Band Places 2nd; Receives Awards

The Southern Garrett Marching Band recently traveled to Pennsylvania to compete in several marching competitions where they captured second place three times and received several special awards, including best marching and music.

The band, under the direction of Richard D. Clever, has been competing in the Pennsylvania Federation of Contest Judges circuit. On Saturday, Sept. 15, they marched at both McKeesport and Waynesburg shows, where they placed second in class AA.

In Waynesburg, the group also was awarded for Best Colorguard, and the drumline received the highest percussion score in the show.

At the McKeesport show, held on the evening of the 15th, Southern Garrett captured the Best Music award, Best Colorguard, and Best Marching. The percussion line once again received the highest score.

Versailles, Pa., was the destination of the band last Saturday, where they participated in a competition at East Allegheny High School. Second place was awarded to the group, as well as the Best Music award.

For the third time, the drummers accumulated the highest number of points at the show.

The marchers will be traveling to Severna Park on Saturday, competing in the Tournament of Bands circuit.

Southern's drum major this year is Kim Wampler, assisted by Michelle Kisner. Other band personnel include Blair Glass, percussion instructor and arranger; Tina Winters, colorguard instructor; and Rob Johnson, drill instructor.

SOUTHERN GARRETT TOOK THE FIELD in marching competition in Pennsylvania recently. The band has traveled to three cities in the state for the past two weekends, placing second in class AA, and receiving several special awards, including best music, best colorguard, and highest score in percussion. The group will travel to Severna Park this weekend.

Schaefer Makes Pro-Abortion Stance Public

After months of refusing to take a public stance on the highly controversial abortion issue, Maryland Governor William Donald Schaefer last week announced that, as a public official, he will work to keep abortion widely available in the state although he personally opposes most abortions.

According to reports, Governor Schaefer stated, "Donald Schaefer, the individual, is pro-life, but Donald Schaefer, the governor, is pro-choice."

Schaefer indicated that he would not sign any legislation that would prohibit women from making a personal choice about abortion, stating that it is not the role of government to make such decisions.

In addition, he reportedly plans to advocate repeal of the single Maryland abortion law on the books since 1968 — a law allowing abortion only if the woman's health was endangered, the pregnancy was the result of rape or if the fetus showed indications of severe deformity. The Maryland law would also require that those abortions be performed only in a hospital following the approval of a review board.

The law, however, has been unenforceable since 1973 — when the Supreme Court ruled that abortion was legal.

Reports also speculate that Schaefer made his position public in the aftermath of the Maryland primary election that saw several anti-abortion senators defeated by abortion-rights opponents and a reported 100,000 votes going to Schaefer's Democratic primary opponent Frederick M. Griisser Jr. whose position was that government should not be involved in the abortion issue.

But Schaefer reported that his position paper on abortion was written in May. That paper reportedly included information about his programs designed to support women facing unwanted pregnancies, and included proposed funds for adoption programs and additional counseling programs for teenagers.

Schaefer cited his witness to hundreds of alcoholic, AIDS and syphillis babies and teenaged mothers' inappropriate treatment of their babies as part of the impetus for his stance.

OCPD Arrest Barton Woman For DWI

Oakland City Police Officer Shawn Groves arrested a young Barton woman last Thursday night and charged her with driving while under the influence of alcohol.

Charged was Heather L. James, 20, following a minor accident at the corner of Memorial Drive and Third Street in Oakland.

The mishap occurred at about 9:30 p.m.

Gas Prices To Distributors Jump Twice As Fast As To Retailers

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said his investigation into gasoline price increases at the distributor level revealed that major oil companies increased prices to distributors by 25.6% from June to August, nearly twice the 14.6% increase to retail service stations directly supplied by major oil company trucks. This investigation was prompted by complaints from distributors and retail service stations they supply following the August 2 invasion of Kuwait and the almost immediate price increases announced by major oil companies.

Comptroller Goldstein's report, furnished to the General Assembly's Joint Committee on Energy Pricing, Governor William Donald Schaefer and Attorney General J. Joseph Curran Jr., noted, "The amount of price disparity lends credence to arguments that major oil companies are now engaging in discriminatory pricing that can inflict severe economic damage on jobber/distributors and result in market disruption and price discrimination among consumers."

Jobber/distributors are companies that purchase gasoline and other fuels from major oil companies and brokers, using that fuel to supply about half the retail service stations in Maryland, as well as agricultural, commercial, institutional and home heating oil accounts.

"It is also apparent that the traditional discount granted jobber/distributors, who pick up fuel in their own trucks or pay common carrier freight charges, was eliminated as part of this price increase scenario," he said. "Indeed, it is apparent that the pricing structure has now inverted to grant preferential prices to directly supplied stations.

Goldstein said major oil companies are taking the position that they are heeding President Bush's request to hold down prices by holding down the price of product they directly deliver to retail stations. "Unfortunately, this neglects the welfare of the customers of the 50% of Maryland retail service stations which are supplied by jobber/distributors," he said.

The comptroller said jobber/distributors responding to his survey paid an average price for unleaded gasoline in June of 75.13 cents per gallon. The average price reported for August was 94.4 cents per gallon — an increase of 25.6%. The average price paid by retail service station dealers directly supplied by major oil companies in the Baltimore and Washington areas was 75.69 cents per gallon in June and 86.7 cents per gallon in August — an increase of only 14.6%.

Goldstein said the trend appears to be continuing, noting that the Oil Marketing Bulletin, in its September 17 issue, reports a comparison of prices charged distributors versus directly supplied stations in 23 cities, including Baltimore. The publication reports a September 12 price to distributors of 93.66 cents per gallon, an increase of 36.2% from the August 1 price of 68.77 cents per gallon.

"In contrast, the price reported for directly supplied retail dealers on September 12 was 88.28 cents per gallon, up 16.9% from the 75.5 cents per gallon reported for August 1," he said.

According to the comptroller's report, the discriminatory pricing policy of the major oil companies lays open the possibility for discrimination in the prices available to consumers in metropolitan areas primarily served by directly supplied stations compared with consumers in non-metropolitan areas predominantly served by distributor-supplied stations.

"While our initial investigation does not disclose this kind of wide retail price disparity, it may be primarily because the major oil companies have begun to exert more of a direct supply presence as the rural areas have grown in population," he said. "This expansion of major oil company direct marketing into major rural areas of the state may be a indicator of the companies' intention to assume those markets by eliminating the jobber/distributor through discriminatory pricing.

"Should the discriminatory pricing policy drive distributors out of business, consumers face a loss of competition, a loss of service stations, and most certainly a further escalation of prices," Goldstein said.

Fall Career Planning Classes Slated At GCC

The New Horizons Program, providing services for single parents, homemakers, displaced homemakers, and sponsors of The Caring Connection Program, which serves adolescent single parents and pregnant teens, in cooperation with the Continuing Education Division of Garrett Community College, continues to sponsor a series of Career Planning classes this fall.

The classes are offered in five-week increments, meeting twice weekly on Wednesday and Friday, from 9 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. at the McHenry Campus of GCC. The next series of classes for fall 1990 will be held October 3 through November 2, and the last series will be November 7 through December 14.

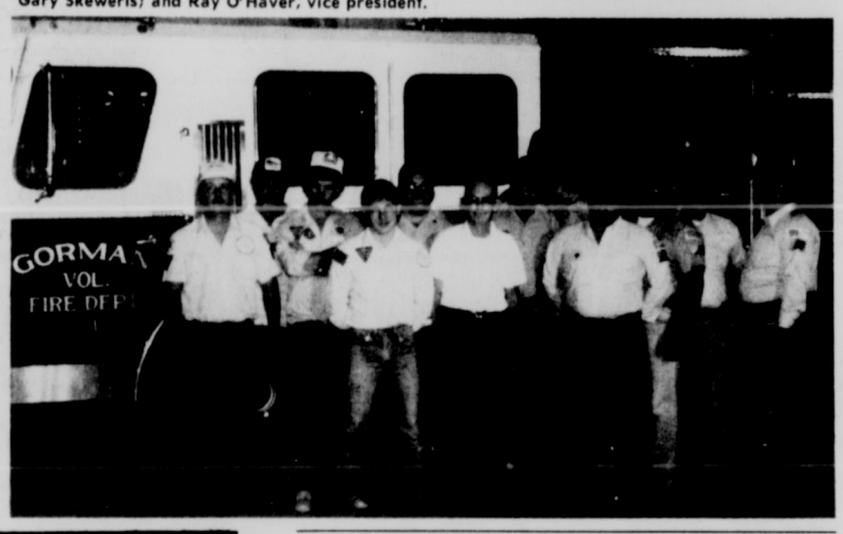

This career assessment course is designed for students to identify their training needs and to prepare for employment. Topics to be considered include skills assessment complete with interest testing, career information, resume writing, job applications, job search strategies, and interviewing techniques.

Participants of the New Horizons Programs are encouraged to take this class before pursuing other vocational training. Tuition assistance is available to those who qualify for New Horizons. Transportation/child care assistance is also available to income-eligible parents and homemakers who are part of the New Horizons Program, and child care to adolescent single parents and pregnant teens through The Caring Connection Program.

Interested persons may register for either class through the New Horizons office. Information on eligibility for the program and its services, as well as tuition availability, may be obtained by calling New Horizons at 387-6666, ext. 171, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays. New Horizons is located at the McHenry Campus of Garrett Community College in the Center for Community and Continuing Education in Room 302.

Additional Gypsy Moth Research Funding Approved

The Senate Appropriations Committee last week approved a request by Senator Barbara A. Mikulski (D-Md.) to increase funding for research into gypsy moth control by over 60% to $1.33 million. The research will be done at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) national research center in Beltsville.

"Gypsy moths devastated a record 130,000 acres in Maryland in the past year," said Mikulski, "and that was over 30% more than the previous year." The caterpillar of the gypsy moth feed on leaves and can damage forests by defoliating trees.

"Western Maryland has been hardest hit," noted Mikulski, "but I've seen damaged trees from the suburbs of Baltimore all the way down to Southern Maryland and even on the Eastern Shore." The gypsy moth was introduced in the United States in the mid-1800's, and has been spreading steadily south. Last year, Maryland sprayed nearly 200,000 acres in an effort to control the pest.

"Spraying can help slow the gypsy moth, but it doesn't solve the problem," said Mikulski, who indicated that the new money will be used to expand the limited research being conducted by the USDA's Agricultural Research Service in cooperation with agriculture departments from Maryland and several other states.

The Agriculture Appropriations bill is expected to go to the full Senate later this month.

GCC President Gives Views On College Status

At an all-college forum last week, Dr. Steve Herman, president of Garrett Community College, presented his views on the current status of the college and voiced his confidence in its future.

With only brief mention of the problems of the past, Dr. Herman noted the many changes that have taken place during the past three years.

He pointed to "the financial stability of the institution, the reaffirmation of accreditation from Middle States Association, the improved morale on campus, the success of the GCC Foundation, and the excellent relations that have been developed with the community."

He also expressed gratitude to the three present Garrett County commissioners "who have been very helpful to the college."

Citing improvements in the academic programs, Dr. Herman mentioned new programs, including office technology, resort management, and natural resources and wildlife. He also recognized the new computer labs, the Bausch and Lomb Art Gallery (where a new art exhibit is displayed each month), and the college's affiliation with the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival and its cultural events.

The president said his goal was to see the college achieve excellence and outlined initiatives currently underway to meet that goal.

The initiatives include "developing a strong retention program, an outcomes assessment program, and strategies for bringing cultural diversity into the classroom."

He added, "Through the Academic Council on Excellence, important issues are being addressed: student motivation, placement testing and exit criteria, and academic standards."

Dr. Herman also noted that the Learning Enhancement Council is working on a new adventure sports program and an agriculture technology program.

In summarizing his views of where Garrett Community College needs to go, he said, "We must become one body, unified, working together toward one mission: to be a learner-centered institution. This is everyone's responsibility.

"As GCC approaches its twentieth anniversary next year, our biggest challenge is to define its future," said Dr. Herman.

Toward this end, he plans to involve the community and the GCC family in a convention to be held in the spring of 1991.

The answer to that question is the Oakland fire hall on October 11, the night of the OVFD's annual Oktoberfest Celebration, one of the highlights of the annual Autumn Glory Festival. Thanks in great part to Glotfelty Enterprises, Oakland, the fire department will again be serving huge roast beef sandwiches as part of its Oktoberfest menu. Glotfelty's purchased a baby beef at the Garrett County Fair and donated half of it to the Oakland firemen. Curran Warns About "Energy-Saving" Scams

Attorney General J. Joseph Curran Jr. is urging Marylanders to beware of con artists who will try to sell them worthless "energy-saving" devices and phony investments.

"Especially as the Middle East Crisis escalates and oil prices increase," Curran said, "unscrupulous individuals will attempt to exploit the sutuation by taking advantage of consumers and investors."

Curran warned Marylanders to be particularly wary of:

•Claims that a "gadget" will increase a car's gas mileage — According to the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), "none of these products has been found to significantly increase fuel economy." The FTC has specifically ordered the manufacturer of one such device, the $12.95 "Ball-Matic Valve," to stop making any fuel-saving claims.

•Claims that a device will reduce home heating bills. — The FTC has issued specific warnings about "surge suppressor" and "duty cyclers" which marketers claim reduce unneeded home energy use. These devices, the FTC concluded, "may be costly" and "have not been proven effective."

•Get-Rich-Quick investments in oil, gas, or gold deals. — The North American Securities Administrators Association, Inc. (NASA) has warned potential investors to be aware of bogus investments in oil and gas development schemes. According to NASA, "Promises of overnight or even short-term profits are almost certainly false." NASA also warns that hasty investments in gold or other precious metals are "much more likely" to turn sour than become safe havens during times of international crisis.

Curran also warned Marylanders to be wary of telephone sales pitches for energy-saving gadgets or investments.

"Consumers should rely on serious, proven methods of energy conservation such as checking their home insulation and keeping their cars properly tuned up — rather than looking for the possibility of instant, 'magic' solutions to this serious problem," concluded Curran. Curran.

He also advised consumers to continue to rely on the accurate information available regarding energy efficiency such as EPA mileage reports, the FTC's bright yellow "Energy Guide" labels on new major home appliances, and the R-Value rating system for measuring the efficiency of home insulation.

CARING CRAFTERS — A number of local ladies have been spending their precious spare time to handcraft items for the Autumn Glory Show and Sale to be held at Dennett Road Elementary School, October 13 and 14, from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. each day. They have been meeting several times a week making many unique crafts which will be sold to benefit Habitat for Humanity projects. Habitat helps needy families fulfill their hope of owning a home. Persons interested in assisting or donating craft supples may contact fundraising chairman, Sandy Flanagan at 334-9275. Volunteers pictured above, left to right, include, Olive Corliss, Sandy Flanagan, Erin Orr, Peggy Jamison, Andrea Savage, Debbie Frantz, Brenda Friend, Kathy Daniels, Rena Savage, Connie Devens and Pat Vetter. Other volunteers who were not present for the photo include Kitty Thompson, Tammy Ewing, Ida Maust, Liz Gilbert, Sheila Reeves, Jerry Turney and Vivian Stacy.

Habitat Helpers Preparing For Craft Show

Habitat for Humanity is busy preparing for their next fundraising event. The volunteer group is participating in a craft show to be held October 13 and 14, from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. at Dennett Road Elementary School

All proceeds from the Autumn Glory show and sale will benefit Habitat projects scheduled throughout the year.

Several local community members have been donating their talents toward preparation of crafts for the event.

The group meets each Tuesday (all day) and Wednesday evenings. They have been meeting since mid-August.

A variety of homemade items are being created, ranging from decorative flower arrangements and baskets to trimmings for the Christmas season.

Habitat is seeking additional volunteers to assist in making crafts. The organization is also in need of any donated materials that may be used in craftmaking, such as scraps of material or spray paint.

Interested volunteers should contact Sandy Flanagan, fundraising chairman, at 334-9275.

Habitat for Humanity is a family of volunteers of all ages, from all occupations, dedicated to helping needy families fulfill their hope of owning their own homes.

The Garrett County Chapter, one of the most active in the state of Maryland, has built 18 new homes for area families since 1984.

CARD OF THANKS
From The Family Of
WILBUR G. FOX

We are deeply grateful to each person for the prayers, thoughts, concerns, cards, visits, and compassion shown to us during the lengthy illness of Wilbur. To all who served us in any way after his reunion with our Lord and Saviour we thank you so much. Your expressions of sympathy through thoughts, prayers, telephone calls, floral tributes, memorials, cards, food, and comforting words will indeed be remembered and provide us with strength in the days ahead. Using Wilbur's famous words we say, "May the good Lord take a liking to you." Expressions of love for one another are heavenly investments. All that was done by everyone in our time of need demonstrated the love of Christ here on earth.

The three of us will miss Wilbur's wit, humor, love, and support. The memories of him will help us to live richer, fuller lives.

With sincere appreciation.

Single Parents Get Tax Breaks

Because of divorce, separation, adoption, death, or choice, many Americans, both men and women, find themselves single parents. They should be aware of special federal income tax provisions that can offer substantial tax breaks, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

One of the best tax breaks for single parents, the IRS says, is use of the head of household filing status, for those who qualify. In this status, the tax may be lower than that for single taxpayers or married taxpayers filing a separate return.

The following conditions must be met to file as head of household: 1) The parent is unmarried or considered unmarried on the last day of the year. 2) The single parent pays more than half the cost of keeping up his or her home for the year. 3) The home must also be the home of his or her child for more than six months. An unmarried child does not have to be the parent's dependent.

In addition, single parents who have wages, salaries, tips or other earned income may qualify for the earned income credit, which can be refunded if it is more than the taxes owed.

Also, if parents pay someone to care for their children while they work, they may be able to take a credit for child and dependent care expenses.

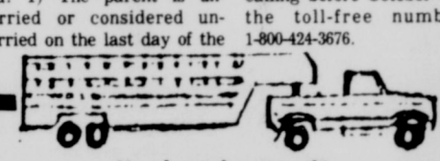

For more information on these credits, plus additional qualifications for being considered unmarried, head of household, or dependents, persons should see Publication 17, Your Federal Income Tax. Publication 17 can be ordered by calling toll-free, 1-800-TAX-FORM (1-800-829-3676). (If calling before October 1, 1990, the toll-free number is 1-800-424-3676.

Rams Topped By Applemen In Tough Defensive Effort

In one of the toughest defensive campaigns ever witnessed in Garrett County, the Southern High Rams were worn down in the second half of their game against Musselman Friday night and lost to the Applemen, 15-6. It was the first loss of the season for the Rams (2-1) and the Applemen remained unbeaten, as they stretched their record to 4-0.

Southern got on the board first when quarterback C.J. Getson carried the ball into the end zone untouched from the nine-yard line on a bootleg around the right end. The score came at the 8:23 mark of the second quarter. That would be the Rams' final points of the game, however, although they maintained that 6-0 advantage until late in the third period.

The Rams' 60-yard, nine-play scoring drive began after Mike Freyman picked off a deflected pass at Southern's 40-yard line with 1:08 remaining in the first quarter.

The Rams used an unbalanced offensive line and kept their running game between the tackles, which was effective against the Musselman defense until halftime, when the Applemen coaches adjusted to Southern's plan.

Meanwhile, the Southern defensive unit was tenacious throughout the first half, stopping both Musselman's inside game and stringing them out all along the line of scrimmage whenever Applemen Coach Denny Price tried to get his runners outside.

However, with the defensive adjustments by Musselman after halftime and the fact that the Southern defense was on the field so much in the third and fourth quarters, the Ram plan began to buckle midway through the third period.

Musselman set up their first scoring drive by holding the Rams deep in their own territory and forcing them to punt out of the end zone. The Appleman took possession on Southern's 35-yard line at the 5:35 mark of the third period. Fullback Dave Clark capped the drive with a three-yard scoring run at the 4:13 mark and Andy Horner's conversion kick put Musselman on top for good, 7-6.

Neither offense was able to move until Musselman ground out a final drive that concluded with a touchdown at the 2:58 mark of the fourth quarter. J.D. Bartles recorded the touchdown on a three-yard run and the Applemen added the two-point conversion when they faked the kick and holder Tommy Shelton carried it into the end zone.

Ram tailback Jeremy Bosley, who came into the game averaging over 100 yards, was held to 45 yards on 17 carries. Musselman wingback Tommy Shelton finished with 84 yards on 18 carries and Clark added 72 yards on 17 attempts.

"We were really proud of our kids," Coach Tom Woods said. "They came out and played absolutely as hard as they could. They were exceptionally well prepared for the game. A coach can't ask for any more than that.

"Our defensive effort was reminiscent of how we played against Allegany a few years ago in the playoffs," he continued. "But our defense was on the field too long and that ultimately took its toll on our kids. Then in the second half we just couldn't generate any offense. We missed a few key blocks and had a couple of mistakes that a team like Musselman will always capitalize on."

Woods said that he felt his offense missed on some opportunities in the fourth quarter. "It seemed like when just one of our players made a mistake on a blocking assignment, for example, that's exactly where Musselman would blitz," he said. "It was almost like a magnet — wherever we let down, Musselman was right there to capitalize on it.

"We are unhappy with the loss, but we are not at all unhappy with our performance," he added.

It was the 14th meeting between the two schools, of which the Rams have won eight.

"Tom Woods and his staff do an outstanding job," stated Musselman Coach Denny Price. "This was a tough, hard-hitting game, just like it always is when we play each other."

CLOSING IN on Musselman tailback Tom Shelton are Southern Ram defenders Shane Skipper, No. 23, and Garth Glotfelty, No. 16, during Friday night's game between the Rams and the Applemen. After leading the undefeated Applemen 6-0 at halftime, the Rams yielded 15 points to the visitors in the second half and lost their first game of the season, 15-6. Also visible in the photo for the Rams is No. 39, B.J. Shaffer. The Rams will attempt to get back on the winning track this Friday night at Keyser.

Other than the usual bangs and bruises from such a game, the Rams are generally in good health for their next outing, which will be at Keyser this Friday night. The only player still sidelined is David Biser, who has been nursing a broken finger and is expected to return to the line-up next week.

"Keyser is a hard team to figure out this year," Woods said. "On the surface, they should be one of the best teams in the area, because they are loaded with experienced, talented players. But they seem like they are 'snake-bitten.' They move the ball really well and then they fumble or they throw an interception, and almost every time their turnovers are turned into touchdowns by their opponents."

Among those talented players on offense are their three-year starting quarterback Rick Rawlings, a 6-3, 200-pound senior; senior fullback A. Jay Root (6-2, 211); and an extremely quick tailback in senior Shane Hines (5-8, 150).

The Golden Tornado uses a big-play oriented offense with multiple sets. They will throw the ball about half the time, utilizing a lot of double-slot formations with four receivers.

Their 5-3, 6-2 defensive unit loves to blitz and the secondary plays primarily man-to-man. Spearheading the defense are junior tackle Shannon Biser (6-4, 250), Root at linebacker, junior Greg Pratt (6-2, 180) at end, and junior nose guard Todd Nichols (5-11, 197).

"They just haven't been able to put it all together yet this season, and we hope they aren't able to yet this week," Woods said. "But we see an awful lot of potential on this team and we are expecting a huge challenge, expecially coming off our disappointing loss to Musselman. It's very difficult to rebound after playing with such emotion the previous week."

Woods also noted that even though Keyser is currently 1-3 on the season, one must consider the calibre of the teams they have played so far. The Tornado has lost to Allegany, Fort Hill, and Martinsburg, while defeating Bishop Walsh. "Their losses have come to three of the toughest teams in the region," Woods said.

The kick-off is slated for 7:30 p.m. at Keyser.

Woods Powers SHS Jayvees Past Spartans

Behind a three-touchdown, 124-yard effort by Josh Woods, the Southern High junior varsity shut out the Bishop Walsh jayvees Monday evening in Oakland, 20-0.

Woods, who gained his yardage on 22 carries, gave the Rams a 6-0 lead in the first quarter on a two-yard run. He scored on another two-yard run in the second period and Mark Dawson's conversion pass to Mark Elliott made the score 14-0 at halftime.

The final points of the contest were recorded in the fourth period when Woods broke loose for a 41-yard run.

The 2-1 Rams, coached by Jim and Tom Bosley, will host Keyser on Monday.

Basketball League Meeting Tuesday

The Mt. Top Basketball League reminds all teams that the meeting for the 1990-91 season will be Tuesday, October 2, at 7:30 p.m., at the National Guard Armory in Oakland. It is important that all teams interested in participating this year have a representative at the meeting, a League spokesman said.

For further information, persons may contact Jerry Herpel (387-5300) or Lawrence Dawson (334-8858).

Southern Girls Drop A Pair In Volleyball

The Southern High School varsity volleyball team was defeated twice this past week, falling to visiting Fort Hill on Monday in five games and then losing to Mount Savage last night, 2-1, also in Oakland.

Meanwhile, the Southern junior varsity continued its undefeated streak by topping both the Fort Hill and Mt. Savage jayvees and upping their record to 5-0.

The Southern varsity lost the first two games to Fort Hill, 15-10 and 15-5, rallied to win the next two, 15-5 and 15-13, but dropped the deciding game, 15-6.

Cindy Beckman led the Rams with 12 points. Rebecca Few recorded eight points and eight kills, Elaine DeBerry finished with seven points, including five aces, and nine kills; Christy Crews added seven points, Sheila Butt had six aces, and Jessica Friend recorded six kills.

Heather Shepherd and Mindy Mease led the winners with 22 and 20 points, respectively, and Michelle Clise registered 17 kills.

Against Mt. Savage, the Rams lost in three straight games, 15-1, 15-12, and 15-4.

DeBerry and Few each finished with four points and two aces for the Rams, while Friend added four kills. Jennifer Kennel led the Indians with 17 points.

In jayvee action, Southern topped Fort Hill in three games, losing the first, 15-12, and winning the next two, 15-12 and 15-5.

Sherry Niner, Rebekah Friend, and Keri Kratofil led the Rams with 13, 10, and eight points, respectively.

Against Mt. Savage, the Rams again started slowly, losing the first game, 15-7, but taking the next two, 15-9 and 16-14.

Cherie Browning paced Southern with 11 points and seven kills, Trisha Marple had 10 points, and Sherry Niner served eight. Browning, Niner, and Lisa Harvey all had 100 percent effectiveness from the service line.

The Rams will host Beall Monday (at Southern Middle School) and then travel to Westmar on Wednesday.

Northern Girls Fall To Sentinels

The Northern High varsity and junior varsity volleyball teams were topped last night by host Fort Hill. The varsity was defeated in three games, 15-1, 15-5, and 16-14, while the jayvees lost 15-10 and 15-8.

Tracy Yommer led the Northern varsity with six points, while Kara Goldsworthy and Michelle Clise paced Fort Hill with 15 and 10 points, respectively.

It was the first loss in three starts for the Northern varsity, while Fort Hill improved its record to 6-1.

Where's The Support?

The visiting side's bleachers were packed to capacity last Friday night at the Southern High School football field. Musselman's school colors were displayed by nearly every fan, and the noise coming from that side of the field was almost deafening at times. There were signs, and megaphones, and "terrible towels" waving, and enough enthusiasm for two or three schools. A stranger would have thought that they were the home team.

However, on the real home team's side there were many vacant seats. The total number of Ram fans present was probably not much larger than that for the Applemen. Even more striking was the difference in spirit and enthusiasm displayed by the Southern fans who bothered to attend. There were only occasional bursts of cheering by the majority, many of which occurred following a questionable call by the referees rather than in acknowledgment of a good play or as encouragement for the Rams on the field. There seemed to be only a casual interest in the game by so many.

This was not a game between two losing teams. This was a game between one of the best teams in West Virginia and one of the better teams in Maryland, both undefeated and both with great potential for post-season play. And play they did Friday night, in one of the toughest battles in recent history for both sides. The Rams went into the contest as the underdogs and they ultimately lost the game, but they played with tremendous pride, drive, and determination. It was a shame — in fact, it was embarrassing — that there was so little support in the stands for these young men.

The lack of enthusiasm was also painfully evident during halftime, when the members of the award-winning Southern High marching band presented their program, a program upon which they have spent literally hundreds of hours preparing. They were applauded by perhaps as many as 50 people.

The whole experience was a pathetic showing of support for our young people, and unfortunately this has become the norm rather than the exception at so many school functions. It was only magnified so much this past week by the outstanding show of support by the Musselman fans.

Pride in oneself goes only so far. Spirit, encouragement, and support from parents, fellow students, and other fans are vital to the continued success of such programs and, more importantly, to the growth and development of the individual students who participate in them. Such support is needed not so much by the coaches and the directors, but by the kids; and we hope that more local people soon wake up to that fact and do a better job of showing how much they care about our young people.

Huskies Worn Down By Beall In Second Half

After playing evenly with a tough Beall Mountaineer team in the first half Friday evening at the Cove, the Northern Huskies committed a pair of costly turnovers and were worn down by a strong Beall offensive line in the second half, which led to the Huskies' first defeat of the season, 27-7.

It was another miscue that gave the 3-0 Mountaineers their first points of the game, as Northern punter Jon Houser mishandled the snap deep in Northern territory. The ball was recovered on the one by Shannon McKenzie and on the next play, Danny Dixon carried it in for a touchdown. Tony Himmler's kick gave Beall a 7-0 first quarter lead.

Beall was driving again late in the second period when Northern's Chad Anderson picked off McKenzie's pass and returned it 23 yards to the Beall 38-yard line. With just 26 seconds left in the half, Chad Sines connected with Chris Jenkins on a 38-yard touchdown pass and Houser's conversion kick made it 7-7 at halftime.

The Mountaineers took the opening kickoff in the second half and marched 80 yards in 14 plays for a score, a drive that seemed to break the smaller Northern defense. The series was capped by a 21-yard touchdown pass from McKenzie to John Race to give the Mountaineers the lead for good.

The Huskies were still well within reach of the visitors, but the ensuing kickoff was fumbled and recovered by Beall, which virtually doomed Coach Tom Vent's team. Beall recovered the ball on Northern's 23-yard line and needed only three plays against the tired Northern defense to reach the end zone. McKenzie scored the touchdown on a 16-yard run and his conversion pass to Jason Cutter gave the Mountaineers a 21-7 advantage.

In the closing minute of the game, Beall added one more six-pointer on a four-yard run by Greg Fike.

Chad Sines finished with 112 yards passing, while Jason Robison paced Beall's offense with 95 yards on 12 rushes. The Huskies' total offense was 207, less than 20 yards behind Beall's 225.

"We were really happy with the way our kids played," Tom Vent said. "We were in the game until we fumbled the kickoff in the third quarter. Then it was pretty much over. Their offensive line was big and they wore us down. Our defense was on the field too much."

The Huskies' rushing game was also hurt by the fact that their leading tailback, sophomore Allen Bittinger, received a leg injury and is listed as doubtful for this week's game against Turkeyfoot.

The Huskies will be favored in this week's contest with visiting Turkeyfoot, a team that is currently 1-3 on the season; however, Coach Vent is extremely concerned about his team's attitude and the past three-year history of how the Huskies have performed in this stage of the season.

"It was a loss to Turkeyfoot this same week last year that just killed our season," Vent said, "and it was under almost identical circumstances. We had won our first two games and then lost a close, tough game to Beall. We came back the next week and, instead of rebounding, we lost to Turkeyfoot and the rest of our season was downhill. Almost the same thing happened two years ago. I am experiencing a lot of negative deja vu right now and I just hope that we can break that pattern with a win this week."

Turkeyfoot is playing without Mark Tressler, who is probably the most talented player on the team from his tight end and linebacker positions.

"But Turkeyfoot is always a team of real gutty kids who play hard," Vent said, "and we are going to have to get our positive attitude back if we hope to beat them.

"I know I harp on this all the time," he continued, "but attitude is a major key to winning and losing. We are trying to be as positive as we can with the kids. Coaches can have all the faith in the world in them, but the kids have to believe in themselves. This is a must-win situation for us."

Parents' Night will be observed at Friday's game, as the parents of all seniors on the team will be recognized with their sons. The kick-off is slated for 7:30 p.m.

PICKING HIS WAY through a host of Beall defenders is Northern High quarterback Chad Sines on a keeper around left end in last Friday night's game at Northern. The score was tied at 7-7 at halftime, but the bigger Mountaineer line and a critical turnover by the Huskies led to a 27-7 win by Beall. The 2-1 Huskies will attempt to rebound this week against visiting Turkeyfoot.

A&A Soccer Team Out-Manned By Valley, 5-1

A&A Realty/Deep Creek Soccer Club, decimated by injuries and the flu bug, took on Valley Electronics with only nine players and came up on the short end of a 5-0 score. A&A held the Mt. Savage team scoreless in the first quarter, but could not withstand the relentless pressure put on by The Valley Electronic's surge with the two-man advantage.

Valley scored its first two goals off of breakaways set up by missed scoring opportunities by A&A. Valley would keep two and sometimes three players behind the play at midfield when A&A would move the ball upfield. Valley would then use the two or three on one advantage for a scoring chance.

Goalie John Steele played another outstanding game in the goal for A&A, making 12 saves and keeping the game from getting totally out of hand.

The Deep Creek Soccer Club, whose record is now 1-3, travels to Rawlings this Sunday to take on league leading Betz Chemical in a 1 p.m. match.

Frostburg State To Host Maryland State Sports Festival Through '95

Calling Frostburg State University and Western Maryland the "Amateur Sports Capitol of the State of Maryland," FSU President Herb F. Reinhard announced during a press conference Tuesday that the annual Maryland State Games and Sports Festival will return to the FSU campus and various local venues on an exclusive basis through 1995. Maryland State Games President James Narron told reporters that this first-ever long term commitment in the seven-year history of the games "fulfilled a personal dream. We're proud to be back for five years," he said.

Narron indicated that games officials and those athletes who participated in last year's games hosted by FSU had evaluated the University's performance as being the best in the Games' history. Recognizing several FSU employees seated in the conference room, Narron said the work of such people and the unique atmosphere of Western Maryland made the Foundation's choice to return an easy one.

President Reinhard said the University agreed to cooperate with the Foundation to seek sources of outside funding for the Games, primarily from corporations and private donors, and that the University would aid in working with state officials and legislators for Games funding. Dr. Reinhard reported that the economic impact from the Games totaled between $3.5-$4 million on an annual basis, and that the sum could increase as the size of the games increased over the next five years.

The President said the University would provide an office for the State Games in the Administration Building and that the Festival "will get bigger, and it will get better."

Both Narron and Reinhard indicated that the Games format may be enlarged as early as 1992 to include a full week of activities.

In a related note, Narron said he had submitted a proposal to the U.S. Olympic Committee to consider Maryland as the site of future U.S. Olympic Festivals, and that he had included Western Maryland in a separate proposal for the State to host several events for the 1996 Olympics, scheduled to take place in Atlanta.

Winning the Class A competition was Vernon Sines, followed by Carl Holtschneider and Sam Wakefield.

Jesse Fearer won first place in Class B, while Richard Sines and Nancy Lewis finished second and third, respectively.

In the Sunday, Sept. 9, singles event, Joe Lewis was the winner, Jerry Tichnell placed second, Vernon Sines was third, and Mark Umble placed fourth.

NHS Jayvees Topped By Beall

The Northern junior varsity football team, composed entirely of freshmen, dropped a 22-6 decision to the Beall jayvees Monday evening at Frostburg.

George Cannon opened Beall's scoring in the first quarter on a three-yard run and the score was 6-0 at halftime.

Todd Vogtman made it 12-0 when he broke loose on a 70-yard touchdown run in the third period.

The Huskies came back with six points when Derick Mason picked up a fumble and raced 60 yards to the end zone.

Mike Frost scored Beall's final touchdown on a three-yard run in the fourth period and Jeff Ashenfelter ran for the conversion.

Allen Sebold and Bill Younkin spearheaded the Northern defense, while John Michaels and Brett Gordon led the Mountaineers' defensive effort.

Laker Volleyball Team Struggling: Record Now 2-7

The Garrett Community College Volleyball team will attempt to get on the winning track this weekend by hosting a tri-match Friday with Prince George's Community College and Penn State Altoona, and a single match Saturday against visiting Cecil Community College. Match times are 6 p.m. and 1 p.m., respectively.

The Lakers' overall record is 2-7 and they are 1-2 in league play.

Last Wednesday the volleyball team traveled to Hagerstown to face the top teams in the region — CCAC Boyce and Hagerstown Jr. College. The Lakers were defeated by CCAC Boyce, 4-15 and 8-15, and by Hagerstown Jr. College, 1-15, 4-15, and 9-15.

"I was pleased with our performance at Hagerstown, considering we played the top two teams in the region. In the third game against Hagerstown the score was 9-10 which forced Hagerstown to take their second timeout," stated GCC Coach Margaret Quinn.

On Tuesday the Lakers hosted a tri-match and were defeated by Montgomery Rockville in five games, 15-8, 15-2, 14-16, 13-15, and 6-15. They were also defeated by Penn State New Kensington by scores of 15-3, 10-15, and 1-15.

"Our difficulty Tuesday night was our passing and serve receive efficiency," Quinn said. "Our passing averaged 74% on the evening and our serve receive averaged only 42%.

"We played well the first two games against Rockville and the first game against New Kensington. We really communicated well, but we let up in the remaining games, fell apart, and couldn't regain our composure," Quinn concluded.

Before about 1800, there were no separately designed shoes for right and left feet.

Raiders Edge Jets, 12-6, In Youth League

In the battle between the Oakland teams in the Mtn. Top Youth Football League Sunday afternoon at Southern High School, the Oakland Raiders edged the Oakland Jets, 12-6. The win was the third straight for the Raiders, who improved their season mark to 3-2.

Scott Dawson led the Raiders in moving the ball down the field, as he finished with 124 yards on 14 carries. Adam Moomau added 58 yards of rushing.

The Raiders recorded the first points of the game when Jason Miller picked up a fumble by a teammate in the backfield and carried it into the end zone in the first quarter.

The Jets knotted the score at 6-6 in the third period when Dave Crosco broke loose for a 45-yard scoring run.

Nathan Mersing scored the winning touchdown in the third quarter on a 74-yard run.

The Raiders will go after their fourth straight win this Saturday at Kingwood against the Kingwood Bears. The kickoff is set for 6 p.m.

1988, then maybe we could have a flourishing automobile industry in 1993. But, no.

Our nation's enemy is not from outside our country, but from within, the American labor unions' GREED and unlimited monopoly over our economy and government.

Only 7% of American citizens are union members, yet they substantially run our country.

We have lost democracy here in the United States. Instead of "Government of the people, by the people, for the people," we have an unionocracy: "Government of the people, by the unions, for the unions."

The first Bud Light Ironman Triathlon, held in 1978, had only 15 competitors. It has grown during the last 12 years with over 1,300 triathletes from around the world slated to compete this year.

ABC's "Wide World of Sports" will televise the event, reaching an estimated 40 million viewers.

"I want to thank my family and friends who have helped me train and have supported me," Railey said. "I am very excited and physically ready for the challenge."

USDA Vehicles To Use Ethanol

Secretary of Agriculture Clayton Yeutter has announced that automobiles and trucks belonging to the U.S. Department of Agriculture will be using ethanol or ETBE blends of gasoline where available across America.

Yeutter said this might reduce some of the U.S. dependence on foreign oil and boost the incomes of American farmers who grow corn and other products from which ethanol can be derived.

If the entire fleet of 33,000 vehicles were to use ethanol-blended gasoline, USDA said this would increase the corn market by 680,000 bushels, enough to produce one and three-quarters of a million gallons.

THE REPUBLICAN

The Time Is Now To Set The Record Straight . . .

And Take A Stand For Garrett County's Future!

This fall's election is about Honesty, Accuracy and Choices! As candidates talk, here are a few things that you should keep in mind about

WHY ERNIE GREGG IS RUNNING

Ernie Gregg believes that the people in District Three deserve a clear-cut choice in the upcoming election. The voter turnout in this year's primary was an all-time low in our County. In fact, fewer than 1,600 voters selected the primary winner! If Ernie Gregg had not accepted the invitation of fellow citizens to run as a write-in candidate, the vast majority of the voters in our County would have ended up having to vote for an inexperienced Commissioner in District 3. They would have found their future being handed to someone completely unprepared to deal with managing Garrett County.

THE PENSIONS PAID TO COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

There is a rumor circulating that, if Ernie Gregg serves for four more years, he will qualify for a $40,000 a year pension. The truth is, if he serves for four more years, the most he will qualify for is $5,800 a year. Again, someone has their facts wrong. County Commissioners simply don't qualify for "big pensions." When you look at pensions and benefits, ask yourself what kind of pension or benefits Ernie's opponent received from her years of service on the Liquor Control Board.

ERNIE GREGG:

Because Garrett County deserves a choice . . . and a brighter future!

Authority of Brison "Rusty" Thomas, Treas.

experience for students in the field of forestry; the development of a maple sugar camp industry on publicly owned forest land; the development of a mountain spring bottled water industry, also on public forest land; and the development of a forest/timber industry interpretive center (or museum) that would serve as a tourist facility.

Of this fourth project, Jones cited the "vast resources in Garrett County" as impetus for the project and the need to bring about a balance in the industry's goals and environmental and economic considerations.

"I'VE BEEN WITH THE COMPANY THREE YEARS, MR. FLOOGLE. NEVER MISSED A DAY'S WORK. ALWAYS ON TIME. I'M A GOOD CONSCIENTIOUS WORKER. WHAT I'D LIKE TO KNOW, SIR, WHEN IS PAYDAY?"

Gypsy Moth Suppression Program

Garrett County Extension Office representative Alice Hevner reported that only 93 applications (amounting to 7,417 acres) have been made so far for the cost-share gypsy moth aerial spray program. She stated that this may be a result of landowners finding very few egg masses this year.

"Last year may have been our peak year," she said, but noted that two "hot spots" appear to exist that still have fairly heavy egg mass infestation. Those are the Sang Run/Youghiogheny Mountain area and the Finzel area.

Hevner also reported that no municipalities have signed up for the cost-share program this year, and noted that October 31 is the deadline for application.

Environmental Health

Garrett County Environmental Health Director Edgar Harman advised that the final rabies clinic is now underway this week with clinics still scheduled in Bittinger (Thursday), Broadford Elementary School (Friday), and Grantsville (Saturday).

Garrett County Health Officer Dr. Rex Archer interjected that Maryland has not yet experienced a human death because of rabies. He cited the excellence of the program, especially in the area of educating the public, as the reason for this.

Appalachian Crossroads

Appalachian Crossroads Executive Director Bill Aspinall informed the commissioners about the current concern over funding inequities throughout the state of Maryland, stating that while the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene has been trying to implement changes in the mechanisms for funding in order to make it more equitable, the system contains "grievous flaws," according to Aspinall.

He explained that the system, theoretically, contains a "regional adjustment," for instance, for hourly wages for community living supervisors with an associate's degree and/or three years experience. The statewide index at 100 percent would pay that worker $5.40 per hour. The regional adjustment range is from 71.9-107 percent, with Garrett County at the bottom of the 27 percent range.

What that means, he said, is that the Garrett County community living supervisor's salary is set at $4.33 per hour.

Aspinall stated that the process has proved to be "discriminatory," and further reported that investigation into the system has led to findings that there is no regional adjustment in other health-related departments. "Only community providers are asked to suffer the regional adjustment," he said.

Aspinall indicated that he plans to work with the state in correcting these and other inequities.

New Dairy Soft Drinks Developed

A new line of low-calorie dairy soft drinks has been developed by Dairilean, Inc., Sioux Falls, S.Dak. with cooperation from the South Dakota State University Dairy Science Department. "Espree" is a nutritious, low-calorie drink designed to compete for a spot in the nation's beverage market.

Espree is a flavored whey concentrate added to carbonated water in soft drink dispensers. Six flavors are available, including Strawberry Fun, O.J. Start, Limon Sport, Cola Lite, Pina Colada and Sparkling Water. Commercial production is expected to begin by the end of the year.

An easy way to ice cupcakes is to place a small piece of chocolate on the top when the cupcake is still hot, and spread the chocolate as it melts.

THE COUNTRY CURRENT, the United States Navy Band's premier country bluegrass group, above, will be appearing at the 17th annual Burlington (W.Va.) Old-Fashioned Apple Harvest on Sunday, October 7, at 2:30 p.m. on the grounds of the Burlington United Methodist Children's Home. The band has been featured nationally on the "Nashville Now" television show, and they have appeared on the Grand Ole Opry and Jamboree U.S.A. Last year, the band traveled with President and Mrs. George Bush to China and entertained at state functions. They have been featured in concerts and events at the White House and elsewhere representing the best of traditional country and bluegrass entertainment. project, the protection of a new roof is needed.

Ryscavage then invited the commissioners to visit the facility to see the construction first-hand, as well as witness the instructional program.

Commissioner Elwood Groves later stated that the board of commissioners will indeed visit the site, and will make a decision on the monetary request by early next week.

In an interview with Ryscavage, he said he is hopeful of a positive response, stating that he may doubt the worth of ever starting the project if the board "gets something less than what is basically needed.

"I am hopeful that when people view the finished project, they will feel that the renovation is worth all the inconviences of this school year."

FESTIVAL BOOK

A new book is being prepared by Bob Teets to celebrate 50 years of the Buckwheat Festival. There will be inclusions from the various county communities, items of interest concerning former kings and queens, plus other activities which have made the festival a success. To order a copy of the Collectors' edition, limited to 500 books, persons may call either Martha Bolyard at Aurora, Linda Lewis at Eglon, and the cost will be $20.95. Pre-publication (prior to December 1) is $15.95. Checks for this amount should be made to a local (Aurora, Eglon) extension homemakers club.

RELATIONSHIPS SUBJECT OF STUDY

The Aurora Extension Homemakers met in the home of Mildred Kovalck on September 18 for a study of Strengthening Human Relationships, with Opal Myers guiding the study. The study was related to prejudices and dealing with those that are learned or acquired.

Dean Sisler conducted the opening devotions using two poems, "Fall Is Setting In" and "Autumn's Glory." She closed with prayer.

Mrs. Myers conducted the business session, during which she reported on the recent County Council at Kingwood, announced that Achievement Night will be held October 19 in Kingwood and an Officer's Training session October 31 at Kingwood. The club will be responsible for selling Buckwheat car tickets on Friday, September 28, from 2-5 p.m. in the information booth at the festival.

Selected as Homemaker of the Year was Sue Mayne. The County Cultural Arts Committee is planning to compile a booklet outlining tours of Preston County and needs the location of local points of interest. The book concerning 50 years of the Buckwheat Festival, "Golden Harvest," may be orderd through the Extension Homemakers. Persons may call Martha Bolyard.

The club has prepared an exhibit for the Buckwheat Festival on "Recycling." The hostess showed her new floor covering as her special feature and also was winner of the pig-in-the-poke.

The next meeting will be on October 16 at 7 p.m. in the home of Anita Lantz. The lesson, "Use and Abuse of Credit," will be led by Virginia Martin.

Those attending the meeting were Opal Myers, Martha Bolyard, Anita Lantz and Becky, Dean Sisler, Ernestine Sisler, Virginia Martin and the hostess, Mildred Kovalck.

SHOOTING MATCH

The Lantz Ridge Community Building will be open for lunch on Saturday, September 29, at noon and that will be followed by a shooting match at 1 p.m. Both shotguns and 22 cal. rifles will be used. This event is sponsored by the Sunshine Club.

SHS Teacher

High School in 1965.

In an interview with Zimmerman, he expressed his appreciation of other teachers in this area.

"If the students were not given an outstanding background in elementary and middle school, there would not be any exemplary teachers in high school.

"It's very nice to receive this award," he continued, "but all of the 360 teachers in this area are very dedicated and committed to their students."

He also stated that he appreciates the leadership at Southern.

"Mr. Refosco (principal) is a tremendous leader. I imulate him in a lot of ways."

After stressing his feeling that too many negative things are discussed about schools and education, Zimmerman said he enjoys his job as a high school teacher.

"The kids here are easy to teach. Any math teacher would want my job - it's great."

Board Of Ed.

The money will finance the construction of concrete footers for the corridors, with the completion of the project to be over several years.

Assistant Superintendent of Administration John Morris explained that if the footers were to be poured, the work had to be done very soon because of the construction being done in the area at this time.

"If it is not done now, it will be of great expense in the future," Morris said, further explaining that if the machine shop is completed before the footers are poured, then the area will no longer be accessible to the heavy machinery needed to construct the footers.

The combined cost of the two projects totals $42,800. Ryscavage noted that a $50,000 contingency fund available to the board has already been earmarked for other problems expected, none of which include the storage area nor the corridors.

Ryscavage then noted another foreseen problem of the project, stating that he was not seeking funding for it, but that he wanted "to go on record" in pointing it out.

"The current roof on Southern is 40 years old and will not be replaced in this renovation. A new roof should be seriously considered."

He said he felt that as taxpayers have invested considerable funds in this $7,000,000

The Plague Of "Unionitis"

D. Noel Obenshain
Research Consultant

"Unionitis" is a recently coined word that will not be found in any present-day English dictionary.

It is quite descriptive of a relatively old, but very serious ailment that can afflict any nation, particularly democratic nations. It is rarely found in monarchies, oligarcies, plutocracies or dictatorships.

If not controlled in its early stages, it can eventually fully permeate and control the entire political and economic health of a whole nation, and may ultimately cause its downfall.

How about unionitis in the United States of America? It started in the past century among the various craft members, and grew rapidly during the later U.S. industrial revolution period 1800-1890. Since then it has grown to affect approximately 17% of active craft and industrial workers here in the USA. Compulsory gifts by the workers for the ailment has been around $4.0 billion each year for the past 10 years or longer.

The most serious characteristic of unionitis is how it affects members of Congress. By generous contributions to the Congress members' election campaign funds, unionitis has assured favorable worker legislation, the Bacon-Davis Act in 1931, the Wagner Labor Relations Act in 1935, Minimum Wage Laws in 1938, the Taft-Hartley Act in 1947, and other laws and regulations allowing rapid spread of the ailment.

In 1967, the U.S. Department of Labor developed the "Consumer Price Index," abbreviated the CPI, to show the year by year changes in the "cost of living" for the average American family. It set the CPI at 100.0 in 1967. Inflation is the percent change in the CPI for each year. Ten years prior to 1967, inflation was averaging 1.7% per year. From 1913 to 1967, including two World Wars, the average annual inflation rate was only 2.7% per year.

By 1972, the CPI had gone to 125.3 at 4.6% per year, (see attached up-dated graph sheet). Due to annual "COLAs", cost of living adjustments, the CPI had gone to 272.4, reaching this figure in 1981. Prices had increased 217.4% in just 9 years, at an average inflation rate of 9.0% per year. Note the graph sheet.

This 217.4% price increase put American made commodities out of the reach of many American citizens, and completely off possible foreign markets. In 1982 cheaper foreign imports began flooding the American markets and curtailing American production. This put many millions of American workers out of production jobs and into sales and service jobs, or no jobs at all.

In just 20 years, 1970-1990, we had gone from the most productive nation in the whole wide world, down to a low productivity nation, providing sales and service for products made in and imported from foreign countries. And, in just 20 years! All due to the advanced stage of unionitis here in the U.S.A.!

As the graph will show, inflation dropped from 9.0% in 1981, down 6.1% in 1982, and has averaged around 3.8% since then. Compare this 1.7% for the 10 years prior to 1967. Unionitis, by means of COLAs is largely responsible for our persistent high inflation rates.

Is there any cure for unionitis? Yes, there is. But it is not going to be quick and easy. Here are several proposals.

1. Break the unionitis grip on our federal government and our economy, by putting all major units under the anti-monopoly provisions of the original Sherman Anti-Trust Act of 1890, before it was modified by questionable court decision after 1890. The unmodified Act would limit group activities to within State boundaries, with no nation-wide or area-wide activities allowed. Their group now has the largest and most powerful monopoly group here in the U.S.A., all in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

2. Apply the anti-monopoly principle of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act to individual financiers, banks, S&Ls, and other financial institutions, so that no one could own or control more than 10% of the total financial resources of our country.

3. Apply the anti-monopoly principle of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, to business and industry, so that no one business or industry could own or control more than 10% the total business and industrial resources of our country.

4. Eliminate monopolistic term-after-term re-elections of members of Congress and the time and money spent on such re-elections.

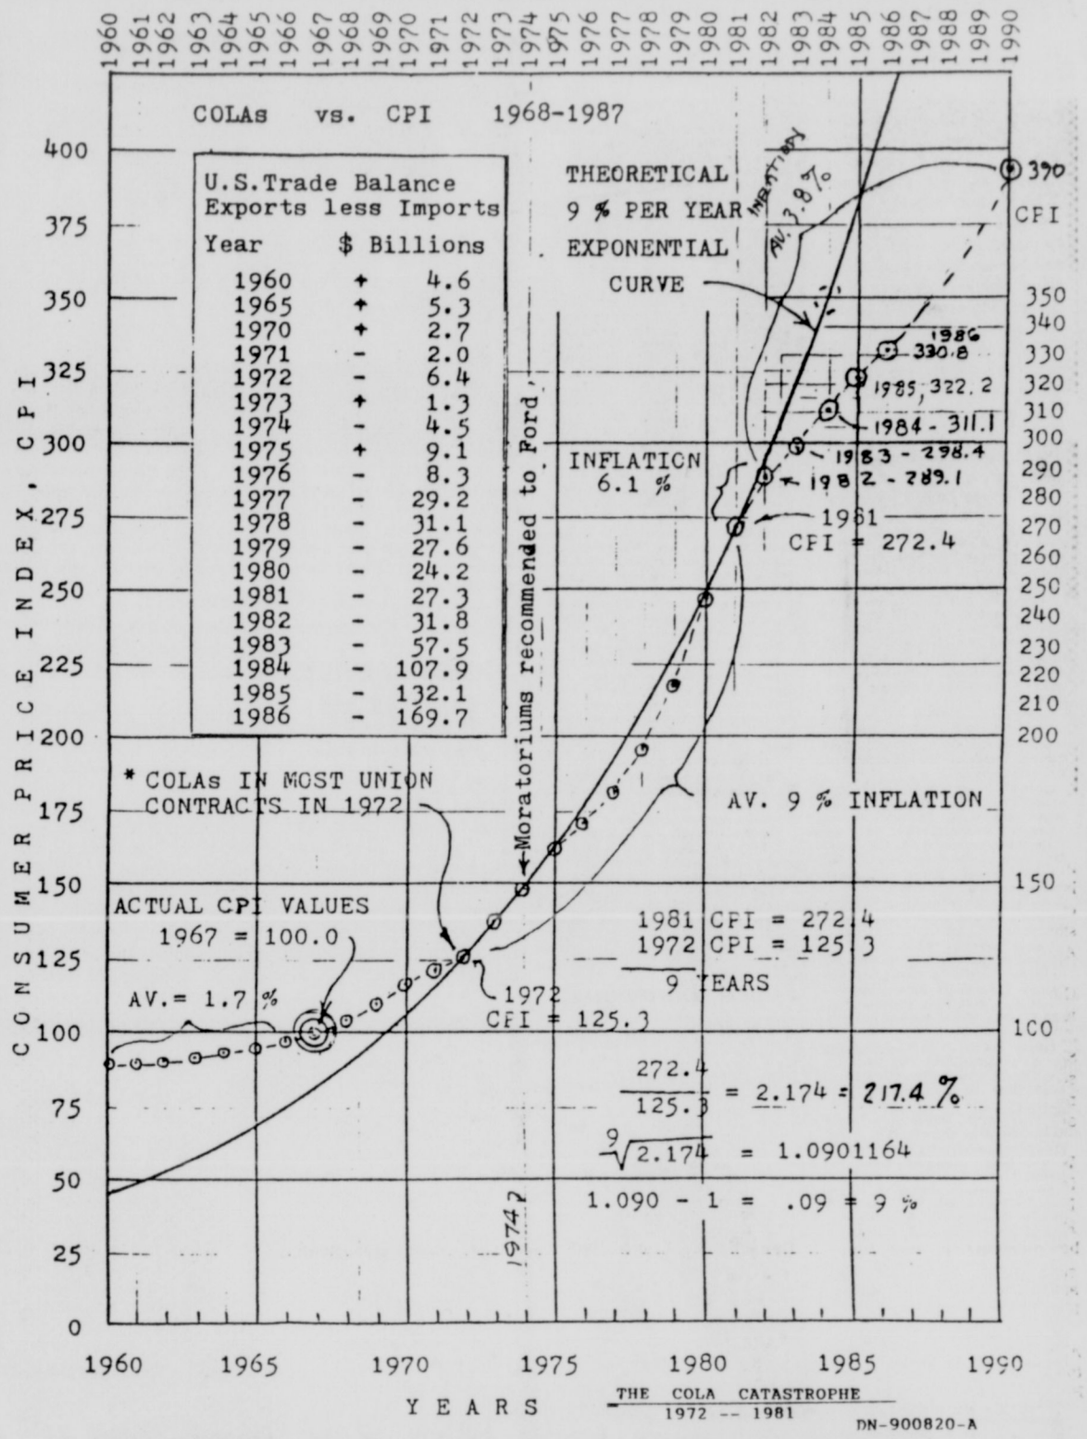

a. Limit Senators to one 6-year term.

b. Limit Representatives to one 6-year term.

The time spent on re-election campaigning could be better spent on legislation toward solving our political and economic problems, and our social ailments.

Let us all strive to conquor "Unionitis" and "Monopolitis," and return our great country back to a true democracy, as described by President Abraham Lincoln in his famous Gettysburg Address in 1863: "Government of the People, By the People, For the People."

Of course greed, an insatiable desire for more than one needs or deserves, is the driving force behind all the above "ailments." Can we successfully limit it to acceptable levels? The above proposals should make a good start.

Protecting Our Environment

Cleaner Air From Cleaner Gas

According to a recent survey, 80 percent of the American public consider vehicle exhaust emissions a serious environmental risk. The U.S. Congress, responding to these concerns, recently passed legislation requiring the sale of cleaner gasolines in our nation's most polluted cities as a way to dramatically reduce dangerous levels of air pollution.

Over the past 20 years, while automobiles have become cleaner, gasoline has gotten dirtier. The problem is that the major oil refineries have dramatically increased the level of highly toxic aromatic compounds—such as benzene—in our nation's gasoline supplies. Today's fuel also contains other aromatics, such as xylene, which are highly reactive and increase the formation of ozone.

The level of these aromatic compounds has risen from an average of 22 percent in 1982, to more than 33 percent today, with some grades of fuel as high as 49 percent. It's clear that to improve public health and air quality, gasoline must be "reformulated." The action recently taken by Congress will curb this dangerous trend by capping aromatics levels at 25 percent.

The Congressional approach also includes provisions for an oxygenated fuels program for carbon monoxide (CO) non-attainment areas and fuel quality standards for ozone non-attainment areas to dramatically reduce pollution from vehicles. The result of these provisions may be increased use of oxygenated fuels as part of a comprehensive public policy to improve air quality.

The advantages of oxygenated fuels are well-known. The use of ethanol blends, for instance, will reduce motor vehicle emissions of CO by 25 to 30 percent. Ethanol blends will also reduce emissions of exhaust hydrocarbons, NOx and carbon dioxide emissions. In addition, recent analysis indicates that ethanol blended fuels can reduce the formation of ozone. Finally, ethanol is an effective and safe replacement for the dangerous aromatic octane enhancers in gasolines today.

Congress has recognized that achieving cleaner air requires cleaner gasoline. By limiting aromatic levels and requiring clean octane alternatives a critically important step has been taken toward cleaner air for all Americans.

Environmental Action At Home

There's a new story almost every day—the environment in peril, another blow to the health of our small, watery planet. You might ask "What can I do?" Actually, quite a lot and right in your house too. A key place to start is the kitchen. The following tips from product development experts who make KitchenAid appliances can help you save energy, help the environment—and save money too.

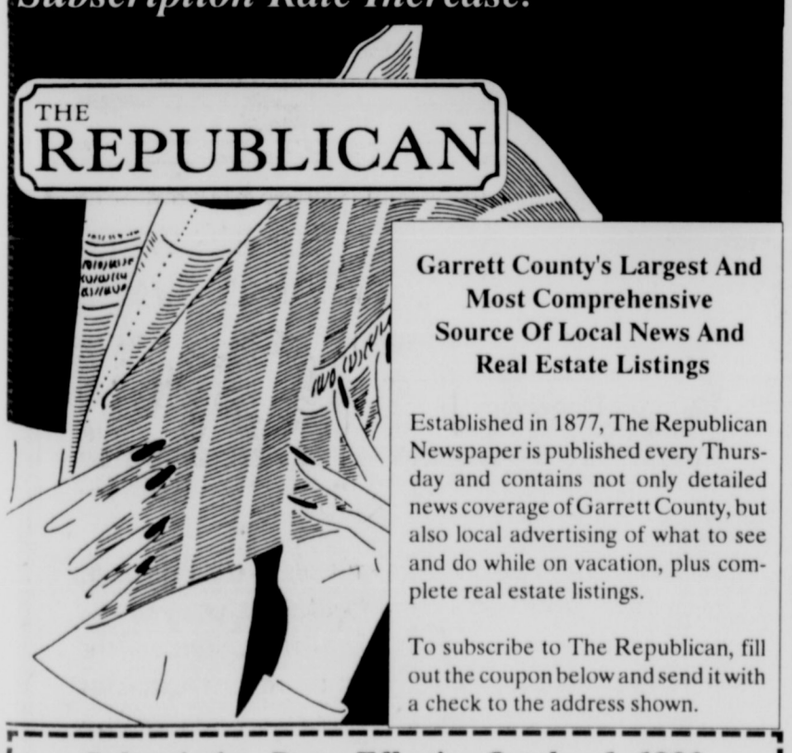

Recycling Refrigerants

Most of us have heard about the ozone layer, the protective gas around the earth that helps screen out harmful rays of the sun. The ozone is being damaged, in part by chemicals called CFCs, which are used in many types of products. The home appliance industry uses about one percent of the CFCs used in the U.S.

Halloween Parade & Treat To Be Distributed

Thursday, Oct. 25, 1990

6:30 p.m.

The Town of Oakland will be hosting the annual Halloween Parade. The parade will begin at Center Street, and will be followed by a Halloween Treat distribution for children twelve and under at the Oakland Fire Hall.

The Mayor and Town Council has issued an appeal for funds for its Halloween Treat. This treat is distributed to Oakland's children in lieu of Trick or Treat. The purchase of items for these treats in the previous years has been made possible because of the generous donations received. The Mayor and Town Council would like to thank any persons/businesses who have donated in the past, and would like to encourage those who would ordinarily be buying candy for Trick or Treat to bring a monetary contribution to City Hall. Contributions may be made at City Hall weekdays between 8:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.

3 sun-dried tomatoes, cut into thin slivers
1 large fresh tomato, peeled, seeded, diced
3 tablespoons plain yogurt
2 tablespoons freshly grated Parmesan cheese
Salt and freshly ground black pepper

Cook the shells in boiling salted water until tender, 3 minutes for fresh, longer for packaged. Drain. Melt the butter in a medium saucepan over low heat. Stir in the pasta, dried tomatoes, fresh tomato, yogurt, and Parmesan cheese. Add salt and pepper to taste. Serve immediately. Serves 4.

There are two ways to dry a tomato. The first (baked) method requires any conventional home oven with a thermometer setting of 150°F. and a nylon screen drying tray. That's all. A drying tray may be improvised of nylon window screening stretched and stapled over a picture frame. Never use metal screening, however. The combined acids in the tomatoes and the metal's surface could cause the dried tomatoes to become toxic.

Tomatoes to be dried should be sliced thin (vertically), laid on the tray, and placed in the 150°F. oven initially for 3 hours. Then the heat should be lowered to 130°F. until the tomatoes are dry (approximately 2 to 3 hours longer). Dried tomatoes will be tough-to-crisp in texture. Note that super-acidic tomatoes should be steam-blanched whole for approximately 3 minutes prior to slicing.

The second (old-fashioned) method is to dry tomatoes in the sun. This cannot be done except on a very hot day. Slice (and/or steam-blanch) the tomatoes as directed above. Place the thin slices on a large unpainted board (plywood will do nicely). Care should be taken to slant the bord slightly so any surplus tomato juices will run off. Salt the tomatoes well. Prop the board agains the side of a wall (or a back porch step) so the surface will reflect heat onto the tomatoes. Place a layer of cheesecloth or mosquito netting over the drying tomatoes to keep insects off. When the tomatoes shrivel completely and are firm to the touch, they are sun-dried. Brush off excess salt before storage.

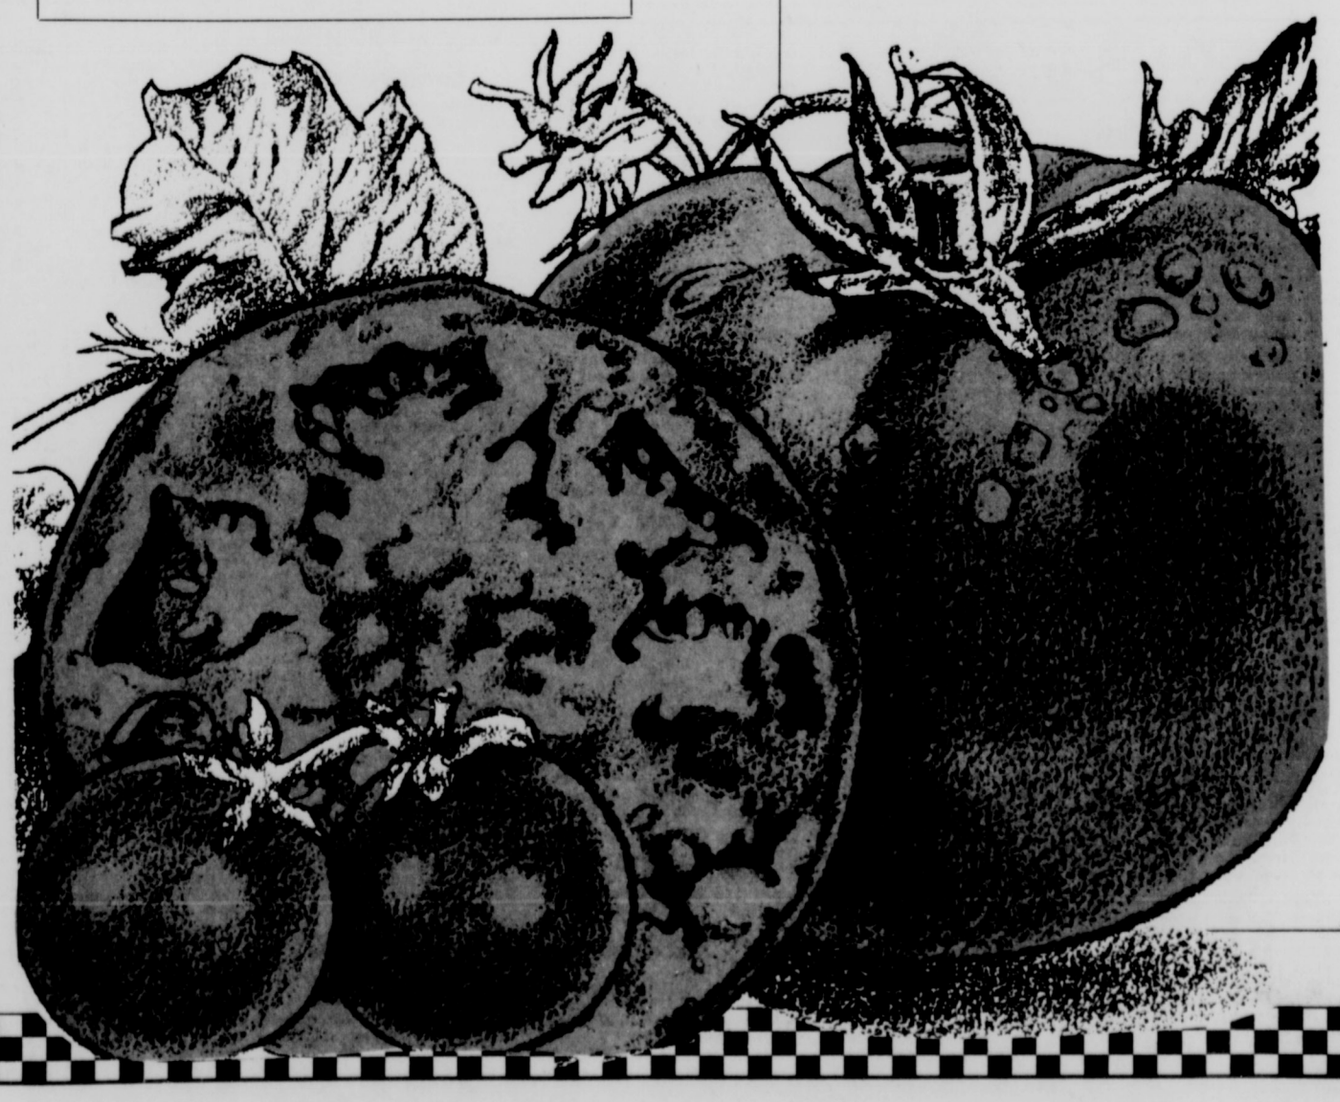

Store both oven-dried and sun-dried tomatoes in sterile dry jars and seal for keeping. Dried tomatoes may also be kept in olive oil, as the Italians do.

ITALIAN FLAG
1 whole chicken breast (about 1¼ pounds)
1½ cups chicken broth, approximately
¼ cup olive oil
1 small onion, halved, thinly sliced
½ cup sliced mushrooms (about 6 mushrooms)
9 tablespoons unsalted butter
¼ pound thinly sliced prosciutto, cut into strips
2 medium tomatoes (about ½ pound) peeled, seeded, chopped
½ cup heavy or whipping cream
1/8 teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg
Salt and freshly ground black pepper
½ pound green fettuccine noodles
Freshly grated Parmesan cheese

Place the chicken breast in a medium saucepan and add enough chicken broth to cover. Heat to boiling; reduce the heat. Simmer, covered, until tender, about 12 minutes. Remove the chicken breast and allow it to cool. Cut it into strips and set aside. Reserve broth for use at another time. Heat the oil in a large saucepan over medium heat. Add the onion, saute until golden. Add the mushrooms, cook, tossing gently, 2 minutes. Stir in 8 tablespoons of the butter, the prosciutto, and the tomatoes. Cook 6 minutes. Stir in the chicken and cream. Heat to boiling, reduce the heat to low. Add the nutmeg, and salt and pepper to taste. Keep warm over low heat. Meanwhile, cook the fettucine in boiling salted water until just tender, about 2 minutes for fresh, longer for packaged. Drain. Return the noodles to the saucepan and toss with the remaining 1 tablespoon butter. Toss the fettuccine into the chicken-prosciutto mixture. Serve with Parmesan cheese on the side. Yield: 4 servings.

PASTA SHELLS WITH MARINATED TOMATOES
6 plum tomatoes, chopped
2 cloves garlic, minced
½ yellow or red sweet pepper, seeded, diced
2 tablespoons roughly chopped fresh basil
½ cup olive oil
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1 pound pasta shells (penne or rigatoni)
8 ounces mozzarella cheese, grated
Freshly grated Parmesan cheese

Combine the tomatoes, garlic, sweet pepper, basil, oil, salt, and black pepper in a bowl. Mix well, let stand at room temperature for 1½ hours. Just before serving, cook the pasta in boiling salted water until just tender, about 3 minutes for fresh, longer for packaged. Drain, and place in a large serving bowl. Stir in the mozzarella cheese and the marinated vegetables. Toss and serve immediately with Parmesan cheese on the side. Yield: 4-6 servings.

MUSHROOM-STUFFED TOMATOES
2 medium tomatoes (about ½ pound)
Salt
2 large fresh shiitake mushrooms, chopped (about 1 cup)
1½ teaspoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon unsalted butter
1 shallot, minced
1 tablespoon chopped fresh basil
1 teaspoon chopped fresh parsley
½ teaspoon sugar
4 teaspoons heavy or whipping cream
1 egg yolk
Salt and freshly ground black pepper
2 tablespoons freshly grated Parmesan cheese

Cut the tomatoes in half crosswise. Gently squeeze out the seeds. Scoop out the pulp with a spoon, chop it and reserve. Sprinkle each half with salt and turn them upside down on paper towels. Let stand 30 minutes. Preheat the oven to 400°F. Sprinkle the mushrooms with the lemon juice. Melt the butter in a medium skillet over medium heat. Stir in the mushrooms, saute 1 minute. Add the shallot, saute until golden, about 5 minutes longer. Stir in the tomato pulp, herbs, and sugar. Continue to cook until the mixture thickens, about 10 minutes. Reduce the heat to low. Lightly beat the cream with the egg yolk. Stir this into the mushroom mixture. Cook until warmed through, do not boil. Add salt and pepper to taste. Place the tomato halves in a shallow baking dish. Fill each with some of the mushroom mixture and sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Bake until lightly browned, about 20 minutes. Serves 4.

BAKED HERBED TOMATOES
4 medium tomatoes (about 1 pound)
Salt
1 large shallot, minced
1 large clove garlic, minced
½ teaspoon anchovy paste
2 tablespoons unsalted butter, melted
2 tablespoons finely chopped fresh parsley
2 tablespoons finely chopped fresh basil
1 teaspoon chopped fresh thyme, or ¼ teaspoon dried
1 cup fresh bread crumbs
Freshly ground pepper

Cut the tomatoes in half crosswise. Gently squeeze out the seeds. Sprinkle each half with salt and turn upside down on paper towels. Let stand 30 minutes. Preheat the oven to 400°F. Mash the shallot with the garlic and anchovy paste in a medium bowl. Stir in the butter, the herbs, and the bread crumbs. Mix well. Spoon the crumb mixture onto each tomato half, packing the mixture down with the back of the spoon. Sprinkle with pepper to taste. Bake 10 minutes, then place under a broiler until lightly browned. Serve hot, or cold sprinkled with vinegar and oil. Serves 4.

POTATO AND TOMATO CASSEROLE
4 tomatoes, sliced
1 cup thinly sliced onions
1 clove garlic, minced
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
2 pounds potatoes, peeled and quartered
2 tablespoons butter

Arrange half the tomato slices on the bottom of a buttered casserole. Spread the onions and garlic over them and season with some of the salt and pepper. Place the potatoes in the casserole, sprinkle with the remaining salt and pepper. Cover with the remaining tomatoes, dot with the butter. Cover the casserole, bake in a 300° oven 1¼ hours, or until the potatoes are tender. Serves 6-8.

OKRA AND TOMATO CASSEROLE
1½ pounds okra, or 2 packages frozen okra
5 tomatoes, sliced
3 scallions (green onions), chopped
½ pound Cheddar cheese, diced
¼ pound blue cheese, diced

Cut the stems and tips from the okra. Place in a saucepan with water to cover, and boil for 2 minutes. Drain well. In a buttered casserole, arrange alternate layers of tomatoes, okra, scallions, Cheddar and Blue cheese. The top layer should be cheese. Cover. Bake in a 350° for 30 minutes. Remove cover and bake 10 minutes. Serves 6-8.

YOUR PHYSICIAN KNOWS BEST

Because you know a physician has to spend so many years at a medical school and internship in a hospital that he has knowledge about diseases and their treatment that you could not know. Because, when everyone but a physician selects a medicine to take, they usually do not treat the cause of the trouble but only try to stop the pain or discomfort.

Similar symptoms are often present in differing medical problems. A physician, aided by new diagnostic techniques, x-rays, urinalysis, etc., can find out what is causing your trouble and prescribe the one particular medicine he decides is best for you. That is why, if self-treatments do not help immediately, it is wise to go to a physician before a possible serious disease can develop.

A Little Man in a BIG WORLD

While driving through the countryside, I saw a sign in a churchyard which read...

"It is easier to build a child than to repair an adult."

Although he may not realize it, this smiling young man has a lot of growing up to do before he can fill this chair. On the road to adulthood, he will experience a variety of situations, conflicting emotions, and the process of maturing physically.

This youngster will need mature leadership and spiritual counseling to assist in his transition from boyhood to manhood. It is our responsibility to see that he receives the guidance he needs to assure that he will continue to be smiling and well adjusted when he is old enough to fit into the role of adulthood. Proverbs 22:6 tells us to "Train up a child in the way he should go, even when he is old he will not depart from it."

Make worship a family affair. You and your child will reap a lifetime of benefits.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

A LYING SPIRIT

September 30, 1990

Background Scripture: 1 Kings 22:1-40.
Devotional Reading: Psalms 26.

A few days ago I read a column on the editorial page of our local paper. The columnist was very much disturbed because he concluded that the well-intentioned lie, not truth, had become the standard for our public and private life. If a public figure makes a mistake, we do not expect that he will ever really admit it. I get the impression that the general public does not expect that public officials will tell the truth. We even to honor people who lie on a higher level: in congress, in the counsels of government, in the courts, in city hall and in the market place.

Now, don't get me wrong, that doesn't mean large numbers of people would vote for "lying," per se. What they would probably vote for is terminology that makes lying seem like something else: promotion, advertising, propaganda, sales pitch, campaign oratory, and so forth. Teddy Roosevelt's son used to say, "Dad's all for peace—so long as it doesn't get in the way of the fighting." Lots of people are for truth in much the same way.

WHY NOT "GO ALONG"?

The way to "get along" today is to tell people what they want to hear. That was the objection which King Ahab had against the Prophet Micaiah. "I hate him," he told King Jehoshaphat, "for he never prophesies good concerning me, but evil" (22:8). If, like all the other prophets of the time, Micaiah had prophesied good to King Ahab, there would have been no enmity between them. Why couldn't Micaiah "go along" and say at least something that Ahab wanted to hear? Maybe Micaiah would have liked to do that, but something inside him wouldn't let him sell his soul so cheaply for the approval of others. That "something inside" was his relationship with God. So, when we lie—or by whatever other name we call it—we are violating our relationship with God.

Recently, I was at a seminar in which University of Pennsylvania Professor Martin Seligman reported on an extensive study that found that over the past several decades the American people have repeatedly elected as President those candidates who spoke primarily in positive terms about the country and its concerns, despite the fact that there are times when we need to be critical of where we are and where we are going as a nation. In other words, we vote for those who tell us what we want to hear. Political life is certainly an area in which it appears we do not value truth.

VALUING TRUTH

Micaiah played a kind of joke on King Ahab, for when he was brought before the king, he mimicked the message that Ahab had received from all the other prophets. But, Ahab knew his leg was being pulled: "How many times shall I adjure you that you speak nothing but the truth in the name of the Lord?" (22:16). So, Micaiah speaks again and this time he tells the truth as God has given it to him. Now, Ahab is upset again. Turning to Jehoshaphat, he says: "Did I not tell you that he would not prophesy good concerning me, but evil?"

Micaiah is joking no longer when he says: "the Lord has put a lying spirit in the mouth of all these your prophets" (22:23). Neither is the lying spirit that also pervades our society a laughing matter!

Wendy Kilbourne to leave one role for another

Wendy Kilbourne, who portrays KJCM radio station owner Devon King on the NBC series Midnight Caller, will leave her regular role on the series after completion of this season's fifth episode. Kilbourne, who makes her home in Los Angeles and is expecting her first child in November, has opted to leave the series, which films on location in San Francisco. "My husband (actor James Read) and I are thrilled about the upcoming birth of our baby. It is unfortunate, however, that the demands of commuting to the San Francisco location are incompatible with the needs of an infant," she explained.

Wendy Kilbourne

Actor Paul Winfield will host PBS' Showcase Week Sept. 30 through Oct. 6. It offers a sample of the series that will air on public television this fall. Winfield will appear during breaks to talk about the value of public television.

A world-wide search has begun for a beautiful, and perhaps unknown, actress to play America's most celebrated and intriguing First Lady—Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis—in a six-hour miniseries. Based on the C. Davis Heymann best seller A Woman Named Jackie, the miniseries, costing $20 million, will air on NBC.

CABLE OVERVIEW

'Black Rain' premieres

Oscar winner Michael Douglas plays in Black Rain premiering on HBO Saturday, Oct. 6. Ridley Scott, who produced such hits as Alien and Blade Runner, directs this action thriller about a New York detective who, while escorting a Japanese gangster, loses him in the Osaka underworld. Andy Garcia and Kate Capshaw also star.

Showtime's top billing goes to the critically acclaimed hit Dead Poets Society premiering Monday, Oct. 1. The picture was a surprise smash, and won an Oscar for Best Original Screenplay. It was also nominated for Best Picture, Actor and Director. Robin Williams plays an unconventional school teacher whose odd methods open the minds of his young charges in a traditional New England prep school. It is directed by Peter Weir, who is credited with Witness.

Cheers'* Ted Danson hosts A TBS "World Audubon Special" titled Danger At The Beach, premiering Sunday, Sept. 30. Danson will travel across the country from the nation's dirtiest harbor in Boston to Washington's Puget Sound to discuss the impact of pollution on water, wildlife and, ultimately, man.

A vegetable-oil car and robots for disabled people will be featured on The Discovery Channel's new series, Invention, premiering Tuesday, Oct. 2. Produced in conjunction with the Smithsonian Institution, the show will feature inventors' creations and gadgets which are actually part of the Smithsonian's collections. NBC's Today show correspondent Lucky Severson will host.

Raymond Burr returns for Perry Mason: The Case Of The Deadly Deal, Sunday on NBC.

PERSONALITY PORTRAIT

Barbara Eden, Larry Hagman together again on 'Dallas'

By Christy Bergslien

Barbara Eden's joining the cast of Dallas this year just might lend the night-time drama a little magic.

Eden, 56, will be reunited with her I Dream Of Jeannie co-star Larry Hagman for the first time since 1971 when she and Hagman starred opposite each other in the horror film Howling In The Woods.

Eden won't be addressing Hagman as "master," though. On Dallas, Eden will play LeeAnn De La Vega, a very nasty—and very wealthy billionairess out to get J.R. "She's a real fun part," said Eden of her character. "And this time he calls me 'boss.'"

The pert and perky blonde was born in Tucson, Ariz. and grew up in San Francisco, where she studied singing and dancing. A high-school cheerleader, she then moved to Los Angeles after turning 19. Her first big break occurred when she was cast in the TV version of How To Marry A Millionaire in which she played the role Marilyn Monroe held in the film.

In 1965, Eden was cast in I Dream Of Jeannie for which audiences will always remember her, and she has had an active film and television career ever since. However, not until 1981 could "Jeannie" create for herself another TV series role. In that year she starred in Harper Valley P.T.A., a spin-off of her popular film, and in 1989 the very short-lived TV series A Brand New Life.

Murder, relationships key themes to week's movies

By Amy Schmidt

Murder is a predominant theme in this week's made-for-TV movies. Raymond Burr stars in Perry Mason: The Case of the Deadly Deal, on "NBC Sunday Night At The Movies." A 13-year-old girl persuades Mason to defend her father who is accused of murdering an unscrupulous high-stakes gambler. The plot is complicated by the fact that her father has threatened the gambler.

Lee Horsley stars in The Face Of Fear, to be broadcast as the "CBS Sunday Movie." Based on the novel by Dean Koontz, Horsley plays the victim of a climbing accident who has become endowed with psychic abilities enabling him to envision murders committed by a serial killer.

Tuesday, Oct. 2, is Angel Of Death on CBS, in which Gregory Harrison stars as a convicted killer who works his way into the lives of an unsuspecting woman and her son. Jane Seymour plays the duped mother.

Relationships constitute another movie undercurrent this week. NBC's Monday movie, Promises To Keep, features William Russ and Dana Delany, a couple that finds four children on their doorstep after a tragic accident. CBS' Children Of The Bride, Friday, stars Rue McClanahan and Patrick Duffy in the story of a woman who must deal with the reactions of her grown children to her upcoming marriage to a man 20 years her junior.

STEVE'S BEAT

Gangster films will be gunning for audiences

By Steven Alan McGaw

Warren Beatty's next project will be a film about mobster Bugsy Siegel, to be directed by Barry Levinson (Rainman, Diner), from a script by James Toback. Sounds good, but things could get complicated, since there's another Bugsy Siegel script floating around Hollywood, this one penned by Joan Didion and John Gregory Dunne. And there's no shortage of mobster-related film product on the way, with Hoffa (starring Danny DeVito), Billy Bathgate (featuring Dustin Hoffman as gangster Dutch Schultz), Martin Scorcese's Good Fellas and Francis Coppola's long-awaited The Godfather, Part III kicking around. We'll need scorecards...

TNT has announced plans for a four-hour miniseries based on the Iranian hostage crisis of 1979-80. Kevin Connor will direct, from a teleplay by Reg Gladney and Tim Wells. Could be interesting...

Shooting has started on the film Stepping Out, starring Liza Minnelli. Lewis Gilbert is directing, with the project targeted for release next spring...

Oh boy! Lou Ferrigno has signed to guest star in an episode of Super Force, Viacom's new weekly syndicated action-adventure show. Big Lou will play U-Gene, a "genetically engineered super creature."

Look for Scenes From A Mall, starring Bette Midler and Woody Allen, to open on Christmas Day.

Kris Kamm, playing Stuart Rosebrock, will see a bit more drama this season when he begins to stand up to the Coach, Tuesdays on ABC.

ABC's 'Coach' contains abundance of talent

Kris Kamm admires comedic co-workers

Mary Ann Townsend

Actor Kris Kamm says his role on ABC's Coach is like on-the-job training.

Kamm, who plays Coach Hayden Fox's wimpy son-in-law Stuart Rosebrock, has learned a lot about comedy from series stars Craig T. Nelson, Jerry Van Dyke and Shelley Fabares.

Prior to Coach, Kamm had only done dramatic pieces. He says Nelson has taught him to keep his outrageously oversensitive character real, while Van Dyke demonstrates comedic timing.

And of Shelley Fabares, "She's almost kind of maternal. She'd probably hit me if she heard me say that, but she's been really supportive," Kamm said, explaining that he looked to her for encouragement.

Kamm followed his dramatic roots when Coach went on hiatus earlier this year. This fall he will be seen in two feature films, The Recruit, playing an American Cavalry soldier during the Spanish Civil War, and Frame Up, as a conscientious fraternity member after a fatal hazing incident.

From what he's heard, his character on Coach will encounter a little more drama this year, too, when his wife, Kelly (Claire Carey), suspects him of having an affair.

"It gives Stuart more of an edge, it makes him more appealing," Kamm said. "Although having an affair, I don't condone that, but I do like the idea ... that Stuart's getting a little stronger, he stands up to the coach more. He's not so weepy. He's got more of a backbone this season."

TV PIPELINE

Connie Sellecca quickly hit big time in Big Apple

By Polly Vonetes

Q: I am a fan of Connie Sellecca and have thoroughly enjoyed her in both the TV series and movies that she has appeared in over the years. I would like to know if she has ever starred in any box office hit movies, or done any stage work. Also I would enjoy hearing more about the actress, and if there is a way to contact her by mail. —M.A. Hussong, Haiku, Maui, Hawaii

Connie Sellecca

A: Connie Sellecca, the gorgeous brunette with green eyes, has never starred in a theatrical film, but she did appear in a summer playhouse in Santa Barbara one year. It was a local production of Key Exchange co-starring Ted Shackleford. She was born in Bronx, N.Y., but grew up in upstate New York in a town called Pomona. Instead of attending college she opted for a modeling and acting career in New York City. She quickly garnered top fashion and commercial assignments in New York and in Europe to support her acting studies. Her first screen test yielded her first starring role in the TV movie The Bermuda Depths, with Burl Ives and Carl Weathers. This fall she will launch a long-term arrangement with Montgomery Ward for a Connie Sellecca collection of clothing, jewelry and accessories. She is in her third year as National Spokesperson for Mothers Against Drunk Driving's annual "Project Red Ribbon" campaign, which reminds people of the dangers of drinking and driving during the holiday season. She and her son Gib live in a hillside home in Los Angeles. Write to her: c/o Agent, P.O. Box 60257, Los Angeles, CA 90060.

Q: I enjoy the TV series* Golden Girls. I noticed that one of the stars, Estelle Getty, has the same last name as Balthazar Getty of* Lord Of The Flies. Any connection? —Judy Kuhl, Miles City, Mont.

A: When asked about her kids, Estelle Getty beams. She describes them as two middle-aged men, 37 and 40, respectively, named Barry and Carl. They are very proud of their mother's success and she is proud of them.

Q: I have wanted for so long to write you. Could I have an address to write to Andre Previn? I would like to thank him for his kindness. He accompanied me while I sang after a show we had performed at Camp Cook, now Vandenberg AFB, about 40 years ago. I would be so grateful for your reply. I'll watch for it in the paper. —Jeaneine Grant, Atascadero, Calif.

A: I am sorry you waited so long to contact me—I'm only a postage stamp away—but like they say, "better late than never." I hope this address will work for you. Andre Previn, 135 N. Grand Ave., Los Angeles, CA 90067.

Family faced with decision to split

Dana Delany co-stars with William Russ

By Amy Schmidt

Promises To Keep, the "NBC Monday Night At The Movies" presentation airing Oct. 1, is not only actor William Russ' first husband role, but his first "husband-from-hell role," jokes the actor.

Audiences will remember Russ as villain Roger Loccoco on Wiseguy, and the psycho killer on Riptide. In Promises To Keep, however, Russ will play husband to China Beach's Dana Delany in a tragic drama that could easily unfold in any American home and did. The film is based on a true story.

The Goodriches (Russ and Delany) are having a summer barbeque with Carl's sister Annie (played by Mimi Kennedy), her husband, Tom (Richard Poe), and their four children when Annie confesses to Carl that she is dying of lung cancer. She asks her brother to look after her husband and children after she is gone.

In an unexpected turn of events, Tom is then killed in a commuter train accident while Annie is dying in the hospital. After the death of their parents, the four children move in with the Goodriches and their three children, straining an income that is already severely pinched. Eventually, Carl and Jane (Delany) must make the painful decision of whether or not to split up Annie and Tom's children into separate foster homes.

"I liked his strengths and his vulnerability," says Russ of his character, Carl. It's kind of hard to do what that family had to do. But also his resilience and "stick-to-it-iveness" to hang in there. And I liked his creativity, his being a composer. When you're in a creative field the muse can be kind of elusive at times."

Himself being in a creative field, Russ knows what it's like when money is tight and ends are tough to meet. He reminisces about sharing a scholarship with actress Mary Steenburgen at the prestigious Neighborhood Playhouse in New York: "We were both so broke the second year they gave us a scholarship so we could stay in school. We wouldn't have quit anyway, but it helped pay for a few more tuna sandwiches."

Dana Delany and William Russ portray Carl and Jane Goodrich, a couple who faces the decision of placing their orphaned nephews in separate foster homes, in Promises To Keep, based on a true story, airing Monday on NBC.

Like so many actors, Russ drove a cab, washed dishes, waited tables and poured drinks in the Big Apple. He affectionately talks about his co-star Delany, and how he wanted to work with her, having known her "back in the old days" in New York. It is clear he appreciates the camaraderie of his trade.

"I like the people—the movie people, the film people and the theater people. It's like being in the circus. If you don't like circus people, you're not going to be in the circus very long," he says.

What's the best part about acting? "It's better than a real job, but it's not something you do for money. Ask 95 percent of the members in my union," says the actor.

Russ' substantial film list includes Just You And Me, Kid, Cruisin', The Right Stuff, Dead Of Winter, and Disorganized Crime. When reminded that he is an elite member of the 5 percent, Russ modestly jokes, "Yah, this week, I am."

'Bonnie And Clyde' made impact on the movies

By Steven Alan McGaw

Bonnie And Clyde (1967)

Movies have changed a lot since 1967 and largely because of this fascinating, vivid classic. Did director Arthur Penn realize at the time what he was doing, expanding the language of cinema itself? Probably not, and that's probably why it works so well, even today. On the surface, the movie simply seems to tell a story and it does so superbly. Warren Beatty is handsome, cocky Clyde Barrow, and Faye Dunaway is hotter 'n a pistol as Bonnie. As the thieving duo blaze a trail of crime and newspaper headlines that no legal activity could arouse, they pick up or encounter many vivid characters along the way, ably played by Gene Hackman, Estele Parsons (she received an Oscar), Michael J. Pollard, Denver Pyle and Gene Wilder, in his film debut.

Deceptively simple, the movie careens across the screen, shifting from comedy to drama to social commentary without ever grinding the gears. There's no doubt that Bonnie and Clyde are criminals. And yet we, like their contemporaries who hungered for media recounting of their exploits, like them, root for them. We cheer each getaway, we help them count the loot. In the film's riveting, blood-soaked finale, we fear for their lives. It may be that Penn's film is not so much about the Barrows as their audiences, now and then. What a movie.

Joe Pantoliano not worried about being pidgeon holed

'Fanelli Boys' taps actor's roots

By Anne Wheeler

Being pidgeon holed is one trap actor Joe Pantoliano needn't worry about.

In fact his career has been so diverse he was brave enough to take on a role that closely parallels his own Italian-American upbringing. That role is as Dominic in NBC's new comedy The Fanelli Boys.

Pantoliano plays one of four brothers who move back under their mother's roof when life's problems become too overpowering. Dominic, specifically, has lost his shirt by trying every get-rich-quick scheme. Now he and his brothers are trying to get the family funeral home business back on solid ground, so to speak.

Reared in the Hoboken, N.J. housing projects, Pantoliano is no stranger to the struggle to get out of the blue collar life. His father was making that struggle, ironically as the limo driver for the neighborhood funeral home.

The actor has no qualms about taking the role that so closely resembles his background, and rightfully so. Throughout the course of his 18-year professional acting career, Pantoliano has played Maggio in the miniseries From Here To Eternity, Gino in The Idolmaker, Guido the killer pimp in Risky Business, as well as a punk rocker, a photojournalist and a retarded brother. This summer he starred in the HBO movie El Diablo as a gay cowboy, and in the feature film Adios Theirry as a transvestite.

"I don't know what the '90s have in store for me," Pantoliano chuckles, "Probably La Cage Aux Folles: The Movie."

HOROSCOPE

September 30 through October 6

By C.C. Clark

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22)
Don't shy away from the unexpected. Your dreams may come true this week if you simply listen to those trying to help. Stay calm and you will do fine.

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21)
Serious thought about a specific situation will result in different options. Follow your instincts and you can't go wrong this week. Plan for the future.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21)
Romance is in the air for you and you're ready for whatever comes your way. A phone call could bring about the changes you have been hoping would take place.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)
Don't be so obstinate with family members. They continually forgive your stubbornness, but it is quite possible that they have had just enough to last a lifetime.

AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18)
Always looking out for No. 1 isn't in your best interest. Take a look around at those close to you and give them the attention they need and deserve from you.

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)
Things seem crazy this week and sometimes you wonder if it is ever going to end. It will; and with some very interesting results. A loved one comes through for you.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)
Family and career concerns will need equal attention this week. You will be put in the position of peacemaker for both family and co-workers.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)
Communication and travel sectors are strong. A short trip on the weekend will revive your perspective on life. Be fair in disagreements with family members.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)
The domestic front could get you down this week, but don't let it. You have a hidden strength that can get you through any situation. Communication is the key.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)
Talking over financial arrangements with an expert will help ease your mind and save you money at the same time. Friends need your undivided attention.

LEO (July 23 - August 22)
If you keep busy and stick to tasks at hand, you could avoid putting yourself in an awkward situation. Your energy will soar and you will make great changes in your life.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22)
You will feel a great sense of stability this week. Things have been crazy, but it has all been for a worthy cause. Now you can take some time for yourself.

TIME OUT

Teams jump as 49ers take a week off

By Steve Paschal

Although the Super Bowl champion San Francisco 49ers have the fourth week of the 1990 National Football League season off, all three major networks will feature games involving former Super Bowl teams bent on dethroning the dominant professional team of the 1980s.

On Sunday, Sept. 30, NBC highlights its six-game regional schedule with the Denver Broncos taking on the Buffalo Bills. Denver is trying to make it back to the Super Bowl after a humiliating loss to the 49ers last year, while the Bills, considered by many to be the team to beat in the AFC last season before losing to Cleveland in the playoffs, are looking to regain the intensity that propelled them to a 12-4 record in 1988.

CBS will spotlight a legitimate Super Bowl contender against a team trying to recapture its glory days when the New York Giants host the Dallas Cowboys. The Giants, winners over Denver in Super Bowl XXI, are favored to win the NFC East, while the two-time Super Bowl champion Cowboys are regrouping after suffering through a 1-15 season under new coach Jimmy Johnson.

ABC's Monday Night Football will showcase the battle between the Seattle Seahawks and the Cincinnati Bengals. Cincinnati fans are still haunted by Joe Montana's heroics two years ago when he led the 49ers on a 92-yard touchdown march to pull out a 20-16 victory. With quarterback Boomer Esiason throwing to receivers Tim McGee, Eddie Brown and Rodney Holman, the Bengals may face the 49ers in a replay of Super Bowl XXIII.

Fire Prevention Week Scheduled For Oct. 7-13

Maryland State Fire Marshal Rocco J. Gabriele is urging all Marylanders to participate in the Fire Prevention Week theme of "Make Your Place Fire Safe — Hunt for Home Hazards". Gabriele is asking Marylanders to heed this Fire Prevention Week theme, and examine their homes for fire hazards and risk, which may be alleviated to help reduce fire incidents.

Fire Prevention Week 1990 will be observed October 7-13, 1990. National Fire Prevention Week was inspired by one the worst fires in the history of the nation: the Great Chicago Fire of 1871. On October 9 of that year, approximately 250 people died and more than 17,000 buildings were destroyed in the Great Chicago Fire. In 1922 President Warren Harding proclaimed National Fire Prevention Week. Since that time fire officials nationwide observe Fire Prevention Week during the second week of October, and ask all citizens to practice life-saving fire safety.

Gabriele is asking citizens to join with him by taking the necessary steps in their homes to reduce risks of fire. Some examples which the Fire Marshal has pointed out include:

•Insure that each home is equipped with an operating smoke detector. When the time changes on October 28, 1990, remember to replace the battery of a battery operated smoke detector to insure the good operating condition of the smoke detector.

•Dispose of any unnecessary trash in the home, particularly the basement area, that could fuel a fire.

•Check all heating equipment in the home. Is the area around the furnace, clothes dryer and water heater clear of combustible material?

•Are all kitchen appliances in proper working condition? If they are not, do not use the appliance until it has been satisfactorily repaired.

•Remember, never leave food cooking on a stove unattended. Fires involving unattended cooking remains the leading cause of residental fires in the State of Maryland.

In 1989, Maryland sustained a total fire loss amounting to $140,639,717. Additionally 85 Marylanders died from fires, and an additional 1,180 citizens and firefighters were injured by fires throughout the State.

Regarding fire safety in the State, Fire Marshal Gabriele stated, "If everyone stops to consider the total destructive power of fire, and accepts the challenge to do something about this problem, we can drastically improve on our fire losses and injuries".

Non-Traditional Career Awareness Workshop Slated

A non-traditional career awareness workshop will be offered by the New Horizons Program of Garrett Community College on October 10, from 10 a.m. to noon in Room 307 at the McHenry campus. This workshop will be presented by Debra Conaway, who works with Maryland New Directions in Baltimore. Maryland New Directions assists women in pursuing non-traditional careers.

Non-traditional careers are in fields persons may not have considered because of their sex. For women, they are jobs such as police officer, electrician, train master, computer technician, and construction worker. "They will challenge you and could require education beyond high school," a New Horizons spokesman said. "But, they are jobs with a secure future."

This workshop will help participants become aware of whether they are interested in pursuing a non-traditional career. Participants wil find out about a broad range of job opportunities for women.

Pre-registration by October 5 is necessary to attend this workshop and may be made by calling 387-6666 ext. 171 weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. This is a free workshop and is open to the public.

Byron Backs Final Passage Of Defense Bill

An amendment shaped by Rep. Beverly Byron and the House Armed Services Committee leadership is among the provisions contained in a $284 billion Defense Authorization Bill. The bill authorizes $185 million for pay and other benefits for military personnel stationed in the Persian Gulf.

The bill cuts $24 billion off the nearly $310 billion requested by the Bush Administration and includes the first post Cold War troop reduction of 129,000 active duty personnel and cancels further procurement of the B-2 bomber.

Byron said she essentially agrees with the cuts the bill contains and defended the necessity of the troop reduction in remarks she made during the legislation's debate.

"I have not heard Secretary Cheney change his objective of a 25 percent force reduction by 1995, and we simply can't get there from here in any sort of orderly fashion without taking a decisive step in 1991.

"It is interesting to note that with over 300,000 Air Force and Army personnel in Europe, the overwhelming majority of forces deployed to Saudi Arabia have come from the U.S., not Europe. If we haven't used these forces for an operation the size and scope of Desert Shield, then clearly, can't we begin to draw some of them down?" queried Byron.

The Western Maryland representative said she was particularly pleased by the passage of the amendment authorizing the additional expenditures for the military personnel in the Persian Gulf. Among the benefits authorized are imminent danger pay, additional benefits for reservists, and reimbursement to the Postal Service for free postage for military personnel.

"I began recommending that we take these actions, like providing free mailing privileges and recognizing the threat our troops live under in the Gulf, by granting them imminent danger pay soon after I returned from Saudi Arabia two weeks ago. Congress has taken the appropriate action," Byron said.

Crime Rate Up In Maryland Say State Police

Crime in Maryland increased six percent during the first six months of 1990, according to a Uniform Crime Report prepared by the Maryland State Police Central Records Division. The 1990 January, through June crime report lists 129,474 offenses reported by law enforcement agencies statewide, compared with 122,049 offenses reported during the same period in 1989.

"The violent crimes of murder, forcible rape, robbery and aggravated assault as a group increased 13 percent," said John Vespa of the Uniform Crime Reporting Section.

Appearing on the Maryland State Police Radio Program, a weekly public service broadcast, Vespa said property crimes also increased during the first half of the year. "The property offenses of breaking and entering, larceny, and motor vehicle theft increased five percent," added Vespa.

The preliminary crime reports lists 240 murders in Maryland during the first six months of 1990 representing a one percent decrease from the 243 murders reported during the same period in 1989.

"Overall, 31 percent of the 240 murders reported statewide were considered drug related," Vespa stated. "In Baltimore City, 44 percent of the 133 murders were listed as drug related. In Prince George's County, police list 47 percent of the 40 murders as drug related," added Vespa.

The Maryland crime report includes a comprehensive overview of county crime index trends. The most significant changes were noted in two Eastern Shore counties. The crime index total for Kent County registered a 54 percent increase, while law enforcement authorities in Dorchester County recorded a 17 percent decrease in the index crime totals.

The Maryland State Police Central Records Division serves as the central clearinghouse for statewide crime data. The Uniform Crime Reporting Section notes that any crime figure comparisons should not be made without first considering the individual crime factors in each region and county.

The "Maryland State Police Radio Program" is a weekly public service broadcast carried on approximately 50 radio stations in Maryland and the District of Columbia. The program is supported by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and the Maryland Department of Transportation.

OAKLAND RESIDENT COMPLETES SUMMER INTERNSHIP — Indu Magoon, Oakland, recently completed a summer internship program in the Washington, D.C., office of Representative Beverly Byron (D.-Md.), and has now returned to Georgetown University to begin her senior year as a business major. "An internship in Congress is an invaluable experience to have. Young people get a first-hand look at the way Congress works and my staff and I benefit from the fresh perspectives students invariably have. Some interns will return and make public service a career, and that's important, because we need to be able to attract these kinds of bright and energetic individuals to government service," said Byron. Indu is shown above at far right, along with other interns, left to right, Jeff Unruh and Tracy White, Rep. Byron, and Mark Amarosi. Indu is the daughter of Prem and Saroj Magoon, Oakland.

Southern High's Principal Notes Merit Scholars

The principal of Southern Garrett Senior High School, Arthur A Refosco, has announced that William H. Hamilton, Shawn G. Ryan, and Michael Stauffer have been named Commended Students in the National Merit Scholarship Program. A letter of commendation from the school and National Merit Scholarship Corporation, which conducts the program, will be presented to these outstanding seniors.

According to a spokesman, about 35,000 Commended Students nationwide are being honored for their outstanding performance on the 1989 PSAT/NMSQT, which places them in the top five percent of more than one million students who entered the 1991 Merit Program by taking the qualifying test. Commended Students scored slightly below the level required to continue in the 1991 competition for Merit Scholarships, but they have shown exceptional academic promise.

"Being named a Commended Student in this extremely competitive program is a credit to these young people and their schools," the spokesman said. "Commended Students were offered an opportunity to be referred by the Merit Program to two colleges or universities of their choice. We hope the referral service and the recognition Commended Students have earned will enhance their higher education opportunities and increase their motivation to use their abilities to the fullest. These young men and women represent an important intellectual resource which our nation needs."

Bloomington Flu Clinic Change Noted

Due to an oversight by the Area Agency on Aging, a mistake was made in the date flu shots will be given in the Bloomington area.

It should have read: Monday, October 1, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Bull's Restaurant.

The flu shots will be given at the Bloomington Fire Hall from 4 - 7 p.m. on Monday also.

Information is available from the Arts Council by calling 301-777-ARTS, and from ACC by calling 301-724-7700, extension 122 or 278. From the 814 area code, persons may call ACC toll-free at 800-342-6319.

Shakespeare Comedy To Be Presented At ACC October 5

"Much Ado About Nothing," a Shakespearean play, often called one of the author's "golden comedies," will be performed by the National Shakespeare Company on Friday, October 5, at Allegany Community College, Cumberland.

The noted touring group's production, co-presented by ACC and the Allegany Arts Council, will begin at 8 p.m. in the College Theatre, located in the College Center.

The play offers a humorous look at love relationships in two very different sets of lovers.

Now in its 28th year of touring, the New York-based company takes high quality classical and non-classical theatrical productions to audiences throughout the country. According to an ACC spokesman, the troupe's strength lies in its ability to communicate Shakespeare's text. "Visual effect is created by period costumes on a simple but attractive set that is imaginatively lit," the spokesman said.

Advance tickets, which are being sold at a discount over at-the-door prices, are available at ACC's Center for Continuing Education, the Allegany Arts Council in the Western Maryland State Center, at the Book Center in downtown Cumberland, and at Main Street Books in Frostburg.

The advance ticket adult price is $8; at the door the cost will be $10. For senior citizens the price is $8, while that for students is $5.

Following last year's schedule, Ms. Strider plans to have parents visit their children's classes each Thursday, and attend other sessions designed to acquaint them with the college and its services.

Dr. Richter To Speak At Asthma Awareness Night

Dr. Donald R. Richter, M.D., Oakland, and Debbie Barnard, Swanton, will be the speakers at an Asthma Awareness Night sponsored by the American Lung Association of Maryland on Wednesday, October 3. The program will be held in the Health Assembly Room of the Garrett County Health Department beginning at 7 p.m.

The program is open to parents of children with asthma as well as adult asthmatics and anyone concerned with this illness.

Dr. Richter, pictured above, has practiced medicine in Oakland since 1985. He is a graduate of Johns Hopkins University and the University of Maryland School of Medicine. He is a specialist in family medicine, certified by the American Board of Family Practice.

Mrs. Bernard has served as a volunteer for the American Lung Association of Maryland participating in asthma programs for parents and in-service training for teachers. She has actively promoted and recruited children for the Association's Asthma Day Camp held each summer at Frostburg State University.

Asthma is a respiratory disease characterized by increased responsiveness of the airways to various stimuli, such as allergens, pollutants and infectious agents. During an asthma attack the air passages narrow, muscles tighten, excess mucus is produced and tissues swell, all threatening the patient's ability to breathe.

Over 1,000 children in Allegany and Garrett counties suffer with asthma and it is the leading cause of school absences related to chronic diseases, according to the Lung Association.

For more information regarding the Asthma Awareness Night, persons may call the Western Maryland Office of the American Lung Association of Maryland in Cumberland at 301-777-7317 or (toll-free in MD) 800-222-9974.

School To Work Demo Project Receives Funds

Senator Barbara A. Mikulski (D-MD) has announced that the Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development's (DEED) Office of Employment Training has received a $379,514 grant from the Department of Labor. The funds will be used in a demonstration project to help Maryland students build bridges from the schoolhouse to the job.

Mikulski, who co-chairs the United States Senate Task Force on Workforce and Workplace Readiness, said: "This is great news for Maryland's future. We are approaching a new millenia, and a new marketplace — we have to begin preparing our kids now for the challenges of the 21st century." She added that she supported the grant request because "technical training, good public education and access to college and vocational schooling aren't expenses, they're investments."

DEED's Office of Employment Training will be using these funds to initiate three demonstration projects in Maryland: Project Mechtech to address the needs of youth in the urban areas of Baltimore City and county, Tech Prep Plus in the suburban/rural area of Southern Maryland where high technology skills are in demand, and Maryland's Tomorrow in rural Carroll County where there are many types of employers and a wide range of occupations.

"With declining new entrants and increasing demands for new skills, significant changes in the labor market and workforce are becoming more evident every day," said J. Randall Evans, secretary of DEED. "These three initiatives will help us to continue developing a skilled, job-ready workforce that will ensure our productivity, economic soundness, and competitiveness in the world market."

The projects have been developed as public/private sector partnerships among employers, school districts, community colleges, business organizations and community-based organizations.

Students participating in these projects will be exposed to technologically advanced occupations and industries, will get a blend of high school and community college education with structured workplace training, and will have access to well-paying entry level jobs and career growth opportunities.

Frostburg State University Among Top 20 For Educational Value

Frostburg State University has been ranked as the 15th best educational value among U.S. public colleges and universities by Money Guide: America's Best College Buys, a publication of Time, Inc. Magazine Company.

"We are extremely proud and excited by the selection!" exclaimed Frostburg State University President Herb. F. Reinhard. "The Money Guide is saying that Frostburg State University ranks 15th in the nation among public institutions in terms of educational value received per dollar spent. We've known that we're a great bargain and we've said it over and over, but we're very proud that a national publication has said it and has statistically proved it. Frostburg State University is a tremendous educational buy."

Joining FSU in a University of Maryland System triumvirate of schools selected for an exclusive list of the country's 100 best public higher educational values was Salisbury State University (ranked 31) and the University of Maryland, College Park (87).

UMS Chancellor Donald M. Langenberg praised the news, saying, "While the Money Guide rating comes as no surprise to those of us familiar with Frostburg State University, it is welcome confirmation and dissemination of the message that high quality needn't mean high prices."

FSU RATED HIGH — Frostburg State University has been ranked as the 15th best educational value among U.S. colleges and universities by a publication of Time, Inc. FSU is part of the University of Maryland System and has an enrollment of over 5,000 students.

Jersey Gilbert, one of the magazine's editors, writes in a feature article that "If assessing academic quality is tough, trying to calculate a school's value — its quality relative to price — is an even more difficult task. But after extensive consultation with educational experts and statisticians, Money developed a system to examine all schools and identify the ones that deliver the best education for the buck."

The magazine "used statistical analysis to determine how much each school might be expected to cost, based on 17 measures of academic performance, and then compared that figure to its actual cost," Gilbert says.

The magazine ranked the New College of the University of South Florida as the nation's best value, followed by several northeastern schools, including four institutions affiliated with the State University of New York, the University of Virginia, the University of Florida, and Texas A&M in addition to FSU. The University of Illinois-Urbana-Champaign, the University of South Dakota, Shepherd College, W.Va., the University of Washington, and the State University of New York-Buffalo rounded out the top 20.

Money Guide editors reportedly analyzed 1,000 leading four-year U.S. colleges and universities before choosing the Top 100. A chart contained in the magazine lists the schools and provides "key quality and cost information" about each.

FSU was also attributed as being the ninth most productive public higher education institution in terms of percentage (15%) of graduates attending law school. Johns Hopkins earned top honors as the school with the highest percentage (30%) of graduates attending medical school.

"The magazine's criteria was not just based on cost," Dr. Reinhard observed. "They measured many, many different components of colleges and universities and, in effect, said Frostburg State University was one fantastic educational value."

October Declared Lupus Awareness Month In Md.

Maryland Governor William Donald Schaefer officially declared the month of October as Lupus Awareness Month. The Maryland Lupus Foundation urges everyone to learn more about lupus, a chronic disease that affects over 500,000 Americans.

According to health reports, lupus is an inflammatory disease that causes the body's immune system to produce antibodies that attack healthy tissues and organs.

More than 16,000 new cases of lupus are diagnosed each year. While lupus can strike anyone, it affects females nine times more frequently than males, with a higher incidence among Blacks, Hispanics, and Asians.

"Since there is no known cause or cure yet, early detection and treatment are our best weapons in the fight against lupus," stated Maryland Lupus Foundation President Bettye Mezzullo, R.N. "The purpose of our Lupus Awareness Month campaign is to raise awareness and encourage research into the cause and cure of this often misunderstood disease."

The symptoms of lupus vary considerably and frequently mimic those of other diseases making diagnosis difficult. Symptoms include extreme fatigue, joint pain, hair loss, photosensitivity, and loss of appetite.

At least 5000 Americans die with lupus each year, but the majority of cases can be controlled with early detection and proper medical treatment.

During October, the Maryland Lupus Foundation will emphasize the campaign theme. "Lupus, When Your Body Becomes Its Own Worst Enemy."

"The message vividly conveys how lupus patients are literally under attack by their own bodies," said Mezzullo. "The use of this theme in all print and broadcast media will go a long way in educating the public to the seriousness of lupus and the need to find its cure."

An all-day patient seminar titled, "Challenging Lupus in the 1990s," is planned for Saturday, October 20. Leading rheumatologists from Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine and the University of Maryland School of Medicine will address all aspects of the diagnosis and management of lupus.

The program is free and open to all lupus patients, their families, and health professionals.

The Maryland Lupus Foundation will host a "Birth Reunion of the Lupus Pregnancy Center at Hopkins."

The center provides comprehensive rheumatologic and obstetric care to pregnant lupus patients in order to maximize the chance of a successful pregnancy.

Since the center opened its doors two years ago, over 40 women have delivered healthy babies as a result of the special monitoring provided by the center's physicians.

The Maryland Lupus Foundation is a chapter of the Lupus Foundation of America. In addition to conducting a yearly awareness campaign, the foundation provides patient services through education programs, support groups, patient advocacy programs, and also raises funds to support research into the cause and cure of lupus.

More information about lupus or the activities of the Maryland Lupus Foundation may be obtained by calling 1-800-777-0934.

Maryland Prepares For A Massive Cleanup Of The Potomac River

Governor William Donald Schaefer announced recently that Maryland is planning a one-day cleanup along the Potomac River and its tributaries on Saturday, October 13.

This volunteer project, "Healing a River for the Life of the Chesapeake," is part of Maryland's Community Service Day and the 50th anniversary celebration of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin.

"It is important that we build on the momentum from Earth Day 1990 and keep people involved in protecting the environment," the governor said. "The Potomac River is a major tributary of the Chesapeake Bay and needs our help. The work will be hard, but the spirit of cooperation will make it fun. In one day we will make a real difference for the Potomac and the Chesapeake Bay."

Already, 4,000 volunteers from Garrett County to St. Mary's County have agreed to participate in "Healing a River for the Life of the Chesapeake."

Volunteer efforts include removing trash and tires, renewing fish and wildlife habitats, replenishing shorelines, revitalizing the river with tree plantings, and recycling papers, plastics, and cans. Cleanup projects are being organized in counties along the Potomac River, as well as in West Virginia, Virginia, and the District of Columbia.

Groups and organizations who wish to participate should contact their county coordinator. (John Nelson in Garrett County at 334-1920). Interested persons may meet at the Colmar Manor Nature Center, Anacostia River Park, where 2,000 volunteers are needed from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. to pick up trash, clean up streams and beaches, and participate in a one-day recycling drop off.

"Healing a River for the Life of the Chesapeake is a project of the Governor's Chesapeake Bay Communications Office, the Governor's Office on Volunteerism, the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin, local governments, and the Maryland Office of Planning. The project is sponsored by the Chesapeake Bay Trust and WHFS FM 99.1.

Youth Suicide Prevention Month Is Proclaimed

Governor William Donald Schaefer has proclaimed October 1990 "Youth Suicide Prevention Month" in Maryland.

"In Maryland, suicide is the third leading cause of death of young people between the ages of 15 and 24. We must do more to stop the terrible loss of our children who are the future of our state," said the governor.

This year's observance will include the second annual Youth Suicide Prevention Conference, to be held Tuesday, October 9, 1990 at the Annapolis Holiday Inn. The conference, "Developing Community Resources," is sponsored by the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DHMH), the Maryland State Department of Education (MSDE), the Governor's Interagency Workgroup on Youth Suicide Prevention, Marylanders Against Youth Suicide (MAYS), and the Maryland State School Health Council.

"The purpose of this conference is to heighten the community's awareness of youth suicide and to assist communities in developing strategies to prevent suicide," said Henry Westray Jr., LCSW, youth suicide prevention coordinator for the DHMH Mental Hygiene Administration. "Although we have made progress in the areas of awareness and prevention, much remains to be done.

"One of the things we're most proud of is the establishment of the nation's first statewide, toll-free, 24-hour Youth Crisis Hotline in Maryland," said Westray. "By calling 1-800-422-0009 from anywhere in Maryland, young people can receive immediate assistance from trained local crisis intervention counselors."

The hotline began operating on August 1, 1990. "The hotline is designed to be used in those moments or situations when young people struggle with the idea of suicide — when a young person needs immediate help," said Westray.

In 1988, 104 Marylanders between the ages of 15 and 24 took their lives. In addition, there were five deaths by suicide of children under 15. Maryland lost an average of two of its young people to suicide every week of the year in 1988.

Beitzel Family Holds Reunion

The annual Beitzel Family reunion was held at the Bittinger Fire Hall on September 2. Approximately 200 people attended, traveling from various parts of the country, including Akron, Ohio; Baltimore; Kingston, N.Y.; Martinsburg, W.Va.; Uniontown, Pa.; and Washington, D.C.

The festivities began at noon with a prayer, followed by a pot-luck dinner. Games were played after the meal.

Prizes were awarded to Lee Broadwater for the oldest man, and to Alta Orendorf Broadwater, the oldest woman. Miriam Wilt was presented with the youngest baby award.

The largest family was that of Ernest Beitzel, Sr., with eight children present. The prize for the couple married the longest was given to Mr and Mrs. Howard Wilcox, who have been married for 53 years. The newest married couple prize was given to Mr. and Mrs. Todd Eugene Beitzel, married for two months.

Door prizes were awarded to the seven persons who held winning numbers: John Paul Beitzel, Ron Beitzel, Gerald Bittinger, Kevin Bittinger, Pauline Eiford, Floyd Ellis, and William Fazenbaker.

The candy count jar contained 463 pieces of candy, and the amount was correctly guessed by Mary Alice Beitzel and Craig W. Fazenbaker, who shared the prize candy jar.

The business meeting was held and officers for 1991 are: Wendell Beitzel, president; Hayward P. "John" Beitzel, vice president; Hollie Beitzel Fazenbaker, secretary-treasurer.

Donations were taken from members of the group to finance the reunion for next year. The group voted to donate $40 to the Bittinger Fire Department for the use of the fire hall.

The next reunion of the Beitzel clan will be held on Sunday, Labor Day Weekend, 1991, at the Bittinger Fire Hall, beginning at noon, according to a family spokesman.

The family extended its appreciation to the volunteers who stayed to help clean up the facility and dispose of the trash after the reunion had ended.

The Beitzel Family Reunion has been held yearly for more than 50 years by descendants of John George Beitzel and his four sons, Henry, Lewis, George, and Christian. A spokesman said they came to America from Birkelbach, Germany, in the mid-1800's, and have produced a large and varied family in this country.

MDE Urges Stabilization Of Construction Sites

Maryland Secretary of the Environment Martin W. Walsh Jr. is urging builders, developers and contractors in the state to stabilize all construction sites that are not actively being graded to prevent soil erosion.

"As the construction season draws to a close it is critical that areas where clearing and grading have taken place, be stabilized," said Walsh. "This can be accomplished easily and inexpensively be seeding and mulching before cold weather sets in. This will help prevent soil from being washed from the land into our waterways during periods of heavy rain."

When land is disturbed — by construction or road-building, for example — its erodability greatly increases. As soil and other particles are washed into streams, the aquatic life that depends on clean water is severely stressed, Walsh said.

"The optimum time for seeding to stabilize construction sites is from August 1 to October 31," said Vincent Berg, director of the Maryland Department of the Environment's (MDE) Sediment and Stormwater Administration. "It is especially important to stabilize slopes to prevent large quantities of silt from washing into the bay and its tributaries."

Maryland law requires that construction projects which disturb more than 5,000 square feet or 100 cubic yards of soil must have an approved plan for controlling erosion and sedimentation.

Construction sites not being actively graded are required to seed and mulch within 14 days after active grading ceases. MDE works with Soil Conservation Districts, county and municipal governments, and construction-related industries to minimize water pollution caused by erosion and sedimentation.

Through the second quarter of 1990, MDE collected more than $106,000 in fines for violations of Maryland's erosion and sediment control laws. All local and state erosion and sediment control inspectors have tied green ribbons to their vehicles to remind them, and contractors, of the importance of stabilization.

Marylanders are encouraged to notify the appropriate enforcement authority if they see construction sites in need of stabilization or other sediment control measures.

To report sediment problems, persons may call MDE's Sediment and Stormwater Administration, toll-free, at 1-800-922-8017; and during nights/weekends, 974-3181.

Senior Citizens To Receive I.D. Cards For Meal Count

Through the use of identification cards, the Garrett County Area Agency on Aging will attempt to capture an unduplicated count of those participating in the FY 1991 AAA Senior Nutrition "Eating Together" Program.

The count is crucial to AAA in order to provide accurate figures to the state as to the number of elderly served by the agency, according to an agency spokesman.

Beginning October 1, the agency is requiring all seniors who use the program to be registered. At that time they will receive an I.D. card which will allow them to be served at any Garrett County AAA meal site with a reservation.

Registrations will be held from 10 a.m. to noon at the following sites: Monday, October 1: Bloomington, Bull's Restaurant; Friendsville, Twila's Old Mill Restaurant; Oakland, senior center at Mtn. Lake Park; Tuesday, October 2: Accident, Flowery Vale center; Finzel, fire hall; Grantsville, Starner Hill Apts.; Swanton, Community Center; Wednesday, October 3, Jennings, Community Building; Kitzmiller, Community Building; Thursday, October 4, Gorman, Old Mill Restaurant.

Seniors are urged to call the individual sites, make meal reservations, and come out on the day and time listed to register.

Participants who are unable to attend on those days will be registered as they attend and will be issued I.D. cards.

Seniors desiring additional information on the new policy may contact Barbara Hornyak, coordinator of nutrition and activity services, at 334-5856, or AAA Director Adina Brode at 334-9431.

Thank You,

Thank you to The Accident Garage, owners Allen & Rita Fratz, for buying my 1990 4-H Steer at the Garrett County Fair.

Area Businesses Recognized In Water Safety Plan

The Corps of Engineers and the staff at Jennings Randolph Lake recently recognized the businesses and organizations that assisted with spreading the Corps' water safety message throughout the summer.

The effort began with Jennings Randolph Lake's ranger staff presenting their annual water saftey program to the local schools.

The program taught the students how to be safe in and around the water, according to a Corps' spokesman.

As part of the safety campaign, grocery stores, including Martin's of Keyser, W.Va., Westernport IGA and Browning's Foodland of Oakland, assisted by donating grocery bags for students to draw their water safety messages on. The students then dispersed the bags to the general public throughout the Memorial Day weekend.

The effort was then extended to local radio stations, WKLP/WQZK, WJJB, WALI/WROG, WCBC, WTBO/WKGO and WMSG, in the form of public service water safety announcements.

The radio announcements, produced by the Corps of Engineers, which the stations played throughout the summer.

The next phase of the campaign involved local businesses who donated marquee space for water safety messages throughout the summer.

Those businesses included RG's of Midland, Mister Donut of Keyser, W.Va., Domino's Pizza of Keyser, Dale's Pitstop of McCoole, Browning's Foodland of Oakland and the New Creek Volunteer Fire Company.

"With the help of businesses and organizations, the Corps' Water Safety Campaign was a huge success and kept safety around the water a fresh topic all summer," said a Corps spokesman.

Shedding Light On

THE BLINKING CLOCK PHENOMENON

Ever come home to find your electronic clock blinking, even though the electricity is working fine?

Potomac Edison would like to shed some light on the cause of this inconvenient phenomenon, known as "momentary outages."

Although momentary outages have always been an unavoidable part of every power system, you may be more aware of them today than ever before. That's because today's modern appliances are more sensitive to interruptions in power supply.

Even a few seconds of interrupted electricity are enough to temporarily disrupt appliances such as electronic clocks, VCRs, computers and the like.

Momentary outages can be annoying, but they serve a valuable purpose: They help temporarily break the circuit when a problem occurs, such as tree branches touching a wire. The momentary interruption allows the problem to clear, protecting the overall system from major damage. This helps prevent longer outages.

While momentary outages used to go unnoticed, today's high-tech appliances just don't miss a blink.

Some appliances are made with built-in battery backup. You may wish to ask for them when you replace your equipment. In the meantime, our system will be working to detect problems as quickly as possible and to minimize longer outages.

Health Planning Group Conducts Annual Meeting

The Governing Body of the Western Maryland Health Planning Agency held its Annual Meeting recently at the Sheraton Inn in Hagerstown. Janet B. Flora (Carroll County), chairman, presided.

Brenda Tracy from Carroll County and Jeffrey Fratz from Garrett County were welcomed as new Governing Body members.

Marcia Pines, chairperson of the Maryland Health Resources Planning Commission, was guest speaker. Ms. Pines was appointed by Governor Schaefer in October of 1989 to this position. This Commission was created in 1982 to promote and plan the development of health services throughout Maryland. It is associated with the State Department of Health and Mental Hygiene.

Ms. Pines shared her comments and views concerning her role as chair of the commission and emphasized her support for local health planning (regional planning). Pines stated that, "the Western Maryland Health Planning Agency is the perfect example of what regional planning is all about." She recognized the Western Maryland group of counties for working together on health care issues, and said that she hoped to see more of this throughout the state.

Commissioner Lee Downey from Washington County presented membership awards to Larry Beck (Garrett County) and Robert Brandt (Washington County). Beck, the outgoing chair of the Governing Body, was recognized for his service during the past five years. Beck resigned from the Body recently because he has left Garrett County to take another position. While in Garrett County, he held the position of administrator of Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Brandt received a plaque of appreciation for his service as chair of the Plan Development Committee and his commitment to the Agency during the past five years. He resigned recently from the Governing Body. Brandt is the director of Mental Health and Addictions Services at the Washington County Mental Health and Addictions Services at the Washington County Health Department.

Other former members who were recognized for their service to the Agency were Carolyn Ganoe (Garrett County) and Robert Killett (Carroll County).

Other Garrett County members present were Norma Bolding and Virginia Rosenbaum.

Wilson Reunion Attended By 129

The 40th annual Wilson Reunion was held at the Fraternal Order of Police pavilion in Garrett County on September 2. The descendants of James Calvin and Anna (Crowe) Wilson assembled with 125 family members and four guests present.

Of the original family, only five members are still living and were present at the reunion: Victor Wilson, Virginia; Fern Thomas and Mabel McKenzie and Pansy Merrill of Garrett County.

Following a picnic, Tom Wilson, president, called the families together. Officers for next year are: president, Dorothy Workman; vice-president, Roger Rohrbaugh; secretary, Sandy Price; and treasurer, Earl Wilson.

Gifts were presented to: the youngest girl, Erin Elizabeth Hansel; the youngest boy, Bryan Christopher Hansel; oldest man, Victor Wilson; oldest lady, Fern Thomas; longest distance travelled, John Wilson; and the remaining original family.

Next year the reunion will be held at the FOP pavilion on the Sunday prior to Labor Day.

PUBLIC NOTICE
BEWARE
THE Trap
will soon be sprung!

READ THIS.

No matter what shape you're in.

Thick and thin, young and old, hundreds of thousands of Americans strain, sprain or permanently injure their bodies trying to slow the hands of time.

To avoid the pain, physical therapists recommend the following tips—for aging athletes and young "weekend warriors" alike.

Be realistic. If you haven't exercised regularly since you were a kid, don't attempt to pick-up where you left off. From age 20 on, bodies lose a little muscular flexibility and strength each year.

Warm up, cool down. Start exercising slowly. You should be perspiring lightly before you begin strenuous exercise. End your workout with a period of slower activity.

Listen to your body. If you feel pain, stop exercising and seek help. The sooner your problem is treated, the sooner you can get moving again!

Mix it up. Practice several activities instead of one. You'll decrease the chances of injury caused by repetition, increase the number of muscles you condition, and help stave off boredom.

Consult a health care professional to help you design the program that fits your body.

Local Students Awarded For Talent, Academics

Michael G. Stauffer, a student at Southern High School, has been named a Distinguished Scholar finalist in academics, according to a release from the Higher Education Commission of Maryland. Stauffer will receive a $12,000, 4-year scholarship to go to college in Maryland.

Stauffer will also be among those honored at Distinguished Scholar Recognition Day on the University of Maryland, Baltimore County campus (UMBC), on October 6.

Governor William Schaefer is scheduled to address the students at the event.

Several other local students were named semi-finalists or given an honorable mention in the program. The students are selected on the basis of academic achievement and aptitude or in talent auditions, and were notified last week of their finishing positions.

Two Southern High students, Nancy Alvarez and Heather Hamilton, were named semi-finalists, and have been invited to the Oct. 6 recognition day as well. Miss Alvarez received her placement in the talent portion, in the area of drama. Heather Hamilton finished as a semi-finalist in academic achievement.

Six area students received honorable mentions in talent, including Northern High students Christine Bowen, Brian Fox, Charity Lee Matthews, and Rosalinda Perez; and Southern student David McManus.

Three students received an honorable mention in academics. They are Heather E. Golden, of Northern High, and Southern students Todd M. Fearer and Richard W. Beckman, III.

According to Secretary of Higher Education Shaila R. Aery, the program is one of the largest state merit scholarship programs in the nation, and one of only a handful that recognizes artistic talent.

Aery said that the finalists were among approximately 2,000 high school juniors who applied for the scholarships. The number of finalists in academic achievement totalled 370, and in talent, 66 finalists were named.

To be eligible for the academic portion of the Distinguished Scholars Program, applicants must have a grade point average (GPA) of at least 3.7. Students are ranked on the basis of GPA and performance on the national Scholastic Aptitude Test.

Talent competitors submit a portfolio or they audition before a panel of professionals, according to Aery.

State law limits the number of recipients at 350. Each year a substantial number of finalists accept the $3,000-per-year scholarships, which can be used for any college-related expenses, with the balance of the grants going to semi-finalists.

This year there were 436 achievement semi-finalists and 52 talent semi-finalists.

All of the Distinguished Scholar finalists and semi-finalists as well as the state's National Merit semi-finalists are invited to the event at UMBC, where they will be recognized for their achievements and will learn more about Maryland colleges and universities.

Recognition Day will begin at 12:30 p.m. in the University Center.

Brown, Mellinger Vows Exchanged In Double-Ring Ceremony Sept. 2

Kimberly Ann Brown and John Frederick Mellinger III exchanged wedding vows September 2, 1990, in an outdoor ceremony at the Mellinger pavilion in Swanton. The Rev. Lynn Beckman officiated the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Donald "Peanut" Brown, Salisbury, Pa., and the late Doris J. "Baer" Brown. The groom is the son of Marie and John Mellinger Jr., Swanton.

Escorted by her father to the altar, the bride wore a street-length ivory dress trimmed with lace from the waist up and sleeves of sheer lace. The bride chose a headband consisting of two-tone blue baby rose buds trimmed with baby's breath and ribbon streaming down the back of the headband. The bouquet of two-tone blue rose buds and ivory carnations was accented with baby's breath, silk, and satin ribbon.

The wedding music was provided by Bill and Sonny Hutzel on guitar. An arbor was made for the bride and groom to be married under by Cal Mellinger and was decorated by Alice Filsinger with blue and white carnations and laurel.

Brenda L. Short served as her friend's matron of honor. Lee Wolfe, cousin of the groom, served as best man.

Crystal Hutzel, sister of the bride, was guest book attendant and Sue Sharpless, friend of the bride and groom, distributed bird seed packets. Caroline Lank, aunt of the groom, was photographer and Tom Lank, uncle of the groom, took video pictures of the wedding and reception.

A picnic reception, also at the Mellinger pavilion, followed the ceremony with 175 guests in attendance. Marie Mellinger, mother of the groom, prepared most of the food for the reception, and helping to serve the food were Ellen Friend, Ruth Simmons, Betty O'Brien, Deb Friend, Tom Tressler, Crystal Hutzel, and Pam Baer.

The pavilion was decorated in a two-tone blue color scheme with centerpieces of roses, streamers and candles. The three-tier cake, made by Bonnie Lishia, was decorated with blue rose buds. Music was provided by Bill, Sonny, and Robin Hutzel, and Danny and Kathy Champlin.

The bride is a graduate of Salisbury-Elk Lick High School and is employed at Cecil E. Jackson Equipment, Inc., Oakland, as a bookkeeper/secretary.

The groom is a graduate of Southern High School and is also employed at Cecil E. Jackson Equipment, Inc., as a technician.

The couple resides at Route 1, Box 19, Swanton.

Statewide Plans For Community Service Day Noted

Governor William Donald Schaefer and Secretary of State Winfield M. Kelly Jr., have announced that volunteers have organized events and programs to take place on Maryland's Community Service Day, October 13, in every county in Maryland and in Baltimore City.

Governor Schaefer said, "We expect 100 percent participation for Community Service Day, just as we had last year. I am proud that so many Marylanders will be coming out to make their communities a better place to live. The enthusiasm we see for this annual one-day event assures me that the spirit of caring will be adopted all-year long."

Projects planned for Community Service Day include tree plantings, book collections, health fairs, environmental clean-up, recycling drives, and beautification projects. This year's theme is "Time for Maryland." Last year's statewide effort drew approximately 70,000 volunteers.

The project selected for Garrett County is the beautification of the Courthouse plaza. Pat Vetter is the coordinator.

Secretary of State Winfield M. Kelly Jr., chairman of Community Service Day, said, "This one day can make a huge difference in the welfare of people, the appearance of their communities, and our environment. I urge everyone to come out and join us on October 13."

Volunteers and suggestions for projects are still needed. To obtain more information on local plans for Community Service Day, persons may contact Mrs. Vetter at 334-8970 or call Alicia Moran, Office of the Secretary of State, 301/974-5521.

Northern Middle Notes 'n News

by Danielle Heselbach

Students from Garrett County and Somerset, Pa., gathered for a unique leadership experience at Northern Middle School on Saturday, September 15.

The theme was "Laps to Leadership" and evolved around racing to the future with confidence and self-pride.

Approximately 68 students assembled to listen to one of the nation's top motivational speakers, Mike Smith, Albuquerque, N.M.

Mr. Smith presented his speech in an exciting and fun way. He involves the whole audience and really provides a fun way of learning. He expects everyone to try as hard as they can throughout life.

His enthusiastic attitude got nothing but positive responses from the audience.

After Mike's exciting speech, everyone went to their first workshop. The students had a choice of three classes out of nine.

"Computers in your Council," taught by Mr. Charles Trautwein, a computer specialist, showed students how to make computers more helpful in student council.

"The Change — Women in the 90's," presented by Amy Chabla, a senior communications major at the University of Pittsburgh, was a way to get today's female teens to show that they can do the same things that the guys can.

Jeremy McCall, a high school student from Somerset, Pa., presented a workshop called "Be Yourself." He showed kids that being different and being friends with everyone is okay. He also provided entertainment during lunch.

A useful workshop was given by Somerset Junior High School Student Council President Gina Lohr called "Getting Along With Teachers and Principals."

"Let's Set a Goal" was presented by Mr. David McCall, Somerset Junior High Student Council advisor.

Niki Svenivek gave a workshop on "Energizing Your School." We learned many superenergizers to use at assemblies and student council meetings.

Somerset County Head Start Coordinator Linda McDonough presented a program on "Public Speaking" and Cindy Downton, Garrett County pupil personnel worker, did a workshop entitled, "Stress in Kids."

Our guest speaker also did a workshop on making meetings work. Amy Chabla gave a talk on being different and unique.

We had a human scavenger hunt and a balloon car race as fun activities.

At the end of the day, David McCall led a friendship circle where everyone held hands and sang, "America" and "Friends."

It was a day to long remember for all those who attended.

DEEP CREEK REALTY

REAL ESTATE

BY ROBERT HUEBNER
DEEP CREEK REALTY

A MATTER OF PERSONAL TASTE!

Have you ever walked past a department store and stopped to admire the merchandise attractively displayed in the window? You can almost taste the char-broiled steaks prepared on the gas grill being exhibited. You imagine yourself relaxing in the hammock or lounging on the lawn furniture, alongside the resident manikin family. The merchandise seems to have magnetic appeal, pulling you into the store for an unplanned purchase.

When selling your home, it is important to make it attractive to buyers. The home should sparkle, and be inviting to all buyers who enter there. As with the department store window, however, the way your home is merchandised can encourage buyers to become interested in your personal property too.

A cozy fire in the family room might draw attention to your free-standing ornamental fire screen and heavy brass fireplace tools. A porch which displays your wrought iron outdoor furniture may excite buyers to the point of including it in their purchase offer on your home — at no extra charge.

Decisions about personal property should be made before offering the home for sale. Some owners feel it is wise to pick several items of personal property to be included in the sale which lends a "value-added" climate to the home. It is important to highlight those items, calling attention to their value and benefits.

On the other hand, if certain eye-catching items of personal property will not be included in the sale, the best advise is "out-of-sight, out-of-mind." Pack and store those items which will not remain with the home. Once an item catches the attention of buyers, it may be too late to prevent them from including the item in their purchase offer — at your expense.

Although personal property does not convey with real estate, it can easily become a negotiable item. A REALTOR® can explain the best approach to take with regard to personal property when selling your home.

If you need information to help you solve a real estate puzzle, call us at 387-5303. We'll be happy to share our knowledge with you at no cost or obligation.

Thompson Named Chief Of Resource Conservation

Secretary Wayne A. Cawley Jr. of the Maryland Department of Agriculture recently announced the appointment of Eugene Thompson to position of chief, Resource Conservation Operations.

The Resource Conservation Operations program is responsible for administering the state resources provided to support soil and water conservation programs on agricultural land, and for providing guidance and assistance to 24 soil conservation districts. Financial support is given to the soil conservation districts to assist in their implementation of conservation programs. Technical assistance, related to control of soil erosion, nutrients and agricultural nonpoint source pollution, is provided to farmers and landowners.

Thompson previously served as State Director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) in Pennsylvania and as confidential assistant to the administrator of ASCS in Washington, D.C. He also had previously served as president of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, as well as being an owner/operator of a 100 cow dairy farm in Indiana County (PA).

Thompson visited Garrett County last week as a guest of the Garrett Soil Conservation District at their annual cooperators' banquet.

Frosted Corn Dilemma

Most of our field corn in the county was not ready for the killing frost we had last week. In fact, a good bit of the corn was still in the dough stage or very early dent. From my past experiences, once corn is frosted, the maturity process almost comes to a halt. This presents a serious problem to those of you who were after picking corn or high moisture corn. Picking corn should have a moisture content between 15-20%, 15% being ideal. High moisture shelled corn should have a moisture content between 25-30% with the outer limits of 22-35%. High moisture ear corn should have a moisture content of 27-35% with outside limits of 25-40%.

Most corn kernels continue to accumulate nutrients until they have reached 35% moisture. The presence of a black layer close to the tip of the kernel just under the outer layer is a sign of physiological maturity. If the kernel moisture is below 25%, the corn may not ferment and molding cannot occur. I believe most of you will not have to worry about being too dry. Corn stored above the recommended moisture levels may ferment satisfactorily but may present special problems, such as bridging and freezing; also, a reduced dry matter intake by livestock.

If you need any assistance in making a harvesting decision, feel free to give me a call.

Questions and Answers

From time to time I am going to print some of the questions that were asked that may be helpful to you.

Question: Can I still plant alfalfa?

Answer: No. In Garrett County fall seeding of alfalfa should be done in mid to late August. The young alfalfa plant needs time to establish itself before a killing frost. The young buds are very susceptible to frost damage.

Question: When is the latest I can plant fall barley?

Answer: Actually, barley should have been planted around mid-September in our area. Rye can be planted later, generally up to October 15.

Question: Can I still take a cutting of alfalfa?

Answer: Yes, but not until the alfalfa goes dormant. Dormancy occurs after a couple of hard frosts. It is recommended that actively growing alfalfa should have a six week period after the last cutting to "harden off" the frost sensitive buds.

Question: Is it safe to feed frosted Sudangrass and Sorghum?

Answer: Absolutely not! Frosted Sudangrass and sorghum forms prussic acid which is very poisonous to animals. You can harvest and ensile in the silo. The fermentation process breaks down the prussic acid. Another word of caution! If the weather warms up and the Sorghum-Sudan makes some young regrowth, this new growth is extremely poisonous.

Remember: Have a nutrient test of your forages.

Supplies Of Lean Beef Increase After Given "Select" Grade Name

Consumers who eat leaner beef must be happy because there is a lot more of it on the grocery shelves, according to a marketing analyst with the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

"Much of the increase has happened since USDA replaced the 60-year-old 'USDA Good' label with the new 'USDA Select' quality grade standard two years ago," according to Dr. Jimmy Wise, of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service.

Since USDA responded to consumer and industry group petitions for the name change in November 1987, the amount of officially graded leaner beef has increased by more than 700 percent.

"Consumers told us they wanted a more positive decription of leaner meat available in grocery stores, and they got it," said Wise.

Nutrition-conscious consumers who wanted the name change maintained that the "Good" label misled buyers into thinking meat was mediocre. When the "Good" grade was first established in the 1920s, it described the amount of fat or marbling in a cut of meat. Nowadays, less fat is considered by nutritionists to be more healthy, and leaner meat is better for you than just plain "Good" sounds, consumers told USDA.

Wise said the name change was important because it was a cooperative effort to change standards and was supported by consumer, health and industry groups, as well as the federal government. In June 1986, the consumer group Public Voice for Good and Health Policy petitioned USDA to change the standard name from "Good" to "Select." The change was supported by 12 other consumer-health organizations, including the American Cancer Society, the American Heart Association, the Center for Science in the Public Interest, and the Consumer Protection Federation of America.

In response, USDA published a proposal to rename the "Good" grade. The proposal also was supported widely by the beef cattle and packing industries, including the American Meat Institute, the National Cattlemen's Association and the American Farm Bureau Federation.

"Select came about because of welcome coalition between industry and consumers," said Wise. "Select is selling, and that wouldn't be happening if people weren't happy with it. Industry is responding by providing more leaner beef for grading, and more retailers are beginning to carry the product."

In the three months prior to the official name change, only 49,714 pounds, or 1.7 percent of all graded beef, was graded "Good." By the final quarter of 1989, the "Select" label accounted for 433,413 pounds, or 14.3 percent of all graded beef, according to statistics kept by the Agricultural Marketing Service.

Since the 1920s, USDA has applied quality grades and standards to eight grades that span the range of beef quality — Prime, Choice, Good (now Select), Standard, Commercial, Utility, Cutter and Canner.

European Farmers Pushed Toward "Green" Agriculture

European agriculture is going "green" because of public pressure to clean up the environment and slow down the pace of agricultural abuse of soil and water.

That was the message from Brian Gardner and others attending a conference in Indianapolis in collaboration with both Indiana and Purdue universities, put on by the renowned Hudson Institute.

Gardner is the director of the European Community's (EC) policy analysis. He and others noted that Western Europe simply has too many people on too little land and the agriculture which has been developed and expanded now must be curtailed if the environmental stress on the continent is to be alleviated.

He said the biggest agricultural expansion under EC subsidy policies had occurred in northern Italy, Germany and northern France in response to demands for better food in greater quantities.

In the process, farming in Europe has become more efficient but the impact on the environment is causing widespread concern and a counteraction. Over half of all tilled lands in Europe are now in farms of less than 125 acres, highly mechanized to use every inch of land including marshes, woodlands and hedgerows that once were the conservation shield for Europe's countryside.

Dr. Ann Sorenson, environmental and science specialist for the American Farm Bureau, recently reported from the Hudson Institute meeting that "livestock waste disposal rates on most densely populated areas in Europe contain three to four times the maximum acceptable concentration for nitrogen and, in the worst areas, the nitrogen surplus is estimated to be 10 times the quantity that plants can absorb.

"Large surpluses of phosphate and potash also are showing up. Currently, the average application rate is 90 pounds of nitrogen per acre. In the more intensively farmed areas, researchers suspect farmers may be using as much as 360 pounds per acre," she reported.

Others reported that pesticide use in Europe's Community has increased 30 to 50 percent in the past 15 years. The Netherlands now limits the numbers of livestock that can be maintained in Holland in order to effect a 90 percent reduction in nitrate and phosphate waste disposal.

In the balance of this decade, the Dutch farmers are asked to reduce ammonia emissions 70 percent and pesticide use by 50 percent.

Sustainable agriculture is now a top priority in research in much of the EC and the word is out from every government on the continent to persuade farmers that farming activity must be less intensive while integrated pest management and organic approaches are encouraged.

New Gallbladder Surgery

Good Things are Happening at Sacred Heart

After months of pain and misery, Melanie had her gallbladder removed on Friday, August 31 at Sacred Heart Hospital -- three days later she was enjoying a Labor Day picnic with her family.

Because of the discomfort and sickness associated with gallbladder disease, Melanie hasn't been much fun for her young son and family for months.

Thanks to the new laser laparoscopic cholecystectomy -- gallbladder removal -- Melanie was back home with her family the day after surgery with only band-aids covering her tiny incisions. Melanie also thinks it's great that she was able to return to her normal work schedule on Tuesday following the long holiday weekend.

The new laser gallbladder procedure provides patients with a reduced hospital stay, a quicker return to activity, smaller surgical sites and reduced discomfort as compared to the traditional gallbladder surgery.

Sacred Heart Hospital is genuinely devoted to providing optimal, compassionate health care to the tri-state area.

For additional information, please call Sacred Heart at 301-759-5170.

$5 REBATE
on Foamed Dock Drums
Rebate applies to black plastic drums for orders received during October, 1990.
Try this test: remove a few drums from your dock and check for water. If it is present, do not drill holes for foaming unless it will be foamed completely. Partially filled drums can cause water seepage with loss of buoyancy.
Lower prices usually mean less foam. But we guarantee every drum to be full even with the rebate.
For complete satisfaction, have your drums foamed by a firm that has been in the business for over 30 years.
Call for details.

Farmed Wetlands Deregulated By DNR Secretary

A week after the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers announced its decision not to regulate some wetlands now in farmland, Maryland Department of Natural Resources Secretary Dr. Torrey C. Brown stated this week that Maryland policy will follow suit, reportedly freeing up as much as 75 percent (or approximately 750,000 acres) of inland non-tidal wetlands in Maryland cropland.

This action will result in development of those acres no longer being subjected to special permits from either the state or the local level.

The decision, according to Brown, was based on the fact that, although non-tidal wetlands play a significant role in the health of the Chesapeake Bay, some wetlands are of lesser ecological importance because they are virtually dry most of the time and have been altered, over the years, by farming.

Specifically, the deregulation of non-tidal wetlands applies to that acreage that has been farmed since before December, 1985. According to reports, those croplands can now be developed within a five-year period after the time it has been discontinued as cropland. After that time, the acreage would convert back to wetland status and, as such, would be subject to U.S. Army Corps of Engineers regulations.

"I see the regulations getting more lenient," stated Garrett County Extension Agent Jim Simms. He also noted that the wetland designation "Knocks the market value of that land down to almost nothing."

Pressure has reportedly come from farmers and rural county legislators who had expressed that too much of their land was being kept from development by the regulations, but environmental groups are critical of the action, claiming that Maryland's inland wetlands are much more important to the earth's bodies of water than those located in the midwestern United States because of its terrain and its relationship to the numerous bodies of water in the state.

Most experts acknowledge that, although the fear of too many wetlands being deregulated may be sound, the relationship between farmed wetlands and the bay is still too difficult to ascertain because of the complexities of the bay.

Dr. Brown reportedly indicated that true wetlands would remain under the protection of regulations.

It was also noted that Brown met with Maryland Governor William Donald Schaefer this week to request an additional 20 positions be funded to enforce the wetlands protection law even though a hiring freeze is currently in effect because of budgetary reasons.

"MARK TIME, MARK!" shouts Jim Boord, director of the Northern Garrett Marching Band, shown here as he leads his band in perfecting their field show in readiness for Saturday's Northern Garrett Marching Band Spectacular. The field show competition is sure to dazzle all spectators, as nine bands from West Virginia and Maryland will perform, competing for various awards. The event will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Northern High athletic field, and the admission fee is $5 for adults, and $3 for students. This show is the first of back-to-back Saturday night band competitions, as Southern Garrett will host the Western Maryland Tournament of Bands on Saturday, Oct. 13. Both Northern and Southern Garrett Bands will be "strutting their stuff" at both competitions, and the public is encouraged to attend the entertaining performances, and to support these young talented Garrett Countians.

Florida Fugitive Arrested By Sheriff's Dept.

A Florida man was arrested on a fugitive warrant by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office on Sept. 29. Lonnie Ray Nair, 23, Polk County, Fla., was in violation of probation on charges of possession of cocaine, possession of narcotics paraphernalia, carrying a concealed weapon, and petit theft.

Nair was incarcerated in the Garrett County Jail without bond after Dep. D. Welch served the warrant, and is currently awaiting extradition to Florida.

In a separate case, Robert E. Carr, 25, Oakland was charged for fleeing and eluding police officers after he reportedly ran from pursuing deputies on Sept. 28.

Dep. R. Sines attempted to stop the vehicle Carr was driving on U.S. Rt. 219 when Carr drove into the parking lot of 219 Supply, exited his truck, and ran into a wooded area.

Carr was reportedly captured 40 minutes later by Sines and Dep. Shaffer in a field along Mayhew Inn Road. A search of his vehicle revealed a hidden handgun.

In addition to the eluding charge, Carr was cited for driving with a revoked license, and transporting a concealed weapon. He was released from the Garrett Co. Jail on Sept. 29.

Matthew T. Evans, 24, Oakland, was found to be wanted by the Dept. of Natural Resources Police of Annapolis

Friendsville Area Cottage Destroyed By Fire Tuesday

A one-story cottage located along the Addison-Friendsville Road in Garrett County was destroyed by fire Tuesday evening.

According to Friendsville VFD Chief Terry Spear, the wood-frame structure was fully involved in flames when fire fighters arrived on the scene at about 7:30 p.m. The cottage, located about two and one-half miles north of Friendsville, was unoccupied.

Guy Carola, fire investigator for Garrett and Allegany counties, is investigating the cause of the blaze.

Also responding to the scene were the Deep Creek and Addison, Pa., fire departments, and the Northern Rescue Squad. There were no injuries reported. Firemen remained on the scene until just after 9 p.m.

Oakland Man "Satisfactory" After Two-Vehicle Accident Monday

An Oakland man was listed in "satisfactory" condition yesterday, according to a hospital spokesman, following a two-vehicle accident that occurred on Monday afternoon.

Stephen E. Tasker, 19, was injured in a mishap that occurred at the intersection of the Sand Flat Road and Md. Route 135.

According to reports filed by the Maryland State Police, Tasker had stopped at the intersection and then attempted to cross the highway when the 1985 Subaru Turbo he was operating was struck broadside by a 1988 Nissan Pulsar traveling west on Route 135.

The Pulsar was operated by Judith A. Faulkner, 49, Deer Park.

Charges are pending in the accident, according to Tfc. J.E. Foley, investigating officer.

Tasker and Faulkner were both transported to Garrett County Memorial Hosptial by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad.

A hospital spokesman said that Faulkner had been treated and released following the accident.

A three-vehicle accident Sunday sent two persons to Garrett County Memorial Hospital where they were treated for minor injuries and then released.

According to Tpr. J.T. Bentlejewski, investigating officer, the accident occurred when Allen J. Teats, 65, Friendsville, was operating a 1988 Chevrolet Celebrity south on U.S. Route 219, south of the Leo Friend Road. Teats stopped in the highway when a vehicle in front of him stopped to make a left-hand turn.

Subsequently, a 1981 Ford F-150 pickup, operated by a 17-year-old juvenile, failed to reduce speed and struck the Teats vehicle in the rear. A third vehicle, a 1990 Plymouth Laser, operated by Brenda D. Butler, 22, McHenry, failed to slow and struck the juvenile's vehicle in the rear.

Both the juvenile and Butler were charged with failure to slow to avoid a collision.

The Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad transported Teats and Butler to the hospital.

A one-car mishap early Wednesday morning resulted in the eventual death of a black bear, according to a report filed by the Maryland State Police.

Tfc. D.W. Broadwater said the accident occurred when a black bear ran into the path of a 1983 Chevrolet Monte Carlo, operated by William E. Simms, 37, Mtn. Lake Park. The car struck the bear, causing extensive damage to the car as well as the bear.

Although the bear survived the 2:20 a.m. accident, Department of Natural Resources officials said the animal had to be put to sleep because of the extent of the bear's injuries.

A Mt. Savage woman was slightly injured last Thursday afternoon in a one-vehicle mishap which occurred on Md. Route 546 near Finzel.

Tpr. S.W. Vincent investigated and said the accident occurred when Candice L. Layton, 20, failed to negotiate a slight curve and ran off the right side of the road before striking a guardrail.

The Frostburg Ambulance transported Layton to Sacred Heart Hospital where she was treated and released.

Layton was charged with negligent driving and driving a vehicle without the required license.

DWI ARRESTS

Three area drivers were charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol

Friend Honored As Md. You Are Beautiful Winner

After being named last week as Garrett County's recipient of the "Maryland You Are Beautiful" contest, Dr. Alvin P. Friend, local retired dentist, was honored this week by the Garrett County Commissioners with a plaque in recognition of his service in and out of Garrett County.

In presenting the award, Commissioner Ernest J. Gregg Jr. stated, "This is a happy occasion to honor a fellow Garrett Countian. It is very much deserved and very long overdue."

Dr. Friend was chosen from a total of 15 nominations received by the Garrett County selection committee. Having recently retired from a 37-year career as a dentist, Dr. Friend has organized numerous volunteer trips to Haiti, where he helped build a hospital and provided dental care to the underdeveloped country. He has also made similar volunteer trips to Honduras.

Dr. Friend's name was submitted by Mary Ellen Lichty, Gortner, who stated in her nomination application, "Alvin has carried his love and concern for his fellow man well beyond the borders of our county."

On the local front, Dr. Friend has been actively involved in the Youth For Christ organization and has supported the Southern Rescue Squad. He serves the religious community through his work as deacon of the Pine Grove Church of the Brethren.

Mary Lichty further stated, "Much of Alvin's work in the community has not been known to the public. To list all of the contributions Alvin has made to groups and individuals in our community would be nearly impossible."

Upon receipt of the award, Friend stated that he plans to use his retirement years to keep up his work in Haiti. He explained that because of the political turmoil the country is now experiencing, those plans have been put on hold but, he said, "Our bags are packed and ready to go."

WM Bancorp, Potomac Bancorp Merger Finalized As Of Monday

John A. Hercher, chairman of the Board of WM Bancorp, and James H. Swadley Jr., chairman of the Potomac Bancorp, Inc., today announced that the agreement to merge the two holding companies has been finalized, effective October 1, 1990.

WM Bancorp, headquartered in Cumberland, now serves as the parent company to Garrett National Bank in Oakland, Liberty Bank of Maryland in Cumberland, National Bank of Keyser, W.Va., and WM Data Center, Inc., also in Cumberland.

WM Bancorp, with combined assets of $397,710,000 as of September 30, 1990, is the area's largest financial service corporation. The goal of the company, according to Hercher, is to strengthen its competitive position by maintaining quality service and continuing growth.

Former Potomac Bancorp, Inc., directors who were elected to join the WM Bancorp board of directors include: Simeon M. Bright, retired commissioner of the Postal Rate Commission in Washington, D.C.; David D. Buchanan, president of Buchanan Building Supply Center in Keyser; James H. Swadley, chairman of the Board for National Bank of Keyser; and Lincoln H. Wilkins, president and board member of the National Bank of Keyser.

Through its three subsidiaries, the holding company operates a total of 21 banking facilities located in Garrett and Allegany counties, and Mineral County, W.Va. WM Bancorp includes a data processing facility, WM Data Center, Inc., which is available to each subsidiary.

Banking subsidiaries will continue to operate as independent institutions under their current names. However, the ability of each institution to serve its customers, meet increasing competition, and expand its market area will be enhanced with the combined holding company structure, Hercher said. FDIC insurance rules and regulations apply to each individual subsidiary.

The Agreement and Plan of Merger of Potomac Bancorp, Inc., into WM Bancorp states that each share of Potomac Bancorp, Inc. will be converted and exchanged automatically into the right to receive a number of shares of WM common stock having an aggregate fair market value equal to 2.01 times the book value of each share of Potomac common stock, which as of the valuation date, was $47.0434. GC Health Dept. Confirms Three Rabies Cases

The Garrett County Health Department has confirmed three more cases of rabies in the area involving two raccoons and a skunk.

Rabies case number 33 was confirmed after Morris Resh, Jennings, treed a raccoon and shot the animal. Resh's dog, which had been vaccinated against rabies, then came in contact with the diseased animal.

The pet was given a booster shot and will be observed for 90 days.

A rabid skunk was reported by Terry Stanton on Lower New Germany Road. The animal was confirmed to be infected with the virus, case number 34.

Stanton's dog was unvaccinated, and did come into contact with the skunk. The pet will be euthanized as a result.

Case number 35 involved a raccoon found on Spring Lick Road by Robert Wilson. The Wilson's dog also came in contact with the diseased raccoon.

The pet had been vaccinated, but Wilson's son, Robert, had to handle the dog soon after the encounter. Because of possible exposure to the virus, the younger Wilson will undergo post-exposure treatment.

The Wilson's pet was given a booster and will be observed for 90 days.

W.Va. Man Jailed; Charged With Variety Of Drug Violations

A Grafton, W.Va. man remains incarcerated in the Garrett County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bond after being arrested Saturday and charged with various drug violations.

William Joseph McDaniel, 23, was arrested by Tfc. G.R. Chaney of the Maryland State Police at 8:20 a.m. on the Dave Dixon Road at Friendsville.

McDaniel was allegedly in possession of $8,000 worth of cocaine, as well as marijuana, and drug paraphernalia at the time of his arrest.

The arrest came following a traffic accident when a subsequent search of the 1986 Chevrolet Blazer McDaniel was operating revealed the alleged drugs and paraphernalia.

McDaniel was reportedly injured when his vehicle ran into a ditch, but he refused medical treatment. No rescue vehicles responded to the scene, according to Garrett County Emergency Management.

The Blazer was confiscated by the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force to begin forfeiture proceedings, according to the State Police.

State Police are also investigating a reported case of destruction of property this week.

Jennifer A. Crumbaugh, 25, New Creek, W.Va., told police that someone had put a large scratch down the side of her vehicle while it was parked at the All Pure Spring Water Company in Deer Park.

The incident occurred on September 26 between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. The culprit(s) also entered the vehicle and broke a fuse cover under the dashboard.

Tfc. D.W. Broadwater is investigating.

DR. FRIEND, YOU ARE BEAUTIFUL! — That was the sentiment expressed this week when Dr. Alvin P. Friend was honored as Garrett County's "Maryland You Are Beautiful" winner by the Garrett County Commissioners. An Oakland resident and retired dentist, Dr. Friend has been actively involved in Garrett County's helping organizations and is responsible for having organized a group of dentists to travel to Haiti where those services are greatly inadequate. Since 1978, he and his wife, Ann, have been making yearly trips to the mountains of Haiti, at their own expense. They are anxiously waiting for the opportunity to return there, pending the resolution of political turmoil. "Our bags are packed and we're ready to go!" he stated. Shown above, left to right, are Ernest J. Gregg Jr., county commissioner; Dr. Friend and his wife Ann, Dave Turney, Garrett County chairman of the "Maryland You Are Beautiful" selection committee; Pat Vetter, local co-drdinator and committee member; Elwood L. Groves II, county commissioner; Norma Hesen, committee member; John G. Braskey, county commissioner, and Mary Bennett, committee member. Dr. Friend will be featured in the Grand Feature Parade during Autumn Glory Festivities and he will be honored in Annapolis, along with the other Maryland winners, on October 30.

Potomac River Clean-Up Set For October 13

Governor William Donald Schaefer announced Monday that Maryland is planning a one-day cleanup along the Potomac River and its tributaries on Saturday, October 13. This volunteer project, entitled "Healing a River for the Life of the Chesapeake," is part of Maryland's Community Service Day and the 50th anniversary celebration of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin.

The Potomac/Garrett State Forest in Deer Park will be participating in the event with a trail clearing scheduled from 8:30 a.m. to 12 noon. Volunteers will re-route a section of pedestrian trail and construct a small footbridge to minimize soil erosion caused by foot traffic. Volunteers will also clear overgrowth from the trail. The event will be sponsored by C.A.R.E. (Concerned Area Residents for the Environment), and the group estimates that 10 to 15 volunteers will be needed.

Interested persons may contact John Nelson, the project contact, at (301) 334-1920; Steve Hamilton, park manager, the on-site contact, at (301) 334-2038; or Fred Bolton, C.A.R.E. secretary, the volunteer contact, at (301) 895-5881.

"It is important that we build on the momentum from Earth Day 1990 and keep people involved in protecting the environment," Governor Schaefer said. "The Potomac River is a major tributary of the Chesapeake Bay and needs our help. The work will be hard, but the spirit of cooperation will make it fun. In one day we will make a real difference for the Potomac and the Chesapeake Bay."

Already, 6,000 volunteers from Garrett County to St. Mary's County have agreed to participate in "Healing a River for the Life of the Chesapeake."

Volunteer efforts include removing trash and tires, renewing fish and wildlife habitats, replenishing shorelines, revitalizing the river with tree plantings, and recycling papers, plastics, and cans. Cleanup projects are being organized in counties along the Potomac River, as well as in West Virginia, Virginia, and the District of Columbia.

"Healing a River for the Life of the Chesapeake" is a project of the Governor's Office on Volunteerism, the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin, local governments, and the Maryland Office of Planning.

Drug Possession, Battery Dominate Cases Heard In District Court

Charges of drug possession and battery dominated the cases heard by Judge Jack R. Turney in Garrett County District Court proceedings last week.

David D. Thomas Jr., 27, Frostburg, pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana stemming from an April 30 incident where he was arrested by the Garrett County Sheriff's Department.

Judge Turney accepted his plea and handed Thomas a 30-day jail sentence (all but 48 hours was suspended), a $100 fine, and six months of unsupervised probation.

Stanley N. Joy, 34, Stafford, Va., pleaded guilty to and was found guilty of possession of marijuana. He had been arrested on March 22 by the Maryland State Police.

Joy was given a 30-day jail sentence (all but 48 hours was suspended), a $100 fine, and six months of unsupervised probation. A second charge of possessing drug paraphernalia was not prosecuted.

Drug charges against Robert D. Willis, 43, Woodbridge, Va., who was a passenger in the Joy vehicle when the arrest was made, were not prosecuted.

He had been charged by the State Police with possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Kelly J. Sorenson, 20, Morgantown, W.Va., pleaded not guilty to charges of drug possession and drug paraphernalia possession, stemming from a March 27 incident.

Judge Turney found Sorenson not guilty of both charges.

Charles M. Rivera, 23, Bladensburg, who had been charged on June 24 with possession of marijuana by the Department of Natural Resources Police, pleaded guilty to that charge.

William T. Sachs, no age given, Deer Park, pleaded not guilty to battery, trespassing on private property, disturbing the peace, and consuming alcohol to the point of causing a public disturbance.

He was found guilty of all counts except trespassing on private property. He was given a total of three years in the Maryland Department of Corrections and $150 in fines ($50 of the fine was waived).

William R. Tasker Sr., 50 Kitzmiller, pleaded not guilty but was found guilty of battery on Betty J. Tasker.

He was handed an 18-month suspended jail sentence, fined $100, and placed on 24 months of supervised probation.

Charles R. Friend, 27, Friendsville, was found guilty on two separate counts of battery stemming from a June 23 incident at the Riverside Lounge in Friendsville.

Judge Turney ordered a presentence investigation. Friend was found not guilty on a charge of disturbing the peace.

Charges of battery, trespassing on private property, and being intoxicated and endangering others were placed on the stet docket for Jerry Parrish, 46, Oakland.

Judge Turney ordered Parrish not to have any violent contact with Patricia K. Schrock, whom Parrish had allegedly battered on June 22.

A charge of battery against James A. Metz, 82, Mtn. Lake Park, was placed on the stet docket. Metz had allegedly battered James W. Walker on June 20.

Two charges of battery against David Moon, 34, Oakland, were not prosecuted by agreement of both parties.

Linda Moon had initially brought charges of battery against David Moon on herself and on a female juvenile.

Robert S. Getz, 32, Oakland, pleaded not guilty but was found guilty of trespassing on posted property. He was handed a $25 fine.

Getz had also been charged with malicious destruction of property stemming from an April 14 incident on the private property of David K. Caruthers. He was found not guilty of that charge.

First Federal To Convert From Mutual Savings To Stock Savings

First Federal Savings Bank of Western Maryland ("Bank") announced yesterday that the Board of Directors of the Bank has adopted a plan to convert the Bank from a federally chartered mutual savings bank to a federally chartered stock savings bank and concurrently form a new company, First Financial Corporation of Western Maryland, which will become the holding company of the Bank upon the completion of the conversion. The Board expects to act expeditiously to file all required applications.

In accordance with federal regulations, the plan of conversion will provide that eligible savings account holders and borrowers of the Bank, and tax-qualified employee stock benefit plans of the Bank, certain other members of the Bank, and directors, officers and employees of the Bank will be given the first opportunity to purchase the share of common stock of the Bank to be issued in connection with the conversion in a subscription offering. Any shares which remain unsold after the subscription offering are expected to be sold to the general public in a community offering and/or a public offering. The Bank has engaged Adams Cohen Securities Inc. to assist it in connection with the conversion and the Subscription and Community Offerings. In the event that a Public Offering is conducted, it is expected that it will be managed by Legg Mason Wood Walker, Inc.

The Plan of Conversion must be approved by at least a majority of the votes eligible to be cast by the Bank's members, either in person or by proxy, at a special meeting at which the plan will be submitted for approval. The plan of conversion also must be approved by the Office of Thrift Supervision of the Department of the Treasury. A proxy statement setting forth detailed information with respect to the proposed plan of conversion will be sent to all members prior to the special meeting.

Savings account holders will continue to hold accounts in the converted Bank identical as to dollar amount, rate of return and general terms. Savings accounts will continue to be insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, and the Bank will maintain its membership in the Federal Home Loan Bank System.

After conversion, the Bank will operate as a federally chartered stock savings bank and will be wholly owned by First Financial Corporation of Western Maryland. Borrowers' loans will be unaffected by the conversion and will remain contractually fixed as they existed prior to conversion. The normal business of the Bank will continue without interruption in its existing offices.

An Open Challenge To Debate The Issues
Ernie Gregg believes that the people of Garrett County deserve to hear the views and plans of both candidates for County Commissioner from District 3 in a face-to-face debate on the issues in Garrett County today and tomorrow.
In the hope that a public debate will help the voters to make the best possible choice, Ernie Gregg issues a public challenge to Brenda Butscher to debate the issues.
Ernie Gregg has spent the past 12 years in the public eye, guiding the growth of Garrett County and making it a better place to live. He understands the issues and the challenges ahead, and he knows what has to be done!
What about the challenger? What are Brenda Butscher's plans? Other than some empty promises and wishful thinking, does she have any ideas about the future of our county? The people deserve to know where she stands!
Ernie Gregg has nothing to hide. If the challenger has nothing to hide, she will accept the challenge to debate the issues in an open forum, with an independent panel of interested citizens presenting the questions and administering the debate.

Convicted Rapist Withdraws Plea; Granted New Trial

A ten-year prison term handed down to an Oakland man for allegedly raping a 14-year-old female will now be stricken, according to a spokesman of the Garrett County Circuit Court.

Robert D. Smith, 22, pleaded guilty to the second degree rape charge in a September trial, at which time Judge Fred A. Thayer sentenced him to ten years in the Maryland Department of Corrections. Because of an apparent flaw in the plea agreement, Attorney Robert C. Hesson filed for a motion to withdraw the plea on Monday, which Judge Thayer accepted.

According to reports, the plea agreement with the state recommended a sentence not more than three years. However, at the sentencing, the state only recommended incarceration with no detailed stipulation concerning the length of time to be served.

A new trial will be granted to Smith, the date of which has not been set.

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners also proclaimed October as "Maryland You Are Beautiful" month. The proclamation stated, "Maryland's most valuable and cherished resource is her citizens — "beautiful" people who are kind, caring and proud, and people who give so generously of themselves in order to make a positive and fruitful impact on the lives of others." Pictured, left to right, are runners-up, Bill and Hazel Meyers, Friendsville; Commissioner Ernest J. "Town Meeting" To Be Viewed By PTA, Public

A state-wide "town meeting" on education will be broadcast on Maryland Public Television (MPT) on Wednesday, Oct. 10, at 7 p.m. The Garrett County Council of Parent-Teacher Associations, in conjunction with the Garrett County Board of Education, invites all local schools, as well as the general public, to join them in viewing the program.

Although the program can be viewed at home, the PTA and teachers will gather at Broad Ford Elementary School cafeteria to watch the presentation. The gathering at the elementary school will begin at 6:45, at which time several introductory remarks will be made.

The "town meeting" will highlight Dr. Joseph Shilling, State Superintendent of Schools, who will discuss the State Board of Education's initiatives for the future entitled, "Success for All Students."

Mandatory kindergarten, an extension of the existing 180-day school year to 200 days, and compulsory school attendance to age 18 are three of the ten initiatives which have recently sparked debate, according to a spokesperson from the Garrett County Board of Education.

Following the one-hour town meeting, parents, teachers, and the general public will have the opportunity to discuss how these initiatives will affect students in Garrett County.

A board spokesperson invites all members of the public to attend.

The Best Choice . . .

The International Olympic Committee's recent decision to hold the 1996 Summer Games in Atlanta was certainly good news for the people of that city and the state of Georgia, and it could also be good news for us in Garrett County.

One of the events of the Games will be whitewater racing and the Olympic Committee will soon select a location for these races. Garrett County's Savage River will be among the three or four sites in the nation that are considered and, for several reasons, it may be the front-runner in the minds of the Committee.

First of all, not only is the setting of the Savage River ideal from an aesthetic point of view, but it is a site that has already been prepared and used for international competition. It is a proven site. The necessary trails and bridges are there. The seating accommodations and transportation system have been tested.

Secondly, we have the know-how. The organizers and hundreds of volunteers did an outstanding job with the 1989 World Championships, and whatever gliches that did exist will be eliminated in future events. Our citizens were also complimented profusely by visiting athletes and spectators on what great hosts we were for the 1989 World's.

Finally, and perhaps most importantly, Coach Bill Endicott of the U.S. slalom team, and most of the team members prefer the Savage River for international competition. We are told that U.S. racers Jon Lugbill and Davey Hearn, who have dominated the slalom event for a decade, are among those who would like to see the event held at the Savage. Many foreign athletes apparently share the same opinion.

One disadvantage is that Garrett County is a long way from Atlanta; but it is not unusual for Olympic events to be held hundreds of miles from the main center. Supposedly, the Oconee River in Georgia has world class whitewater potential, but the setting is not nearly as good as that of the Savage.

It was a thrill to host the 1989 World Championships, one that could only be exceeded by hosting the 1996 Olympics. We invite the Olympic Committee to visit our county and see why the Savage River is the best choice.

Facts From The Mental Health Advisory Committee

INSURANCE COVERAGE FOR MENTAL ILLNESS

by Martha U. Jachowski

Garrett County Mental Health Advisory Committee

The exact coverage provided by one's health insurance policy is a subject seldom dwelt upon by the average consumer. This is especially true when it comes to mental illness. Unless the individual or a member of his family has already been confronted with the reality of facing bills for mental health treatment, the consumer more than likely assumes that his insurance coverage will pay the same for mental illness as it does for other illnesses. Such is seldom the case.

Third-party insurance companies, including Blue Cross/Blue Shield, pay for most physical illnesses the full cost of inpatient care and at least 80% of the cost of outpatient and other "major medical expenses." They pay far less for the treatment of mental illnesses.

Maryland law requires that all health insurance policies must include benefits for treatment of "acute mental illnesses and emotional disorders" at least equal to basic prescribed minimums. These minimums are inpatient service for 30 days in a hospital and 65% of the outpatient benefits provided for other illnesses. If an individual has not used his full 30 day inpatient benefit in a year, he is allowed 120 days of service, up to $30 per day, in an approved psychiatric halfway house. All of this means that privately insured individuals receiving mental health treatment may have as little as one half of their mental health treatment bills paid for by their insurance (65% of the 80% = 52%) despite the fact that they carry a health insurance policy.

People with very low incomes and no private insurance who qualify for Medical Assistance have their outpatient mental health treatment bills reimbursed at rates far below actual costs or customary charges. Medical Assistance currently pays for inpatient mental health care in general hospitals, if it is available, but does not pay for services in state hospitals for persons age 22 to 64.

A new "Maryland Access to Care" program targeted for implementation in 1991, would require most Medical Assistance recipients to choose a "primary care provider" (PCP). Physicians who participate in this program would receive up to a 50% increase in their fees for most primary care service. It is uncertain at this writing whether this new Access To Care plan would include persons with mental illness.

Some states are expanding the types of mental health services that can be paid for by Medicaid by adopting a federal law that allows for a "rehabilitation services option." This option allows coverage for Medicaid-eligible persons to receive treatment wherever it is needed, even if it is in the home or on the street. Currently Maryland Medical Assistance recipients can only have their care for mental illnesses reimbursed if it is provided in a mental health center or clinic. The 1990 Maryland

"By combining the best financial institutions in the area, WM Bancorp intends to be the premier banking institution serving Western Maryland, West Virginia and adjacent areas of Pennsylvania," Hercher added.

FRIENDS OF THE RUTH ENLOW LIBRARY

Friends of The Ruth Enlow Library
by Sull McCartney

Two people asked me why I hadn't written about any books recently. So in response to public demand, the following is a list of books I liked, with brief comments.

Three Blind Mice by Ed McBain (Fiction) — This is one of his Matthew Hope novels. Regardless of the dust jacket blurbs McBain is no Dashiel Hammett, but he's pretty good.

Wah-To-Yah By Lewis Garrard (Nonfiction) — Interesting little book by a seventeen year old who went west for his health in 1846. He spent a year with mountain men, traders and Indians. Contains excellent descriptions of Indian life.

Hyperion and Fall of Hyperion by Dan Simmons (Science Fiction) — I loved the first line, "The Hegemony Consul sat on the balcony of his ebony spaceship and played Rachmaninoff's Prelude in C-sharp Minor on an ancient but well-maintained Steinway while great, green, saurian things surged and bellowed in the swamps below."

Burn Marks by Sara Paretsky (Fiction) — Ms. Paretsky has written a series of mysteries featuring a female private investigator named V.I. Warshawski. This is the only one I have read. I thought it was very good and plan to read more.

Charles Goodnight: Cowman and Plainsman by J. Evetts Haley (Nonfiction) — Charles Goodnight and his partner Oliver Loving were the basis for Larry McMurtry's Lonesome Dove. Goodnight was a renowned scout, Indian fighter and rancher. He established several of the early trails which were used to drive cattle from Texas to Northern Markets.

Killing Mr. Watson by Peter Matthiessen (Fiction) — Killing Mr. Watson is the story of a Florida community of the early 1900's. Their relationship to and eventual killing of Mr. Watson, a legendary outlaw, is told from the viewpoint of various community members.

Vacations In Hell by P.J. O'Rourke (Nonfiction) — Tales of travels to out of the way places. The only intentionally funny Republican writer that I know.

Losing Ground by Hugh Ulrich (Nonfiction) — This book is about the decline of U.S. agriculture. It is an important book, but depressing. Since 1910 the percentage of the U.S. population living on farms has declined from over 30% to less than 2%. Modern agricultural practices in this country are causing massive losses of topsoil, depleting ground water supplies, and tainting drinking water with chemical residues. Thousand of small towns have been devastated by the decline of family farms. Mr. Ulrich chronicles the decline of the American farmer and presents suggestions.

Jaquars Ripped My Flesh by Tim Cahill (Nonfiction) — Mr. Cahill is a writer for Outside magazine and a regular contributor to several scuba diving magazines. This book is a collection of articles about activities such as spelunking, skydiving, rock climbing, etc.

What Are People For? by Wendell Berry (Nonfiction) — This book is a collection of essays about teaching, poetry, computers and once again the decline of the farming community.

COMMUNITY SERVICE DAY 1990
MAKING TIME FOR MARYLAND

What is Community Service Day, and why do we celebrate such a day in Maryland? This is something to think about as our second annual Community Service Day approaches on October 13.

Strong communities are important to Maryland. And even more important are the people who volunteer their time and skills to make each community special. I meet these people everywhere I go. People who work in nursing homes, hospital volunteers, library assistants, reading tutors, Jaycess, Girl Scouts — the list is endless and the contributions they make to each community are invaluable. On Community Service Day we want all Marylanders to join the people who regularly volunteer their time for us and our communities.

Everyday, I see or hear from people who want to help make the towns they live in a better place to live and work. Marylanders want to help, and once they know how they can make a difference, they respond heartily. Last year, more than 70,000 people from all over the state took part in our first Community Service Day. They hauled trash out of streams; visited the elderly; planted trees; picked up litter along roadways; spent time with disadvantaged children -- because they care about our state and the people who live here. That isn't hard to believe when you have met as many warm and caring people in Maryland as I have.

This year, Community Service Day activities are being organized in every part of the state. Boy Scouts in Kent County will be clearing a wheelchair path at Camp Fairlee. Montgomery County residents will join other volunteers in preparing red ribbons to be tied on cars for the MADD campaign in Rockville. Residents of Harford County will be cleaning up streams, and Baltimore City will sponsor a public health fair featuring 25 human service organizations. This is only a partial list of over 100 activities planned.

Individuals who may feel left out of the picture can meet new

The Mind Wanders

Gentle Reminder
By Mary Sincell McEwen

Several months ago, I half-listened to a report on "The Morning Edition" on National Public Radio (NPR). The newscaster told of a strange phenomenon happening in some of the wheatfields of England. He explained how the wheat was being bent down in certain spots, forming various circular patterns, which ranged in size anywhere from a few feet across to four or five times that. There were no clues as to what was making these designs, although the tabloids were vigorously touting the idea of extra-terrestrials. According to the NPR person, the phenomenon was generally thought of as some sort of hoax.

I went on to work that morning, thinking only a little about the mysterious circles.

However, as I have heard more and more information on these "circles in the wheat," I find myself quite occupied with thoughts about them, feeling a mixture of perplexity and sheer delight as more and more theories by laymen and scientists alike are soundly disproved.

The most recent report I sat riveted to was on ABC's 20/20. Several of the fascinating designs were captured on film, some appearing, literally overnight, while the reporter was quite near.

In some of the patterns, a large circle is outlined by a ring of more flattened wheat, or connected to another circle by a straight line. Sometimes four small circles will form a square, connected with lines. The spectacles are perfectly geometric, yet chillingly artistic.

There are some facts about the rings, albeit few. For instance, the occurrences of the wheat rings have been highly concentrated within a 50-mile radius of Stonehenge, the famous ring of monolithic stone slabs, built centuries ago by people who technically should not have been able to build such a structure. Although Stonehenge is the best known and most-intact, there are, interestingly enough, several more ancient stone circles in the same area as Stonehenge and the current wheat phenomenon.

A theory was voiced on 20/20 — could these circles have appeared in ancient times, prompting curious yet reverent people to build monuments and worship the supposed deity responsible?

More down-to-earth facts concern the wheat itself. Although the stalks have been "pushed" until they are almost completely horizontal, the wheat has not been damaged in any way and continues to grow. Stranger yet, according to one report, the actual molecular structure of the flattened wheat is different from the standing stalks, apparently altered in the curious process.

When I was explaining the events to my nearly 12-year-old nephew, he was immediately skeptical.

"Someone's just out there pushing it down at night," he said. "Someone ought to stay up all night and just watch for it to happen."

I quickly informed him that folks are already at it, and even have a name: crop watchers. These people do indeed sit up all night, armed with night-time cameras, microphones, and other tracking devices, waiting for even a small sign from the field. They have yet to see any.

And as far as "someone's just out there pushing it down" — well, that has been tried, too. Those attempting to imitate the designs have ended up with a pattern only slightly similar, as well as a lot of mangled and crushed wheat. No one has been able to create an imitation that is even close to the real thing.

Theories have been as many and varied as one can imagine, ranging from "a wild boar running amok" to an unknown wind pattern in which a "ball of air" descends to the earth, spins, and then dissipates.

The 20/20 reporter said he almost swallowed this wind idea, until he spent an entire night with the "crop watchers." He interviewed them on film, and kept his eye on the field all night, seeing nothing, only to discover in the morning that the most intricate of all the designs to date — absolutely not made by wind — had been created in the very next field. To me, this episode seemed almost whimsically planned.

As far as theories, I do have my own, although it's not so much a theory as it is a sense or feeling about the phenomenon. As remote as it may seem, I do feel a connection between the circles and our world situation.

As the tension mounts in the Persian Gulf, as we slash and burn our rain forests, as species after species of animals and plants become extinct, what better way could there be to nudge us humans, ever so gently? To grasp our attention in these turbulent times and remind us that we are not the only living beings on this earth.

As the circles in the wheat appear again and again, I enjoy to the fullest the fact that scientists are stumped by them again and again. Perhaps something is suggesting to us that although we are wonderfully intelligent and capable beings, we simply do not know all the answers — we do not always know "what's best" for our world. We're here, the other animals and plants are here, all sharing this little globe of life.

Sometimes I think the circles in the wheat should be headlined first in newscasts — a possible message to us all to mind what we do, and to cherish our Earth.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I would like to commend Ernie Gregg for his efforts as county commissioner. As a teacher and parent, it is important to me that this county has strong leadership. I know that several other teachers feel the same way I do.

Ernie has been an effective leader for this county. He has been an active supporter of teachers, athletics, lowering the county tax rate, providing better county services than we've ever had, and finally giving Garrett County a voice in state government.

As parents of two children, my wife and I would like to give our boys the best quality of life we can. We feel we can fulfill this goal with Mr. Gregg as county commissioner. He has shown that he is dedicated to serving the people of this county.

Jim Bosley
Oakland

To the Editor:

The Editor's Note in last week's edition of your newspaper certainly came as a slap in the face to the Gregg family and to all the friends and political supporters of Ernie Gregg. For the better part of the past two months, you have printed every word of the letters that denounced Mr. Gregg's performance as a public servant as well as his character. Quite obviously, no attempt was made on your part to verify any of the so-called "facts" or accusations which appeared in those letters. Instead, you allowed such tripe to grace your editorial page, thereby giving credibility to the lies and innuendoes that filled those letters.

Recently, it has been brought to our attention by supporters of Mr. Gregg, and confirmed in conversation with you, that positive, truthful letters were indeed submitted to your newspaper, but were either edited, so as to water-down the intent of the letter, or were not printed at all. This represents a "changing the rules in the middle of the game," so to speak. Fairness dictates that your letter policy should be consistent all during the course of a political campaign. While we realize that a public official, such as Mr. Gregg, is open to a certain degree of public criticism, that criticism should not be defaming. Nor should the title of "incumbent" shackle a candidate running for re-election to an office. Ideally, the campaign trail would be much cleaner if it avoided your editorial page altogether.

Sincerely,
Fred & Carol Gregg
Son and Daughter-in-law
Of incumbent County
Commissioner,
Ernest J. Gregg Jr.

Dear Greggs,

We do not see it as our role to verify "facts" and accusations in letters to the editor. In general, letter writers express their opinions and it is the reader's choice whether or not to agree with them. If they write what they consider "facts," it is the reader's choice whether or not to believe them.

We have received ONE letter as you describe in your second paragraph. We received it last week and it appears on this page today. Yes, it has been edited, but the only deletions were those which asked persons to vote for Mr. Gregg. We have never run letters that are outright endorsements for any candidates. We do not print such letters because we would most likely be inundated with them from supporters of the various candidates. So we really have not "changed the rules in the middle of the game."

Yes, in a sense the incumbent candidate is shackled, because his opponents can take all kinds of pot shots at him, and he can't do likewise if his opponent has never held the office. But incumbents are "fair game" for not only criticism, but also praise. It's just part of the job. We have always published those letters in which the county commissioners have been commended.

Editor

To the Editor:

I would like to comment on some of the statements made by Commissioner Ernest Gregg after he was defeated by Brenda Butscher in the primary election. But first, let me say that I believe a write-in campaign at this point is a farce and should not be permitted. It undermines the whole purpose of the primary election. If write-in campaigns are going to become part of the general election, we might as well do away with the primary and let everybody run in November. Back to Mr. Gregg's statements:

"So after I sifted through everything and saw that only 1,400 voters had decided the fate of the county . . ." Where in the world did he get that number? He received 1,484 votes, Mrs. Butscher, 1,575 and Mr. Brodak 565, making a total of 3,624 votes, not 1,400.

"The people have been telling me that it is unfair for an election to be stolen like this one."

"Crash Course" At Deep Creek Spins Tale Of Terror For Teens

KATHRYN JENSEN
(a.k.a. NICOLE DAVIDSON)

by Pam Ashby

They arrived at the secluded cabin at Deep Creek Lake in a stuffy, miniature school bus to spend the Thanksgiving holiday cramming for SATs.

They were a diverse group of four girls and four boys under the tutelage of a peculiar history teacher.

Almost immediately, panic struck when one member of the study group fell from a rowboat only to disappear into the murky, frigid depths of the lake.

When the teacher left on foot to seek help miles away, terror struck.

Out of necessity, new relationships were formed as Kathryn Jensen (a.k.a. Nicole Davidson), through an entertaining novel for teenagers, explores healthy and unhealthy attitudes.

Her latest novel for teenagers, "Crash Course," delves into the minds of young people and doesn't insult their intelligence in the process.

Kathryn Jensen, who writes novels for all age groups, puts her Nicole Davidson pen name to books for teens for a special reason. "They interest me," she simply states.

The novelist doesn't see teenagers as a separate species, rather she sees them as a group of people who have their own special needs; people who need to reassure themselves via interpersonal relationships.

Born Kathryn Mary Kimball on May 11, 1949, Ms. Jensen was reared in New England. Until she was eight years old, she lived in Swampscott, Mass. Her family then relocated in Groton, Conn., where her father worked as a mechanical designer for a boat company.

She received her bachelor of arts degree in history and English at the University of Connecticut.

Ms. Jensen married in 1969 and bore her first child, Nicole, in 1971. With baby in tow, she flew to Italy to join her husband, who was stationed there with the U.S. Air Force.

Out of boredown and hoping to add some income to the family budget (a misconception, she adds), Ms. Jensen began to write.

Her first short story was sold to "Highlights for Children Magazine." It wasn't until after she returned to the United States and had her second child, David, that the young author succeeded in selling her first book — a children's picture book to Simon and Schuster.

Another acceptance quickly followed in 1986 for an adult novel, "Select Circles." Ms. Jensen was asked to join a packaging team as a coordinator/head writer to produce a 10-book young adult series for Crown Publishing. She authored four books in the Charisma, Inc. series, published in 1988 and 1989.

After moving around the country, Ms. Jensen settled in Columbia, Md. in 1980 where she still resides with her two children — now as a single parent.

While in Columbia, over a four-year period, the writer researched and wrote a different kind of young adult novel — a realistic portrayal of a family haunted by their father's memories of his experience in Vietnam. "Pocket Change" was published in 1989 and has been critically praised by major reviewers.

Ms. Jensen has become a sought-after lecturer/instructor for literary groups, schools, and library events.

The author, along with her son, traveled to Deep Creek Lake in 1989 to research the idea for "Crash Course."

"The setting was perfect," she stated. "Woodsy area, large lake, cabins near the water's edge, some portions very isolated . . . it fit so many categories."

She also traveled to Vermont last year to research another book, soon to be released, tentatively titled "Winterkill."

Both novels were written under the pen name, Nicole Davidson (sound familiar?), and were published by Avon Books.

Jensen explained that she uses a pen name not to hide anything, but so as not to confuse young readers.

"If I used the same name for the teen books as I did for my adult books, I would be doing both age groups a disservice," she noted. "When young readers see a Nicole Davidson book, they know it's for their age group."

Jensen is currently working on two adult novels for Pocket Books — "Sing To Me, Saigon," a wartime love story, and a tentatively titled "Couples," a contemporary story of relationships.

Most recently, Ms. Jensen has been asked by the continuing education department of Johns Hopkins University to develop two seminars on writing juvenile fiction.

She was also invited to judge Baltimore City's annual "Personal Best" essay contest for middle school and high school students.

Ms. Jensen terms "Crash Course" a strong suspense/transition book.

She explained, "Kids always love scary books, but I have a problem with hack-'em-up stories. The subtle scary image of a scrape against a window, for instance, sustains a suspense story. If you pick a strong genre, you can construct suspense without excessive violence."

Those images, sprinkled with a few chase scenes successfully keep readers on the edge of their seats, or tree limbs, or wherever they choose to read.

The author, without being preachy, creates a format for relationships — good and bad. Through a spectrum of personalities, she gets her point across without lecturing.

Her interest in teens comes not only from her own children, but also from her prior teaching experience. She listens to the kids to get a feel for what they are thinking.

"Teens are different from when I was growing up," she stated. "They are more open, both physically and verbally. It is not unusual to see them pass in the hall and embrace."

She continued, "Teens are a hard age group to sell to . . . but we can't stop selling. Hopefully the quality of books for them will improve. A lot of them don't want to read. It's easier to watch T.V. or play video games."

Perhaps Deep Creek Lake as the setting for the novel will inspire local teens to read "Crash Course."

Area students, parents, and teachers may take advantage of a book signing with Ms. Jensen for "Crash Course" that will be held Saturday, October 13, at Waldenbooks in Country Club Mall, LaVale, from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m.

"Crash Course" is also available locally at The Book Mark'et in downtown Oakland.

Ruth Enlow Displays Photos By Local Lawyer

The Ruth Enlow Library is currently featuring an exhibit of photographs by local attorney, Robert E. Watson.

The twenty photographs on display range in subject matter from Garrett County and West Virginia landscapes to photographs taken in England, as well as wildlife shots, and some pictures taken on Maryland's eastern shore.

The photographs are all Cibachrome* prints. Cibachrome* is known for its color saturation and archival qualities, outlasting other prints by many years, Watson said.

Watson was born in Baltimore in 1940. He received a master of arts degree from Johns Hopkins University in 1971, and is a published writer of newspaper material, music, art criticism, and some poetry.

The photographer/lawyer holds a juris doctorate degree from the University of Baltimore. He has been interested in photography since childhood, he said, being introduced to the art by his father, who had a darkroom in which Watson learned the techniques of black and white photography.

Watson published several black and white photographs in 1967. Color photography became a strong interest to him in the 1980's, as his fascination with the forms and colors of the Appalachian Mountains grew.

Watson organized a company in 1990 called "Pictures Ltd.," created for the purpose of merchandizing his photographs. His work is featured in a number of galleries throughout the state, including the Savage River Trading Company at the Midlake Plaza, off U.S. Rt. 219, where his photos are offered for sale.

Person wishing for more information about the photographer and his work may call 301-387-4786.

SCENIC PHOTOGRAPHY BY LOCAL ATTORNEY Robert E. Watson can be viewed at the Ruth Enlow Library, where an exhibit of the lawyer's work is currently on display. Pictured are two photographs by Watson, a sampling of his extensive portfolio of landscape photography taken in Garrett County and nearby West Virginia areas, as well as in England.

Correction Noted

In last week's edition of The Republican, it was incorrectly reported that defense council in the Garrett County Circuit Court for Ray F. Fulk, Jr., was Richard F. Green. In fact, Fulk was represented at the plea and sentencing by attorney R. Steven Friend, of Friend and Kelly, Cumberland. The error is regretted.

Coastal Lumber Sawmill Reopens

Coastal Lumber Company's Horse Shoe Run, W.Va., sawmill returned to full production recently following a devastating fire in early June. The fires caused over $750,000 in damage to the facility and resulted in a total shutdown of the mill.

According to Barry Cook, Coastal's vice-president for northern operations, the mill was rebuilt with a mix of outside construction forms as well as employees from the sawmill. "They all worked hard to rebuild the mill and aided in the rapid restart of the plant," said Cook.

The fire marshal's office has determined that arson was the cause of the fire, but no arrests have been made at this time.

Coastal Lumber Company has operated the Horse Shoe Run Facility since 1978. It is one of the company's five hardwood sawmills located in West Virginia.

Preston County Food Distribution Set October 18

The Preston County Senior Center can no longer be used as a distribution site because of expansion of the services being offered there. As a result, all persons with a valid green card for the Senior Center must pick up their surplus food at Camp Dawson during this distribution. After this, everyone with the Senior Center as their pick-up site must come into the Kingwood Community Action office and have their card changed to a new location for future distributions. Persons with questions are urged to call 329-1028.

Community Action acts as a distributor for the West Virginia Department of Health and Human Resources, and has no control over what commodities will be available.

Apparently Mr. Gregg believes this. If the election was unfair and stolen, why wasn't it contested the way it should have been, in court?

Mr. Gregg says he has received "a great deal of support from members of the Democratic party . . . because they feel like they have no voice in Garrett County government." Who's fault is that? It is he, not Mrs. Butscher, who has been commissioner in District 3 for the past 12 years. If I were Democratic commissioner John Braskey, I wouldn't be too happy with that statement.

"Last Tuesday evening I accepted the fact that we had lost and you have to be gracious whether you win or lose . . . but late Tuesday and early Wednesday word got out and the county was in a state of shock." Changing the rules just because vou lose doesn't sound very gracious to me. It has been more than three weeks since the election and I can see no evidence of the county being in a state of shock. Judging by the total he came up with "after sifting through everything," I would say that it was he who was in a state of shock.

He blames his defeat on the low voter turnout (44%). It should be remembered that Democratic voters didn't have much of a selection of county officials to vote for. The candidates in Commissioner Districts 1 and 3 were all Republicans, as were those running for Clerk of Circuit Court. Several other office holders had no opposition in either party. As a result, many Democrats may not have voted, which could have significantly contributed to the low percentage of voter turnout.

None of these statements made by commissioner Gregg justifies a write-in eampaign aimed at overturning the results of the primary. Write-in campaigns conducted by those who lost in the primary makes a mockery of that election. The official count has been made and the results should stand.

Yours truly,
Robert F. Stewart
Oakland

To the Editor:

If you are a regular reader of this column, you may recall my comments, on more than one occasion, decrying the lack of open government in Garrett County and the tight control a handful of people exercise here. The foundation for such statements was laid as a direct result of my experiences in attempting to bring charges, on behalf of the thirty families residing in Shallmar, MD, against those who directed and carried out the ILLEGAL destruction of their old town water system in March of this year. Many of you already know of the difficulties we've had in this relatively simple and straight forward case of trespass and destruction of personal property.

I indicated in an earlier letter that having been blocked at every turn by the power structure, we would now take our legitimate grievances to the September session of the Garrett County Grand Jury; which has now been rescheduled to October 15. Having been a history major and a would be high school civics teacher (I graduated from Frostburg State in 1956 as a family of four, and quickly discovered that I literally could not afford to teach), I naturally thought of the grand jury as our 18th Century Founding Fathers conceived it: As the People's Panel, and a safeguard against governmental oppression. "The Establishment" here in Garrett County may very well be in the process of making me reassess that conception by denying me, and the thirty families I repre-

Boy Scouts Hold Fall Camporee

The Boy Scouts of America Potomac Council's 1990 fall Camporee took place recently on Martin's Mountain, in conjunction with the National Muzzle Loading Rifle Association's 14th Eastern Primitive Rendezvous. Jay Kuhn, event chair and Scoutmaster of host Troop 71, stated that over 90 scouts from 12 troops attended. They included Troops 89, 17, and 4 of Cumberland; Troop 82, Romney; Troops 35 and 27, Keyser; Troop 9, Cresaptown; Troop 69, Ft. Ashby; Troop 31, Oakland; Troop 42, Frostburg; Troop 90, Flintstone; and Troop 71, Ridgeley.

"The weather was right for camping out Friday night," said Kuhn, "and the scouts awoke well-rested to enjoy the Rendezvous activities. After breakfast, they joined the general public in browsing through the encampment area and talking with the mountain men and women. For their part, the Rendezvous participants commented on how interested and polite the scouts were."

Kuhn said that the scouts continued their outing Saturday night with a campfire, and left Sunday. "As is normal," he added, "the rain started in the middle of Saturday night and abbreviated breakfast Sunday morning. After breaking camp and inspecting the site, the boys headed home with many memories of life as it once was here in the Maryland mountains."

Huskies Blank Turkeyfoot With Outstanding Defense

Although riddled with injuries, the Northern High Huskies re-grouped and utilized a tenacious defensive performance Friday night to record a 19-0 shutout of visiting Turkeyfoot High School. It was the third win in four starts for the Huskies who will host East Preston this week in their homecoming contest.

The Huskies allowed Turkeyfoot just 23 yards in total offense, including a minus 12 yards on the ground. Meanwhile, the Northern offense, led by back-up quarterback Chad Anderson, finished with 294 yards of offense. Anderson passed for 135 yards and two touchdowns.

Northern scored all the points it would need in the first quarter when Jon Houser, who finished with 89 yards on 13 attempts, carried the ball eight yards for a touchdown.

Anderson then connected with Doug Brenneman on a 23-yard touchdown pass in the second quarter and, on the Huskies' next series, he hit Chris Jenkins with a 44-yard scoring strike.

None of the conversion kicks by Houser were good.

Defensive standouts for the Huskies were Stacy Fike, Randy Dolan, and Jarred McKenzie, who each finished with nine tackles.

Sophomore Chris Rowe added 55 yards of rushing for the Huskies.

This was the Huskies' first win over Turkeyfoot in the last seven meetings between the schools.

4-28	Punts-Average	1-35
6-50	Penalties-Yards	6-55
2-1	Fumbles-Lost	4-2
23	Total Offense	294

"Our entire defense played an outstanding game for us," Northern Coach Tom Vent stated. "Our offense is struggling right now, primarily because of so many injuries, and our kicking game really needs some work. But it was a big, big win for us. Chad (Anderson) did a great job for us."

Sines was out of the line-up because of a shoulder injury, while the Huskies' leading running back, sophomore Allen Bittinger has been sidelined because of a leg injury. Tight end Mike Fike, who also has a shoulder problem, saw limited action last Friday and Randy Dolan is currently nursing a severely bruised elbow.

Sines and Fike are listed as "probable" for this week, while Bittinger is "doubtful" and Dolan is "day-to-day," according to Vent.

"We are a pretty banged up football team right now," Vent said. "But the main reason for that is our kids are playing so hard."

The Huskies will seek their fourth win this Friday night when they host a much improved East Preston team. The 4-2 Eagles are coming off an overtime loss to Clay Battelle last week. Among their wins are a 50-0 victory over Turkeyfoot.

Like the Huskies, the Fighting Eagles do not have a large roster, but according to Tom Vent they have "at least a dozen fine football players."

The Eagles are led offensively by senior quarterback Craig Friend (5-11, 150), sophomore tailback Joey Rodeheaver (5-11, 162), and senior tight end Shad Helmick (6-2, 167).

"They run a wide open offense," Vent said. "Rodeheaver is an excellent running back and most of their offense centers around him and their quarterback (Friend). They run a lot of option plays and they throw quite a bit, so you have to be ready for everything."

The Eagles' entire starting offensive line from last season, which averages about 200 pounds, is back this year.

Defensively, they are led by junior nose guard Chris Ranieri (5-10, 180) and tackles Rich Kelly and Joe Hauser. Kelly is a 6-2, 235-pound sophomore and Hauser is a 6-0, 208-pound senior.

"Coach (Gene) Davis does an excellent job," Vent said. "They play very hard every game and, if you compare scores (with Turkeyfoot), we know we are in for a tough game, especially considering our injury problem."

The Huskies shut-out the visitors, 19-0, to record their third win in four starts. Other Huskies identifiable in the photo are No. 74, Tom Durst, and No. 42, Doug Brenneman. The Huskies will host East Preston this Friday night.

Northern Girls Win Two, Then Fall To Sentinels

After beginning the season with wins over Allegany and Southern, the Northern High School varsity girls' volleyball team tasted defeat for the first time this season at the hands of Fort Hill.

The Huskies topped Allegany in three straight games, 15-9, 15-5, and 15-6. Pam Miller paced Northern with 20 service points and Audra Speicher added 11. Melissa Thomas led the net attack with six kills, while Stephanie Thomas and Cara Wachter each had five.

Leading the Campers was Charity Taylor with eight points.

The Northern junior varsity was also victorious, topping the Camper jayvees in two games, 15-10 and 15-8. Wanda Swartzwelder recorded 14 points for the Huskies, while Amy Miller and Sara Younkin added 10 and nine points, respectively.

In a thriller match against the Southern Rams, the Huskies pulled out a victory that took two hours and five games to complete. Northern jumped out to a 2-0 lead, 15-7 and 15-7, but the Rams came back to win the next two, 15-9 and 15-7. The Rams held a 7-3 advantage in the fifth and deciding contest before the Huskies rebounded to score 12 points compared to just two by the Rams.

Pam Miller paced Northern with 16 service points and April Slagle followed with 14. Miller was also perfect at the service line with 26 good serves. Overall, the Huskies were 90 percent effective at the service line, hitting 100 good serves out of 111 attempts.

Stephanie Thomas recorded eight kills for Northern, while Melissa Thomas, Cara Wachter, and Rebecca Fratz each had seven.

Rebecca Few and Jessica Friend led the Rams with 12 and 10 points, respectively.

The Northern junior varsity was defeated in the preliminary match by the undefeated Southern team, 15-8, 9-15, and 15-7. Amy Miller led the Huskies with 17 points and Sherry Niner paced Southern with 18.

The varsity Huskies' first loss of the season came in three straight games with Fort Hill, 15-1, 15-5, and 16-14. Tracie Yommer finished with six points for Northern. Kara Goldsworthy and Michelle Clise led the winners with 15 and 10 points, respectively.

"We didn't really do anything right tonight," stated Northern Coach Vonda Yunker following the match. "Bad passes led to bad sets which foiled our hitting attack. Fort Hill has a vastly improved team this year; however, we didn't play up to our potential either. We are going back to the fundamentals during our next few practices."

The Northern jayvees were also defeated by Fort Hill's junior varsity, 15-10 and 15-8. Amy Miller and Lisa Stephens served six and five points, respectively, for Northern.

NHS Defeats Beall

The Northern girls got back on the winning track last night by crushing Beall in three games, 15-1, 15-4, and 15-3, in Frostburg.

Pam Miller and Tracy Yommer led the Huskies' scoring with 12 and 11 points, respectively.

Rebecca Race led Beall with four points.

The loss dropped Beall to 1-5 on the season.

A&A Soccer Club Defeated By Betz, 6-2

A&A Realty/Deep Creek Soccer scored in the first five seconds of the game, but could not withstand the wave of manpower that Betz Chemical had as they went down to their third defeat in a row, 6-2. Betz, who had 24 players suited up, substituted freely throughout the game and the advantage showed in the second half.

Eric Biser took a Steve Prosser pass off the opening kickoff and rifled a 45-yarder that stunned the out-of-position Betz goalkeeper to give A&A a 1-0 lead five seconds into the match. Betz got on the score board 10 minutes later and again before the end of the second period.

The Betz manpower showed up in the third period as the fresh starting unit ran the beleaguered A&A squad out of the game with three goals in a 10-minute stretch.

Betz scored again at the start of the fourth period and A&A finished off the scoring with a goal with four minutes left in the game. Mark Gwiazdowski headed in a Steve Prosser pass to make the final score.

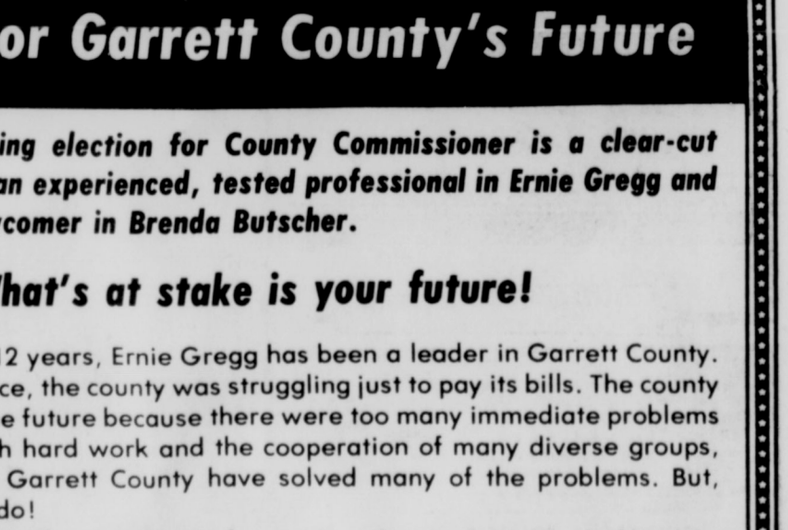

A&A comes home this Sunday to face The Choppers of Cumberland. The club will try to end its three-game losing skein in the 1 p.m. game at the Southern Middle School.

Mikulski Requests Extension Of Duck Hunting Season

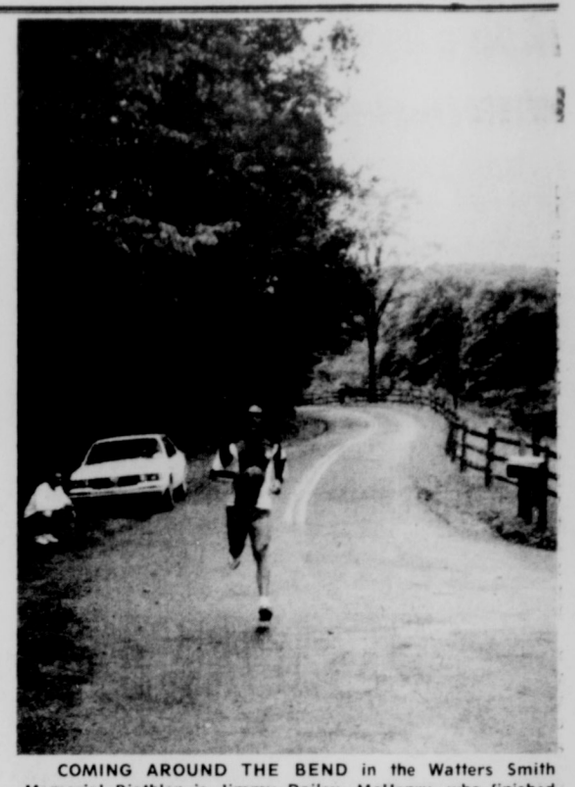

Senator Barbara A. Mikulski (D-Md.) has asked the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to extend the number of duck hunting days in Maryland from 30 to 34. Citing "blue" laws in Maryland which prohibit hunting on Sundays, Mikulski called the extension a basic matter of fairness.

"While hunters in other states get the full 30 days to hunt," said Mikulski, "hunters in Maryland must skip at least four Sundays. That means that Maryland hunters get 26 days at most, instead of the 30 days the that regulations intend."

In a letter to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Mikulski supported a plan suggesting that Maryland hunters be given a 34-day duck hunting season. The proposal was developed by the Atlantic Flyway Council.

Mikulski added that she hopes for a quick response from the Fish and Wildlife Service.

Rams Overcome Offensive Errors To Deflate Tornado

It wasn't pretty, especially in the first half, but the Southern High Rams came home from Keyser Friday evening with their third win and third shutout in four games this season, as they blanked the Golden Tornado, 18-0. The Ram defensive unit has allowed points to be scored in only two of the 16 quarters of play this year, when the powerful Musselman Applemen recorded 15 points in the second half of their game with Southern.

While the defense continued to play consistently for the Rams, the offense was plagued with turnovers in the first half, fumbling the ball three times and losing all of them. However, a 78-yard kick-off return by Southern's Jeremy Bosley to start the second half broke the ice and gave the Rams all the points they would need.

Richie DeWitt was the leading ground gainer for Southern, as he finished with 118 yards on 17 carries. He recorded runs of 20 and 27 yards in a 60-yard touchdown march early in the fourth quarter which gave the Rams a 12-0 lead.

Keyser failed to move the ball on its next series and had to punt. Shawn Ryan returned the punt 35 yards and later carried the ball into the end zone on a seven-yard scamper to conclude the scoring.

All three two-point conversion attempts by the Rams, two on the ground and one in the air, failed.

Keyser was led offensively by quarterback Rick Rawlings, who picked up 60 yards on the ground on 13 carries and passed for 59 yards.

It was the fourth loss in five starts for the Golden Tornado, who play one of the toughest schedules in the area.

"Our defensive play was outstanding," commented Southern Coach Tom Woods. "The kids are really running to the ball and they are hitting well. But offensively we are not a very flent team yet. We seem to be out of synch a lot of the time. One minute we are doing just fine and the next minute we sputter."

Woods said he believes there are several reasons for such inconsistency. "We are a young, inexperienced team this year," he said. "Plus, the split-shift school schedule this year makes practices very difficult. We only have 22 of our players at practices, which means we often have to move players from their regular positions to fill in at other positions just to conduct drills."

Individual players pointed out by Woods for their performances at Keyser were DeWitt, Ryan, Garth Glotfelty, Raymie Sherwood, Billy Ferry, C.J. Getson, and Brian McCroskey.

"Richie DeWitt ran extremely well for us," he said. "Shawn played well on both sides of the ball. He ran well and he was also our leading tackler. Raymie Sherwood and C.J. Getson had good games for us at slot and safety. Garth played well at linebacker and also as one of our wideouts, along with Billy Ferry and Raymie Sherwood. And Brian McCroskey is really contributing, both on special teams and at defensive end."

Woods and the Rams will go after win number four this Friday in Romney, W.Va., when they take on the 3-2 Hampshire Trojans in their homecoming game. The Trojans are coming off a close win over Petersburg last Friday.

S—Jeremy Bosley, 2-yard run (run failed).
S—Richie DeWitt, 2-yard run (pass failed).
S—Shawn Ryan, 7-yard run (run failed).

"Hamphire has changed its offense a lot this year," Woods said. "Instead of running from the veer, they have gone almost exclusively to the power-I and pro-I formations. They alternate their tailbacks a lot and they are a far more run-oriented team than in the past. They have only been throwing the ball five or six times a game."

The Hampshire offense is led by senior tailback and flanker Craig Richmond (6-0, 170), junior tailback Chris Strother (5-8, 143), junior guard P.J. Crary (6-3, 195), and senior tight end Judson Eversole (6-2, 175).

Their 5-2 defense is spearheaded by Joe Baisden, a 6-2, 175-pound senior defensive end, nose guard Brett Fuller, a 6-0, 187-pound junior, and junior linebacker Jerry Bakanowsky, 5-11, 152.

"Their defense is the strength of their team," Woods said. "They have played very well all season."

The kickoff at Trojan field, located about four miles east of Romney along U.S. Rt. 50, is slated for 8 p.m.

DANCE FOR HEART — The American Heart Association, Western Maryland Division, is inviting area residents to participate in an Aerobic Dance for Heart Event on Saturday, November 10, from 6 p.m. until 10 p.m. at Garrett Community College. The four-hour dance extravaganza, featuring aerobic dance performances and programs, is being sponsored by Brenda Brosnihan of Brenda's Body Shop in Oakland to raise funds for the American Heart Association's cardiovascular research and education programs. Brenda's Body Shop To Sponsor Dance For Heart

The American Heart Association, Western Maryland Division, is inviting area residents to participate in an Aerobic Dance for Heart event on Saturday, November 10, from 6 p.m. until 10 p.m. at Garrett Community College. The four-hour dance extravaganza, featuring aerobic dance performances and programs, is being sponsored by Brenda Brosnihan of Brenda's Body Shop in Oakland to raise funds for the American Heart Association's cardiovascular research and education programs.

"The American Heart Association is very excited about the event, and encourages everyone to attend," said Karen Giffin, AHA Development Specialist. "We are also thrilled that Brenda Brosnihan will be supervising the event. She is an excellent instructor who has earned a number of honors and dance titles throughout her dance career. We know she will do a great job."

Giffin added that dance studios, recreation facilities, spas, health and exercise clubs participated in Dance for Heart as part of a nationwide effort to fight heart disease and stroke. Dancers collect donations from friends, relatives and co-workers, and they can win prizes based on the amount of money collected.

Dance for Heart demonstrates dance-exercise as a benefit to cardiovascular health and the AHA. According to Giffin, "Dance-exercise is a popular activity because it emphasizes fun and fitness. Participation isn't limited by age, sex or shape, so any one can try it. Through Dance for Heart, we have the opportunity to help in the fight against heart and blood vessel diseases, as well as show dance-exercise is fun, easy and heart-healthy."

Since it began in 1982, more than 400,000 men, women and children have danced and exercised in Dance for Heart events througout the country. Their efforts have raised millions of dollars to help fight heart diseases, Giffen said.

"I would like to invite everyone to come to the event. We will be exercising, but also a lot of great performances will be exhibited," said Brosnihan. "We even have Miss Maryland, Kimberly Grimm, performing the number she did in the Miss America pageant."

For more information on the dance, persons may call the American Heart Association at 724-4011 or Brenda's Body Shop at 334-1275.

Southern Girls Top Beall, Then Lose To Westmar

The Southern High girls' varsity volleyball team defeated visiting Beall Monday in three games, 15-1, 15-6, and 15-7, but then dropped a match last night to host Westmar.

Southern won the first game against the Wildcats, but dropped the next three, as their record fell to 2-5.

Julie Tichnell and Cindy Beckman each finished with seven points for the Rams, while Lisa Green and Joy McGowan paced the Wildcats with 24 and 12 points, respectively.

Southern is slated to host Oldtown next Wednesday.

Huskies, Rams Tie 14-14 In Jayvee Contest

County bragging rights in junior varsity football remain a toss-up this week, as the Northern and Southern teams battled to a 14-14 tie in Oakland Monday evening. The contest was a continuation of a game begun September 8 but postponed because of an electrical storm.

The Huskies scored all of their points in the first half and the Rams rallied for 14 in the second half.

Rob Speicher hauled in a 46-yard touchdown pass from Derrick Mason in the first quarter to give Northern a 6-0 advantage.

Mason picked up a fumble in the second quarter and ran 45 yards for the Huskies' second touchdown. He then passed to Speicher for the two-point conversion to give Northern a 14-0 halftime lead.

The Rams got on the board in the third period when Steve Eyler scored on a one-yard run. The run for the conversion failed.

Then with 3:30 left in the game, the Rams began a 52-yard scoring drive which was capped by a one-yard touchdown dive by Mark Elliott at the 1:09 mark. Pete Strawser ran for the two-point conversion to knot the score.

Strawser led the Rams with 87 yards rushing, while Eyler finished with 51 yards.

The Huskies, who are now 3-1-1, will entertain the Rams (2-1-1) Monday evening.

New Gallbladder Surgery

Good Things are Happening at Sacred Heart

Riding a tractor, milking cows and doing farm chores -- they do not sound like the types of activities you would be doing immediately after gallbladder surgery. But for Delvin, a self-employed dairy farmer from Garrett County, his farm work was exactly what he was doing just three days after surgery.

Thanks to the new laser laparoscopic cholecystectomy -- gallbladder removal -- Delvin only missed a couple of days of farming. Because he is self-employed and couldn't miss many days of work during the summer months, Delvin thinks this new surgical procedure is miraculous.

The new laser gallbladder procedure provides patients with a reduced hospital stay, a quicker return to activity, smaller surgical sites and reduced discomfort as compared to the traditional gallbladder surgery.

Sacred Heart Hospital is genuinely devoted to providing optimal, compassionate health care to the tri-state area.

Fair Directors Treat Volunteers To Steak Dinner

The Garrett County Fair directors treated 135 volunteer fair workers to a steak dinner at the Bittinger Fire Hall on Saturday, September 29, in order to show their thanks for the volunteers' aiding in the success of the fair, according to a recent press release.

After the dinner, the volunteers who helped with the fair were introduced by Dale Glotfelty, president, and each person told what duties he or she performed at the fair.

Registration for the event, which will have 5800- and 6200-pound classes, starts at 10 a.m. There will be a $20 hook-up fee with an 80 per cent payback. STATEMENT OF FIRST FEDERAL SAVINGS BANK OF WESTERN MARYLAND

The Board of Directors of First Federal Savings Bank of Western Maryland (the "Bank") has unanimously adopted a plan to convert ("Plan of Conversion") the Bank from a federally chartered mutual savings bank to a federally chartered stock savings bank and concurrently form a new company, First Financial Corporation of Western Maryland ("Holding Company"), which will become the holding company of the Bank upon completion of the conversion.

In accordance with federal regulations and subject to limitations established in accordance with federal regulations, eligible savings account holders and borrowers of the Bank, any tax-qualified employee stock benefit plans of the Bank, certain other members of the Bank, and directors, officers and employees of the Bank will be given the first opportunity to purchase the shares of common stock of the Holding Company to be issued in connection with the Bank's conversion in a subscription offering. Any shares remaining unsold after the subscription offering will be sold to the general public in a community offering and/or a public offering.

The Plan of Conversion must be approved by at least a majority of the votes eligible to be cast by the Bank's members, either in person or by proxy, at a special meeting at which the Plan will be submitted for approval. The Plan of Conversion also must be approved by the Office of Thrift Supervision of the Department of Treasury. A proxy statement setting forth detailed information with respect to the proposed Plan of Conversion will be sent to all members prior to the special meeting.

SAVINGS ACCOUNTS WILL NOT BE AFFECTED BY THE CONVERSION

Savings account holders will continue to hold accounts in the converted Bank identical as to dollar amount, rate of return and general terms.

SAVINGS ACCOUNTS WILL CONTINUE TO BE INSURED BY THE FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE CORPORATION, AND THE BANK WILL MAINTAIN ITS MEMBERSHIP IN THE FEDERAL HOME LOAN BANK SYSTEM.

After conversion, the Bank will operate as a federally chartered stock savings bank and will be the wholly owned subsidiary of the Holding Company. Borrowers' loans will be unaffected by the conversion and will remain contractually fixed as they existed prior to conversion. The normal business of the Bank will continue without interruption in its existing offices.

If the Plan is approved by members of the Bank and regulatory authorities, ELIGIBLE MEMBERS WILL NOT BE REQUIRED TO PURCHASE STOCK BUT WILL HAVE THE OPPORTUNITY TO DO SO BEFORE MEMBERS OF THE GENERAL PUBLIC.

A copy of the Plan is available for review at any office of the Bank. Any questions may be directed to Richard C. Deckerhoff, President, either by telephone or by mail. The address of First Federal Savings Bank of Western Maryland is 118 Baltimore Street, Cumberland, Maryland 21502, and the telephone number is (301) 724-3363.

State Club Reps Visit Oakland Civic Club

Officials from the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs were in attendance at the last regular monthly meeting of the Oakland Civic Club, and commended the club's activities, particularly the members' involvement in environmental issues.

First Vice-President Barbara Nunnari and Western District President Barbara Peak each encouraged the group to continue with its beneficial activities.

Steve Schlosnagle, local author, was also on hand for a presentation of Garrett County history.

Also during the meeting, a letter from Carol Glotfelty expressing thanks for being selected as the recipient of the "Patience Grant Scholarship" was shared by group members. It was also announced that club members had been invited to an open house to be held at Salem Children's Trust, Sunday, October 7, from 2-5 p.m.

Shirley Panther reported that all plans are now set for the Autumn Glory Antique Show at the Oakland National Guard Armory, October 12, 13 and 14. It was reported that all vendor spaces have been filled.

The craft group met Tuesday at St. Paul's United Methodist Church to make pies for Autumn Glory. They will meet again, Tuesday, October 23, at the home of Helen Wagner.

Bobby Andersen, conservation chairperson, attended a meeting with Gary Yoder, Garrett County Recycling Committee chairman, to discuss tentative plans for county-wide recycling. The club collected 29 pounds of aluminum and 320 pounds of glass and bi-metal materials during the month of August.

It was announced that the club history will be written by a committee headed by Pat Filsinger. The history will then be sent to the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs and entered into their centennial celebration information booklet.

The latest project of the Oakland Civic Club is "Long Term Care." A five-member committee will begin its work on the project at a meeting to be held November 4, at noon, at Cornish Manor Restaurant. Other interested members are urged to attend.

Erika Capelle was commended for the afghan she made. The afghan was won in a raffle contest by Phoebe Goodwin.

Several members of the club will be taking a "Trip to the Mall," at the Georgian Mall in Somerset, Pa., October 16. Cost of the trip will be $6.50 per person.

Program chairperson Betty Moran announced that the next meeting, to be held October 25, will feature storytelling by club member Gail Herman.

WREATH OF FLOWERS is the name of this hand-made quilt to be raffled by the Oakland Women's Civic Club during the Autumn Glory Antique Show at the National Guard Armory, Oakland. The quilt was made and donated to the Oakland club by Helen Nordeck. Raffle tickets are currently being sold by club members. More information may be obtained by calling Jackie Johnson, publicity chairperson.

Fair Directors Treat Volunteers To Steak Dinner

The Garrett County Fair directors treated 135 volunteer fair workers to a steak dinner at the Bittinger Fire Hall on Saturday, September 29, in order to show their thanks for the volunteers' aiding in the success of the fair, according to a recent press release.

After the dinner, the volunteers who helped with the fair were introduced by Dale Glotfelty, president, and each person told what duties he or she performed at the fair.

Glotfelty thanked all the volunteers, stating that "without each one of you, we could not have a fair." He went on to tell the group that exhibits, exhibitors, and premiums were all larger this year than in 1989.

The fair directors have also announced a truck pull slated for the Garrett County fairgrounds on October 7 at noon. Registration for the event, which will have 5800- and 6200-pound classes, starts at 10 a.m. There will be a $20 hook-up fee with an 80 per cent payback. All entrants will be charged a $5 entrance fee, and at hook-up, the money will be credited to the hook-up fee. The announcer for the event will be Bill Clem. Persons with questions may call Loretta Opel at 245-4488.

STATEMENT OF FIRST FEDERAL SAVINGS BANK OF WESTERN MARYLAND

The Board of Directors of First Federal Savings Bank of Western Maryland (the "Bank") has unanimously adopted a plan to convert ("Plan of Conversion") the Bank from a federally chartered mutual savings bank to a federally chartered stock savings bank and concurrently form a new company, First Financial Corporation of Western Maryland ("Holding Company"), which will become the holding company of the Bank upon completion of the conversion.

In accordance with federal regulations and subject to limitations established in accordance with federal regulations, eligible savings account holders and borrowers of the Bank, any tax-qualified employee stock benefit plans of the Bank, certain other members of the Bank, and directors, officers and employees of the Bank will be given the first opportunity to purchase the shares of common stock of the Holding Company to be issued in connection with the Bank's conversion in a subscription offering. Any shares remaining unsold after the subscription offering will be sold to the general public in a community offering and/or a public offering.

The Plan of Conversion must be approved by at least a majority of the votes eligible to be cast by the Bank's members, either in person or by proxy, at a special meeting at which the Plan will be submitted for approval. The Plan of Conversion also must be approved by the Office of Thrift Supervision of the Department of Treasury. A proxy statement setting forth detailed information with respect to the proposed Plan of Conversion will be sent to all members prior to the special meeting.

SAVINGS ACCOUNTS WILL NOT BE AFFECTED BY THE CONVERSION

Savings account holders will continue to hold accounts in the converted Bank identical as to dollar amount, rate of return and general terms.

SAVINGS ACCOUNTS WILL CONTINUE TO BE INSURED BY THE FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE CORPORATION, AND THE BANK WILL MAINTAIN ITS MEMBERSHIP IN THE FEDERAL HOME LOAN BANK SYSTEM.

After conversion, the Bank will operate as a federally chartered stock savings bank and will be the wholly owned subsidiary of the Holding Company. Borrowers' loans will be unaffected by the conversion and will remain contractually fixed as they existed prior to conversion. The normal business of the Bank will continue without interruption in its existing offices.

If the Plan is approved by members of the Bank and regulatory authorities, ELIGIBLE MEMBERS WILL NOT BE REQUIRED TO PURCHASE STOCK BUT WILL HAVE THE OPPORTUNITY TO DO SO BEFORE MEMBERS OF THE GENERAL PUBLIC.

A copy of the Plan is available for review at any office of the Bank. Any questions may be directed to Richard C. Deckerhoff, President, either by telephone or by mail. The address of First Federal Savings Bank of Western Maryland is 118 Baltimore Street, Cumberland, Maryland 21502, and the telephone number is (301) 724-3363.

sent, access to even the People's Panel to settle our grievances once and for all.

My stake in all of this is very simple: As an American, one who has fought for the precepts this country represents, I will not accept the proposition that governmental agencies, be they federal, state or local, can trample the rights of individuals with impunity.

On September 11, 1990, I personally handed a stuffed manila envelop to the "appointed" foreman of the Garrett County Grand Jury. It was sealed, and addressed to: "The Garrett County Grand Jury, c/o Dennis Sanders, Foreman." It contained, 1.) a cover letter of our stated intentions and our request to present our grievances directly to the grand jury, 2.) an earlier letter of mine "To the Editor," outlining the charges and circumstances we are facing in our attempts to have people charged with crimes obviously committed, 3.) Detective Sgt. Donald Tucker's (Garrett County Sheriff's Office) Investigative Report clearly showing that crimes were committed, 4.) and copies of the "rejected" charging documents of the parties involved in the illegal acts described therein.

Stay tuned. I believe we are all about to get a civics lesson in how our government works in Garrett County; a matter of vital importance to all of us.

To the Editor and
All Parents:

On Tuesday, September 25, the Maryland State Board of Education voted to recommend extending the mandatory 180-day school year by 20 days, thus creating a 200-day school year.

This would mean that our children would begin their summer break towards the middle or end of July, and would return to school around the end of August. Do you agree with this decision?

If you agree with this decision, I hope you agree with the $53.3 million price-tag for the first year of the phase-in. Yes, that price only covers the 1992-93 school year extension of 5 days. Each subsequent year would cost somewhat more until the four year phase-in is complete. Remember, this is only an estimate with a total price-tag of over $200 million.

If you disagree with this decision, I hope you make your voice heard as a parent and a taxpayer. The Maryland State Board of Education is a body appointed by the Governor to oversee the educational programs for the State of Maryland. They are appointed to make decisions on behalf of our children with the public interest in mind. Did anyone ask you if you supported this concept?

If not, please take the time to write to the members of the Maryland State Board of Education at Maryland State Department of Education, 200 West Baltimore Street, Baltimore, Maryland 21201. The members of the Maryland State Board of Education are as follows: Robert Embry Jr., Wilson Parran, Elmer Kaelin, Herbert Fincher, Dr. Priscilla Hilliard, Donald Hutchinson, Rosetta Kerr, Joan Maynard, Frederick Schoenbrodt, John Sprague, and Dr. Benjamin Swinson.

The State Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Joseph Shilling, has been labeled the "architect" of the plan. Therefore, the local superintendent, along with the Board of Education, will be asked to support the concept. As parents, our local school officials deserve to hear our opinion on the matter, before the legislature is introduced to the concept.

If you are a resident of Garrett County, the next scheduled meeting of the Garrett County Board of Education is Thursday, October 11, with a time for public comment at 4 p.m. As a parent, take the time to be there to express your opinion. If you are not available, please take the time to write to the members of the Garrett County Board of Education and the Superintendent at Garrett County Board of Education, 40 South Fourth Street, Oakland, Maryland 21550. The members of the Garrett County Board of Education are: Beverly Murphy, Carol Clark, Rodney Durst, Charles Teets, Mikal Moomau, and Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, Superintendent.

If you are a resident of Allegany County, the next scheduled meeting of the Allegany County Board of Education is Tuesday, October 9, with a time for public comment around 1 p.m. Speakers are required to sign-in prior to the comment time. If you are not available, please take the time to write to the members of the Allegany County Board of Education and the Superintendent at: Allegany County Board of Education, 108 Washington Street, Cumberland, Maryland 21502. The members of the Allegany County Board of Education are: James Glass, Michael Case, George Stein, Adrienne Ottaviani, and Dr. Harold Winstanley, Superintendent.

As parents we must make sure our local decision-makers are speaking for our children. Often times they too disagree with the decisions of the Maryland State Board of Education, but are bound by their decisions. This is an example of a time when many of our local Board members disagree with the decision of the State Board, but if the 200-day school year were to become law they would be held responsible for the implementation. We must help our elected officials by arming them with a defense to take to the Maryland State Board of Education. We cannot leave them hanging without hearing from all parents.

There are other options available such as spending these educational dollars on reduced class sizes to allow more individual time with children, more technological classrooms looking into the 21st century, or a more investigative study instead of another "quick fix" answer.

Sincerely,
Jim Raley,
Frostburg
(Garrett County)

To the Editor:

As we read letters to the editor each week in your newspaper, we can not help but see all the emotional issues from animal rights, anti-timber cutting, to groups who want to take over state forest management, to even what we should wear, or how we should enjoy ourselves. It seems that every aspect of our lives as humans is wrong, to one or more of these groups. Most of these emotional issues are coming from pilgrims who have not lived in this county for very long, and are the forerunners of our governor's view of tourism.

My family has been in Allegany and Garrett counties prior to 1788 when the first census was taken and I for one don't like sudden changes, especially the ones being shoved down our throats. I wonder why our politions have closed their eyes and ears to what we, as longstanding residents of this county, want! We not only are out voted by the eastern block of voters, but by yes-men for Governor Schaefer, who are not listening to the very people who elected them.

We local people don't want to become a tourist area and deal with the fallout a tourist area brings.

Read the letters to the editor and you will realize what I am talking about, where if a local person has anything to say, we are torn apart by pilgrims who feel that their way is the best and that's that.

Governor Schaefer has a surplus of money when he came into office and now we are broke. All state agencies are experiencing cuts due to mismanagement and by our governor's short sighted views on spending.

I feel he is a prime candidate for taking over a savings and loan company. Maybe we should give him $1,000 so we can get our state back.

L.L. Buddy Duckworth

To the Editor:

After reading Gov. William Donald Schaefer's pro-abortion stance in the paper last week, it became very clear to me that history does repeat itself. The Governor of Maryland is a modern day Pontius Pilate.

In the words of the late Evangelist Billy Sunday, "Pontius Pilate was just one of those rathole, pinheaded, pliable, standpat, free-lunch, pie-counter politicians. He was the direct result of the machine gang in Jewish politics, and he was afraid that if he released Christ he would lose his job."

So as a man, Pilate found no fault with Christ. But as Governor he handed an innocent man over to an angry mob. Donald Schaefer, the man, says he is pro-life. Donald Schaefer, the Governor, is willing to look the other way and let a mob of left-wing liberals, have-my-own-way, promurder feminists kill the next generation of Maryland citizens.

Maybe we should pass the Governor a bowl of water and let him wash his hands of the blood of the innocent just like Pilate.

The Bible says in Luke 12:48 ". . . and from everyone who has been given much shall much be required . . ."

William Donald Schaefer, the man, has been given the right to head the state of Maryland by the people, but more so by God. If he is really pro-life like he says, it is my prayer that he doesn't make the same mistake that Pontius Pilate made. On judgment day William Donald Schaefer, the man will be judged and held accountable for all that William Donald Schaefer, the Governor, did or did not do to protect the life of the unborn.

Think about it.

Mental Health Advisory

General Assembly asked the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DHMH) to conduct a cost-benefit study of this option. Since DHMH is predicting a Medicaid deficit in Fiscal Year 1991 (FY91) of $20-$40 million, it is doubtful that any measures that increase costs will be entertained by the legislature in the foreseeable future.

Why does mental health care rate so low on insurance benefits? Unfortunately much of this treatment is a result of long time prejudicial attitudes about mental illness. Many people do not believe that mental illness is an illness. If a person only exerted his will, he could overcome his problems. If such an affliction does persist, it is presumed to be because of lack of moral fiber. Many of those individuals who are enlightened beyond these antiquated attitudes feel that mental illness is the public sector's responsibility. But who is the public? You and I.

How do we think our money would go the farthest? Studies have shown that when mental health problems are addressed early, their severity is greatly reduced. So why haven't the insurance carriers adjusted their rates accordingly?

Basically it is because of public demand. Mental health advocates have not banned together in sufficient numbers to be an effective lobbying force. We need to know our facts, then approach our elected officials with our carefully thought out rationale for increased benefits for mental health care.

What can one person do? Lots! Join a mental health advocacy group. The Maryland Mental Health Association, which provided much of the factual data in this article, monitors mental health legislation and informs and alerts its members when it is appropriate to let their views be known. Other organizations equally concerned with mental health issues are The Alliance for the Mentally Ill, composed of families and citizens concerned about mental illness, and On Our Own, a self-help group of mentally ill patients. Any of these groups would welcome your support in the effort to make the public aware of the staggering personal costs of mental illness.

Through the Garden Gate with the Mountain Laurel Garden Club

by Diane Thayer

The advent of autumn and winter need not result in the loss of enjoyment of your yard or garden. You merely replace the flowers with birds and bird feeding. The increasing popularity of bird feeding has resulted in changes in the birds' habits of feeding and migration. Some species are staying longer in the north, becoming dependent on the readily available food supply, hence a few general statements are in order.

If you plan to feed birds over the winter, do so on a regular basis. Do not suddenly, and for an extended period of time, cease to provide foods. Place your feeders in a sheltered part of your yard, with trees (evergreens if possible) nearby to offer protection and a resting place for the birds. Be careful with metal containers in cold weather as the unfeathered parts of the birds can freeze to the exposed metal. And to attract your first birds, try crumbled white bread spread near your feeders. Although it is a favorite, it is nutritionally poor, so use it sparingly.

The feed you use and the feeders which contain it are determined by the feeding habits of the birds and the types of foods offered.

For the ground feeders, a feeding tray covered and raised off the ground is sufficient. For the others a hanging-type feeder or pole feeder is used. Select one with holes suitable for the size of the feed offered, e.g., small slits for thistle or niger seed. The feeding stations themselves should accommodate larger birds. The shapes are infinite — box, lantern, columnar — but all should provide sufficient protection against rain and snow. A simple suet bag or container is all that is required to hold suet pieces or cakes.

Food consists of seeds, grains, bakery products, kitchen scraps, nutmeats, suet, and fat mixtures. Wild bird seed mixes are convenient, but expensive. You can mix your own and store in galvanized steel garbage cans, tightly covered. Whatever feed you use, check carefully for spoilage and avoid using mildewed food. Some of the most successful foods are sunflower seeds; cracked or whole kernel corn (a caution: although popular, it can attract undesirable birds and it spoils quickly, particularly if cracked); canary seed, and white millet. Peanut butter is a particular favorite, but never offer it alone. Mix it with cornmeal, seeds or suet, as birds can choke to death on it.

Do try to provide water. Salt can be obtained from bakery products, bacon grease, peanut butter and nuts. Or you can pour a saline solution over a stump until crystals form. Be careful — too much can kill. Grit can be readily supplied by crushed egg shells.

As for squirrels, you can try "squirrel-proof" feeders, attach baffles to existing feeders, move feeders to more open spaces or acquire a yapping dog. Good luck!

For more detailed information, A Complete Guide to Bird Feeding, by John V. Dennis, is recommended.

Enjoy your winter garden!

Already 4,000 volunteers from Garrett County to St. Mary's County have agreed to participate as well as residents of Virginia, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia.

RESPIRATORY CARE WEEK PROCLAIMED — The Garrett County Commissioners this week declared October 7-13 as Respiratory Care Week and urged citizens to be aware of the contributions made by the members of the respiratory health services. Recognized as one of the fastest growing allied health professions and an essential part of the health care system, respiratory therapy assists in diagnosing diseases of the lungs by pulmonary function studies and blood gas analysis. The American Association for Respiratory Therapy represents more than 25,000 professionals. Shown in the above photo, standing, are Lona Livengood, certified respiratory therapy technician, and Eric Tribbey, registered respiratory therapist. Seated, left to right, are county commissioners, Ernest J. Gregg Jr., Elwood L. Groves II, and John G. Braskey.

I plan to be there, too. To find out the details of how you can join in "Healing a River for the Life of the Chesapeake" on Community Service Day, call Governor's Chesapeake Bay Communications Office at (301) 974-5300.

What is so unique about Community Service Day is that there are activities for everyone. Many people are concerned about the environment. You'll see them at a tree plantings or recycling centers. Others enjoy working with people — like the people who live at the St. Mary's County Nursing Center. They plan to bake banana bread for the residents at a facility for the elderly and handicapped.

When I think of all the wonderful projects planned and all the generous people involved, I feel even more proud to live in Maryland. I hope you will make time for Maryland and join me on October 13. If you have an idea for a project on Community Service Day or want more information on what is planned in your area, please call the Secretary of State's Office at (301) 974-5521. And when it's over, I'd like to hear about what you did for Community Service Day and how you think we can keep that special volunteer spirit alive all year long. Please write me: Governor William Donald Schaefer, State House, Annapolis, MD 21401.

Grantsville Town Proclaims "Get Out Alive" Week

The Mayor and Town Council of Grantsville, along with the McDonald's Corporation, announced that next week, October 7-13, has been declared "Get Out Alive Week," in order to make citizens aware of fire prevention safety measures in the home.

A proclamation was released that stated, "The latest fire death figures show that nearly 5,000 people died in home fires in the United States in 1988 and that eighty percent of all fire fatalities in the United States occur in homes."

The proclamation further stated that the McDonald's Corporation and the town of Grantsville recognize the value of proper planning and preparedness before fire strikes.

Members of the local volunteer fire department, as well as local citizens, schools, businesses and service clubs and organizations are joining forces in fire prevention efforts.

According to Grantsville Mayor Frederick A. Holliday, all citizens are urged to participate in activities at home, work and school to develop a "Get Out Alive" plan.

To the Editor:

I wanted to take a moment to salute one of your reporters and tell you how much I enjoy reading the articles written by Pam Ashby. So many times people so quickly write to the Editor criticizing things people are doing, so I just had to write about Pam. Through her articles, you can sense how caring and kind Pam is. Two weeks ago Pam's articles stated when she went to work at the hospital, she felt God wanted her there so she could help others, but I feel God must truly want her to write because she does it so well.

Also in an article she wrote several weeks ago about being overweight, all I can say is "Hats Off To That Article." She stated how people can hurt with words; Oh! How true, and I say thank you for these words, I, too, am overweight and have many times been hurt and wanted to reply, but have held back from doing so.

So, to you, Pam Ashby, "thank you" for such good work and meaningful articles. I pray God will continue to use you in this way to help others and in helping some of us state our feelings but can't put into words as well as you.

Salute!

To the Editor:

In April 1959 I was hired as branch librarian in Grantsville. I want to take this opportunity to say thank you to all who made my 31 years pleasant ones.

To the staff at Ruth Enlow, especially Edith Brock, for assisting me and being a great joy to work with; to the patrons whom I consider my friends (without you we would not have a library), thank you from the bottom of my heart. We have shared moments of sadness and many joys of laughter together. I'm going to miss each and every one of you; especially holding babies while Mother looked for books.

To the Board members and Friends of the Library, I hope you approved of our renovations this past year.

I know others could have done a more professional job, but no one could have enjoyed the past 31 years as much as I did.

Drop by to see me.

I remain,
Maxine Broadwater

OPERATION DESERT SHIELD

MAIL CALL

As American forces continue their assignment in "Operation Desert Shield" in the Middle East, mail becomes even more important as a morale builder and an expression of public support of their service.

The Republican proudly lists the names and addresses of those local service personnel who are now stationed there, either in Saudi Arabia or other Middle East nations. We hope local residents will take a few moments to drop a line to these young men and women. It is not necessary to be personally acquainted with these local soldiers or with anyone else in the armed services to send him or her a letter. Expressions of upbeat support, humor, and words of good cheer will mean a lot.

Letters to anyone in the Army, Air Force, or Marine Corps, land-based in Saudi Arabia, may be addressed as follows:

Any Service Member
Operation Desert Shield
APO New York 09848-0006

Letters to anyone in the Navy, Coast Guard, or Marine Corps at sea may be addressed as follows:

Any Service Member
Operation Desert Shield
FPO New York 09866-0006

We will publish this list periodically over the next several weeks. Names and addresses of other local service personnel not listed here are welcome and will be added for future publication.

½ teaspoon vanilla extract
1 egg, beaten (or 2 3egg whites or egg substitute equivalent to 1 egg)
1½ cups unsifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup raisins

Combine apples and sugar in a mixing bowl and let stand 10 minutes. Blend oil, vanilla and egg with the apples. Then combine the dry ingredients and mix in well. Stir in the raisins. Pour into a greased 8-inch square cake pan. Bake at 350°F. for 35 to 40 minutes. Yield: 9 servings.

BAKED APPLES

4 baking apples
¼ cup honey
½ cup water
1 teaspoon grated lemon or orange rind

Wash and core apples, and place in baking dish. Combine the honey with the water and grated rind. Pour over the apples and bake at 375°F. covered, for 30 minutes, basting two or three times. Uncover, baste again and bake 15 minutes longer, or until tender. Yield: 4 servings.

LEMON BAKED APPLES

4 rome or winesap apples
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon brown sugar
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1/8 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup water

Wash apples. Cut tops off apples ½ inch from top. Core apples and remove seeds. Mix lemon juice, brown sugar, nutmeg, lemon rind and cinnamon. Stuff apples with this mixture. Line an 8x8-inch pan with foil. Place apples in pan with tops on the side. Add water. Bake 450°F. for 1 hour. Remove from oven and cool. Yield: 4 servings.

APPLE STUFFING

¼ cup chopped onions
¼ cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons margarine
4 cups dry bread cubes
1 cup diced unpeeled apples
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
½ teaspoon ground black pepper
½ cup chicken broth

Cook onions and celery in margarine for 5 minutes, or until tender. Combine onions and celery with all other dry ingredients. Add broth, and toss lightly. Use to stuff a turkey. Yield: Stuffing for a 10-12 pound turkey or 12 servings.

Variation:

With mixed dried fruits: Combine 1 cup of dried chopped fruits (apricots, prunes or peaches) with ½ cup raisins. Simmer in water in a covered saucepan for 20 minutes. Cool slightly and combine with all other ingredients in Apple Stuffing.

NORWEGIAN APPLE PIE

1 egg (or 2 egg whites or egg substitute equivalent to 1 egg)
¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ cup flour
½ cup chopped walnuts
1 cup diced apples

Beat egg, sugar, vanilla extract and baking powder together until smooth and fluffy. Beat in the flour until smooth and well blended. Stir in walnuts and apples. Turn into a lightly greased 8-inch pie plate and bake at 350°F. for 30 minutes. Pie will puff up as it cooks, then collapse as it cools. Serve warm, topped with a scoop of ice milk. Yield: 8 servings.

APPLE MUFFINS

⅓ cup sugar
1 egg (or 2 egg whites or egg substitute equivalent to 1 egg)
1½ cups skim milk
1 cup whole wheat flour
1 cup buckwheat flour
¾ teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 large apple, chopped

Stir together oil, sugar, egg and milk. Mix together the dry ingredients. Add liquid mixture to dry ingredients, stirring only enough to moisten the flour, then add the chopped apple. Dip the batter into oiled 2½-inch muffin tins, filling each cup ⅔ full. Bake at 400°F. for 20-25 minutes. Yield: 18 2½-inch muffins.

½ teaspoon oregano
2 tablespoons margarine
1 cup low-fat milk
¼ cup bread crumbs
¼ cup swiss cheese, grated

Poach haddock and crumble in a large casserole dish. Steam potatoes and cabbage for 5 minutes. Then layer ½ of potatoes, cabbage, apples and onion in casserole dish. Melt margarine and pour ½ over vegetable layer. Repeat layers, add remaining margarine and top with milk. Cover casserole and bake at 350°F. for 45 minutes or until potatoes are tender. Uncover casserole, sprinkle crumbs and cheese on top and bake until brown and crusty, about 5 minutes. Yield: 6 servings.

APPLE COBBLER

5 cooking apples
¾ cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 cup cake flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
3 tablespoons margarine

Peel, core and slice the apples. Place in a 9-inch baking dish. Combine the sugar, cinnamon and lemon juice. Sprinkle over the apple slices, and bake at 350°F. for 30 minutes. Meanwhile, sift the flour and the baking powder. Using a pastry blender, cut in the margarine. Sprinkle in the milk and press the dough into a ball. Turn the dough onto a floured board and pat to ⅓-inch thickness. When the apples have cooked for 30 minutes, remove from the oven, place dough on top of apples and cut slits for steam. Raise oven heat to 450°F. and bake cobbler 20 minutes more. Boil together the ¼ cup of sugar and the ¼ cup of water. Pour this over the cobbler and continue baking 10 minutes longer. ALL MEDICINES MUST BE POTENTLY FRESH

You know what happens to a delicious custard if you permit it to be exposed for some time in a warm place. It can turn into a dangerous killer. Therefore you refrigerate custards to prevent this. Many medicines must be protected against a similar change or they too can be harmful.

Pharmacists are taught at college how to store all medicines and to date those which lose potency after a certain time. Some of them must be kept away from heat or light. Others we keep refrigerated till ready for use. When dispensing such medicines which are subject to change we will always inform you if there are any precautions you must observe.

ONE MAN'S FAITH...

The year was 1492. Most of Europe's population believed the world to be flat. Dangerous monsters and hideous creatures were said to lie in wait in unexplored seas and foreign lands.

Yet one brave man, Christopher Columbus, had faith that he could conquer those fearful challenges and reach the West Indies. After six years of waiting, he convinced Queen Isabella of Spain to finance his expedition, and following two difficult months of seas, although he did not reach the Indies, he discovered the land which would later be known as America.

It must have taken tremendous courage and faith for Columbus to remain true to his dream in spite of fear and discouragement. As in Columbus' time, we may find it difficult to remain true to our convictions in the face of disappointment and temptations. Yet, let us remember, as we celebrate Columbus Day, the importance of the impact of one man's faith.

As we worship this week, may we pray for strength and guidance as we encounter unforeseen challenges in our lives.

GOD CALLING!

October 7, 1990

Background Scripture: 2 Kings 9:1-13
Devotional Reading: Psalms 20

This story is more than it seems. It appears to be the story of God calling Jehu. But it is really much more than that. It is also about God's call to everyone—and particularly to you.

The first person we encounter is Elisha the prophet. He had been called by God to become the successor to the prophet Elijah, who symbolically had passed on his mantle to him. The message from God came first of all through Elisha. He was called to transmit that message and he did.

The next person in the story is listed simply as "one of the sons of the prophets" and identified only as "a young man." He is given a vitally important and perhaps even dangerous mission. (We're not sure why Elisha warned him to deliver his message and "then open the door and flee," but he was probably fearful that either some would reject this command from God.) Although he fulfills his mission and is successful, still, his name is not recorded for us. And that's the way it is very often: it is the mission God gives us, not personal recognition, that is truly important. How many missions for God have been performed in this world by people whose names have been lost to posterity!

RELUCTANT JEHU

The third person in this story is Jehu, the army commander. The writer is careful to indicate that Jehu was a hesitant or even reluctant candidate. When, at first, the young prophet arrives in Ramoth-gilead and approaches the army commanders, Jehu asks him: "Which of us all?" (9:5). And later, when the prophet has annointed him king and left, when the others ask him what the prophet wanted, Jehu stalls a bit: "You know the fellow and his talk" (9:11). It is only when they insist that he reveals to them that the prophet has annointed him King of Israel. Jehu was satisfied to be an army commander; he wasn't looking for a bigger job, as often neither are we.

That is not the end of God's calling in this story: "Then in haste every man of them took his garment, and put it under him on the bare steps, and they blew his trumpet and proclaimed, 'Jehu is king'." If Elisha, the anonymous prophet and Jehu had all answered God's call and the people had not accepted their new king, God's plan would have been dealt a setback. Sometimes his call to us is to follow the leadership he sends us.

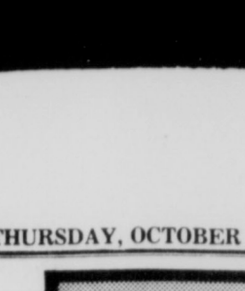

So each of us must stay alert so that we too can know when it is God calling us!

Diane Keaton directs episode of 'China Beach'

Diane Keaton will make her debut as a prime-time TV director in an upcoming episode of ABC's China Beach. The episode will look at Nurse Colleen McMurphy's (Dana Delany) life back in the States after her tour of duty in Vietnam has ended.

Diane Keaton

The Log Lady, a familiar figure in Twin Peaks, seems to possess an extraordinary, otherworldly understanding. Catherine Coulson has known she would play the character of the Log Lady since 1972. She first met director David Lynch when he cast her in the role of the nurse in his cult classic, Eraserhead. Over the course of the four years which that movie was in production, she found herself mastering many skills. Most memorably, she created Henry's famous hairdo for the film. It was then Lynch told her: "Someday you're going to play a girl with a log in a TV series that I want to do."

Danny Elfman, who composed the memorable music for such films as Dick Tracy, Batman, Beetlejuice and Pee-Wee's Big Adventure, has written the score for The Flash, the new CBS action-adventure series based on the classic DC Comics superhero. The Flash celebrates its 50th anniversary in the comics this year.

Karen Moncrieff stars as Cassandra Benedict on the daytime drama Santa Barbara, on NBC.

Eddie Murphy returns to wreak havoc in Beverly Hills Cop II, Wednesday on CBS.

Tennesse Ernie Ford up for CMA Award

Ol' pea picker may join Hall of Fame

By Amy Schmidt

"If this thing comes to me in The Hall of Fame, I'll thank 'em. If it doesn't I'll be the first one on my feet to applaud the one that does," said Tennessee Ernie Ford of his nomination into The CMA Hall of Fame.

The winner will be determined during The 24th Annual Country Music Association Awards, to air live from Nashville, Monday, Oct. 8, on CBS. Nominated along with Ford are Don Gibson, George Jones, The Louvin Brothers and Webb Pierce.

Hardly could one ask for a more gracious and down-to-earth nominee than Ford who, himself, hosted the event three times. When asked if he has his acceptance speech written, Ford burst into a modest, almost incredulous, chuckle. "Yah, two words," he said. "Or do George M. Cohan: 'My mother thanks you, my father thanks you, my wife thanks you and good night,'" he joked.

Of his success, the country music legend, who began his career in radio and went on to host one of the very first live variety shows on television, magnanimously credits others ("Some friends who really thought I had more going for me than I really did myself"). Among them is Berle Adams. "He not only thought I had some talent, but worked with me and showed me a lot of the ropes. And he was a great mentor and teacher. I still call him today and talk to him," said Ford.

Not to be neglected in that group is Merle Travis, who wrote "Sixteen Tons," Ford's biggest hit. "It was like Bing Crosby gettin' 'White Christmas,' remarked Ford. If dear Bing Crosby were workin' somewhere in July he couldn't leave the stage without singing 'White Christmas.' That kind of identity is forever."

Ford only makes about four stage appearances a year now. But this kind of rest and relaxation has been a long time coming, he said. He and his wife of a little more than a year, Beverly, (he was previously a widower) enjoy spending time fishing and horseback riding in a wilderness area in central Idaho where they have a cabin. Ford speaks of her as affectionately as a man can: "Beverly has been so good for me. She's a marvelous outdoors person, a real special lady — and a beautiful lady, too," Ford said. "I'm going to do a concert in Buffalo, N.Y. in December 'cause Beverly's never seen Niagara Falls, so I got to show her that."

Ford also has two sons, Buck and Brion, who are doing well in Nashville with their own careers, and he has four grandchildren. Whether or not Buck and Brion see the success that he has is not important, he said.

What is evident from talking with Ford is that the country gent has not abused his time in the limelight and that he truly appreciates life. "I'm very happy now. These years I have left, I'm thankful I'm healthy and that my family is healthy, and that means so much. And," said Ford, "It's pretty nice to be able to still jump on a horse and ride through the mountains in Idaho."

The ol' pea-picker Tennessee Ernie Ford finds himself nominated for The Hall of Fame on The 24th Annual Country Music Association Awards, broadcast Monday on CBS. Ford's career spans 50 years, during which he hosted the awards event three times.

Actress Alley Mills stars as Norma, Mom of the Arnold family, on the hit series The Wonder Years in its third season, airing Wednesdays on ABC.

'Wonder Years' mom not like Alley Mills

Actress contrasts with her character

Amy Schmidt

If you've seen actress Alley Mills on ABC's hit series The Wonder Years, Wednesdays, you may have gotten the impression that Kevin Arnold's mom off-stage is a soft-spoken and passive woman. Not so. Alley Mills is decades away from her alter-ego, Norma.

Mills, who is rather taciturn on the show, in real-life is a mile-a-minute talker. The vivacious actress grew up in New York City, the daughter of a TV writer/producer, and a magazine editor dedicated to providing her daughter the best education possible.

Accordingly, Mills became one of the first female attendees of Yale University, and graduated magna cum laude. By contrast, Norma is only a high-school graduate.

Unlike Norma, too, Mills is single and has no children. She is currently "involved" with someone but declines to mention who. "I'd rather not say," she confesses. "We've been photographed in The Enquirer, though." This isn't much of a clue for fans diligent upon going through back issues, because she has been pictured with a number of so-called "romantic interests" in the tabloid, including her Wonder Years husband Dan Lauria.

Mills says the cast really is like a big family on the set, however. "I really do feel like their Mom, in a way," says Mills of her show kids Fred Savage, Jason Hervey and Olivia d'Abo. She says many mothers approach her when she's out in public, because, despite this being the age of the "new woman," many still identify with Norma. This year on the series Norma gets a job outside of the Arnold home.

Nicollette Sheridan plays an heiress to a gangster's fortune and power in author Jackie Collins' miniseries Lucky/Chances, Sunday through Tuesday on NBC.

'Chances/Lucky' miniseries penned by Jackie Collins

Drama features struggle for wealth

By Christy Bergslien

Author Jackie Collins has adapted two of her novels for the six-hour NBC miniseries, Lucky/Chances, airing over three consecutive nights, beginning Sunday, Oct. 7.

The saga centers around the lives of gangster Gino Santangelo, and his daughter, Lucky, who struggle to maintain the wealth and power of their empire.

"There's a little bit of everything — action, sex, love, beautiful people, glamorous locations — but most of all the miniseries is about relationships," explains Collins. "Sex alone doesn't sell, believe me."

One of the "beautiful people" is sexy lead actress Nicollette Sheridan, who audiences will recognize as Paige on Knot's Landing. Sheridan plays Lucky in the miniseries, opposite co-star Vincent Irizarry.

In the last few months the tabloids have been having a field day with Sheridan's alleged personal problems. Nevertheless, Collins defends her casting choice: "We were very lucky to get Nicollette ... everybody at NBC wanted her ... I think she has that combination of being an incredibly attractive woman, but who also has the strength of a very strong woman."

And, although Collins claims sex alone won't sell, she must admit it doesn't hurt, especially with CBS airing the American and National League baseball championships opposite the miniseries. "Give any red-blooded male the choice of watching the playoffs or watching Nicollette Sheridan and I think I know who they'll choose," says a confident Collins.

NBC airs Jackie Collins' 'Chances/Lucky' sagas

By Amy Schmidt

Popular author Jackie Collins has adapted two of her best-selling novels for the screenplay of Chances/Lucky, a six-hour miniseries airing three nights on NBC, beginning Sunday, Oct. 7, and continuing Monday and Tuesday. The plot centers around the struggles of gangster Gino Santangelo and his strong-willed daughter, Lucky, to maintain their empire. Nicollette Sheridan, Vincent Irizarry and Anne-Marie Johnson star in the miniseries.

CBS has four movies slated which may be preempted by the American and National League Championship baseball series. On Wednesday, Oct. 10, Eddie Murphy stars with Judge Reinhold and Brigitte Nielsen in Beverly Hills Cop II. Thursday in The Big Easy, Dennis Quaid plays a rakish detective determined to charm anxious district attorney Ellen Barkin, who is investigating police corruption in steamy New Orleans. Friday sees the premiere of the made-for-TV movie, Murder at the PTA Luncheon. When the tyrannical PTA president, played by Robin Mattson, ingests a poisoned crabcake, every PTA member becomes a suspect in her murder. Douglas Barr, Jane Carr, Julia Duffy and Morgan Fairchild also star. Friday late night, CBS airs No Place Like Home, with Christine Lahti and Jeff Daniels playing a young couple with two small children who find themselves living on the streets.

TV PIPELINE

Fantasies, ambition fueled Steven Spielberg's career

By Polly Vonetes

Q: I am a big fan of Steven Spielberg. Can you sum up his childhood background for me? Plus, if one is interested in becoming a director or a producer, what would be his first step? Is there a school for it? If there is, may I have the address? —Matt Hua, Riverside, Calif.

Steven Spielberg

A: Steven Spielberg was born Dec. 18, 1947, in Cincinnati, Ohio. While still in grammar school in New Jersey, he shot his first movie — a three-and-a-half-minute western. One day he missed a Boy Scout troop excursion on which everybody spotted a UFO. Hearing about the incident prompted him, at 16, to write, direct and edit a two-and-a-half-hour movie called Firelight, an outer space invasion saga. While a film student at California State College at Long Beach, Spielberg wrote and directed a short called Amblin'. On the basis of this film he was signed by Universal Studios to a seven-year director's contract at the age of 21. He directed a number of episodes of TV's Marcus Welby, M.D. before his Emmy-winning made-for-television movie Duel. His first feature film, The Sugarland Express starring Goldie Hawn, was hailed by critics and led to his directing Jaws. Fueled by fantasies and ambition, Spielberg is a perfectionist and a workaholic. These qualities have combined to make him a successful director and filmmaker. Living in California as you do, you are near some of the best colleges in the world to study the art of filmmaking.

Q: I would like all the information you have on Richard Chamberlain. Place of birth, date of birth, marriages, brothers or sisters, etc. The last series I saw him in was Island Son. Does he plan to do any other shows for TV? —Donna Burbank, Mt. Home, Idaho.

A: Richard Chamberlain is one of those rarities — a native Californian! Born George Richard Chamberlain on March 31, 1935, in Beverly Hills, he has a brother, William. His goal, upon entering Pomona College, was to become an artist. He switched gears after participating in several college theatrical productions. His career was interrupted when he served a two-year Army stint in Korea. Returning to Los Angeles, he studied acting under Jeff Corey and became a founding member of Company of Angels, the L.A.-based theater group. After a series of bit parts, he gained national prominence in the 1961 series, Dr. Kildare. He maintains homes in New York, Los Angeles and Hawaii. He keeps fit by horseback riding, surfing and playing tennis. He has never married and there are no children. Though Island Son has been canceled, I am sure he will be back on television in the near future.

Please send your questions about television past and present to: Polly Vonetes, TV Pipeline, P.O. Box 17748, Fort Worth, Texas 76102-0748.

Actress knows role

By Candace Havens

Karen Moncrieff is what the critics call an "eye-catching beauty," and she has an enormous amount of talent to complement that amazing beauty. She is one of Santa Barbara's newest shining stars as the somewhat manipulative Cassandra Benedict.

"Cassie is a kind of enigma. She's been ingratiating herself into the lives of the people she knew when she was about 8 years old," commented Moncrieff in a recent interview. "She has basically assured everyone that they can trust her, and now she is going to wreak havoc in all of their lives."

While the character's obsession with Mason Capwell hasn't come full tilt, we will all soon be witness to Cassie's undying affection for him. But the actress is certain that her character will pose no threat to super couple Mason and Julia. "There is just something about them and nobody else on daytime comes close to what they are doing."

A few years ago on Days of Our Lives, Moncrieff found herself in the same situation. She played Gabrielle Pascal, who was obsessed with Shane (Charles Shaughnessy), who was part of another super couple.

During her time off between Days and SB, Moncrieff concentrated on "being a human being." "I got married in the interim and took the time to make a home for Michael and myself. I decorated and started a garden—things that I just barely have time to maintain now," she said.

Miss Wagner is the daughter of Dale and Donna Wagner.

DNR Announces Green Shores Buffer Incentives

Trees planted in buffer strips along waterways remove sediment, excess nutrients and other polluntants found in runoff and subsurface groundwater, according to the Department of Natural Resources, and buffers provide many other benefits as well by serving as protected corridors for wildlife and by enhancing aquatic habitats.

As Marylanders welcome the array of colors and the cool temperatures of fall, the DNR is encouraging landowners to participate in the Green Shores Buffer Incentives Program (BIP).

DNR's Forest, Park and Wildlife Services (FPWS) will pay private landowners $200 per acre to plant and maintain forested buffers around the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries. Grant money will be paid to the landowner one year following the tree plantings, after inspection by a FPWS forester to ensure that there is an adequate survival rate of plantings and that measures for protection and maintenance of the trees are being taken as needed. BIP will help defray the costs of successfully establishing and maintaininng forest buffers.

To be eligible to participate in BIP, a property owner must plant at lease one acre — and no more than 50 acres — within 300 feet of a stream, river, pond, wetland or other open water. Other eligible land would be within the 100-year flood plain. The landowner must agree to plant and maintain the buffer for ten years and follow the recommendations of plan prepared by a FPWS forester.

This incentive program does not apply to reforesting of recently harvested or recently cleared forest land, orchards, Christmas trees, or trees required to be planted by law.

Applications will be accepted by DNR's Forest, Park and Wildlife Service, Tawes State Office Building, 580 Taylor Avenue, Annapolis, MD 21401. Applications will be approved on a first-come, first-serve basis.

To receive guidelines about the Green Shores BIP or to receive an application and a grant agreement, persons should contact FPWS forester as listed in the local telephone directory or call the forestry headquarters office in Annapolis at (301) 974-3776.

NEW FIRST FEDERAL OFFICE — Ground-breaking for a new branch office of First Federal Savings Bank of Western Maryland is being planned for early October, according to an announcement made by First Federal Chairman of the Board and President Richard Deckerhoff. The new office will be located adjacent to the Winchester Road entrance of the Country Club Mall in LaVale. Current plans call for the office to be open for late December. First Federal has awarded the architectural contract to First Financial Building Corporation of St. Louis, MO, design specialists for financial institutions. All construction will be subcontracted to local contractors. The new branch will offer walk-up and drive-thru banking facilities as well as 24-hour per day Automatic Teller Machine (ATM) service. There will also be a night depository for personal and business deposits. Expansion plans have been included in the blueprints and there is a possibility that rental office space will be offered in the future. The building will have a total of 1500 square feet of space. Locally owned and managed, First Federal Savings Bank of Western Maryland has been in business for more than 60 years. The full-service banking institution employs over 120 people in Allegany, Garrett, and Washington counties. With the addition of the newest branch, First Federal will have 11 offices located in Cumberland, LaVale, Frostburg, Westernport, Oakland, McHenry, and Hancock.

FPWS Announces Cabin Reservation Procedure Change

Maryland's Department of Natural Resources-Forest, Park and Wildlife Service (DNR-FPWS) will now offer campers the opportunity to make reservations one calendar year in advance of the current date for cabins at Maryland state parks.

While in the past years a lottery was held for applicants to use state park cabins, prospective cabin campers may now call directly to the park whose cabins they should like to use. Reservations will be received during the working hours of 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, excluding holidays.

Reservations can be made by providing the name, address, number of people in the party and telephone number. They must be made for one week intervals from Memorial Day through Labor Day and two night minimum stays for the remainder of the operating season.

Reservations must be accompanied by a non-refundable deposit of $50. If the reservation is made in person, the deposit is due at that time. Reservations by telephone require a deposit received at the park within ten calendar days of the request. Reservations may be confirmed with a Visa or Master Card number.

Individuals may reserve a maximum of two cabins for the period of Memorial Day through Labor Day, providing that they can provide the names, addresses, number of people and telephone number for each cabin. For the remainder of the operating season, individuals may reserve as many cabins as they want, depending on availability. In either case, the person making the reservation(s) must provide names, addresses, number of people and telephone numbers for each of the reservations made.

For a copy of the Maryland State Parks Cabins brochure, persons may contact the Department of Natural Resources-Forest, Park and Wildlife Service, 580 Taylor Avenue, Annapolis, MD 21401, (301) 974-3771.

Crime Prevention Month Proclaimed

Governor William Donald Schaefer has proclaimed October as Crime Prevention Month in Maryland. The declaration is part of the national observance designating October as Crime Prevention Month by the National Crime Prevention Council.

"The purpose of Crime Prevention Month is to heighten the public awareness of the many crime prevention programs designed to make our community safer," said First Sergeant Steven F. Rutzebeck, Commander, Maryland State Police Crime Prevention Unit.

Appearing on the Maryland State Police Radio Program a weekly public service radio broadcast, First Sergeant Rutzebeck announced a white collar crime prevention program aimed at reducing white collar telemarketing and mail fraud.

"The Scam Awareness and Prevention Program will attempt to reduce telemarketing fraud, mail fraud, and the traditional con frauds," stated Rutzebeck. The program will send approximately 150 representatives from law enforcement, States' Attorneys' offices and neighborhood groups to the community for lectures and crime prevention seminars. "If it sounds too good to be true, there's a good chance it is too good to be true," Rutzebeck added. The Scam Awareness and Prevention Program is a cooperative effort by the Maryland State Police, Maryland Attorney General's Office, U.S. Attorney's Office, American Association of Retired Persons, Maryland Community Crime Prevention Institute and Maryland Crime Prevention Association.

The Maryland State Police Radio Program is a weekly public service broadcast carried on approximately 50 radio stations in Maryland and the District of Columbia. The program is supported by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and the Maryland Department of Transportation.

Career Awareness Workshop Set By New Horizons

A non-traditional Career Awareness Workshop will be offered by the New Horizons Program of Garrett Community College on October 10 from 10 a.m.-noon in Room 307 at the McHenry campus. This workshop will be presented by Debra Conaway who works with Maryland New Directions in Baltimore. Maryland Directions assists women in pursuing non-traditional careers.

Non-traditional careers are in fields persons may not have considered because of their sex. For women, they are jobs such as a police officer, electrician, train master, computer technician, and construction worker. "They will challenge you and could require education beyond high school," stated a New Horizon spokesman. "But, they are jobs with a secure future."

This workshop will help participants become aware of whether they are interested in pursuing a non-traditional career. Participants will find out about a broad range of job opportunities for women.

Pre-registration by October 5 is necessary to attend this workshop and may be made by calling 387-6666, ext. 171 weekdays from 8:30-4:30 p.m. This is a free workshop and is open to the public.

Seedlings Now Available For Spring Planting

Tree seedlings may be purchased at cost from the Department of Natural Resources-Forest, Park and Wildlife Service (DNR-FPWS). DNR's Buckingham Forest Tree Nursery in Harmans offers seedlings to the public for order now and delivery in the spring.

Minimum order for coniferous species, including loblolly pine, is 250 seedlings. For hardwood species, the minimum order is 100 seedlings. Prices for seedlings range from $3 to $25 per hundred trees plus shipping.

Landowners may also order environmental packets which include 50 white pine, 25 black locust and 25 each of (a) ash, (b) dogwood or (c) red oak seedlings. Landowners ordering the seedlings must specify their choices. Environmental packets are $22 each plus shipping.

Buckingham now offers 100 percent genetically improved loblolly pine seedlings. The nursery produces sufficient genetically improved seed to grow all loblolly necessary for Maryland's loblolly reforestation efforts, the DNR says.

Governor William Donald Schaefer, through the Green Shores program, encourages the planting of trees to improve and maintain the quality of the Chesapeake Bay watershed.

Seedlings may be ordered through the project foresters in each of the Maryland counties. Persons should consult the telephone directory under State of Maryland listings.

Seedlings will be offered on a first-come, first-serve basis. Special orders for Arbor Day plantings should be made now with Arbor Day in Maryland celebrated the first Wednesday in April. In 1991 Arbor Day will be April 3.

This fall, loblolly pine cones and white pine cones are being sold at the Nursery for $4 per bushel, plus tax. Cones are packaged by the bushel and available now. Persons may call 895-7730 for more information about pine cone sales.

John P. Hughes Is Commended Student For 1991

Mildred V. Wucik, principal of Northern High School, has announced that John P. Hughes, a student at NHS, has been named a commended student in the National Merit Scholarship Program.

A letter of commendation from the school and National Merit Scholarship Corporation, which conducts the program, will be presented to the outstanding senior.

About 35,000 commended students nationwide are being honored for their outstanding performance on the 1989 PSAT/NMSQT, which places them in the top five percent of more than one million students who entered the 1991 Merit Program by taking the qualifying test.

Commended students scored slightly below the level required to continue in the 1991 competition for Merit Scholarships, but they have shown exceptional academic promise.

An official of the Merit Program stated, "Being named a commended student in this extremely competitive program is a credit to these young people and their schools. Commended students were offered an opportunity to be referred by the Merit Program to two colleges or universities of their choice. We hope the referral service and the recognition Commended Students have earned will enhance their higher education opportunities and increase their motivation to use their abilities to the fullest. These young men and women represent an important intellectual resource which our nation needs."

Rev. Custer New Interim Vicar At St. John's

The Rev. Margaret Gardiner Custer has been named interim vicar at St. John's Episcopal Church, Deer Park, and Our Father's House (Log Church), Altamont. Assuming her duties September 1, the Rev. Custer is now supervising about a year's interim time between the retirement of former vicar, the Rev. John Grant, and a permanent priest for the Garrett County mission churches.

The Rev. Custer, who holds master's degrees in religious education and divinity and has completed doctoral studies in parish ministry, is affiliated with the Washington, D.C. Episcopal Diocese and has a home with her husband, Lee, in Derwood, Montgomery County. The couple has five children and 18 grandchildren. While serving as interim vicar here, she will reside at St. John's Vicarage in Deer Park.

An interim ministry specialist, she has worked extensively in Christian education, social ministry, and liturgy. She has held rector and/or vicar positions at various churches in Southern Virginia, Central Pennsylvania, and Maryland. First as a volunteer, then as a professional, and now as a priest, she has ministered for over 30 years. She is also co-author of a text for youth ministry, Act Now, and has contributed many articles for religious publications. She has developed a year-long formation program for new members along with several specific courses for youth, especially on values and sexuality.

Active in church administration and a trained intervenor, the Rev. Custer has served or chaired a variety of diocesan councils and committees, including CHAAOS, the Committee for the Healing of Addiction to Alcohol and other Substances. She likes to teach, and among others, has conducted Bible studies, women's studies, and conflict resolution workshops and has been a conference speaker.

She is a member of the National Episcopal Clergy Association, the American Academy for Mental Health, the Episcopal Peace Fellowship, and the Academy of Parish Clergy. Although she has served in larger parishes, she prefers the smaller church, and, she notes, "cold weather."

State Education Board Votes To Increase School Year By 20 Days

The State Board of Education voted last week to add 20 days to the school year by adding five days a year for four years beginning in the 1992-93 school year.

The board's 6-3 vote was an endorsement of a major proposal first made last spring by State School Superintendent Joseph L. Shilling. The longer school year was one of 15 strategies proposed by Shilling as part of his "Schools for Success" school improvement initiative.

Shilling estimated the state's share of the cost in the first year — school year 1992-93 — at $53.3 million. He said the annual cost in state aid to cover the added days would increase each of the four years. Local school systems, which would determine where in their school calendars to add the days, would also face higher costs.

The State board proposal will become part of the State Department of Education's legislative package to be considered by the governor. The governor expressed his enthusiasm for the "Schools for Success" reform proposals when they were first announced.

Following the board vote, Shilling said all students would benefit from a longer school year. He said the added time would enable students having difficulty learning to catch up with other students, and gifted students would be given more time for in-depth study.

In agreeing to add 20 days to the current 180-day school year, the board rejected an alternative proposal to lengthen the school day to a minimum of seven and a half hours. Currently the school day in most school systems is six and a half hours.

West. Md. AHA Raises $24,942 For Research

The American Heart Association-Western Maryland Division Residential Campaign raised $24,942 this year, according to Mrs. Dorothy Cathell, 1990 Garrett County residential chairman.

Since 1948, when the residential campaign began, money used for heart research has contributed to major advancements in the development of artificial heart valves and pacemakers, surgical techniques to repair congenital and acquired heart defects, treatments for high blood pressure, cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) and rehabilitation for heart attack and stroke victims as well as other lifesaving techniques.

Cathell said, "Since 1965 the state mortality rate from heart disease is down 25% and deaths from strokes are down 42% since 1965. But, our work is far from over. Cardiovascular diseases still claim more lives each year than cancer, accidents and other causes."

Cathell also thanked the hundreds of volunteers and donors who have worked so hard to make this year's campaign a success. The funds were collected during a neighbor to neighbor residential canvass of Allegany and Garrett County residents.

The following totals were reported for Garrett County Branch Areas. Accident Area, $95.77; Cove Area, $340.00; Deer Park Area, $463.55; Friendsville and Surrounding Areas, $1,563.32; Grantsville and Surrounding Areas, $1,013.00; Kitzmiller, $135.07; Loch Lynn Area, $98.96; Longstretch/Avilton/Finzel Area, $473.00; McHenry Area, $5.00; Oakland City Area, $802.06; Oakland Surrounding Areas, $543.66; Swanton, $137.00.

The staff of the American Heart Association-Western Maryland Division would like to reinforce Mrs. Cathell's thank you to their volunteers and donors .

Byron Co-Sponsors Bill To Improve Medicare Benefits

Rep. Beverly Byron (D-MD) said this week she is co-sponsoring legislation that will expand Medicare benefits to include four services that were part of the catastrophic health insurance package that was passed by Congress in 1988 but then repealed a year later.

The services: mammography, home health care screening, respite, and hospice care will be fully financed by an increase of 80 cents per month of the part B Medicare premium in 1991 rising to only $1.30 per month five years after the program is fully implemented.

Byron said that numerous congressional hearings and studies had confirmed the value of the benefits. Preventive mammography screening for elderly and disabled Medicare beneficiaries is estimated to save 4,000 lives a year.

Under the provisions of the proposed bill, women ages 65 and older would be eligible for biennial mammography screening. Disabled beneficiaries would be eligible for baseline screening with subsequent annual screenings for high-risk 40 to 49 year-old beneficiaries and all disabled women between 50 and 64. Women between 34 and 40 will be eligible for one screening.

The home health benefit included in the bill will cover daily services for up to 38 days for Medicare patients who need home health services to recover from illness, regain strength, or improve their functional abilities. The bill will also provide up to 80 hours of respite to caregivers of chronically dependent, homebound Medicare beneficiaries, making it possible for them to remain in their homes and avoid institutionalization.

"These benefits were an important part of the catastrophic legislation that Congress repealed last year. I'm glad we've found a way to put them back in the Medicare package of services without it creating an additional financial burden for our elderly," said Rep. Byron.

Grants Available To Providers Of Child Care

Grants of up to $500 are now available to individuals who qualify as family child care providers, according to Department of Housing and Community Development Secretary Jacqueline H. Rogers. The grants will provide funds for expenses required to comply with State Family Child Care Provider Registration regulations.

The Family Child Care Provider Grant Program is state funded, and is a join effort between the Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD) and the Department of Human Resources (DHR). The program is administered by the Office of Community Services of the Community Assistance Administration within DHCD.

"More and more families are in need of child care, and registered family child care homes are an important component of child care services. We should encourage and support providers in order to assure quality care for our children," said DHCD Secretary Jacqueline H. Rogers.

"These grants are intended for low-income households who may need assistance to comply with various equipment needs, safety regulations, and other expenses to meet registration requirements," she explained.

"The Family Child Care Provider Grant Program will help meet the critical need for more registered homes and it creates another partnership among state agencies," Governor Schaefer said.

Grant applicants are required to provide child care for one year to one of the four priority groups: infants, school age children, children eligible under the state purchase of care voucher program, and special needs children.

The closing date for applications is January 31, 1991.

Applications will be reviewed and rated on a first come, first serve basis, with continuous review throughout the project period.

In order to provide an equitable distribution of grant funds, a limit will be placed on the overall amount any jurisdiction may receive.

Grant applications will be available at the Washington County Office of Child Care Licensing and Regulation, P.O. Box 2945, Hagerstown, MD 21741. The contact person is Hope Dalgleish and she can be reached at (301) 791-4585.

Maryland Sells $95,000,000 In General Bonds

The Maryland Board of Public Works, consisting of Governor William Donald Schaefer, State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein and State Treasurer Lucille Maurer, last week sold $95,000,000 in General Obligation Bonds for a low interest bid of 6.9963%. The bonds are rated "Triple A," the highest possible rating by Moody's Investors' Service, Standard and Poor's Corporation, and Fitch's Investors Service, the three major bond rating agencies.

The winning bid came from a syndicate of leading financial institutions from across the country led by Chase Securities, Inc., with a number of Maryland firms including Alex Brown & Sons, Inc.; First National Bank of Maryland; Ferris, Baker, Watts, Inc.; and American Security Bank. A total of five bids were received at the Annapolis meeting of the Board.

The Board of Public Works is authorized to approve the sale of General Obligation Bonds, and to supervise the expenditure of all funds obtained from the sale of these bonds. Proceeds from the sale will be used to fund a variety of loan authorizations, including $46.5 million for general state construction; $25 million for public school construction; and another $33.5 million for a variety of state and local projects including community college construction, water quality projects, cultural, educational and health facilities in almost every county and Baltimore City.

Maryland remains one of only a handful of states in the nation to win the coveted triple A rating from all of the major bond rating agencies. These 15-year bonds, backed by the full faith and credit of the state, are sold in denominations of $5,000. They are available to the public from brokers and bond dealers.

"We received five bids from syndicates representing the most prestigious financial institutions in America. In a market described as 'kittish,' we can be very pleased that Maryland General Obligation bonds continue to be extremely attractive to investors. As economies in other eastern states run into difficulties, this is indicative of the continued confidence in Maryland's financial management, and the quality of our bonds" said Treasurer Maurer. "The close and very competitive bidding for our bonds by these banks and bond dealers is a further indication of Maryland's solid reputation."

Comptroller Goldstein said, "Given the unusual circumstances in the Persian Gulf and the fact that Congress and the President cannot agree on a federal budget, we received the best rate possible."

Governor Schaefer said of the sale, "The taxpayers can be happy we received an excellent interest rate in a tight market."

The low interest rate obtained by Maryland on general obligation bonds is important to every state taxpayer because of the significant savings in repaying the bonds. The highly regarded triple A rating ensures that Maryland taxpayers benefit from the state paying the lowest possible cost of borrowing money for capital projects. General Obligation bonds are repaid with revenue from the state real state tax and from general fund revenues.

FSU Theatre To Open Tonight

The 1990-91 theatre season at Frostburg State University opens this evening, October 4, with "Hedda Gabler," the classic psychological drama by Henrik Ibsen.

Curtain time is 8:15 p.m., in Compton Auditorium, with repeat performances set for October 5, 6, 11, 12 and 13. Tickets may be reserved by calling 689-4145.

The season's first production is under the direction of Dr. David R. Press, who said, "Although Victorian in origin, the play remains compelling in our present day, a landmark in the history of sexual revolution."

The play focuses on Hedda Gabler, an intelligent, beautiful young woman who had secretly engaged in relationships and activities prescribed for women of her class. Finally succumbing to social pressure, she marries a promising young scholar and finds herself burdened with a house, a mortgage, and dull husband. Unable to suppress her perverse desires, she deceives her husband and destroys the lover who had forsaken her.

Future Of State Libraries Topic Of Conference

Delegates to the Governor's Conference on Libraries and Information Services recently asked Gov. Schaefer to support better school libraries, services to the institutionalized, preservation of historical documents, marketing strategies, and a re-examination of the state funding formula for public libraries.

Two of the 202 delegates from across the state in attendance were Garrett County residents Sybilla Sharps and Dana Shimrock. The delegates, both professional and lay library personnel, identified these issues as the top priorities for the future of Maryland libraries at the Sept. 23-25 conference in Towson.

The group debated nearly 300 issue statements submitted by citizens on the role of all types of libraries in promoting democracy, literacy, and economic development in the state.

The delegates also elected from among their ranks 16 people to represent state interests at the White House Conference on Libraries and Information Services, set for July 9-19, 1991.

Delegates wanting to improve school libraries pushed their issue to the forefront, garnering the most votes among the 51 draft resolutions presented on the conference's final day. The top resolution called for state funding to bring school library collections and staffing up to established standards by 1995. In materials alone, school libraries in Maryland are 33 percent below guidelines set in 1986.

"Every Maryland school student deserves access to a quality school library," said delegate Irene Hildebrandt, a media specialist with Anne Arundel County Public Schools.

Delegates also agreed that the 22,000 people living in state institutions have been shut out of the information mainstream. They called for increased funding and adequate support staff for libraries in state institutions to better meet the information needs of residents.

To insure recorded heritage, delegates requested that the governor appoint a task force within a year to develop a statewide preservation plan for newspapers, local records, and other historical documents.

Feedback from citizens and workgroup discussions at the conference convinced delegates that the state's libraries are doing a poor job of informing citizens about their services.

To correct this situation, they called for all libraries to develop marketing strategies to promote library and information services available locally and statewide.

Delegates asked that special attention be paid to citizens with economic, language, or educational limitations, so that they may be made aware of library services available to them.

They also asked that attempts be made to reach the physically challenged, the emotionally and mentally impaired, the business and industry sector, government and community leaders, children and youth, senior citizens, and those who are institutionalized.

While funding was part of the discussion on many of the issues, only one of the top five resolutions addressed funding directly. Delegates called for the governor to appoint a task force within a year to evaluate the current state aid formula for Maryland's 24 public library systems.

Although the top five resolutions will be highlighted in a report to the governor, a total of 38 were passed at the conference. Those with national implications will also be forwarded to the White House Conference on Libraries and Information Services next summer.

The conference brought together delegates and 16 alternates representing a cross-section of Maryland citizens, library professionals, government officials, and library trustees for the first time in more than a decade.

The 1978 conference helped to build the foundation for the following year's first White House Conference on Libraries and Information Services.

Career Expo To Be Held Oct. 8 At Garrett CC

The local high schools and Garrett Community College will again be sponsoring the Mt. Top Career Exposition which is slated for Monday, October 8, from 7-9 p.m. at the college.

The event is designed to help high school students plan their future education and their careers.

The Career Expo is planned each year by a joint committee from the Garrett County Board of Education and Garrett Community College.

An invitation is extended to high school students, guidance counselors, parents, and representatives of colleges, trade, and technical schools in Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia, as well as representatives from the military.

According to Darlene Reed, GCC member of the planning committee, the Expo is important to students and parents. She noted that the early fall date gives high school juniors and seniors more opportunity to investigate colleges and career possibilities.

Reed said that an evening event allows more participation from parents of high school students, younger students, and adults interested in college, trades, or military opportunities.

Representatives from the aforementioned areas will be available at the college gymnasium beginning at 7 p.m.

Two seminars will be held in the auditorium, beginning at 7:15 p.m. and repeated at 8:15 p.m.

One seminar will deal with financial aid and will be presented by Cissy VanSickle and Crystal Filer-Ogden. The other seminar will explore college planning and will be presented by Manning Smith.

Door prizes will be given away during the evening, including three $500 scholarships to the school of the winners' choice.

State Receives Federal Report On Special Ed.

A federal report on the state's special education program commends the state for parent information and training and for programs to assist handicapped youngsters make the transition from school to employment.

At the same time the report calls for improvements in the implementation of individualized education programs (IEPs) and four other areas.

The State School Superintendent and other State Department of Education officials have released the report prepared by the U.S. Department of Education based on its May 1990 monitoring visit to review the state's efforts to ensure that local school systems comply with federal special education laws and regulations. The federal agency conducts monitoring reviews of state special education programs once every three or four years.

The U.S. Department of Education withdrew an earlier report based on 1986 monitoring visit to Maryland that used a process of review later found to be inadequate.

An improved process was used in the five-day monitoring visit last May. State officials said the resulting report gives valuable direction to the state in meeting its monitoring responsibilities.

The 1990 report commends the State Department of Education for the organization of its special education division and the division's close link with local school systems and provision of technical assistance through regional administrators.

The report also commends the State Department of Education's special education division for a successful program to assist handicapped youngsters move from special education programs in the schools to supported employment in the community.

Also coming in for praise from the U.S. Department of Education are the state's 14 Parent Information and Training Centers that support parents in working with their children and in obtaining the best special education programs for them.

The federal report also recommends improvements in five areas of the state's special education program. The State Department of Education has already begun to make changes in the areas identified as needing improvement.

Individualized Education Program (IEP): The IEP is the educational plan drawn up for each child identified as handicapped. The federal report said some Maryland schools need to include more information on the IEPs.

Least Restrictive Environment (LRE): This is the idea that handicapped children, depending on their needs, should be educated in the regular classroom or a setting most nearly like the regular classroom. Maryland schools sometimes serve handicapped students in separate — or restrictive — settings without providing adequate justification for the placements or information on alternative placements considered.

Procedural safeguards: The federal report said the State Department of Education needs to expand its monitoring of local school systems to ensure compliance with due process procedures.

Complaint procedures: Schools need to act more quickly to resolve complaints regarding special education decision.

Free appropriate public education: Schools need to ensure that extended school year services are available when they are appropriate.

The federal review that resulted in the commendations and recommendations was primarily an examination of the state's monitoring of local school systems to ensure compliance with federal special education requirements. The review team examined records and interviewed state and local administrators.

State Superintendent of Schools Joseph L. Shilling said the state education department has accepted the report and will continue to work with the U.S. Department of Education to improve services for all of Maryland's handicapped children.

Those programs last year served 88,480 handicapped students. This number included 41,924 children with learning disabilities, 27,515 with speech impairments, 5,918 diagnosed as mentally retarded, and 4,540 emotionally disturbed children, among others. The program serves children beginning at birth as well as young people up to the age of 21 years.

The cost of the programs last year was $455 million. Of this amount, local school systems paid $281 million, the state paid $143 million, and the federal government paid $31 million.

Oakland Resident Graduates From Concord College

Thomas Scott Germain, Oakland, graduated from Concord College in Athens, W.Va., on August 10, at the conclusion of the college's summer term, according to Dr. John P. Carrier, vice president and academic dean.

A total of 26 students were in the August graduation group.

Germain received the bachelor of science in travel industry management degree. He completed a triple set of concentrations, in lodging management, food and beverage management, and park and resort management.

The state of Maryland and Concord College have an Academic Common Market agreement to offer the College's travel industry program to Maryland residents at West Virginia's in-state tuition rates.

Concord is a growing four-year, state-supported institution of 2,560 students in the Appalachian Mountains of southern West Virginia. The college offers degrees in teacher education, business administration, pre-professional fields, the arts and sciences, and service fields such as travel industry management, social work, and computer information systems.

FSU Jazz Concert Slated October 19

The 16-piece Frostburg State University Jazz Ensemble, under the direction of Dr. Jon Bauman, will appear in concert October 19, beginning at 8 p.m., in Compton Auditorium on the FSU campus. Admission is free.

Opening the concert will be the hit from Walt Disney's "Bare Necessities," featuring a piano solo by Mike DeGarmo. Next will be the Henry Mancini classic "Sometimes" spotlighting alto saxophonist Matt Davis.

Continuing the program will be the jazz standard "You're My Thrill." This moody arrangement features an alto sax solo by Eric Switzer and the ensemble's saxophone section.

Ending the first half of the program will be "Get It On," a jazz-rock selection from the Bill Chase Band.

A special arrangement by alto saxophonist Brian Saulpaw of the Steely Dan hit "FM" will start the second half of the concert. Following will be a solid blues from the Count Basie library, "Apple Valley." Trombonist Andy Rising will be featured.

Continuing the concert will be a new jazz samba, "Nada Mas," written by Lennie Niehaus. Soloists will be Brian Saulpaw, alto sax; Curtis Swallow, trumpet; and Will Vogtman, tenor sax.

Bringing the concert to a close will be the monster showcase from the Buddy Rich Band, "Groovin' Hard," with solos by tenor saxophonists Dave Kauffman and Will Vogtman.

An added attraction to the concert will be the appearance of local musicians Lynn Zeller, trombone; Michael DeGarmo, piano; and Bill Rogers, drums.

MSTA To Sue State School Board For Lowering Of Teacher Standards

Unless the State Board of Education repeals its September 26 decision to lower entry requirements for new teachers, the 36,000-member Maryland State Teachers Association says it will seek an order from the Circuit Court to block its execution, according to a formal notice delivered to the board Monday.

"This new regulation of the state board licenses unqualified persons to teach our children. It overturns the recommendation of its own Professional Standards Advisory Board and provides a graphic example of why the standards board should be made autonomous and independent of the politicians," said MSTA President Jane R. Stern.

MSTA charges the board with violation of the open meetings law, which requires advance notice of actions to be taken. The regulation adopted by the board contradicts the meeting notice, she said.

"We could have alerted parents and teachers to appear and voice their disapproval of this fraud on the public if the board had given notice of its intent," the association president declared.

The following is quoted from Stern's letter to the state board:

"The new 'resident teacher certificate' is not simply another alternative certificate in addition to the six alternatives already in existence. It amounts to the destruction of teacher certification in Maryland.

"To become a teacher under the new regulation, a college graduate would not have to take any university course work in pedagogy but merely complete the equivalent of two courses offered by a school district. After one year of teaching, the person would receive a standard credential without having to take the university course work required of all other Maryland teachers.

"It's like licensing college graduates to perform surgery without taking the course in medicine.

"This badly drafted regulation would also allow anybody, even a student, to supervise a new teacher since it sets no standards for mentors.

"We used to be more honest and call such hiring practices 'emergency certificates.' This new regulation makes an emergency in Baltimore City the standard for the state.

"I predict that parents and business leaders throughout Maryland will resist the hiring of teachers with 'funny certificates' for children in their schools.

"States committed to school reform seek to raise, not lower, standards for teachers of their children. We call your attention to California where teacher candidates are required to obtain a bachelor's degree in the liberal arts and complete a fifth year of university course work in pedagogy and practice teaching. Maryland should not take the path of least resistance and undermine further the standards required in this state.

"We hope you reconsider your rash decision and repeal this destructive piece of regulation."

Farming In Maryland ..... Bernice Kepple, Farm Editor

Carl Bender Farm Is Recognized At Soil Conservation District Dinner

The Garrett Soil Conservation District held its Fifth Annual Cooperators' dinner Thursday, September 20, at the Bittinger Fire Hall. The highlight of the evening was the announcement that Carl and Martha Bender were the recipients of the Outstanding Conservation Award presented each year by the District.

George Bishoff, District Board of Supervisors chairman, welcomed those attending and thanked them for their practice of conservation to improve the soil and water and for "taking such good care of the land for future generations."

Garrett Soil Conservation District Manager Shaun Sanders took the floor to explain why the Soil Conservation District sponsored a dinner each year. "With increasing attention being focused on the environment, air quality, water quality, and groundwater," he said, "it is becoming critical that agriculture and farmers put their best foot forward and demonstrate that not all farming operations degrade the environment."

Sanders went on to say that the public needs to be made aware that many, if not most, farmers are good stewards and do practice good stewardship of the land — and they do it voluntarily. "Too often the bad or negative side of issues is highly publicized out of proportion, and this leads to public demand that laws and regulations be passed to 'correct' the perceived 'problem' " Sanders said.

In an effort to offset this negative publicity, the District tries to recognize the "good guys," the landowners and users who install and follow sound conservation practices. "By selecting what we call an 'Outstanding Cooperator' and sponsoring this dinner, we help to publicize the fact that farm operations, like the Benders, help to feed and/or clothe the nation with little or no harm to the environment," Sanders explained.

The Benders were then introduced and Chairman Bishoff presented them with a plaque and farm sign. Sanders then gave a slide presentation of the Bender farm and a summary of the conservation practices observed by the Benders.

Carl and Martha own and operate Oakview Ridge Farms, approximately 260 acres of tillable land, five acres of pasture and 25 acres of woods. In addition they rent another 115 acres, including 25 acres of pasture. The family raises 90 acres of corn, 55 acres of oats and mixed hay and alfalfa. About 100 Holsteins are milked on the Bender farm and they raise approximately 115 replacement heifers.

The grade herd which the Benders purchased along with the farm has been replaced during a period of 14 years by an all-registered herd of Holsteins which includes a number of animals classified "excellent" and "very good." In 1988, they received their first "Best Bred & Owned Five-Year-Old Cow Award" at the Eastern National Show. This same cow was also nominated for the All American Award. In 1986, the Benders were the recipient of "Pennsylvania Farmer" magazine's "Master Farmer Award."

Carl and Martha's family includes Lillian, who helps out weekends on the farm; Richard, who is married and works for Beitzel Welding as well as helping on the farm; Kenton and Dennis, who both work on the farm; and Janelle, who is a fourth grade student at Accident Elementary School. They are all involved in many church-related and community organizations, and local and state Holstein functions. Carl is also a state director for the Maryland Holstein Association.

District Manager Sanders said the Benders' overall farming operation is a good example of "proper stewardship." The farm incorporates about 145 acres of contour stripcropping, and the Benders have installed 1,250 feet of waterway with a sediment control basin.

"Not only does it require a commitment to install conservation practices, but it also requires a commitment to follow and maintain these practices throughout the years," Sanders concluded.

The evening's guest speaker was Donald Spickler, director of the National Association of Conservation Districts. Spickler opened by saying that environmentalists often point toward farmers and agriculture as a cause of many environmental problems. He said, however, that farmers have been the only ones to say, "Yes, we are part of the problem, and we will be part of the solution."

Spickler continued: "We who raise food and fiber are the reason for the good standard of living in this country today. Environmentalism means that people are living better. I firmly believe that if Soil Conservation Districts had not been established and farmers were not taking care of the land, we would not be enjoying this good standard of living."

Spickler said it has been 10 years since the first Chesapeake Bay initiatives, and asked, "How far have we come?" He said that with the country facing a budget crunch at the state and federal levels, farmers are the only group who have said "we'll be part of the solution," and have remained committed to that. "We are aware of our liability," he said. "If we pollute a stream, the liability is ours. Agriculture will be under increasing pressure to meet environmental responsibilities as time goes on," says Spickler.

Spickler said that he is one of only two farmers (the other is Maryland Agriculture Secretary Wayne Cawley) on the 33-member Governor's Committee on Growth. The group has been commissioned by Governor William Donald Schaefer to determine how to deal with growth in the state between now and the year 2020. The outcome of this committee and the governor's package will have a significant impact on agriculture, he says.

"It will impact private property rights, land equity, our ability to farm and what effect noise, smell, dust, and pesticides have on our neighbors," Spickler said, and added that the issue will come to the General Assembly and advised farmers to be watching.

"Agriculture is so very diverse that what helps one farmer hurts another," Spickler said. "We need to work together so folks know about agriculture — what we're doing, how we're doing it, and its impact on society."

He advised those present to become involved in politics — to be a part of the political process.

He asked farmers to take a critical look at their operation. "See what you need to improve," he said, "and call your District office for help to get it done. Do this to keep the soil conservation program voluntary. Ponder where you'll be in the next 10 years. Take pride in your achievements. It's not sinful to have pride."

He ended by urging farmers again to ponder their farmstead and the environment. "This decade will be the decade of the environment. Decide what you can do to help and be assured that now is the time to do it."

The supervisers, from left to right above, are: Claude Wagner Jr., treasurer; Harley Brenneman, regular member; Harry Hummel, vice chairman; Brooks Hamilton, associate member; George Bishoff, chairman; and Dave Thomas, assistant treasurer. Maryland Ag Education Foundation To Hold Second Annual Dinner

The Maryland Agricultural Education Foundation, Inc. (MAEF) will be holding its second annual fund raising dinner on November 1, at 6:30 p.m. at Martin's West in Baltimore County.

Maryland Governor William Donald Schaefer requested that a Foundation be established to coordinate both public/private sector cooperation to improve "Agricultural Education in the Classroom." Wayne A. Cawley Jr., Maryland Secretary of Agriculture, responded to the governor's request by forming the "Maryland Agricultural Education Foundation." This foundation is composed of individuals representing a myriad of interests within the agricultural industry.

Foundation President Vaughn F. Bradley, an executive of the Baltimore Gas and Electric Company, will discuss at the dinner present accomplishments and future plans for the Foundation. The goals of MAEF are to provide financial assistance for teaching agricultural education at all levels, to integrate agricultural education into the curriculum, and to provide training programs and textbook review for teachers. MASEF's first year included a week-long workshop for teachers from across the state, and it is the intention of the foundation to make the coming years as exciting.

The cost of the dinner will be $50 a plate. For further information, those interested may contact Bonnie Werner at 301-752-6660, extension 41.

Bureau Outlines Stance On Key Farm Bill Items

The 1990 farm bill must provide price competitiveness for wheat and feed grains, the American Farm Bureau Federation has told key lawmakers.

Neither House nor Senate versions meets that test, according to AFBF President Dean Kleckner, who said loan rates are the "first and foremost" of Farm Bureau's concerns.

"A reaffirmation of the 1985 farm bill loan rate formulas would assure the competitiveness that we desire at a cost that we can afford," said Kleckner in a letter to members of the House and Senate Agriculture Committees. Loan rates, he said, should be set at 75-85 percent of the five-year average price. Kleckner also said the USDA secretary should have the authority to adjust loan rates an additional amount to assure domestic and international competitiveness.

A House-Senate conference on the farm bill could begin this week. On Friday, the administration outlined its major priorities and concerns in its so-called "red book."

"Farm Bureau," said Kleckner, "generally agrees with USDA's broad objective of assuring that the 1990 farm bill builds upon the success of the 1985 farm bill rather than moving agriculture back toward uncompetitive and restrictive policies."

Kleckner said Farm Bureau agrees with USDA on providing more competitive loan rates for wheat and feed grains, giving USDA more discretion in implementing crop programs, opposing the details of the bills' organic labeling standards and the need to eliminate many of the overlapping programs for conservation and water quality contained in the bills.

The AFBF board of directors adopted several 1990 farm bill priority items last month, saying the final bill should provide more planting flexibility and set target prices no lower than those for the 1990 crop year. The board also said Farm Bureau opposes additional payment limitations provisions or attempts to target program payments and restrict payment eligibility.

Kleckner said Farm Bureau was concerned about the inclusion of several water quality programs in both bills, and would support "limiting the number of programs to a single water quality initiative with modest acreage goals." For the conservation reserve program, Kleckner said Farm Bureau favors limiting it to 45 million acres.

Also, Farm Bureau strongly opposes the Senate requirement that conservation reserve program land returning to agricultural production meet a strict "T" value erosion standard, Kleckner said.

On other items, Farm Bureau backs the Senate provisions on dairy, sugar and pesticide recordkeeping. Kleckner said the recordkeeping provision should spell out "that the state pesticide regulatory agency is the sole agency with direct access to farmer records."

Wetlands Issue Main Topic Of MASCD Conference Held At Wisp

by Kathleen Diehl
MASCD Public Affairs Specialist

The non-tidal wetlands issue has been a topic of debate in many meetings throughout Maryland this summer and the recently held Maryland Association of Soil Conservation Districts (MASCD) annual summer meeting, at Wisp Resort, McHenry, was no exception. Members of soil conservation districts from across the state identified 20 major issues regarding non-tidal wetlands that are of concern to farmers. This was done in an effort to help guide the five federal agencies involved in wetland determination with their response to wetland protection regulations. The MASCD members — of which many are farmers themselves — represent every county in Maryland and the District of Columbia, and are knowledgeable of wetland regulation programs due to their association with soil conservation districts.

In the opening session, Phil Christensen, Maryland State Conservationist from U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service, and Tom Filip, Assistant Chief of the Army Corps of Engineers regulatory branch in Baltimore, fielded wetlands concerns from the audience. Twenty concerns were generated and posted and 46 members of MASCD, with wetlands on their property, voted on the issues that had a priority concern for them as landowners.

A majority of MASCD members agreed that not all wetlands are created equal. They voted that the functional as well as the economic values should be considered in wetlands decisionmaking. They said inconsistencies among too many federal, state and local agencies diluted the Soil Concervation District's authority to effectively advise property owners about wetlands. The concerns generated by MASCD members was then carried by Filip to the next federal wetlands meeting in Philadelphia.

The Soil Conservation District members also seriously considered expanding the existing Resource Conservation and Development (RC&D) program into all counties in Maryland. At present, there are two RC&D councils in the state: one in the Southern counties — St. Mary's, Charles, and Calvert, and the second that covers the entire Eastern Shore.

The RC&D program, offered through USDA's Soil Conservation Service, was established in 1962 with the purpose of developing, improving, and conserving natural resources and also providing employment and other economic opportunities to local communities. Each RC&D Council receives some federal monies, but a majority of the funds are generated within the community for such projects as roadside stabilization, school ground stabilization, recycling plants, and other projects needed by

Over One-Third Of Corn Grain Acreage Harvested

By September 30, 38 percent of Maryland's corn for grain acreage was harvested, ahead of last year's 24 percent, but behind the five-year average of 41 percent.

An average of 5.7 days was suitable for fieldwork during this week according to the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service. Across the State, no topsoil was very short of moisture, five percent was short of moisture, 95 percent was adequate, and none was surplus. Subsoil moisture ended the week as follows: none very short, five percent short, 95 percent was adequate, and none was surplus. Subsoil moisture ended the week as follows: none very short, five percent short, 95 percent adequate, and none surplus. Field corn and pasture were in good condition across the State. Soybeans and apples were in fair to good condition and hay supplies were adequate.

WEATHER

Maryland weather for the week ending September 28 was cool with varying amounts of precipitation. Precipitation averaged 0.56 inch, ranging from 0.11 inch at Smithsburg to 1.08 inch at Cumberland. Western and North Central Maryland averaged 0.65 inch and 0.62 inch, respectively. Southern Maryland west of the Bay and Eastern Shore averaged 0.37 inch and 0.55 inch, respectively.

The temperature averaged 61.2 degrees, 3.7 degrees below the normal of 64.9 degrees for September 22-28. Minimum temperatures were in the low to mid 40's in Western and North Central Maryland, and in the high 40's to low 50's in Southern Maryland west of the Bay and on the Eastern Shore. Maximum temperatures were mostly in the mid 70's to low 80's except in extreme western Maryland where maximums reached the mid 60's.

Farmers' Foundation Offers Scholarship

The Farmers' Foundation was founded in 1988 to assist in the educational and personal development of the children of America's farmers and to help promote a positive image of farming in America. This year, the Foundation will award twenty $1,000 scholarships to high school seniors graduating in 1991. These are one-year scholarships granted to the school of the student's choice.

To be eligible for these scholarships: the student must have (1) a cumulative grade point average of 3.0 or above; (2) parents or guardians who derive two-thirds of their gross income from a farming source; and (3) student must demonstrate financial need.

To be considered, all applications and required supporting information MUST be received no later than Friday, November 9. Applications received after that date will not be considered. Selections will be made by March 30, 1991. Due to the large number of applications, the Foundation will only be contacting those students who are selected.

Application forms are available at the vo-ag departments and guidance offices of both Northern and Southern High Schools and the Garrett County Extension Office, Oakland. Those with questions regarding the application process should contact Lorie Korber, executive director, The Farmers' Foundation, P.O. Box 695, Alliance, Nebraska 69301-0695 or call (308) 762-8714.

Secretary Cawley Reminds Farmers To Be Careful

Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Wayne A. Cawley Jr. reminds all farmers during this harvest season to take extra precautions to reduce the risks of farm accidents.

"Those of us engaged in agricultural production face high risks of occupational injury. But with a little care, we can prevent many injuries and deaths caused by farm-related accidents. I urge all farm families to take the lead in establishing and maintaining safe farm practices," Cawley said.

According to national statistics, agriculture continues to lead all industries in work-related accidents nationwide.

"Quite often a little common sense can prevent serious mishaps. For example, most farm equipment accidents can be prevented by taking time to review safety precautions in the operator's manual. In addition, it is important to keep all children and the elderly away from hazardous machines," said Cawley.

"Please be careful. Know your physical limitations. And know your machinery's limitations," Cawley said.

Maryland Private Pesticide Applicators License Training Test Date

I will be offering training in preparation for the pesticide test on November 5, 1990 from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. and repeat in the evening from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. The test will be given by MDA on November 15, at 7:30 p.m. Everything will be conducted at the Extension Office, 202 S. Third Street. Reservations are necessary for training and the test. If you do not have the study manuals, call my office at 334-1990.

Condition of Field Corn

I have been checking on the condition of corn throughout the county and find that more corn than I expected is rapidly approaching the harvest stage for high-moisture corn. Likewise, a lot of the corn is ready to put in the silo as silage. Check your corn for moisture either by a moisture tester or using the microwave method. If you want, bring 5-6 ears, randomly selected, to my office and I'll check for you.

Keep Newly Bought Stocker Calves Alive

There will be many weaned calves trading hands in October and November. Most of these calves will be backgrounded on farms to either be sold in the spring or next summer or early fall. One of the main keys to profit is keeping these newly purchased calves alive. If you are purchasing calves, be sure you are ready and the following points may be helpful. Move newly purchased calves from the stockyard quickly. Don't crowd them on trucks. Use covered trucks or trailers where possible in moving them back to the farm. Handle these babies gently and quickly. Once at the farm, segregate them in fairly small groups. When these calves arrive at the farm, fill them with top quality hay. Then, let them go to clean fresh water and keep water before them at all times. Close surveillance of these newly weaned calves is imperative. They need to be looked at early in the morning, at mid-day and late in the evening for at least the first three weeks. If calves are going to pasture, keep them confined for five to seven days before turning them out into small pastures. Own and use a thermometer. Digital thermometers today are cheap and very efficient in detecting abnormal temperatures. Treat sick calves early. Use a definite treatment regime of antibiotics. Consult with your veterinarian and lay this plan out before you start. There are several inoculations that calves should get and many successful operators work calves and give all of these inoculations off the truck when they first arrive at the farm. Others declare that they do better by waiting three weeks. In any event, they need to get inoculations for 7-way clostridial, IBR, P13, BRSV (perhaps BVD), Vitamin A&D and Selenium. In most instances, they should be implanted and they definitely should be dewormed.

A-B Jazz Band Concert Set At Blackwater Falls

The Alderson-Broaddus College Jazz Band will be performing at Blackwater Falls this Saturday, Oct. 6, at 1:30 p.m. in the State Park Lodge.

The 23-piece jazz ensemble, under the direction of Don Hamilton, associate professor of music at Alderson-Broaddus, performs a variety of jazz music from the "big band" sounds of the 1940's, up to the contemporary sounds of today.

The ensemble performs several programs on the campus of Alderson-Broaddus as well as touring throughout West Virginia and surrounding states. The band has become a regular feature at the West Virginia Jazz Festival each year and plans at least one "major" tour about every three to four years.

All students at the College, regardless of their academic majors, are encouraged to participate in one or more of the several music groups. These performing groups represent the College throughout the United States and were created to enable the young people to continue their high school and church musical training.

There is no admission charge for this concert.

"GET OUT ALIVE" WEEK — Ken McKenzie, vice-president of operations for APB III, owner of the Oakland McDonald's Restaurant, accepts a certificate of appreciation in recognition of the McDonald's national fire safety "Plan to Get Out Alive" program from Oakland Mayor Asa McCain, pictured right. The Oakland city council proclaimed October 7-13 as "Get Out Alive" Week in conjunction with National Fire Prevention Week.

"Get Out Alive" Week Proclaimed

In conjunction with National Fire Prevention Week, October 7-13, McDonald's Restaurants are sponsoring a nationwide "Plan to Get Out Alive" program, which stresses informing the public, especially children, on the dangers of fire and what to do in case of a fire emergency. Recognizing the importance of fire prevention education, the Oakland City Council has proclaimed October 7-13 "Plan to Get Out Alive" week.

"More than 60,000 people will be killed or injured in home fires this year because they, like most Americans, don't know what a real fire is like until it's too late; a real fire is a pitch-black nightmare that can trap you in seconds," stated a McDonald's spokesman.

According to national statistics over 82 percent of all fires occur in the home, and 50 percent of deaths related to those fires are children ages 13 and younger. Every family member should know two escape routes from every room. Families should also decide on a place outside where they can meet to be sure everyone has escaped safely. Families should regularly practice a home fire drill.

Free "Plan to Get Out Alive" pamphlets describing facts about fire and what to do in a fire are available at all local McDonald's restaurants.

GCC President To Speak At Frostburg State

Dr. Stephen J. Herman, president of Garrett Community College, will visit Frostburg State University on Monday, October 15, to speak on the topic of "Devotion, Vows and Abiding Love."

His talk, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in Room 140, Lane Center, is sponsored by the FSU Philosophy Club, Department of Philosophy and the Modern Humanities Program.

"Devotion and vows were once thought to be indispensable accompaniments of love relationships," Herman said. "Now they have been regulated in some circles to superfluities."

Dr. Herman says these changes are proceeding almost imperceptibly without careful reflection on whether the changes are beneficial or self-defeating, and he hopes his analysis "will offer some prudential counsel to would-be lovers."

President Herman holds M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in philosophy from the University of Massachusetts.

Postmaster Notes Holiday Overseas Mailing Deadlines

With the first overseas mailing deadlines fast approaching, Field Division General Manager/Postmaster James A. McDougald is asking postal customers for a little extra help this year in making sure that holiday mail sent to military and international destinations arrives on time.

"We would like you to mail well before the overseas holiday deadlines this year to give us extra time to arrange transportation," McDougald said.

"Equipping Desert Shield has required an enormous effort on the part of U.S. air and shipping transportation," he said. "Last-minute overseas mailing will add an even greater burden. Mailing early will give us extra time to arrange transportation, and the leeway will be especially welcome this year."

The Postal Service issues holiday mailing deadlines every year for letters and parcels headed overseas.

October 1, this year's earliest deadline, applies to regular surface mail going to the most distant destinations. Surface mail is the least expensive international service available for mailing to civilians.

Surface and air mailing deadlines for military personnel stationed abroad generally range from mid-October through November, according to McDougald.

"We work in cooperation with the armed services to make sure that all mail arrives on time," says McDougald. "Mail and morale go hand in hand, but this is especially true during the holidays.

"This year, we would really appreciate receiving mail for service men and women a week or more in advance of the deadline, to give us extra time to arrange transportation."

McDougald adds that all military personnel stationed abroad will benefit from early mailing, not just those in the Middle East. He encourages mailers to call the post office about various countries' mailing restrictions and customs requirements. In Maryland persons should call (301) 347-4340.

For mail sent to U.S. addresses, there is no deadline, but McDougald recommends getting cards and parcels on their way early in December. "Mailing early offers a hedge against delays caused when winter storms halt air or ground traffic," says McDougald, adding, "besides, it gives people more time to appreciate your expressions of friendship and affection."

Potomac Edison Employees Join Recycling Effort

Potomac Edison employees are helping to protect the environment by participating in a newly established recycling program at the company's Oakland office.

According to Lanny Dillon, area superintendent, the recycling program began on October 1 with employees sorting white, high-grade office and computer paper and aluminum cans into designated bins in their work areas. The materials are then delivered to recycling firms for reuse.

"Potomac Edison's employees make this program work," Dillon said. "Employees realize that by sorting materials as they are discarded, they are not only helping to reduce input into area landfills, but are also working toward a cleaner, healthier environment in the future."

Dillon said employees were educated well in advance of the start of the program on which types of paper are and are not recyclable. They also had the reassurance that a similar program in Potomac Edison's Hagerstown offices had already been highly successful, with 35,253 pounds of paper recycled since its start in March 1990.

"Funds received after initial expenses from recycling of these materials will be allocated to the Oakland Area Employees' Association, which sponsors a number of employee and community functions throughout the year," added Dillon. "Employees benefit from their active involvement in the program in many ways."

Although the recycling of paper is relatively new for employees, Dillon said the company has been active in recycling other products for many years. Batteries, copper, steel, aluminum, and used oils are among those items that can and have been successfully recycled at PE in the past.

PE RECYCLING — Potomac Edison employees Carol Canan, meter reader, and Lanny Dillon, area superintendent, display bins to be used as part of the company's recycling program which started Oct. 1.

Last year, the company began recycling used non-PCB dielectric oil, with 50,215 gallons of this transformer oil being recycled and used at the company's R. Paul Smith Station in Williamsport. Cardboard and newspapers are also recycled at the company's general office in Hagerstown.

specific communities for economic and/or stabilization purposes.

There were several resolutions considered at the MASCD meeting. The most controversial was over an alternative source of funding for the district's soil and water conservation programs on private and public lands. This resolution would involve a legislative revision to the Maryland Program Open Space law. Even though the resolution passed, it was decided that a committee be convened to develop a process on how the money will be administered and distributed if the legislation is favorable.

Another resolution supported recycling of household wastes in an effort to reduce the loss of agricultural lands to new landfills.

The Maryland Soil Conservation Districts will no longer seek to review and approve sediment and erosion control plans on State and Federal projects because of an improved working relationship with the Maryland Department of the Environment and the improved efforts of the State Highway Administration to adhere to Sediment and Erosion Control Standards and Specifications. The only exception to this, by state law, would be with the Severn River Watershed.

Other resolutions involved speeding up the process of establishing stream crossings and water rams; speeding up the process of application, review and claim for payment in the Maryland Agriculture Cost-Share Program to increase participation in the program; and requiring the state of Maryland to perform technically adequate before and after monitoring of water temperature in farm ponds and bypass ponds.

In an awards ceremony on the last evening of the meeting, Maynard G. Grossnickle, of Frederick Soil Conservation District, was given Maryland's National Endowment Award. Mr. Grossnickle farms a 260 acre dairy operation and has implemented several conservation practices on his farm including an agricultural waste storage area, cover crops and crop rotation measures.

The Goodyear Grand Award Districts went to Montgomery and St. Mary's Soil Conservation Districts. Honor Districts were awarded to Howard and Washington County Soil Conservation Districts. Alexander Steward of St. Mary's Soil Conservation District was awarded a new Goodyear Award; Distinguished Service in support of an outstanding district.

An outstanding leadership award was given to George Lechlider of the Montgomery Soil Conservation District and a special achievement award was earned by Douglas H. Scott. David W. Thomas of Garrett Soil Conservation District was awarded outstanding leadership by a new supervisor.

William B. King and Steven E. Darcey of Prince George's Soil Conservation District was awarded special achievement in Critical Areas Leadership. An outstanding employee award was given to John R. Robertson of Howard Soil Conservation District. James Brewer of the Dorchester Soil Conservation District was awarded outstanding contribution for his work, especially with wetlands.

In Anne Arundel Soil Conservation District, Richard and Mary Smith were awarded outstanding cooperators. The most active district was awarded to Catoctin Soil Conservation District. President of the Maryland Association of Conservation Districts awarded his "president's award" to Arnold Hawkins.

Four Maryland teachers were recognized with awards at the meeting: Conservation Teacher of the Year was given to Cecil County High School teacher Richard Carrion. Second place went to Carroll Shry of Frederick County. Leora L. Caporalett of Howard County won first place in the middle school contest and at the elementary level. Carol M. Sleeper of Dorchester County won first place.

Conservation districts, created in the 1930's when the dust bowl was a national crisis, are unique units of local governments. They utilize state, federal and private sector resources to solve many of today's conservation problems, ranging from water quality to flood control to wildlife shelter and beyond. Each district is guided by an appointed governing board of local district officials who give of their time and talents voluntarily. They serve as the bridge between federal and state resource management agencies and property owners, working closely with school teachers, local government and business leaders, and anyone interested in conservation programs.

As general retail customers, we are all familiar with periodic special "SALES." Our "RED TAG SALE" is a national promotional event sponsored by the Better Homes & Gardens Real Estate Service to assist home buyers and sellers in achieving their goals in all areas of the country.

For a limited period of time, from October 6-15, some of our sellers have reduced the prices of their homes or properties to assist us in this national promotion. It is a limited time price reduction and will end on October 15. To make it even easier for home buyers to make their decisions, the homes pictured in this ad will be participating in an OPEN HOUSE on Sunday, October 7, from 2:00-4:00 p.m.

Overall, we are pleased to report that the 1990 sales year is still good in Garrett County. You may have seen the recent news releases concerning the building permit rate increase in Garrett County having been the highest in the state of Maryland. Our Oakland area residential sales have seen a 6.5% increase in average selling price over the past two years, and an 18% increase in the number of transactions so far in 1990. At Deep Creek Lake, new condominium/townhouse inventories are decreasing weekly, spurring additional construction starts.

Our "RED TAG SALE" is really an opportunity — an opportunity for all buyers to purchase their dream homes at reduced prices (and an opportunity to learn about new home financing programs available in Garrett County).

At A&A Realty/Better Homes & Gardens, we sincerely thank our sellers for giving us the opportunity to participate in this national event and for giving local buyers the opportunity to take advantage of limited time price reductions.

Oakland VFD To Sponsor Parade And Oktoberfest

The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department will open Garrett County's 23rd Annual Autumn Glory Festival by hosting a variety of events on Thursday, October 11, in downtown Oakland.

The first event on the Autumn Glory agenda will be the annual Oktoberfest meal at the Oakland Fire Hall on Third Street, featuring German-style food and drink. Advance tickets for the dinner will be on sale at noon at the fire hall, and the meal will be served from 4 p.m. until 7:30 p.m.

The Firemen's Parade at 7 p.m. will feature bands, drill teams, fire equipment, antique fire apparatus and rescue apparatus from the surrounding area. Participating departments are judged in several categories. This event invites firemen from Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and the surrounding areas to join the parade. Prior to the parade, apparatus judging will be held at the Farmers' Market parking lot on Route 219 north of Oakland from 5:30 p.m. until parade time.

Wrapping up this evening of entertainment will be the annual Oktoberfest Celebration at the fire hall immediately following the parade. The celebration includes "fun for the whole family" with German-style food, drink, and a live "Oompah" band, conducted by Maestro Manning Smith. The Fireman of the Year Award and the Training Award will be presented at this time by the Garrett County Firemen's Association. There is no admission charge.

Third Street will be blocked off during the parade and Oktoberfest, allowing the crowd to spill out into the street for dancing and socializing.

For more information on this event or a free festival brochure, persons may contact Festival Headquarters, Deep Creek Lake-Garrett County Promotion Council, Courthouse, Oakland, MD 21550, telephone (301) 334-1948.

Miss Maryland Kim Grimm To Serve As Parade Marshal

Miss Kimberly Ann Grimm, a resident of Mtn. Lake Park and the reigning Miss Maryland 1990, will be the Grand Marshal of the 23rd Annual Autumn Glory Festival Grand Feature Parade, which will be held at 1 p.m., Saturday, October 13, in downtown Oakland.

Miss Grimm recently returned from competing in Atlantic City, N.J., for the title of Miss America 1991. A daughter of Francis and Rita Grimm, she is a 1987 graduate of Southern High School and a 1969 graduate of Allegany Community College, with an associate of arts degree in computer science. She is currently employed by A&A Realty/Better Homes and Gardens, but will continue her education at Frostburg State University in January 1991.

After winning the Miss Maryland title in June 1990, Kimberly moved to Bel Air to prepare for the Miss America Pageant. She won over $10,000 in scholarships. She has a full year of personal appearances, including being featured with Miss Maryland Troupe, giving motivational speeches, and being a guest of Governor Wm. Donald Schaefer at the State House. Who needs mortgage approval anxiety?

So very much hinges on the approval of a mortgage loan application. One family is wondering whether its new dream home will be possible. Another family might be awaiting the answer so it can buy the vacated home. And the realtor is anxious to "tie down the deal."

There's lots of anxiety. Certainly a lengthy wait for approval of the mortgage application should not be a factor.

The folks at Garrett National Bank are keenly aware of the need for fast turnaround. When you deal with Garrett National, you will find our service to be better and quicker because we're true experts at processing mortgage loans.

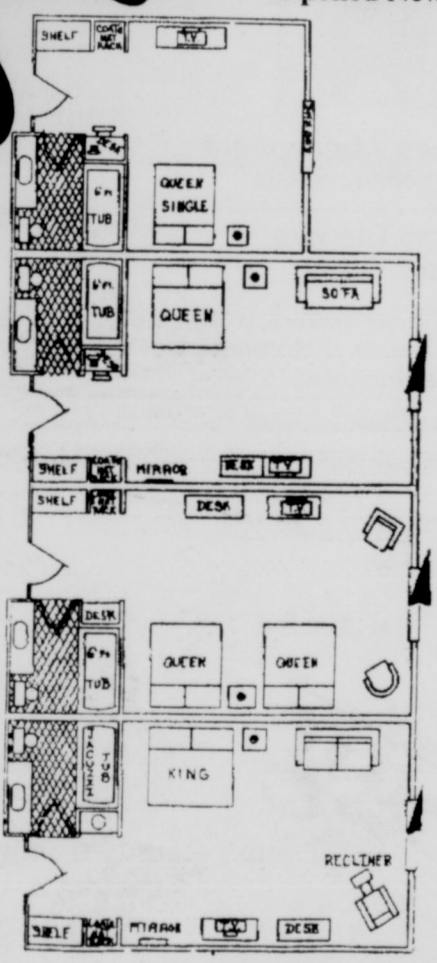

But fast processing is only half our story. Garrett National also has a commitment to a great combination of low rates and flexible terms. Both fixed and variable rates are available. Payback? Ten years, 15 years, 20 years. Other terms can be arranged. And we're committed to a low point schedule.

When important home-buying decisions are being made, it's in everyone's best interest to seek out the best deal. We feel both the best deal and best service will be found at Garrett National Bank. Visit any of our 10 convenient offices today and find out for yourself.

Road Closures, Detours For Autumn Glory Noted

The Autumn Glory Festival Committee reports that, because of potential traffic and safety hazards in recent years, the Maryland State Highway Administration has recommended policy for the 23rd Annual Autumn Glory Festival. The adjacent map of Oakland indicates road closings on Saturday, October 13.

As has been customary with previous Autumn Glory Festivals, some roads will be closed for the parade; however, the festival committee requests that local residents please note that at 7 a.m. on Saturday, October 13, the streets will be closed for vendors to set up in three locations: Second Street between Alder Street and the Railroad tracks; Green Street between Third Street and Second Street; and Liberty Street between Second Street and Wilson Street.

At 11 a.m. on Saturday, October 13, all southbound traffic on U.S. Route 219 will be routed through Oakland via Fourth Street, and trucks will be routed by Oakland via Sand Flat Road. Beginning at 11 a.m., Route 219 will be open only to permit holders and all traffic will be southbound only. No parking will be allowed along Fourth Street or on Memorial Drive from Route 219 to Eighth Street. Roads will be closed in several more locations at 11 a.m. U.S. Route 219 between Fourth Street and Oak Street; Memorial Drive between Third Street and Fourth Street; and Pennington, Crook and Omar Streets on both sides of Third Street.

Center Street will be open for cross-town traffic only until 1 p.m. Signs advising travelers of the detour will be provided by the Maryland State Highway Administration, and personnel helping travelers at closed roads will be provided by Maryland State

It's the answer you've been hunting and fishing for.

SUZUKI

"AMBITIOUS, ENERGETIC AND VISIONARY," is how Dr. Alta E. Schrock was described as she was honored last night as the 1990 Honorary Golden Ambassador at the twenty-third annual Autumn Glory Kick-Off Reception. She was introduced by Lynn Beckman, 1987 winner of the award, as a "bridge builder who builds real bridges that bring people and causes together." Dr. Schrock, at age 79, is still energetically working to help her fellow men and women. Shown above, left to right, are Robert Rudy, 1986 Honorary Golden Ambassador; Dr. Schrock; Helmuth Heise, 1989 Honorary Golden Ambassador; Lynn Beckman, and Diane Wolfe, director of the Deep Creek Lake/Garrett County Promotion Council.

Investigation Of Waste Facilities Is Reported

Recent calls to the Maryland Attorney General's Office yielded further questions concerning the validity of information received by The Republican newspaper that an investigation is currently underway into an allegation that criminal activity and negligence have occurred at one or more waste treatment facilities in Garrett County.

When questioned about the allegations, Assistant Attorney General Howard Nicholson stated, "A search warrant has been executed at the Deep Creek Lake wastewater treatment plant."

Also questioned was Paul Stancill, a member of the Environmental Crimes Unit of the Attorney General's office, who stated, "I cannot comment on the details of my investigation."

One source reported that large sewage spills have been occurring in the county and, in one case, approximately 30,000 gallons of sewage leaked from a treatment facility in one day.

The same source also reported that sewage is spilling into the Youghiogheny River above the source of Friendsville's drinking water.

When asked to comment on the investigation, Garrett County Sanitary Commission Director Wendell Beitzel stated, "I

THE AMBASSADOR AND THE QUEEN are pictured above shortly after Dr. Alta E. Schrock, shown far left, was honored as Garrett County's Honorary Goldern Ambassador during the Autumn Glory Kick-Off Reception held last night at the Wisp Resort in McHenry. Dr. Schrock, in turn, crowned Jennifer Dawn Thorn as the twenty-third annual Autumn Glory Queen. Jennifer, a senior at Southern High School, is shown with her escort Nate Emory, Oakland. The 1987 Honorary Golden Ambassador Lynn Beckman stated that it was especially appropriate that Jennifer was crowned queen of the festival since her 17th birthday will occur Saturday, the day of the parade. Jennifer is the daughter of Don and Carolyn Thorn, who reside near Mtn. Lake Park.

Honorary Golden Ambassador Is Always "Two Dreams Ahead"

by Sherry Frantz

Dr. Alta E. Schrock has been described as a person who is always "two dreams ahead," and just a glance at the page after page of her accomplishments is evidence enough that a great lady's life lies before one's eyes.

But at age 79, Dr. Schrock, winner of the 1990 Honorary Golden Ambassador Award, can hardly be known or truly appreciated by a mere listing of her endeavors and accomplishments, for it is difficult to document the impact this woman has had on her fellow men and women.

At the twenty-third annual Autumn Glory Kick-off Reception held last night, the 1987 Golden Ambassador Lynn Beckman introduced Dr. Schrock and presented her with the award, stating, "She is an ambitious, energetic and visionary woman, and the phrase that best describes her is as a bridge builder."

Her bridges, he said, are "real bridges that work to bring people and causes together."

Beckman continued, "She has built important bridges that lead to the past, to our grassroots, to the heart of our culture. She has built bridges of faith and witness, bridges of humanitarianism, bridges of preservation, bridges of learning and education, and of economic and cultural enhancements."

"She has led an exemplary life in resourcefulness and in being cognizant of the strengths of her environmental resources," he added.

Dr. Alta Schrock, the first woman to have been chosen for the Golden Ambassador Award, as well as the northern-most

Plan To Replace Glendale Bridge On Existing Alignment Approved

The replacement of the Glendale Bridge using the existing center pier and the current alignment was officially approved this week by the Garrett County Board of Commissioners, according to Commissioner Ernest J. Gregg Jr., who stated that the new beginning date for construction would be on or about Labor Day 1991 and would see a completion date of Memorial Day 1992.

"At the request of citizens not content with the bridge project," Gregg stated, "we contacted the Maryland Department of Transportation in an effort to determine if additional funds would be available to build the bridge on a parallel alignment, and they are standing pat on their original proposal."

Gregg explained that the original proposal included an offer of financial assistance, which has already been appropriated. He indicated that Maryland Transportation Secretary Richard Trainor "adamently stated" that no additional funding is available, and that if the county would choose to use the alternate bridge alignment plan, the fiscal responsibility would fall totally on the Garrett County government.

Gregg further noted that the additional amount needed to construct the bridge in a parallel manner has now been estimated to be in the area of $2 million. (The original estimate was $1.6 million.) That, he said, amounts to an approximate 40 cents being added to the existing county tax rate in one year.

He also stated that the existing piers have recently been ruled, "without question," safe and usable for approximately 100 years.

Commissioner Elwood L. Groves II added that the piers have been evaluated and "deemed responsible" by two engineering firms, one of which is the major engineer on the project. "His entire career and credibility are on the line with that judgment," he said.

Groves then stated, "I think it's important to realize that this board looked long and hard at various alternatives. We realize that a significant amount of inconvenience is going to fall on people who use the

Several Arrested On CDS Charges By Garrett County Sheriff Deputies

Two local men were arrested by the Garrett County Sheriff's Department on Tuesday for possession of a controlled dangerous substance (CDS) after the vehicle they were traveling in was stopped for a safety violation.

Vaughn V. Winters, 38, Oakland, and Franklin P. Polce, 22, Mountain Lake Park, were arrested on U.S. Rt. 219 in Gortner by Dep. J. Murphy. When the pair were asked to vacate the car, apparently a plastic baggie dropped to the ground which contained a green leafy substance suspected to be marijuana.

Polce was charged with driving while intoxicated (DWI), possession of a CDS, and driving with a revoked license. He was released from the Garrett County jail after posting a $1,000 bond.

Winters was released on his own recognizance, charged with CDS possession.

A Deer Park man was arrested on several CDS charges Saturday after a search warrant was executed at a residence on Peach Tree Lane.

James L. Nicholas, 25, was charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia, possession with intent to distribute, manufacturing marijuana, and maintaining a common nuisance.

Other arrests are pending in the case, according to a sheriff's office spokesperson.

Nicholas was released after posting a $10,000 bond, or a percentage thereof. The bond, set by the District Court, was originally $25,000.

Also arrested for CDS possession was John L. Tasker, 24, Oakland, in a separate case.

Tasker was stopped near Red House by Dep. J. Murphy and was charged with DWI. Further inspection of the defendant's vehicle revealed a plastic baggie containing suspected marijuana.

Tasker's arrest took place on Oct. 9. He remains in the G.C.

Herrington Manor Bridge To Open At 6 P.M. Friday

Garrett County Roads Department Supervisor Paul Shockey announced today that the bridge on the Herrington Manor Road, just west of Oakland, will open Friday at 6 p.m. for use by the public.

The bridge has been under construction this summer and recently experienced delays in the re-opening. Shockey stated that although the bridge is not entirely completed, it will be open during the Autumn Glory Festival and will be safe for the public to use.

The bridge will then be completed while one lane is kept open for use, he said.

Commissioners Grant Additional Funds For Southern High Renovation

The Garrett County Commissioners announced this morning that the money asked for by the Garrett Co. Board of Education will be given to proceed with the groundwork for two outstanding alternatives in the Southern High School renovation.

Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, Superintendent of Schools, asked the commissioners for an additional $42,800 on Sept. 25 to cover expenses of the two alternatives, which are a storage area for athletic equipment, and connecting corridors between the main school building and the outlying buildings.

Ryscavage stated at the time that the board felt "very, very strongly" about the need for both alternatives.

The money received by the school board will finance the building of a basic "shell" of both structures, including footers and floor joists. There will be no paint nor electricity. Both projects will be completed over time.

John Morris, assistant superintendent of administration, explained to the commissioners on Oct. 25 that the footers would have be poured in the very near future, as the area will soon be inaccessible to heavy machinery because of construction cur-

DHMH Advises Elderly To Receive Pneumococcal, Influenza Vaccines

The Division of Immunization of the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DHMH) is urging older adults and people of any age with chronic health problems to be immunized against pneumococcal pneumonia and against influenza, specifically Type A-Taiwan, Type A-Shanghai, and Type B-Yamagata influenza.

The pneumococcal vaccine protects against pneumococcal (an infection of the lungs) and other serious diseases caused by the Streptococcus pneumoniae bacterium.

"Pneumococcal pneumonia is a common cause of death in the elderly and others with chronic medical conditions," said Diane Dwyer, M.D., chief of the DHMH Center for Clinical Epidemiology. "It's estimated that of the half a million cases that occur in U.S. every year, up to 40,000 people die of this disease," she said.

"Most people only need one shot of pneumococcal vaccine," said Dr. Dwyer. "If you had a shot within the last five years, you probably don't need another one. If it has been six years or more since you had a pneumococcal vaccine, your doctor may recommend that you receive a second shot," she said.

The pneumococcal vaccine can be administered at the same time as the influenza vaccine, but different sites on the body should be used.

"It is vitally important for the elderly and people with chronic

Man Convicted Of Child Abuse Given 10 Years

A Swanton man was sentenced to 10 years in jail by Judge Fred A. Thayer of the Garrett County Circuit Court, after being found guilty of child abuse.

Rocky L. Hardesty, 26, allegedly committed child abuse against a five-year-old female in February while caring for the child in the absence of her mother. According to court documents, the victim reported three separate abuse incidents.

Original charges against Hardesty also included second degree sex offense, unnatural and perverted sex practice, and assault and battery, all of which were not prosecuted.

Hardesty pleaded not guilty in an August hearing, but was found guilty by the court, and a pre-sentence investigation was ordered by Judge Thayer.

The 10-year sentence, with credit for time served, in the Maryland Department of Corrections (DOC) was given to Hardesty on Oct. 4, and on Oct. 5, defendant announces that he will attempt to appeal the sentence. A circuit court spokesperson said that the notice of appeal will go to the Special Appeals of Maryland.

As long as two months may pass before the Board of Appeals makes its decision known as to whether or not Hardesty will be permitted to proceed with the action, the spokesperson said.

Hardesty remains in the Garrett County Jail. Defense

Televised Meeting On Education Attended By 50

Approximately 50 viewers including teachers, parents, and supervisors were in attendance at the Broad Ford Elementary School last evening for a televised "town meeting," broadcast on Maryland Public Television and shown on three televisions in the auditorium.

The hour-long program highlighted Dr. Joseph Shilling, State Superintendent of Schools, who discussed at length initiatives for the future of Maryland schools, entitled "Success For All Students."

The meeting was an open forum for questions concerning the new program, which was called "the most sweeping proposal ever attempted."

Other representatives on the panel were Maureen Lamb, past president of the Md. Assn. of Counties; Paul Shelby, president of the Md. Assn. of Boards of Education; Jane Stern, Maryland State Teachers' Association president; and Del. Howard Rawlings.

Mandatory kindergarten, and extension of the existing 180-day school year to 200 days, and mandatory school attendance until age 18 were three of the ten initiatives focused on in the discussion.

Some of the promises made by Shilling if the program is completely implemented include 95 percent of Maryland students will be prepared for the first grade, 100 percent will be functionally literate, 50 percent will achieve excellence, and a higher percentage of students will go on to higher education.

Shilling said accountability for these improvements will be put more heavily on teachers and principals than ever before. Teachers will have to be re-certified, and their performance will be evaluated more often.

Another aspect of the program is the installation of computers in every Maryland school. A ratio of one computer for every ten students is the goal.

The purposes of these initiatives are varied, yet they all point toward preparing Maryland children for the future, Shilling stated. The reason for the computers in every school is to raise student interest in technology.

According to Shilling, of all Maryland students currently in college, one percent of the students are majoring in math, and only four percent are majoring in the sciences combined.

"The workforce in the year 2000 is going to consist of high-tech workers, not factory laborers. We need to prepare the kids for the future," he said.

Del. Rawlings added that our country is losing its competitive edge rapidly, and that only Belgium has a shorter school year than the United States. All other countries' children are in school anywhere from 200 to 240 days a year, he said.

WOMEN HONORED — National Business Women's Week (October 14-20) was officially proclaimed in the area by the Board of Garrett County Commissioners. The county officials commended the 44 million women now in the nation's work force. They noted that the major goals of business and professional women are to help create better conditions for business women through the study of social, educational, economical, and political problems. The commissioners urged all citizens in Garrett County to join in their salute to working women "by encouraging and promoting the celebration of the achievements of all business and professional women as they contribute daily to to our economic, civic, and cultural purposes. On hand for the proclamation signing were, left to right, Commissioner Elwood Groves II; Cosette Harman, member of the Garrett County BPW; Bea Crosco, National Business Women's Week committee member; Lisa Thayer, president of the Garrett County BPW; Commissioner Ernest Gregg Jr.; and Commissioner John G. Braskey.

The added twenty days, already approved by the Maryland State Board of Education, sparked debate in the program more than any other issue. The cost of the addition will exceed $100 million, which was a sore point to many. Other protestations concerned children's time in the home, and the extention of the teachers' work year.

Shilling defended the added time, saying the days will significantly increase the length of learning time for students, and that at present, much learning is lost in the summer months and a remedy is needed for that loss.

Maureen Lamb stated that although the program has many worthy aspirations, the fact remains that the money needed for almost all of the initiatives is simply not available, especially to the poorer counties.

After the panel discussion ended, Dr. Jerome Ryscavage fielded questions by those in attendance, which dealt mainly with the 20 added days and with the money availability to Garrett County, which is one of the poorer counties in Maryland school systems.

The Superintendent stated that "our youngsters are simply not being treated fairly in this state because of where they live." He expressed the hope that the program may help in changing the problem.

Ryscavage also discussed the mandatory testing which is already planned for January 1991, and that "a good deal more pressure" will be put upon teacher and principal performance.

"One of our goals is to raise the percentage of our students who go on to higher education. Presently, 37 percent go on to college from Garrett County, but the statewide average is 50 percent," he said.

Ryscavage noted that he was pleased with the turnout, and that there were parents and teachers alike willing to spend the evening to discuss the oncoming changes in the school system. He urged those in attendance to return on Oct. 30 for the next meeting, at which time the candidates for the local education board will speak.

Two Animals Confirmed Rabid By Health Dept.

Two more cases of rabid animals in the area have been confirmed by the Garrett County Health Department, one involving a raccoon and the other a skunk.

Alice Long reported an incident to the health department that occurred on Oct. 4 at her resident on Old Morgantown Road, near the Cove.

Apparently, a raccoon come on to the Long's porch and fought with their dog. Gary Long then killed the raccoon. The pet had been vaccinated a week prior to the incident, however, because dogs do not build up a sufficient immunity to the disease for 30 days, the animal was destroyed.

Rodney Glotfelty, assistant director of the Garrett County Environmental Health Department, said that six people came into contact with the dog shortly after the encounter. Although after a physician's examination they were not required to undergo post-exposure treatment, Glotfelty stressed again that people should absolutely not handle pets for at least two hours after an encounter with a rabid animal.

Two hours is the time needed for the fatal virus to die if it has been transmitted to the fur of a pet. If a person has a small cut on his hands, the virus can be transmitted to him if he handles his pet immediately after an encounter.

The post-exposure treatment can cost as much as $500, Glotfelty said.

The 37th rabies case reportedly occurred at the Brite Warnick residence on Twin Churches Road, off of New Germany Road.

Warnick's unvaccinated dog fought with a rabid skunk on Tuesday, and the skunk was killed.

The pet will be euthanized today, Sanitarian Tina Buckel said.

A rising number of cases are occurring near the New Germany Road area, Glotfelty said, and residents in that area should take the proper precautions by having their pets vaccinated, and by being alert to the dangerous disease.

Sierra Club To Host Forum On Land-Use Planning

A public forum on coming events in land-use planning for Maryland, sponsored by the Sierra Club, Western Maryland Group, will be held at 7 p.m., Tuesday, October 16, in the Unitarian Church, Cumberland. The speaker will be Miss Ann Swanson, executive director, Chesapeake Bay Commission, and a senior council member of the Maryland Year 2020 Commission created by Governor Schaefer. A panel of county and state planning officials will respond to Miss Swanson's presentation.

The panel will include the chief planners of the Planning & Zoning Boards in Allegany and Garrett counties, Benjamin R. Sansom and John Nelson, and Al Feldstein, Maryland Office of Planning in Cumberland. Elected officials and planning staffs of the three Western Maryland counties have been invited to attend the public forum.

The forum will give a local preview of a land-use planning process now being adjusted to address urgent issues. Some of these issues are: population growth, distribution and density, sustainable development, conservation of agricultural and forest lands, the environment and the impact of these factors on land values, jobs, taxes, and the quality of life.

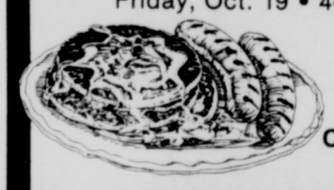

The Chesapeake Bay Commission, of which Miss Swanson is executive director, is a tri-state legislative advisory group composed of the governors, five delegates and senators, and one citizen representative from each of the three member states: Maryland, Virginia, and Pennsylvania. As executive director, Swanson oversees the policy and legislative development and regulatory review programs affecting the management of Chesapeake Bay.

In 1988, Swanson was asked to staff and serve as an alternate member of the Year 2020 Panel. This group of 12 experts was asked to make recommendations to the three member states' governors and legislators on the future of population growth and development on the Chesapeake Bay watershed.

Following release of the Year 2020 Panel report, Governor Schaefer created the Maryland Year 2020 Commission to respond to the Panel's recommendations. Miss Swanson now serves as a senior council member to that group. She also provides technical support to the Virginia Commission on Population Growth and Development, a body also formed to respond to the 2020 Panel's recommendations.

The October 16 forum is open to the public. Driving directions are: in Cumberland, westbound on Rt. 48, take the Beall St. exit, 43A, go right on Lee St., the Unitarian Church is on the right in the first block; eastbound, take the Johnson St. exit, 43A, go north to Greene St., left one or two blocks (past Sheetz on left) to Lee St., go left on Lee. The church is in the second or third block on the left. For parking, persons should go to the church rear, east on Paca St., at north end of church block, then right on lane to parking on right; or, if not in use, Teamster's Hall parking lot, diagonally across from the church.

BPW To Honor Peggy Jamison, Bausch And Lomb

The Garrett County Business and Professional Women's Club has named Peggy Jamison, Oakland, as the "Woman of the Year" for National Business Women's Week and awarded Bausch and Lomb, Inc., Mtn. Lake Park, "Employer of the Year."

The "Woman of the Year" award is given to women who have distinguished themselves in their careers and in their communities.

Ms. Jamison is employed in the Garrett County Planning and Zoning Office as Planner II. She was appointed by Governor William Donald Schaefer to serve as Garrett County's representative on the land reclamation committee in July of 1987. She continues to serve on that committee.

A graduate of Chatham College, Pittsburgh, Pa., she holds a B.A. degree in administration and management.

Ms. Jamison has participated in volunteer work with Whitewater Championships, Inc. and "Best of the West" Triathlon.

An active member of the Garrett County Business and Professional Women's Organization, she has served as treasurer for two years. This past March she was elected to the Oakland Town Council.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jamison, Pittsburgh, Pa. and Deep Creek Lake.

Receiving the "Employer of the Year" award is Bausch and Lomb. The honor is given to employers who promote and encourage the advancement of working women, and provide opportunities for advancement and career growth.

Bausch and Lomb began its manufacturing operations in February of 1971 and has committed itself to improving the representation of women holding upper level and key positions," said a BPW spokesperson.

The plant utilizes tuition assistance programs available to employees pursuing degrees. There are also external programs and on-site seminars provided and paid for by the company.

The spokesperson commented, "BPW salutes these initiatives and wishes to praise the leaders of Bausch and Lomb and encourage their efforts to continue to recognize working women."

BPW is the world's oldest and largest organization for working women. Since it was organized in 1919, it has fought for increased opportunities and recognition for all working women.

Jamison and Bausch and Lomb will be honored at a dinner at Will O' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake, on Thursday, October 18, at 6:30 p.m.

In addition, they will have the opportunity to be recognized on the state level by the Maryland Federation of Business and Professional Women at its National Business Women's Week banquet, October 27 at the Holiday Inn in Cumberland.

Members Of U.S. Whitewater Team Train At Savage

Several contenders for the U.S. Whitewater Slalom Team to participate in the 1992 Olympics in Barcelona, Spain, trained on the Savage River this past weekend. Bill Endicott, coach of the U.S. team, brought several seasoned and aspiring athletes to the Savage for three days of rigorous training to prepare them for future events, including the '92 Olympics.

The Garrett County Board of Education hosted several of the athletes by arranging for them to stay at Camp Hickory during their training.

World Championships, Inc., provided logistical support for the teams training. Senator John N. Bambacus, president of the organization, indicated he was pleased to see the athletes, including several from Maryland area, training for the Olympics here in Western Maryland. World Championships, Inc., is bidding for the U.S. Olympic team trials on the Savage River in 1992.

The Senator also indicated that World Championships, Inc., is pursuing, with the support of Governor William Donald Schaefer, possibilities for holding a Whitewater Olympic event on the Savage River in conjunction with the 1996 United States Olympic summer games.

Two Injured In Saturday Mishap On Md. Rt. 135

Two persons were injured Saturday in a two-vehicle accident that occurred on Md. Route 135 at Mtn. Lake Park, according to reports filed by the Maryland State Police at McHenry.

Renota R. Murphy, 31, Oakland, and her seven-year-old son, Nathan, were taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad following the 11:40 a.m. mishap where they were treated and later released. Her other son, Andrew Murphy, aged three, was apparently not injured.

The accident occurred when Murphy was stopped in her 1984 Dodge on Rt. 135 preparing to turn left onto G Street. Her vehicle was rear-ended by a 1986 Pontiac Sunbird, operated by Maria J. Rhodes, 18, Oakland.

Neither Rhodes nor a passenger in her vehicle, Eric Sines, 19, Oakland, were injured in the mishap, according to the report filed by Tpr. W.E. Wilson.

Rhodes was charged with failure to control her vehicle to avoid a collision.

A Piedmont, W.Va. man sustained injuries in a one-vehicle accident last Thursday on Rt. 135.

State Police said Allen W. Beavers, 29, was operating a 1988 Chevrolet S-10 pickup east on Rt. 135 when he topped a grade and observed a slow-moving vehicle in front of him. He reportedly applied his brakes, went into a skid and ran off the left side of the roadway.

The vehicle struck an embankment and rolled over on its side before coming to rest.

Beavers was transported to Sacred Heart Hospital in Cumberland by George's Creek Rescue Squad where he was treated for injuries and later released.

Tfc. John E. Foley investigated and indicated that charges are pending in the 2:45 p.m. accident.

Two persons were injured in a head-on crash last Thursday on the Oakland-Deer Park Road at the King's Run Road, police said.

Rodney H. Bird Sr., 31, Deer Park, and his wife Constance Bird, 31, were taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Rescue Squad where they were treated and later released.

The 11:13 a.m. mishap occurred when a 1985 Subaru, operated by Samuel G. Moon, 21, Oakland, rounded a curve causing the driver to lose control. The vehicle crossed the center line and struck the 1988 Chevrolet pickup operated by Rodney Bird.

Moon was charged with failure to keep right of center by Tpr. W. E. Dixon who investigated the accident.

DWI NOTED

Tpr. J.T. Bentlejewski arrested Judy L. Hunter, 21, Friendsville, for driving while under the influence of alcohol on Wednesday, October 3.

WEPCO Credit Union To Open Oakland Office

WEPCO Federal Credit Union, Route 135, and North Branch Avenue, Bloomington, recently made purchase of property in the Oakland area for construction of a branch office.

WEPCO purchased property located on Route 219 North, less than one mile from downtown Oakland, next to the Garrett County Roads Department and directly across from the Oakland Super Valu Market. Currently located on the left side of the property is a garage/building, which will be torn down to allow room for construction of the branch and ample parking for members.

WEPCO anticipates the Oakland branch will open sometime within the first quarter of 1991, offering a full line of financial services to members, with savings share draft (checking), Christmas Club, and IRA accounts, plus over 30 different types of loan packages, all at competitive interest rates. The Credit Union offers several free and low cost services to members, and credit deposits the same day they're received, allowing members immediate access to their money, according to a WEPCO spokesman.

The spokesman said WEPCO Federal Credit Union operates similarly to other financial institutions; However, it is non-profit and returns two out of every three dollars of its revenue to the members by way of dividends and/or lower interest rates. WEPCO is governed and insured for up to $100,000 per account with the National Credit Union Administration, an agency of the United States Government. The Credit Union is not open to the public, although it does admit groups upon request. Groups interested in joining the Credit Union may call 1-800-292-8139 for more information.
